New York, Jan. 14.—Now that Frank Chance has been signed as manager of the New York Americans at a reported salary of $25,000, this record brings the total pay of eight prominent baseball managers up to $100,000 a year, according to figures published here to-day. While a salary of $5,000 was a rarety ten or fifteen years ago, to-day there are at least eight managers supposed to be drawing a salary of $10,000 or over.

The list headed by Chance also includes McGraw, of the New York Nationals, at $18,000; Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, at $15,000; Jennings, of the Detroit Americans, same; Clarke, of Pittsburg, $12,000; Stahl, of the Boston Americans; Turner, of Cincinnati, and Griffith, of Washington, all $10,000.

In addition to this, Mack, Stahl and Griffith each own stock in their clubs.

WON AT PORT HOPE

Juniors Lead at Half 7-0 and Finished 13-2

It was 13-2 at Port Hope last-night with the Peterborough Juniors on the big end of the tally. At half time Port Hope had failed to score while their visitors were seven to the good.

The Petes played a combination game throughout and always had the contest going their way.

The teams were—

Port Hope		Peterboro
Clements	Goal	Flowers
Hubbs	Point	Cavanah
Hill	Cover	Morrow
Rowden	Rover	Halpin
F. Hill	Centre	Rose
Forsythe	Right Wing	Long

STRATHS HAD ONE TO SPARE

Defeated the Exploit By Score of 5-4 in Exciting Game

Two of the fastest junior hockey teams that have ever jumped onto the ice on Brock street rink—the Strathconas and the Exploits—came together last night and put up as warm a battle as spectators might wish to see. The result was a win for the Strathconas by the narrow margin of one goal — just enough to have an argument as to which is the better team. That question will likely be settled by one or more games.

The count at half time was 4—1 for the Straths, and at the finish 5—4. A few minutes before the end the Exploits tied up the contest at 4—4, and there was all kinds of excitement. The red and white team, however, got the deciding goal.

The Exploits played clever combination throughout the second half, and were just a little better than their opponents. Had they paid more attention to team play, and not done so much slashing and chopping, earlier in the fray, the chances are that they would have emerged as victors.

Two of their best men are Rogers at centre and Bain at rover. This pair exhibited some pretty stickhandling and combination and if they pay strict attention to business and play the puck instead of the other fellow's shins, each will move forward into faster company. Smith and Armstrong with Hall in goal were a strong defence for the winners. Bartley does a lot of good work at right wing, but would be more effective if he too played the puck. Matthews was one of the most prominent performers for the Straths, and his rink-end rush and score was one of the features of the game.

The teams were:

STRATHCONAS.
Hall
Smith
Armstrong
Bartley, Knapman, Matthews
O
Butcher, Rogers, Wolff
Bain
Galvin
Grady

FORT WAYNE WANTS THE CASH

For Release of Shaughnessy to Ottawa Club

Ottawa, Jan. 14—The Ottawa Baseball Club will have to pay $750 for Frank Shaughnessy's release from Fort Wayne. The owner, Varnell of the Fort Wayne club, is none too anxious to let him go at that figure. "Shag" won a pennant for the Fort Wayne team last summer.

Jockey's Rise and Fall.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Grover Cleveland Fuller, a jockey, who made $300,000 for James R. Keene and $75,000 for himself in one season ten years ago, pleaded guilty yesterday to having stolen a pocketbook containing a few pennies from an acquaintance in an uptown saloon. He was remanded for sentence Friday. Fuller said he had not been doing anything lately except "drifting."

Queer.

Ethel—There is one feature about this engagement that I don't like.

Maude—And what is it, dear?

Ethel—Jack didn't have to go to the jeweler's for the engagement ring. He simply went up to his room and got it. —Fun Magazine.

LOADING OIL FUEL

The British Government has completed a set of tests, upon the advisibility of oil bunkering on battleships going at a high speed.

Apparently the most modern and biggest of battleships are able to take on oil when traveling at a speed of nearly twenty knots, towing behind them the oil tank vessel from which the oil is obtained.

It is possible to take on about 100 tons per hour while traveling at this speed, and as 100 tons of oil fuel on a motorship is equivalent to about 400 tons of coal, or more, the importance of this point can be at once realized.

Brass hose of about five inches in diameter is generally employed, this having been found the best for all purposes, and the distance of the ship from the tanker is generally about 200 yards.

A Family of Fifty-Four.

The King has sent a telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Savage, of Frog's Hall, Cavendish village, Suffolk, England, congratulating them on the 73rd anniversary of their wedding. Within a few miles of their present residence both have lived during the whole of their lives. Mr. Savage is 94, and still spends a considerable portion of his time in the garden, while his wife is but two years younger. Five of the ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. Savage are still alive, and they have 19 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren—a family of 54 in all.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

1,000,000 TOO MANY.

Britain's Surplus Women Constitute a Serious Problem.

If you had 1,000,000 women to support and talk to—or be talked to—that would be about 999,999 more than you want, wouldn't it? If you can conceive of such a state of affairs, you can gain some idea of the situation that confronts England.

Now what would you do with them. That's what England wants to know.

It is really a serious problem that John Bull has to solve and it is worrying him almost as much as the German situation is. The British registrar-general is the man who discovered the startling fact that the female members of England's population outnumber the males by about a million and a quarter.

But the extra 250,000 are not of vital importance. It may be that they were simply thrown in for good measure by the census takers, who have just recently finished their work. It is the "million too many" that are causing both statesmen and marriageable men to become grey.

If any one, or any nation, or any number of nations, will consent to accept a deed to these 1,000,000 women Mr. Bull will be only too glad to give the odd 250,000 as a bonus. The problem is to find some one who wants one million women.

Thus far the "1,000,000 too many women" don't know that they are a drug on the matrimonial market and the men of England are trying to keep the fact a secret. Who knows what might happen if they should form a league or army and take a determined stand. If they did, no unmarried man would be safe, and wives would probably have to surround their husbands with guards. But even that would be impossible, for if the guards were men they too would have to be guarded—and there aren't enough men in the country to do that.

"Of course, it would be a terrible calamity for us personally if a million of the daughters of Great Britain were to leave us suddenly," declared the registrar-general. "There would be a few of us who would not feel the wrench, but for a time life would seem very blank indeed.

"But, looking at the matter economically or coldbloodedly—if about a million women took it into their heads to emigrate it would be about the best thing that could possibly happen to the country.

"The fact that we have these more than a million marriageable women in the country means that they must look about for some means of keeping themselves.

"This will naturally lead to an encroachment of women upon the fields of labor which have always belonged to men, for it is well known that less money is paid for women clerks than for men.

"The market for clerical labor in England is already well overstocked, and what is more natural than that an employer should prefer to engage a cheap worker to a more expensive one; provided, of course, she is just as competent and suits his purpose all right."

A Movable Town.

There is a town, Gartok, in Tibet, which moves twice every year. For three months of the year it is situated at the place where it is designated on the map. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about forty miles farther south, at a must lower altitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up and, driving the herds of yaks, sheep and goats, moves up to the higher altitude, and the traders from India at once begin to drift in. Trade continues for three months; then, before the severe Tibetan winter begins the town moves back.

The Black Bean Club.

One of the fantastic clubs of London is the Black Bean Club, limited to forty members, each of whom pays an entrance fee of $50 and a similar amount as annual subscription. They meet only once a year, and then a bag is passed round, containing thirty-nine white beans and one black bean. The member who picks the black bean is compelled to get married within the ensuing twelve months, and the remainder solemnly vow to remain single until the next meeting. A house is furnished for the prospective bridegroom out of the funds of the club, which also bears the cost of the wedding festivities and of a three weeks' honeymoon.

The Ontario Government spent over $400,000 this year in building colonization roads. W. Bennett, superintendent of construction, has made a report to the Government showing that nearly all of the appropriation of $428,000 had been expended on roads in New Ontario, and a few of the northern sections of the undeveloped counties bordering on that part of the province. The wet weather caused a set-back early in the season, but during the past few months great progress was made. In the case of about one-third of the roads, the municipalities contributed one-half the cost of their construction

CURE THAT COLD

This is Quickly and Pleasantly Accomplished If You Use

Catarrhozone

Catarrhozone will relieve colds almost instantly and in a few hours will cure completely. If it is old-standing asthma or bronchitis its quick and curative results will astonish you.

Catarrhozone is little drops of healing medicine carried by air to the sore and diseased parts. You breathe them through the Catarrhozone Inhaler and they spread throughout all the air passages.

It is sense as well as healing, because Catarrhozone is a germ killer, a healer and restorer of weak tissues, because it is so prompt and certain in its results, better than any other remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is neither alcohol, morphia or cocaine—all dangerous.

Tens of thousands have used Catarrhozone without reporting a single case of failure to cure diseases of the throat and lungs and nasal passages.

Remember, CATARRHOZONE is taken in air, and is little drops of healing for the throat, nasal passages, or lungs. It always does cure—is guaranteed.

Price 25c., 50c., and $1.00 at all druggists or by mail, post paid, from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

EXPROPRIATE DISTRIBUTION PLANT OF P. L. AND P. CO'Y

At last night's Council meeting, after some deliberation between the Mayor, the City Solicitor and Alderman Johnston the latter brought in the following resolution:

"That legisltaion be sought authorizing the city to expropriate the distribution plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company and their house lighting connections from poles to stores or dwellings, or to acquire a street or house-lighting and power distributing system without buying out any company. The resolution was carried.

Alderman Buller asked for legislation to have the Mayor appointed an ex-officio member of the Water Commissioners and the Board of Education and any other public body that might in future be organized such as a Hydro-Electric Commission.

Ald Gillespie— "The Mayor has enough to do at present and I can't see where he will secure sufficient time to attend to any more duties."

Mayor Bradburn — "It simply means gentlemen, that you are going to load the Mayor up so much that he will have no time for his own business or none for his home."

Ald. Buller— "These various bodies all come to the city for appropriations from time to time and we are ignorant of what is being done in these various departments."

Mayor Bradburn— "The Board of Education and the Water Commissioners are elected by the people, and if the latter don't think their money is being expended properly why let them elect a new school board."

Alderman Gordon finally seconded Ald. Buller's resolution but it was not put to vote. City Solicitor Hall contended that it was directly opposed to the Act.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A by-law appointing Alderman G. H. Duncan, James Murty and Dr. Young to be the three new members of the Board of Health passed its several readings.

A by-law appointing Mr. Frank Lollitt to the Peterborough Library Board carried successfully. His term of membership on the Board will be three years.

A by-law appointing Alderman J. C. Anderson as a member of the committee to look after the charitable distribution of the funds named in the will of the late Elmira Grover Foley, was carried in its three readings.

A by-law authorizing the Peterborough City Trust to purchase eleven acres of land for future industrial purposes for the sum of $15 000 received its three endorsements.

The three by-law's authorizing the issue of debentures for $11,500, $10,000 and $120,000, each passed their third and last readings and were signed and sealed.

FIRE CHIEF ASKS FOR AN INCREASE

Wants $300 Added to His Present Salary of $1200

Fire Chief W. A. Howard requested an increase in salary last evening in a communication to the Council. His yearly stipend is now $1200 but the increase in duties and the satisfactory manner in which he hoped they were being discharged, compelled him to ask for $1500.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee will decide.

City Relief Officer Miller also asked for an increase owing to the extra relief work involved by the growth of the city. The Finance Committee will consider the request.

Dr. N. H. Sutton put in a claim for $4 to repay him for damage to the windshield of his auto, caused by a depression in the road in East City. The Legal Committee will take up the matter.

SEPARATE COMMISSION FOR HYDRO ELECTRIC

The Recommendation of Ald. Gordon But Council do not Fall in Line—Legislation Gives the Job to the Water Commissioners

At the meeting of the Council last night ,a discussion arose over a clause added to a motion introduced by Alderman Gordon. The clause in question was one recommending application being made to the Government for legislation, authorizing the appointment of a commission to deal with the Hydro-Electric proceedings in the city. The wording of the clause was: "That notice of motion be given the Government asking for legislation to give Council permission to elect or appoint commissioners to deal with the Hydro-Electric. Around this motion the storm of discussion waged the hottest for nearly half an hour. Alderman Gordon was the warmest kind of an advocate and stoutly defended his conviction that such procedure was right.

It appears that the City Council of some years ago, at the time Hydro was first broached, secured legislation, giving Water Commissioners all authority in the matter of municipal power as well as water. This, however, Alderman Gordon said, was no reason why the present Council should content itself with allowing them to handle the Hydro-Electric plant after its installation here. He was confident that the Commissioners would not feel slighted or construe the taking of it off their hands as a reflection on their ability or competency to handle such matters. He also thought that Alderman Johnston as head of the Power Committee should be given authority to consult Hon. Adam Beck relative to Hydro power and secure his opinion on the proposed adoption of a commission system to oversee the installation and management of the proposed power.

Other members of the Council, including the Mayor, Aldermen Duncan, Greene, Langford and Buller, felt that there was no immediate necessity or urgency, and that it would be ample time to attempt to secure legislation after the Hydro had been introduced in 1914. This, however, Alderman Gordon said would be too late.

Alderman Gillespie's motion that no action be taken carried and the clause of Alderman Gordon therefore was not attached to the motion following which the discussion had developed. The motion was that legislation be asked giving the Mayor authority to stamp his signature on debenture coupons instead of having to sign them by hand, and also to authorize the issuing of debentures to retire old debentures. This motion carried.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL EXPENSES IN EXCESS OF WHAT THEY SHOULD BE

"Grossest extravagance"; "simply astounding"; "a leakage somewhere," were some of the words used by Ald. Gordon last evening in describing what he considered the expensive plan in which the Isolation Hospital was conducted. He thought that the expenses of the institution were altogether in excess of what they should be and urged the stoppage of the leak wherever it existed, and the keeping of a closer check on the expenditures.

He moved that the council recommend the Board of Health to investigate the accounts and management of the Hospital and endeavor to devise a scheme for more economically running the institution.

In seconding the resolution Ald. Anderson agreed with Ald. Gordon, that the expenses were altogether too high in maintaining the Hospital, and that extravagance existed somewhere. He pointed out the fact in the nine months ending September $773.10 had been spent in groceries and provisions and $50.80 in drugs alone.

"To my mind it would look more as if they were conducting a restaurant or eating house, up there."

SACRED HEART RINK OPEN AND READY FOR BUSINESS

On account of mild weather the large Sacred Heart skating rink was somewhat delayed in getting started this season, but is now in first class condition and ready for business.

ST. JOHN'S ASSOCIATION

Provided Pleasant evening in the Schoolroom

A literary meeting of the St. John's Association was held in the schoolroom last night, Mr. W. H. Cluxton presided. A most interesting paper on "Mental Telepathy" was given by Mr. W. F. Johnson, giving numerous well authenticated instances of this wonderful and but little understood subject.

Mr. Harris Baritone, a member of the choir gave a very fine rendition of the song "Thora" accompanied by Mr. R. J. Devey, and Mr. Cyril Devey also contributed a well played solo.

The second paper, by Mr. C. E. Jamieson, was a cleverly given description of humor in literature, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

IS A
MONEY SAVER

The Generous Response to Our Semi-Annual Sale is proof of the appreciation of the best that Canada can produce, in Clothing for Men and Boys. It is an easy matter to write a huge, glaring advertisement about goods marked down, and another thing to produce the goods when the demand is made for them.

WE DON'T MARK GOODS DOWN

Simply come in and ask to see our Suits and Overcoats.
They are all marked in plain figures—

Any You See Marked $13.50 or $15.00 is yours for $9.95

Any You See Marked $18.00 to $22.00 is yours for 14.95

These all have the SOVEREIGN BRAND LABEL and the same guarantee as if you paid full price.

Money's Worth or Money Back

We still have some good strong WORKING SUITS that we are going to clear to the last one for only $5.00

HORRORS OF CAMPAIGN IN WINTER SEEM LIKELY

Allies Declare That They Are Prepared to Resume the Conflict and Turkey is Standing Pat—Will Give Four Days Notice of Hostilities.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Unless unforseen events should change the current of affairs, the war in the near east will be resumed within a week, and Europe will witness the horrors of a winter campaign.

The allies have fairly made up their minds to take up arms a second time. The Turks last week were threatening to leave London and let matters take whatever course they might. Now the Balkan delegates are convinced that the Turks are merely drifting, without a fixed policy, and they have decided to end the seemingly fruitless debates and wire-pulling and begin the battles anew where they left off more than a month ago.

The Ottoman Government failed to convene the grand council yesterday and apparently has no intention of meeting the allies' ultimatum on Adrianople. The allies do not believe in the efficacy of the note which the powers will present at Constantinople, because it is couched in too mild terms and simply advises Turkey to submit to the fate of war and abandon Adrianople for fear of complications in other parts of the empire, at a time when Turkey could not find moral or financial support in Europe.

The Turkish Government knows that this means nothing, because it is aware that the powers will be unable to agree on any coercive measures. Thus the presentation by the powers of the note, it is pointed out, might mean simply the opening up of a new chapter in the already wearisome diplomatic parleying and the shifting of the debates from one between the belligerents to one between Turkey and the powers.

After their second resort to arms, the Balkan delegates assert, their peace terms will be different from those which Turkey is now rejecting. They declare that Bulgaria will not be satisfied with a frontier line from Rodosto to Midia, but will draw it just before the gates of Constantinople, and they suggest a war indemnity of $200,000,000 or more.

PERMANENT NAVAL POLICY WILL GO TO THE PEOPLE

But Granting of Immediate and Effective Aid is Necessary Says Premier.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Correspondence which passed between the Prime Minister and Hon. F. D. Monk when the latter resigned as a member of the Government under the naval question was tabled in the Commons yesterday. It adds but very little to what was already known of the differences between the ex-Minister of Public Works and his colleagues, and shows that their personal relations were not in the slightest strained. Mr. Monk's letter of resignation says:

"My Dear Premier,—I regret to find that I cannot concur in the decision arrived at by the Cabinet yesterday to place on behalf of Canada an emergency contribution of $35,000,000 at the disposal of the British Government for naval purposes, with the sanction of Parliament about to assemble, but without giving the Canadian people an opportunity of expressing its approval of this important step before it is taken.

"Such a concurrence would be at variance with my pledges, and the act proposed is of sufficient gravity to justify my insistence; it goes beyond the scope of the constitutional act of 1867. Holding this view, as a member of your Cabinet, I feel it is my duty to place my resignation in your hands.

"Permit me to add that my decision has been reached with regret, on account of my agreeable relations at all times with yourself. Yours sincerely,
(Signed) "F. D. Monk."

The Premier's reply was written two days later. In it he says regarding the naval program:

"I received this morning, with very deep regret, the letter by which you place in my hands your resignation as a member of the Government. The information which has been placed before us by his Majesty's Government disclose so grave a situation that in my judgment the granting of immediate and effective aid is necessary in the interest of this Dominion, as part of the British Empire. Such a step is entirely of a temporary character, and is absolutely distinct from a permanent policy of co-operation in Imperial defence, which, when formulated, ought to be placed before the people for their consideration and approval."

PUBLIC WORKS OUTLAYS.

Auditor-General's Report Devoid of Criticisms.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Volume three of the report of the Auditor-General, just published, gives in minutest detail, the expenditure of the public works, state and trade and commerce departments, but is peculiarly devoid of criticisms or correspondence. The more interesting parts of the report are yet to come.

There was no correspondence on public works affairs, and the only matters upon which some explanations were asked concerned certain estimates for the Holland River division of the Trent Canal and an appropriation towards two grade separations north of Barrie.

The total cost was $12,083, and of this $4,833 was charge to the railway grade crossing fund. This latter amount is equal to forty per cent. of the cost, whereas the act authorises payment of only twenty per cent. For that reason payment has been held up.

Naval Cadets to Go.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Arrangements have been made with the British Admiralty to take the nineteen naval cadets, who have just graduated from the naval college at Halifax, for further training aboard H.M.S. Berwick, one of the training ships stationed at Chatham, Eng. The cadets will leave Halifax for England on Feb. 1.

Child Badly Scalded.

KINGSTON, Jan. 15.—Lilian Wells, aged five years, daughter of John Wells, was terribly scalded about the feet. While the little tot's mother was out scalding water was poured out of the kettle on the stove on to her.

Cipriano Grows Peevish.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Gen. Cipriano Castro spent a fretful day in his room at the immigration station on Ellis Island yesterday, and sent out his valet many times to enquire if the special board of enquiry had determined whether he should be permitted to land or should be deported. He was given small satisfaction and this increased his irritation. It was reported that the board had completed its investigation and sent its report to Washington. This was denied at the office of Commissioner Williams.

HUGE OUTLAY ON THE NAVY BY GREAT BRITAIN

Expenditure of About $240,000,000 is Planned—Estimates Nearly Completed.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—According to The Daily Mail, work of framing the British navy estimates for the coming year [illegible]

The one point remaining for decision, viz., whether five or six battleships shall be laid down, depends upon the Austrian naval program.

If the Admiralty decides to wait before taking action till the Austrian ships are laid down, it may be expected to be five battleships this year.

The naval program will then, according to the present information, involve an expenditure of $240,000,000, and will include five battleships, six light armored cruisers, twenty destroyers, a number of submarines and an addition to the personnel of 5,000 men, making a total of 142,500 officers and men.

The battleships will be of a new type, the largest and strongest which science can build or money supply. They will displace 27,000 or 28,000 tons, burn oil alone and steam 23 knots.

Thus there will be an intermediate between the present Dreadnought battleships and battle cruisers. They will be armed in all probability with eight 16 1-4 inch guns, each firing 2,300-lb. shells, or if the 16 1-4-inch gun is not adopted, with 15-inch guns, firing shells that weigh about 1,003 pounds.

MEXICAN REBELS ACTIVE.

Increasing Warfare Rouses Apprehension of U. S. State Department.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 15.—Concern is felt at the State Department over alarming reports of increased rebel activity in southern and southwestern Mexico.

Consul [illegible] reports that all of Costa Grande is in control of a rebel band under Julian Padilla, and that refugees are pouring into Acapulco from all directions. Padilla's men were threatening the city when the consul sent his report.

Rebels on Monday entered and sacked part of Amecameca, which is the starting point for the ascent of Popocatepetla, according to a despatch from Mexico City. The garrison finally repulsed the attacking forces.

An Ottawa Society Wedding.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Miss Marguerite Fitzpatrick, youngest daughter of Chief Justice Sir Charles Fitzpatrick and James Montague Bate, son of the late Lt.-Col. H. A. Bate, and grandson of Sir Henry Bate, will be married in St. Joseph's Church on February 4.

Shot Himself In Foot.

KINGSTON, Jan. 15.—Forgetting the revolver was loaded, Richard Loke, aged 28, a Swede, employed at the C.P.R. construction camp, Perth, fired it off after he had cleaned it and put a bullet into his foot.

CHILDREN TO WALK OUT

Opposition to Bilingual Regulations Not Abated

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—"We have instructions from the parents of all the children attending the bilingual schools in Ottawa to have their children put on their coats and walk out the moment this regulation is enforced," said Trustee Samuel Genest of the Ottawa Separate School Board yesterday.

"We will ignore the regulation just the same as we did, as though it had never gone into effect," said Mr. Genest, "and French will be taught in the schools just as it was formerly."

MR. ROWELL'S TOUR.

Liberal Leader Starts on Friday To Stump Western Ontario.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Mr. N. W Rowell, K.C., and a number of colleagues will address a series of meetings in the province on "tax reform" and other important issues. Meetings so far arranged are:

Friday evening, Jan. 17, Princeton, North and South Oxford, "Tax Reform and the Farmer."

Saturday evening, Jan. 18, Bright, North Oxford, "Tax Reform and the Settler."

Monday evening, Jan. 20, North Toronto (Rowell Liberal Club), "Tax Reform and the Housing Problem.

Thursday evening, Jan. 23, Berlin, "Tax Reform and the Manufacturers and Workingmen."

One other meeting to be held in eastern Ontario will be announced shortly.

UNDERGROUND EXPLOSIONS KILL MEN

Canadian Press Despatch.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Between midnight and daybreak two explosions occurred in the new waterworks tunnel at Seventy Second street and Cottage Grove avenue, fifty feet underground. Three men were injured in the first. Two were killed, five seriously injured, and three men missing are believed to have been killed in the second.

Both accidents, it is supposed, were caused by a collection of fumes following dynamite blasts.

STRIKERS ARE JOINED BY GIRLS

Want Shops That Are Safe and Sanitary

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Jan. 14.—Forty thousand shirt and waist makers, all girls, many under fourteen years of age, joined the ranks of the striking garment workers this morning, bringing the number of strikers up to two hundred thousand.

Their first demand is safe and sanitary shops. They claim a fire in a shirtwaist factory, which claimed one hundred and fifty lives two years ago, has not improved matters.

NOT ANTI-IMPERIAL.

Earl Grey Defends Reciprocity Pact In Letter To Times.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Times yesterday morning published a letter from Earl Grey, in which he takes exception to the way in which Austen Chamberlain referred to Canadian affairs in his speech Monday night. He desires to protest, he says, against the assumption that Laurier's policy of reciprocal free trade in certain natural products between Canada and the United States showed any want of Imperial spirit on his part. On the contrary it was the belief of Laurier and his colleagues that the free entry of the products of Canadian farms, fisheries and forests into the protected market of over ninety million people would add greatly to the wealth of Canada, and thus create an increased market for protected manufactures in Canada and the United Kingdom that [illegible] to favor the policy of reciprocity.

"It is possible I may go further and say it is not improbable that had this policy been accepted by the people of Canada, British preference would be further increased.

"As one of those whose desire is to secure the nearest possible approximation to interimperial free trade that the revenue requirements and national necessities of each self-governing united empire will permit, I am inclined to agree with those who believe that the adoption of the reciprocity proposals might have brought about a nearer approximation to that idea of interimperial free trade which so dear to the heart of Austen Chamberlain. Laurier's policy was not conceived in any anti-imperial spirit, but the speeches of Taft and others alarmed Canadians as to the character of American ambitions, and no doubt had much influence in causing the Canadian people to reject the proposals of Canadian statesmen, who were just as prepared as Chamberlain himself to spend their last dollar and spend their last drop of blood in any struggle necessary to maintain the integrity of the Empire."

CANADA'S MILITARY SYSTEM IS IMPROVING

The One Object Sought by the Authorities Has Been Preparedness for War, Says Annual Report of Militia Council.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—The year's work in the Canadian militia is reviewed in the annual report of the militia council presented by Col. Sam Hughes. The one object sought, says the report in part, was preparedness for war, the power to mobilize at short notice a force of adequate strength, well trained and fully equipped. In the scheme of defence a few readjustments have been made, but no important changes introduced.

Respecting mobilization, the general scheme is assuming definite shape. It depends for its success on decentralization. Division commanders will be given as free a hand as possible and not required to adopt a uniform system. The peace strength of the militia compared to war establishment is relatively low.

An interdepartmental committee, composed of the director of naval service, chief of the general staff and general officer for mobilization has been formed. Seventeen officers took instructional courses in England during the year.

The report deals at length with the instructional schools of the militia in Canada, which in the last fiscal year granted certificates to 1,724 officers. In the year, forty officers were appointed to the permanent staff.

The permanent force now comprises 3,118 men, of which 202 are officers. The larger number, 1,201, are from Halifax, Quebec coming second with 404, Toronto with 345 and Kingston with 344. The year's expenditure under votes was $7,558,284 and by statue $21,600. This was an increase of $791,947. A total of 38,894 men received efficiency pay aggregating $174,053.

The inspector-general reports 15 city corps as good, 21 as fair, three indifferent and two disorganized. In regard to rural corps 8 are classed as good, 29 as fair, 15 indifferent and 3 disorganized. The establishment is 1,458 officers and 16,825 non-commission and men, while the number trained was 1,019 officers and 11,558 men.

"The main obstacles to our efficiency," remarked Gen. Otter, "present themselves in two forms—lack of money on the one hand and the profusion of it in the form of successful enterprises on the other; in the former militating against the provision of arms and equipment, rifle ranges and training grounds, and so placing obstacles in the prosecution of effective training in its full significance; the latter prevents individuals from sparing the time necessary to fit themselves for the military duties they have assumed."

BANNED BEVERAGES CAME IN PICKLE BOTTLES

Liquor Inspector Makes Seizure of Whiskey at Owen Sound.

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 15.—License Inspector Bennett of this town got word of the shipment of a quantity of liquor from Berlin to Owen Sound. He made a rigid enquiry, which revealed the information that three barrels, each containing four dozen quart bottles of whisky had been shipped here from Berlin marked "pickles," and the manufacturers' name made illegible. The inspector located the shipment in the bonding warehouse and at once demanded that it be turned over to him.

The names of the parties implicated have not been made known, but warrants are now issued for the apprehension of officers of the bonding warehouse of the railways transporting the shipment and of some persons in Berlin.

PETERBORO MASONS AT THE CAPITAL

Mr. G. W. Haley, Suffers Loss of His Diamond Ring

Ottawa, Jan. 15, (Special)— This afternoon, what is known as a reunion assembly of Masonic Lodges from Peterborough, Renfrew, Cornwall and Ottawa, is being held at the Masonic Hall, Albert Street here there being about fifteen delegates from each attending. They are to confer what is known as the Knight Templar degrees and to pay an official visit to Ottawa Masons. They will attend a banquet to-night. Some will return to Peterborough at once and others will wait over to attend the Ottawa-Wanderers game to-night.

G. W. Haley, of Peterborough lost a diamond ring worth $100 this morning. He was stepping into the Grand Union Hotel and as he pulled his glove off, the ring came off in the hotel corridor. It rolled away and all efforts so far have failed to find it though there was a most thorough search. He prized the ring highly as it was a gift from his mother and had been with him during many travels.

The Peterboroites are W. G. Higgins, E. L. Goodwill, A. P. Mclean, M. Comstock, G. A. Gillespie, T. H. Hooper, A. A. Fowler, A. Richardson, G. Haley, R. S. Cotton, J. D. Cameron, S. Taylor, F. W. Wilberforce, H. Blade, K. G. Leeb, W. Stocker, and S. T. Medd. All registered at the Grand Union Hotel.

COUGH STILL TROUBLESOME

But Duchess of Connaught Continues to Improve

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Jan. 14.—The Duchess has so far progressed towards recovery that it has been decided not to issue bulletins after to-day.

MONTREAL, Jan. 15.—The following bulletin was issued at 2.15 yesterday afternoon at the Royal Victoria Hospital on the condition of the Duchess of Connaught:

"Her Royal Highness continues to make satisfactory progress towards recovery, though the cough, from which she is suffering, is still troublesome. Her Royal Highness' temperature is normal and she sleeps well,
(Signed) "E. S. Worthington."

To Prevent Horse Thieving.

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 15.—An important and largely-attended meeting of the directors of the Waterloo County Mutual Protective Association was held at the Bowman House yesterday afternoon. The aim of members is to apprehend and convict horse thieves and recover the stolen animals. The directors have the satisfaction of knowing that during the past year their efforts have been successful in restoring five stolen horses to their owners.

LAW AND LANSDOWNE WILL CONTINUE TO LEAD

TO PAY THEIR FARES.

Toronto Presbyterians Raise Funds For [illegible]

TORONTO, Jan. 51.—Toronto Presbyterians have subscribed a fund to pay the return expenses of the minister, his wife and lay representative from each congregation in Canada to the general assembly, which meets in Knox Church, this city, on Wednesday, June 4.

Dr. Grant, superintendent of home missions, is in charge of this subscription, which are in addition to all the regular funds.

Toronto Presbytery yesterday, at Cooke's Church, agreed to supplement the liberality of the donors of the fund by arranging for the free billeting of the representatives. Four thousand are expected.

St. John Dock Strike.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 15.—The Marine and Railway Checkers' Union yesterday ordered a strike. The men are getting twenty to twenty-two cents an hour and demand twenty-five cents for day and thirty cents for night work, and a guarantee of payment for five hours every time they are called out. About 250 men are affected.

Have Abandoned Their Stand on Subject of Food Taxation

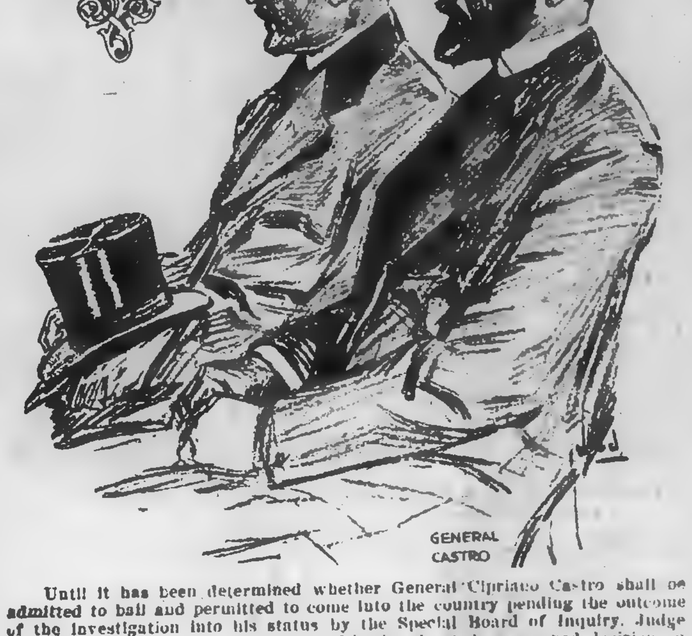
LONDON, Jan. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law and Lord Lansdowne decided yesterday to retain the leadership of the Unionist party in the House of Commons and the House of Lords respectively, and to abandon the stand they have heretofore taken on the subject of food taxation in connection with the scheme of Imperial preference.

In reply to the memorial addressed to him on Jan. 9 by a representative meeting of Unionists, in which the abandonment of the policy of food taxes was advocated, Andrew Bonar Law, who also spoke for Lord Lansdowne, says:

"It would have been more agreeable to ourselves and in our view more for the interest of the Unionist party that a change of method should have been accompanied by a change of leaders."

Mr. Law goes on to say that, as in the opinion of the memorialists a change of leadership would be "fatal to the interests of the party and the country, we feel it our duty to comply with the request."

CASTRO AND SECRETARY SKETCHED IN COURT.



GENERAL CASTRO AND HIS SECRETARY ALFREDO TORREGROSA
GENERAL CASTRO

Until it has been determined whether General Cipriano Castro shall be admitted to bail and permitted to come into the country pending the outcome of the investigation into his status by the Special Board of Inquiry, Judge George C. Holt, of the United States District Court, has reserved decision on the writ of habeas corpus in behalf of the "Storm Petrel of South America" obtained by George Gordon Battle. Meanwhile he must remain a government boarder. It probably will be some time before disposition is made of the bail question.

The above sketch shows General Castro and his secretary as they appeared in court.

HUGH GUTHRIE ALLEGES BOND WITH NATIONALISTS

He Declares in Speech on Naval Debate That the Conservative Leaders Pledged Themselves to Repeal the Laurier Naval Act.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—The naval debate was resumed yesterday upon the reassembling of Parliament. Miss Violet Asquith, daughter of the British Prime Minister, was in the Speaker's gallery, and Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, occupied a seat on the floor of the House.

Hugh Guthrie, the Liberal member for South Wellington, opened the discussion with a strong presentation of the arguments of the Opposition. He quoted from Mr. Asquith to show the overwhelming superiority of Great Britain on the sea, and from Right Hon. Winston Churchill to prove that the Imperial Government desired the dominions to establish local navies instead of contributing to the fleet of the North Sea.

"Let me put it the other way," said Mr. Guthrie. "Will this House rely upon the statements of Mr. Asquith, the British Prime Minister, who must have most intimate knowledge of European affairs and the situation in the Empire, or will it rely upon the Prime Minister of Canada, who only knows what he was able to pick up during a short visit to England?"

Why was it, Mr. Guthrie asked, that the Prime Minister had made it impossible for Mr. Churchill to give him similar advice eight weeks later? Why was it that he refused to sanction anything in the way of a Canadian navy, although in 1909 he had favored such a navy? It was because the Prime Minister and the Conservative party were tied hand and foot by a pledge to Henri Bourassa and the Nationalists. "This pledge, I say, is a written document, and can be produced. The Nationalists took no chances with the Conservatives in the general elections of 1911. When Mr Gordon, who was running in Nipissing, and Mr. Smythe, who was running in East Algoma, appealed to Bourassa to get them, the French vote in their respective ridings they were compelled to sign, and did sign, written pledges to repeal the Canadian Naval Service Act."

He disclaimed any desire to talk party politics, and proposed that the Government and the Opposition get together and agree upon a naval policy. Britain, he said, wished the moral support of Canada above everything else, and that would be lacking if it were known that the vote of $35,000,000 had disrupted the Cabinet and had been through Parliament as a party measure.

He suggested that, in view of the lack of unanimity in the House, a compromise between the two parties might be possible. "[illegible] might modify our proposal," he continued, "and allow the two dreadnoughts to be constructed in England and then the rest of the two fleet units could be built in Canada in a short time. The British navy would be shorn of one dreadnought, but it would be strengthened by the support of two fleet units. Therefore, I suggest to the Prime Minister and to my right honorable leader that some give and some take might be possible.

"If our action is going to give any moral support to Great Britain it has to be on different lines than the present. There is a great gulf between the parties and there might be compromise. If we cannot settle the question let us have an appeal to the country. I think the people ought to be consulted in this time of peace, security and overwhelming superiority of the Imperial forces. I would not urge this were the question one of pressing need, emergency or danger."

Mr. Guthrie said he believed that the Liberals would carry the country upon the naval policy were the Government to grant a dissolution.

Mr. Middlebro, the Conservative member for North Grey, in a spirited speech, declared that the statements attributed to Mr. Churchill had been made before the passage of the German naval act of 1912, and that the legislation by Germany has greatly increased the striking force of the navy, so that now 80 per cent. of the ships were ready for immediate action. The recent Balkan war, he declared, had shown how easily military operations could change the map of Europe; a naval attack could be made with much greater celerity. That an emergency did exist at present was recognized by everyone. The fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers were now ready to vote two fleet units, although a year ago they regarded the suggestion of one fleet unit as excessive, demonstrated how quickly events had moved and how serious the Empire situation had become.

That a real danger and an emergency existed was recognized by every thoughtful person in England. The newspapers, Liberal and Conservative alike, had given warning to the people. The Manchester Guardian, The Westminster Gazette, The London Stnadard, The London Telegraph and The Morning Post were unanimous in admitting the German menace.

Mr. E. W. Nesbitt, (North Oxford), who followed, maintained that to doubt Canada's ability to build a navy would cast an unwarranted reflection on Canadian enterprise and Canadian ability. If Japan and Russia could build up navies then Canada could. If no emergency were shown, he held that $35,000,000 was too great a sum to be expended except upon a permanent policy.

Canadian defence was the first essential of any sound Imperial loyalty. "Drop this retrogressive policy of contribution," he said, in conclusion; "let us adopt a permanent policy of protecting our own shores, thus relieving the Mother Country of that burden. If the Government does not believe that is the right policy, then let us appeal to the country at once, even without first waiting to pass a redistribution bill."

Dr. Edwards of Frontenac moved the adjournment of the debate and will continue to-day.

NINE OF CREW ARE DROWNED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Jan. 14.—The Russian bark California, outward bound, was blown on the coast of Northumberland to-day, and nine of her crew were drowned. The captain and seven men escaped.

Three Lives Lost.

QUEBEC, Jan. 15.—An engineer was killed and two firemen so badly injured that they died while being taken to the hospital, as the result of a collision on the I.C.R.

The collision was caused by a special train going to St. Flavie, running into the locomotive of the market train which was coaling.

Deputy Police Chief Killed.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 15.—Dan Tidsbury, deputy chief of police, was injured Monday night by being thrown from a street car he was trying to board, and died yesterday morning from his injuries.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

Sadie Reed laughed shortly. "You needn't trouble," she said. "I was fooled. I thought they were expensive quills. I wanted them for a twenty dollar velvet toque to match my new suit. If they are picked off the ground, really, I couldn't use them."

"Only in spots," said Elnora. "They don't just cover the earth. Phoebe Simms' peacocks are the only ones within miles of Onabasha, and they moult but once a year. If your hat only cost $20 it's hardly good enough for those quills. You see, the Almighty made and colored those himself, and he puts the same kind on Phoebe Simms' peacocks that he put on the head of the family in the forests of Ceylon away back in the beginning. Any old manufactured quill from New York or Chicago will do for your little twenty dollar hat. You ought to have something infinitely better than that to be worthy of quills that are made by the Creator."

How those girls did laugh! One of them walked by Elnora to the auditorium, sat with her during exercises and tried to talk whenever she dared to keep Elnora from seeing the curious and admiring looks bent upon her. For the brown eyed boy whistled, and there was pantomime of all sorts going on behind Elnora's back that day. Happy with her books no one knew how much she saw, and from her absorption in her studies it was evident she cared too little to notice. It soon developed that to be inconspicuous and to work was all Elnora craved.

After school she went again to the home of the Bird Woman, and together they visited the swamp and took away more specimens. This time Elnora asked the Bird Woman to keep the money until noon of the next day, when she would call for it and have it added to her bank account. She slowly walked home, for the visit to the swamp had brought back full force the experience of the morning. Again and again she examined the crude little note, for she did not know what it meant, yet it bred vague fear.

CHAPTER VIII.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Indulges In "Frills" and Billy Reappears.

It was Wesley Sinton who really wrestled with the problem as he drove about his business. He did not have to ask himself what it meant; he knew. The old Corson gang was still holding together. Elder members who had escaped the law had been joined by a younger brother of Jack's, and they met in the thickest of the few remaining fast places of the swamp to drink, gamble and loaf. Then, suddenly, there would be a robbery in some country house where a farmer that day had sold his wheat or corn and not paid a visit to the bank, or in some neighboring village.

The home of Mrs. Comstock and Elnora adjoined the swamp. Sinton's land lay next, and not another residence or man easy to reach in case of trouble. Whoever wrote that note had some human kindness in his breast, but the fact stood revealed that he feared his strength if Elnora was delivered into his hands. Where had he been the previous night when he heard that prayer? Was that the first time he had been in such proximity? Sinton drove fast, for he wished to reach the swamp before Elnora and the Bird Woman would go there for more moths.

At almost 4 he came to the case, and dropping on his knees studied the ground, every sense alert. He found two or three little heel prints. Those were made by Elnora or the Bird Woman. What Sinton wanted to learn was whether all the rest were the footprints of one man. It was easily seen they were not. There were deep, even tracks made by fairly new shoes, and others where a well worn heel cut deeper on the inside of the print than at the outer edge. Undoubtedly some of Corson's old gang were watching the case and the visits of the women to it. There was no danger that anyone would attack the Bird Woman. She never went to the swamp at night, and on her trips in the daytime every one knew that she carried a revolver, understood how to use it and pursued her work in a fearless manner.

Sinton was afraid for Elnora, yet he did not want to add the burden of fear to Katharine Comstock's trouble or to disturb the joy of Elnora in her work. He stopped at the cabin and slowly went up the walk. Mrs. Comstock was sitting on the front step with some sewing. She dropped her work on her lap, laid her hands on it and looked into his face with a sneer.

"You didn't let any grass grow under your feet," she said.

Sinton saw her white, drawn face and comprehended.

"I went to pay a debt and see about this opening of the ditch, Kate."

"You said you were going to prosecute me."

"Good gracious, Kate!" cried Sinton. "Is that what you have been thinking all day? I told you before I left yesterday that I would not need do that. I want to ask you if you ever see anything about the swamp that makes you think the old Corson gang is still alive?"

"Can't say that I do," said Mrs. Comstock. "There's kind of dancing lights there sometimes, but I supposed it was just people passing along the road with lanterns."

"Kate, I have got to tell you something. Elnora stopped at the case this morning, and somebody had been into it in the night."

"Broke the lock?"

"No. Used a duplicate key. Today I found there was a man here last night. I want to nose around a little."

Sinton went to the east end of the cabin and looked up at the window. There was no way any one could have reached it without a ladder, for the logs were hewed and mortar filled the cracks even. Then he went to the west end. The willow faced him as he turned the corner. He examined the trunk carefully. There was no mistake about small particles of black swamp muck adhering to the sides of the tree. He reached the low branches and climbed the willow. There was earth on the large limb crossing Elnora's window. He stood on it, holding the branch as had been done the night before, and looked into the room. He could see very little, but he knew that if it had been dark outside and sufficiently light for Elnora to study inside he could have seen vividly. He brought his face close to the netting, and he could see the bed with its head to the east, at its foot the table with the candles and the chair before it, and then he knew where the man had been who had heard Elnora's prayer.

Mrs. Comstock had followed around the corner and stood watching him. "Do you think some slinking hulk was up there peekin' in at Elnora?" she demanded indignantly.

"There is muck on the trunk and plenty on the limb," said Sinton. "Hadn't you better get a saw and let me take this branch off?"

"No, I hadn't," said Mrs. Comstock. "First place, Elnora's climbed from that window on that limb all her life, and it's hers; second place, no one gets ahead of me after this warning. Any crow that perches on that roost again will get its feathers somewhat scattered. Look along the fence there and see if you can find where he came in."

The place was easy to find as was a trail leading for some distance west of the cabin.

"You just go home and don't fret yourself," said Mrs. Comstock. "I'll take care of this. If you should hear the dinner bell at any time in the night you come down. But I wouldn't say anything to Elnora. She best keep her mind on her studies if she's going to school."

When the work was finished that night Elnora took her books and went to her room to prepare some lessons, but every few minutes she looked toward the swamp to see if there were lights near the case. Mrs. Comstock raked together the coals in the cooking stove, got out the lunch box, and, sitting down, she studied it grimly. At last she arose.

"Wonder how it would do to show Mag Sinton a frill or two," she murmured.

Mrs. Comstock was up early and without a word handed Elnora the luncheon case as she left the next morning.

"Thank you, mother," said Elnora and went on her way.

She walked down the road, looking straight ahead until she came to the corner, where she usually entered the swamp. She paused, glanced that way and smiled. Then she turned and looked back. There was no one coming in any direction. She kept to the road until well around the corner, then she stopped and sat on a grassy spot, laid her books beside her and opened the lunch box. She scarcely could believe her senses. Half the bread compartment was filled with dainty sandwiches of bread and butter sprinkled with the yolk of egg and the rest with three large slices of the most fragrant spice cake imaginable. The meat dish contained shaved cold ham, of which she knew the quality; the salad was tomatoes and celery, and the cup held preserved pear, clear as amber. There was milk in the bottle, two tissue wrapped cucumber pickles in the folding drinking cup and a fresh napkin in the ring. No lunch was ever daintier or more palatable. Of that Elnora was perfectly sure. And her mother had prepared it for her.

She glanced around her and then to her old refuge, the sky. "She does love me!" cried the happy girl. "Sure as you're born she loves me; she just hasn't found it out yet!"

She was to go to the Bird Woman's after school for the last load from the case. Saturday she would take the arrow points and specimens to the bank. That would exhaust her present supplies and give her enough money ahead to pay for books, tuition and clothes for at least two years. She would work early and late gathering nuts. In October she would sell all the ferns she could find. She must collect specimens of all tree leaves before they fell, gather nests and cocoons later and keep her eyes wide open for anything the grades could use. She would see the superintendent that night about selling specimens to the ward buildings. She must be ahead of anyone else if she wanted to furnish these things. So she approached the bridge.

That it was occupied could be seen from a distance. As she came up she found the small boy of yesterday awaiting her with a confident smile.

"We brought you something!" he announced without greeting. "This is Jimmy and Belle—and we brought you you a present."

He offered a parcel wrapped in brown paper.

"Why, how lovely of you!" said Elnora. "I supposed you had forgotten me when you ran away so fast yesterday."

"Naw. I didn't forget you," said the boy. "I wouldn't forget you, not ever! Why, I was jist a-hurrying to take them things to Jimmy and Belle. My, they was glad!"

Elnora glanced at the children. They sat on the edge of the bridge, obviously clad in a garment each, very dirty and unkempt, a little boy and a girl of about seven and nine. Elnora's heart began to ache.

"Say," said the boy, "ain't you going to look what we have gave you?"

"I thought it wasn't polite to look before people," answered Elnora. "Of course I will if you would like to have me."

Elnora opened the package. She had been presented with a quarter of a stale loaf of baker's bread and a big piece of ancient bologna.

"But don't you want this yourselves?" she asked in surprise.

"Gosh, no! I mean jist plain no," said the boy. "We always have it. We got stacks this morning. Pa's come out of it now, and he's so sorry he got more 'an ever we can eat. Have you had any before?"

"No," said Elnora, "I never did."

The boy's eyes brightened and the girl moved restlessly.

"We thought maybe you hadn't," said the boy. "First you ever have, you like it real well, but when you don't have anything else for a long time, years an' years, you git so tired."

He hitched at the string which held his trousers and eyed Elnora speculatively.

"I don't s'pose you'd trade what you got in that box for ist old bread and bologna now, would you? Mebby you'd like it! And I know, I jist know, what you got would taste like heaven to Jimmy and Belle. They never had nothing like that. Not even Belle, and she's most ten. No, sir-ee, they never tasted things like you got."

Elnora knelt on the bridge, opened the box and divided her lunch into three equal parts, the smaller boy getting most of the milk. Then she told them it was school time and she must go.

"Why don't you put your bread and bologna in the nice box?" asked the boy.

"Of course," said Elnora. "I didn't think."

When the box was arranged to the children's satisfaction all of them accompanied Elnora to the corner where she turned toward the high school. Elnora and Billy led the way, Jimmy and Belle followed.

"Billy," said Elnora, "I would like you much better if you were cleaner. Surely you have water. Can't you children get some soap and wash yourselves? Gentlemen are never dirty. You want to be a gentleman, don't you?"

"Is being clean all you have to do to be a gentleman?"

Miss Randolph's Polo Playing Excites Admiration.

MISS EMILY RANDOLPH.

Enthusiasm has run high lately among polo players over the magnificent playing of Miss Emily Randolph, a Philadelphia society girl, who is equally well known among the horsy smart set of New York.

Miss Randolph, who has a reputation as an expert and fearless horsewoman, is one of the most brilliant of the women polo players who have taken up this form of sport in the last few years.

Polo as a game for women was for a long time regarded as far too dangerous as well as strenuous. But skilled riders who know how to manage a horse under any and all circumstances began to have a try at it, and now they are proving that they can play polo not only with safety, but as adeptly as men, and they are becoming formidable rivals of the stronger sex.

"I've been playing polo about three years," said Miss Randolph, breathing hard and fast after an exciting game played recently, "and I simply love it, of course. I think it's a great game for women, and there isn't any reason why a woman shouldn't play as easily and skillfully as a man."

What Women Did First.

The first Sunday school in America was started by Joanna Prince and Nancy Welsh at Beverly, Mass.

The first woman astronomer was Marie Cunitz of the seventeenth century.

The first savings bank in America and probably the first in the world was founded by Priscilla Wakefield.

The first woman among others approved as ministers among Friends was Mary Allen Farnum of Nantucket, during the first century of our nation.

The first woman doctor of theology was Isabella Losa of Cordova, Spain.

The first regularly ordained minister was Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, graduating in 1847 from Oberlin college and being ordained in 1853.

The first woman Universalist minister was Phoebe Hanaford, and she was the first woman to officiate at a daughter's wedding and also the first woman to officiate as a regularly appointed chaplain of a legislative body of men in the legislature of Connecticut.

The first law passed by any legislature with the direct object of improving female education resulted in the founding of the Emma Willard academy.

The first strike in this country was that of the Lowell factory girls for higher wages in 1830, but it was unsuccessful.

The first public record of civics work in a neighborhood is perpetuated by a brass tablet in the city of Goshen, N. Y., in a church, to the memory of a poor woman who was actively instrumental in setting out the shade trees for which Goshen is famous. She set many with her own hands and rescued the "common" from being a dumping ground.

Popularity of Amber.

Women have been finding how greatly needed is the glint of color and light with the dark tones of winter materials. To further this end amber has been forced into great favor, in both real and imitation grades. Undoubtedly the best may be had in the Chinese stores of New York city, but the department stores are selling amber which is said to be genuine from $1.95 to $12.50 a string. The necklaces are long and of either the clouded or clear amber. The clear is cut. A very easy little test of the genuine beads is found in rubbing them vigorously on a piece of velvet or silk. If the beads are real there will be enough electricity produced to pick up small pieces of tissue paper when they are passed over them.

First Woman Engineer.

Miss Nina Cameron Graham was recently given the degree of bachelor of engineering at the Liverpool university. Miss Graham was the first woman who has ever been graduated as an engineer.

Nowadays.

"I'm going to leave, mum," said the maid.
"Alas!" cried Mrs. Gray.
"I've done all of the work myself,
So why will you not stay?"

Then Bridget up and made reply,
Thus ending the dispute:
"Shure, I'll let you know just why—
The work's not done to suit!"

Oh, wouldn't you just hate it—
What could be the excuse?—
To be a Wall street broker
And get the world's abuse,
To roll around in money
And have, perhaps, the gout
And be the bad example
That people pointed out?

It must be very trying
And really quite a strain
To handle only millions
And ride by special train,
And when there was a panic
That came without applause
To listen to the people
Declare you were the cause.

It seems to rank outsiders
To be a pleasant thing
When there must be a merger
To sit and pull the string,
But when you note the murmur
About election time
It isn't nuts and candy
To hear it called a crime.

Life is not milk and honey
Or some such fancy drink
To those who sit in Wall street
And make the money chink,
Not in this modern era,
When people have a vote
And when their leaders ever
Are looking for a goat.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Between the people who don't remember and those who don't forget a poor mortal has a hard time.

It isn't nice to be suspicious, but how about the persons who excite the suspicion?

It may not be hard to be wrong, but it certainly is wrong to be hard.

The man who has a bee in his bonnet would better get a beehive and wear a more comfortable head gear.

It is better to be sure than sorry, but pretty bad to be both.

There is trouble in store for the man who lets his wife know he has the price of that love of a hat in the show window downtown.

There is no copyright on being a fool, but some persons act as if they held one.

It is easier to drive a man to drink than it is to drive him away from it.

Marriage is a compromise in which one person does all the compromising.

A woman wants her husband to be at least literary enough to be able to write large checks.

A man expects a girl to change her name when she marries, and the girl expects the man to change his nature.

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

ANNETTE'S REFUSAL

She Did Not Know Her Own Mind

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Billy Slater chose a most inopportune moment in which to propose marriage to Annette Fiske. Their motorboats had been racing side by side over a summer sea swept by a fresh southwest wind.

Together they reached the goal, a strip of sand laid bare by the falling tide. At high water it would become a dangerous shoal. Billy dragged the boats up on the sand, anchored them to make their safety a sure thing and sat down beside Annette on the topmost ridge of sand, which the sun had speedily dried.

Annette's dark blue eyes took in the scene with a never failing contentment in their depths. She loved the blue waters of the sound, the broken, high bluffed coast line, the distant view of nestling villages, the fresh salt smell of the air, and the fact that Billy Slater was looking at her with adoration in his brown eyes did not detract from her enjoyment in the scene.

She was accustomed to having Billy adore her. Indeed, she would have missed his worship had he failed in his allegiance to her. But she knew it could not last forever, because some day Billy was going to propose to her, and then their friendliness would cease, for of course she was not going to marry him, for she did not love him. Girls didn't fall in love with the boys they had played with from babyhood, and as the Slater and Fiske homes had always been side by side both in town and country there wasn't the slightest chance of Annette's accepting Billy Slater, as you may see.

Nevertheless Billy, whose lips had been trembling to tell his tale of love these many months past, gained courage now and laid his bronzed hand over Annette's slim little one, tanned almost to the color of his own.

"WAIT A MOMENT, ANNETTE," HE SAID GENTLY.

"Annette," he said in the low, pleasant voice that Annette secretly admired, "we get along rather well, don't you think?"

"We're great pals, Billy, if that's what you mean," said Annette, tossing a pebble into the creeping tide.

"I'd rather have you for my wife than a pal, Annette. You know I love you. Won't you marry me?" blurted forth Billy.

Annette pulled her hand away and bounded to her feet. "Billy Slater, if you're not the meanest thing!" she cried indignantly.

Billy was standing beside her instantly. "Mean!" he echoed aghast. "What do you mean, Annette?"

"To go and spoil everything with your old love talk," sputtered Annette.

Billy, looking white and worried, laid a detaining hand on hers. "Wait a moment, Annette," he said gently. "Why should all our pleasures end just because we are going to be married?"

Annette turned and stared at him. "But we are not going to be married, so, you see, there will be an end to all the fun."

"Very well, dear," he said slowly.

"Good old Billy," she said, affectionately patting his hand. "Now just get the Annette off and I'll wager the Billy Boy will beat you to the landing."

"Taken," cried Billy, but without his usual enthusiasm.

The two boats, each named after the owner of the other, circled for position and then with a soft chug-chug of motors were away, cutting the water with sharp hiss of foam and showers of spray. Annette, sitting at her wheel, was oblivious to everything save the beauty of the afternoon, the sting of the salt spray and the ardor of the chase. Her red lips were parted in a little merry hum that kept time to the strokes of the engine.

Billy Slater, crouched over his wheel, stared unseeing ahead. All he was conscious of was the sinking pain at his heart that was intensified by Annette's indifference to him. When she spoke he answered with an effort and at last managed to keep his boat beyond speaking distance.

So indifferent was he to the outcome of the race that he allowed the girl to beat him by a quarter of a mile, and by the time he reached the landing she was halfway up the long flight of steps that led to the houses on the bluff. The next morning Billy Slater went to the White mountains for several weeks and in the round of gayety at the big hotels tried to forget all about Annette Fiske, and in a measure he succeeded.

In the meantime Annette sailed the seas alone or with uncongenial companions, and she nursed a bitter resentment toward Billy Slater because he had ended their pleasant summer sports. After awhile she neglected the motorboat because somehow it reminded her strongly of Billy and made her feel exceedingly uncomfortable. If Billy had only been content to accept her refusal in a friendly spirit and let their old relations continue they might have had the best sort of a summer! As it was she was quite wretched even with other admirers hovering near. Something was lacking, but she would not admit that it was Billy she preferred.

It was Maud Lossing who shattered her self esteem with one innocently dealt blow. She had met Maud in town one hot day, and they had lunched together.

"Aren't the Slaters neighbors of yours, Annette?" asked Maud.

"Their place at the bluff is next to ours," replied Annette indifferently.

"That Billy Slater is the most fascinating fellow I ever met," gushed Maud, beginning her salad. "He was up at the Delle House last month, and he was the most popular man there. If I wasn't already engaged I believe I'd have lost my heart to him! But I understand he is spoken for—alas!"

The color left Annette's cheeks, and she clung firmly to the table edge. When the table stopped whirling around and around she would ask Maud who the girl was. After awhile she heard her voice—was that timid voice her own?

"I hadn't heard that Billy—Mr. Slater—was engaged. Who is the girl?"

"She's the cutest thing you ever saw—all pale golden hair and blue eyes and a perfect rose leaf skin. Her name is Ransom—Ellie Ransom—and her father is the rich Ransom from Chicago. Some say her money is quite as attractive to Mr. Slater as"—

"Nonsense," interrupted Annette sharply. "Billy Slater is the last man in the world to marry for money. He's got plenty of his own anyway."

"Oh, well, people will say all sorts of mean things when they see a man as desperately in love as Billy Slater is with Ellie. Shall we go now, Annette?"

"Whenever you are ready," said Annette dully.

The next morning found her down at the bluff once more. For the first time in her joyous life she could see no beauty in the sky or sea, in the song of birds or the caress of the west wind. Down at the landing her little boat, Billy Boy, rocked with the tide, and she was tempted to go forth and be alone.

When the Billy Boy had nosed a way out of the harbor and the stretch of blue water lay before her Annette laid a course for the sandy shoal which would be uncovered by the time she reached it. Bitter thoughts came and stung her heart to beating madly, and as she neared the sand strip she found herself hating Billy Slater with a hatred that was dangerously near another sentiment.

Once on the sand she pulled the bow of the Billy Boy above the lapping tide, and, pulling out a knife from a locker, she laboriously scraped the name of the boat from the bow. She finished the job with a handkerchief dipped in wet sand and scrubbed viciously until the letters forming Billy Boy were entirely obliterated.

The name was also lettered on the stern, but that was a task that she must leave to Peterson, the man of all work, when she arrived home. She knew that a change of name must be explained to her family, and she could bear the chorus of protest, for it is most unlucky to change the name of a craft.

"A boat's keel grated on the sand beside her, and she sprang to her feet to confront Billy Slater, looking abominably well; yet if she had looked closely she would have noted the old anxious expression clouding his eyes.

"Billy," she said faintly.

"Hello, Annette," he said with an attempt at easiness. "What are you doing—eh?" He stared down at the freshly scraped bow of the motorboat. "So that's it, is it? Off with the old, on with the new?"

"I thought I'd call her the Pirate," said Annette with hot cheeks and entire lack of self possession.

"Then I'll change mine to Independent," said Billy doggedly.

"I thought perhaps you'd rather call yours the Ellie," flashed Annette, and then she could have bitten her tongue so angry was she at her own folly.

There was an uncomfortable silence. Then the sand crushed under slowly approaching footsteps. Nearer, nearer they came until Billy's arms closed around Annette's slender form.

"Do you hate me, Annette?" he breathed in her ear.

"Yes," she said half sobbing.

"Why?" asked Billy softly.

"Because—oh, because you believed what I said when you asked me"— Annette paused, bewildered at the strange sensations that assailed her at the touch of Billy Slater's lips. "You should have known"— Again she hesitated.

"Known what, sweetheart?" he whispered.

"What you're finding out now," said Annette with a flash of her old spirit.

SECRETS OF THAMES.

Great Seal of England Once Recovered From Its Depths.

Probably in the whole world there is no river with such historical association as the Thames. Many are the secrets held 'neath the turbulent waters of old Father Thames, and to stand on one of the grey bridges that span this historic river, with the din of its traffic, unceasingly, morning and night, year in year out, seems to carry the thought back through the ages. Back to the bloody riots of the "eighty" or to that time of the terrible pestilence of 1665, when all along its water way dim figures moved at dead of night to the awful accompaniment of "bring out your dead."

From a statue, even to a humble coin, from a millionaire's hoard to the beggar's penny, many are the objects that lie hidden on the thick mud at the bottom, either by accident or design.

One of the most ancient, and, strangely enough, best preserved relics, was found in 1868 near Waterloo Bridge. This was a Celtic helmet of bronze more than twenty centuries old. The state of its preservation was marvellous, the ornamentation being almost as unworn as when the helmet was first made. In 1856 a bronze shield of about the same date was taken from the river mud near Battersea, together with a great number of swords, spears and other weapons. This shield is the finest of its period in the world. It is 14 inches wide and 30 inches long, and highly ornamented with curious red enamel discs. It seems almost impossible to realize that the owner of this shield was some barbarian, clad perhaps only in the skins of wolves.

In 1837, near London Bridge, which has always proved a mine of buried treasure, two small Roman statuettes were found. They are bronzes of Apollo and Mercury, unfortunately somewhat mutilated and dinted, but sufficiently well preserved to show that both were the work of true artists, and probably famous sculptures of that day.

Such a great quantity of bronze, silver and gold coins have been found in the Thames at various times that it would be almost impossible to catalogue them. In 1841 a number of gold coins were found by a laborer, who afterwards sold them to a collector, while some twenty-five years earlier a great quantity of angels and half sovereigns of the reigns of Henry the Seventh and Henry the Eighth were thrown up by a small kind of water spout. They were claimed by the corporation, but what happened to them is not known.

At one time the Great Seal of England found a resting place in the Thames. It was thrown there purposely by James the Second on the night he fled from Whitehall, but a fisherman accidentally brought it to light some time afterwards, and it was restored to the Government. At Queenhithe the Seal of Edward the Confessor for the Port of London was brought to the surface by a dredger in 1810. It is of very thick silver, in perfect condition, and of the most exquisite workmanship.

An Assimilative Affinity.

"Don't make so many enemies."

"I don't make enemies."

"Gee whiz, man; you have more enemies than I could shake a stick at!"

"But I didn't make 'em. I have so blamed many friends, and they all give me theirs."

SPECIAL CRUISE AROUND WORLD

Canadian Pacific Steamers Empresses of "Russia" and "Asia"

An unusual opportunity for an around the world cruise all under the Canadian Pacific flag with its consequent standard of service is offered with the advent of the great new quadruple screw turbine engine steamships "Empress of Russia" and "Empress of Asia."

The "Empress of Russia" will sail from Liverpool April 1st and will call at Gibraltar April 4th, Villefranche April 8th, Port Said April 12th, and will proceed via Suez, Colombo, Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagaski, Kobe, Yokohama and arrive at Vancouver Saturday, May 31st. From Vancouver to Toronto passengers may travel via Canadian Pacific main line or Crow's Nest Pass line, and may also travel from Fort William or via Great Lakes route to Port McNicoll. Vessel remains 16 days at Hong Kong.

The rate for the entire cruise is $639.10, exclusive of maintenance between arrival time in England and departure of the "Empress of Russia."

A similar cruise will be made by the "Empress of Asia," sailing from Liverpool May 27th, 1913. Particulars from Canadian Pacific Agents, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. dJan 14

As Good as a Gold-Mine.

Prof. White estimates that no fewer than 400,000,000 gas mantles are used every year, and as these gas mantles cannot be manufactured without a substance named thorium, the necessity for obtaining a large supply is obvious. Some time ago the manufacturers were, indeed, at a loss to discover sufficient for their purpose. Their anxiety was removed quite unexpectedly when a stranger walked into the office of one of the great incandescent companies and offered to show where an unlimited supply could be obtained.

He demanded $500,000 for the information, and the sum the company readily undertook to pay. The directors were, however, doubtful of his ability to carry out his promise, but after obtaining a contract he took a representative of the company to Brazil, where huge deposits of thorium were discovered. From this place most of the thorium now in use is obtained. The stranger had discovered the find quite accidentally.

Dean of War Scribes.

There appears to be a general impression abroad that the day of the war correspondent is over, but Mr. Bennett Burleigh will be found wherever the war drum rolls. Save with the possible exception of Mr. Frederic Villiers, no correspondent alive has seen so much of warfare under varying conditions as Mr. Burleigh.

On more than one occasion he has sought to enter the more peaceful atmosphere of the House of Commons, but his candidature has not been attended with success. He is more at home on the battlefield, where he has had many narrow escapes from death, but where, at any rate, he has experienced many a crowded hour of desperate strife. His opinions on military matters command the respect and attention of the professional, for Mr. Burleigh writes of what he has known and seen.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and [illegible] down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A RECIPROCITY INVITATION

Oscar Underwood, the Democratic floor leader in the United States House of Representatives, and the official spokesman of the party on the Committee of Ways and Means, says that the Canadian reciprocity bill is still on the American statute books, and the Democrats would not have the slightest objection were the agreement to be ratified by Canada.

That is quite probable, but what Canada desires to do in the matter is another question. The Democrats are going to adhere to their intentions of making material reductions of duty in articles affecting the cost of living to the consumer. But there is some reason to think that they will be rather shy about giving Canadian natural products free entry into the United States without trying to force material concessions out of Canada. That is not the American way of doing business. Canada is not worrying, however, as since reciprocity was defeated, this country has had an expansion of business and prosperity such as it never enjoyed in its history. The establishment of a $20,000,000 steel plant at Sandwich, by the United States Steel Corporation, is good evidence of what Canada is likely to do in the near future. As a matter of fact, the case against reciprocity is now stronger than at any time in Canada's history. The necessity of Canada relying on the United States to get markets for the grain production of the West, is not yet apparent. In fact, the great success of the grain movement this fall, owing to the efforts of the Borden Government, signalised the pride of Canada in its power to solve its own problems. Neither from the standpoint of markets nor of supplies, is there any necessity for reviving the reciprocity business, much as the United States would like to make Canada one of its adjuncts.

THE NAVAL PROGRAM

The London Mail forecasts that Britain will spend $240,000,000 this year on the navy. That is an immense sum, over one-fifth of all the money that is raised by Britain for Governmental purposes. The new building program will include the laying down of five battleships, of new and very up-to-date mechanism, one of their features being that they will be designed entirely for oil fuel consumption. They will be armed with eight 16 1-2 inch guns, each firing 2,200 pound shells.

The large program laid down, including the addition of 5,000 men, will be seized upon as an excuse by the Little Canadians for fighting against Canada giving more aid to Britain. They will say that if Britain is able to do so much in the way of building against German and Austrian rivalry, why should Canada put its nose in to be tweaked? But the facts of the situation are not altered in the least. Canada still has a duty to perform in the naval defence of the Empire, and that duty will not be discharged by any program, however elaborate, of building Canadian ships, manned by Canadians, and under the control of Canada. That policy may be suitable as a permanent arrangement, but for the immediate fulfilling of duty, Canada must make an early addition to the effective naval forces of the Empire. The debate which is now going on in the House of Commons will probably circle around the emergency matter, but there cannot be any doubt even though Britain is accelerating the rate of her own navy-building, she needs Canada's contribution as an extra, just as much as ever. The moral effect of those Dreadnoughts is not to be easily discounted.

INVESTING
— IN — COMFORT

Don't you spend a good deal of money for some kinds of personal comforts, and go without others of more importance,

The most satisfactory glasses you can get, TORIC, give more comfort in proportion to their cost than anything else you can buy.

Toric Lenses may be fitted with any desired mounting.

In a large measure the attractiveness and comfort of a pair of glasses depend on the mounting — And the mounting to select depends on the features of the individual wearer.

It is a part of our Toric Service to give particular attention to selecting the mounting that will look and feel the best on your face.

In addition to this our thorough examinations and the grinding of lenses in our own shop assures you of a pair of glasses satisfactory in every respect

HAPPENINGS AT OMEMEE

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Jan. 14 — The many friends in Omemee of the late Mr. W. B. Harvey were shocked by the news of his death on Saturday. For many years he taught in our High School and was widely known and quite popular. From here he went to a position at Lakefield and then to Burk's Falls, resigning his position at last Christmas, because of ill health. Besides his widow, two sons and one daughter, survive him: Franklin, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, Norman, Attorney, of California, and Mrs. Cowley, of Toronto, at whose home he died in his seventy-second year. Interment private and at Ottawa.

Mr. Norman Clarke, jr., is holidaying at his home.

A very quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Henry Nugent on Christmas Day, when his daughter, Mary Luella, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Ira Rehill. The contracting parties are among the best of our citizens, very popular and highly esteemed. The Rev. W. F. Chapman tied the nuptial knot. The young couple will reside in Omemee.

On Tuesday, Dr. J. N. Thompson made an official visit to Mount Pleasant.

Mr. E. Dancey made a business trip to Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. Percy Parsons purchased a fine pair of bear-skins from a gentleman near Bobcaygeon. Mr. Parsons has handled over $4,000 worth of furs since October.

Mr. Tobert Boyd is prettry well settled on his recently purchased farm, adjacent to the Sturgeon St. Station.

Rev. D. H. Currie officiated at a wedding at Lakevale, last Wednesday.

The W. F. M. S. of the Presbyterian Church met on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. O.G. Williamson.

A number of our citizens journeyed to Janetville on Friday evening where they assisted in a program and partook of an oyster supper. The weather was soft and a good time was spent.

The East Victoria W. Institute will meet next Thursday, January 16th, at the home of Mrs. John Weir.

The Public Library Board has been fixing up their new quarters in Coronation Hall. The furniture and books are being transferred and it is expected that the reading room will be re-opened at an early date, in more comfortable if not more commodious quarters. Borrowers who have books out, are requested to return them to the librarian at once.

Mr. W. Mitchell has opened an ice rink, and last week there were crowds on the ice, making the welkin ring. Manager Mitchell proposes—if the season proves favorable—to put on a carnival and some hockey matches.

Mr. J. J. Lamb was a business visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

BURLEIGH NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson McIlmoyle and baby, Marjorie, are at present the guests of her father, Mr. Thos. McIlmoyle.

Mr. Thos. Hales was the guest of Mr. Frank McFadden on Sunday last. Messrs. Zedock and Russell Hales were the guests of their uncle, Mr. Richard Hales, of Tory Hill.

Miss Annie McFadden was the guest of Miss Elma Hales on Wednesday of last week.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cause that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SAID FAREWELL TO CLUB MEMBER

Mr. R. Langford Goes to Bank in Woodstock

Mr. Robert Langford of the Bank of Nova Scotia has been transferred to Woodstock, Ont.

On Saturday night, about thirty-five members of the Marlborough Club, of which Mr. Langford was secretary, assembled at the club rooms to say farewell to the departing member. A very delightful banquet was provided by Coleman's after which a toast list was run off as follows; the King and Country, proposed by Mr. C. A. Henry; Departing member, proposed by Mr. R. Hegan; absent members, proposed by Mr. H. Meal; the ladies, proposed by Mr. W. C. Thornton, and the club, proposed by Mr. Bruce Hunter.

The President, Mr. Will Pratt, was in the chair.

Mr. Afflick contributed several vocal numbers during the evening and numbers on the phonograph were given.

Mr. Langford heartily thanked the club members for their kind demonstration of regard and wished the club every possible success.

DEATH OF MRS. SUTHERLAND

Mrs. James Sutherland passed away this morning at the home of her son, Mr. R. J. G. Sutherland, [illegible] Water street, aged 69 years, after a prolonged illness.

The late Mrs. Sutherland was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, where she married Mr. Sutherland. About 43 years ago they came to Peterborough and Mr. Sutherland established a clothing store on Hunter street, but they returned to Scotland two years later for a short stay of two years after which they returned to Canada. It will be remembered that it was Mrs. Sutherland who was rescued from her room when fire destroyed Cameron's store a short time ago. She was a regular attendant of the Charlotte St., Methodist church, and at one time was a member of the Ladies' Aid of that church.

Surviving are two sons, James and Robert of the city, and three daughters, Mrs. S. S. Delong, Vancouver; Mrs. Daniel Ryan, of Montreal; and Mrs. T. J. Ranton, of Boston. She is also survived by two brothers, James and Alexander of Philadelphia and a sister, Mrs. Peter Anderson.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from the residence of her son, Mr. R. J. G. Sutherland, 356 Water street, to the Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. T. J. Mansell officiating.

THE ANNUAL INSTALLATION OF A.O.F. OFFICERS

Owing to the indisposition of Bro. Pratt, the Chief Ranger's chair was taken by Bro. Hanwell, P.C.R., at the annual installation of officers for Court Stanley, No. 768, A.O.F., last night. The officers were installed by Bro. Milne, assisted by Bro. Record, I.W., as follows:

C. R.—Bro. F. Pratt.
P. C. R.—Bro. A. Brotherson.
S. C. R.—Bro. Jas. Hendry.
Treas.—Bro. S. Adlam.
Sec.—Bro. R. J. McWilliams.
Sub.—Bro. A. McWilliams.
S. W.—Bro. D. Babbs.
J. W.—Bro. W. Livingston.
S. B.—Bro. J. Bridge.
J. B.—Bro. Thos. Parks.
Chap.—Bro. Geo. Tremaine.
Trustees.—Bros. Geo. Tremaine, W. Edwards, H. Hanwell.
Auditors—Bro. Geo. R. Record, J. Malane, H. McWha.
Medical Officers—Bros. Drs. Scott and Amys.
Cor. to Forester—Bro. Geo R. Record.

Previous to the installation the members had their annual supper at Coleman's. Bro. Hanwell was chairman and proposed the toast to the King. The Ladies were proposed by Bro. Alford; High Court by Bro. McWilliams; District Courts, by Bro. Milne, and Absent Members, by Bro. Record.

Addresses were made by Bros. Milne, Record and Malane. Bros. Bridge and Friend supplied excellent music. Bro. East contributed a song.

The auditors report as read by Bro. Read, showed the Court to be in a most prosperous condition. There are 196 members and a balance of over $2,000 in the bank.

SITUATION IN NEW YORK STATE

Regarding Resources For Developing Electric Power

Canadian Press Despatch.

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 14.—The Legislative committee appointed two years ago to investigate New York water power resources, and recommend a conservation and utilization plan, reproted to-day. "It is impossible for the State of New York to develop a sufficient amount of hydraulic power to make any appreciable impression on the power demands of the State."

The committee says Ontario's Hydro electric commission is not a success measured by economic and business standards, as it suffers a loss of $432,170 per year.

SCOTCH FISHER GIRLS.

Women Are "Help-meets" and Something to Spare.

In the north of Scotland, as is the case elsewhere, fishermen form a distinct class. Perhaps one of the most noticeable features of this exclusive class—so exclusive, indeed, as almost to be reckoned a caste—is the extensive participation of the women in the industry in which their men-folk are engaged. They have not, it is true, as yet invaded the special domain of the men—the handling of the boats and the catching of fish. The arduous toil of these operations, with all the accompanying hardships and dangers, is still left to the predominant partner—if the phrase is now permissible in these femininist and sex-equality days.

But the women, nevertheless, are employed in many tasks incidental to the fishermen's occupation, which, though deemed subsidiary, are none the less essential, and they learn to take their share in the work at quite an early age. Young girls gather the dried herring nets, which, owing to their size and weight, require no little skill and involves considerable labor as well. The employment of girls or women in this particular task is by no means universal, however. It is pretty general in Shetland and in the villages that fringe the western sea board and dot the islands along that coast, the men entertaining the notion, it is said, that their labor on the sea absolve them from labor on land, or, at least justifies them in devolving all the work ashore on their women. Elsewhere the nets are spread by the men themselves; but plenty of work is done by the women who, as a result, develop great physical strength and endurance, and prove as hardy as the men.

It is in the prosecution of the ordinary "line" fishing that the women render the greatest aid; in some of the smaller villages the fishing is very much a family affair, all the grown-up members of the family co-operating in some way or other. The women collect the bait and then fix it to the lines—and neither of these tasks is so light as it looks, while the two combined make serious inroads on the time that otherwise would be devoted to household duties. With the return of the boats another branch of the women's work begins. They assist in the cleaning and packing of the "fresh," and they also help in the splitting, gutting, salting and general preparation of the fish destined to be "cured."

Modern developments of the fishing industry so far from curtailing the employment of women as sellers have extended it, and very large numbers of women are now employed by the wholesale fish merchants and fish curers in the big towns in the various processes of cleaning, packing and curing. In Aberdeen, for example, that city having become a very important fishing centre, over 1,20[illegible] women are so engaged, the detailed report of the last census enumerating among them 117 married women and 129 widows and more than 900 girls.

Not all the women thus employed belong to the "fisher" class, of course—the business has swollen to such dimensions that workers have to be drawn from other sections of the community. But "fisher lassies" still form a large proportion of the women employed in the special work of cleaning and packing herrings. "Immediate dispatch" is the keynote of the herring trade, and, accordingly, the herrings have to be prepared with great rapidity. Expert operators are required, and the fisher girls who have learned the art can find ready employment at the leading "stations" of the industry.

One Man's Patent Medicine Capacity.

People were greatly addicted to patent medicines one hundred years ago and a case that was tried in 1817 in England gives some idea of the pill taking proclivities of the time. An apothecary sued one Samuel Jessup for payment of a long standing account. The bill extended to 58 closely-written columns and showed that in twenty years he took 226,934 pills, beginning with the modest number of 29 a day and advancing by easy stages to a daily consumption of 78. [illegible] he consumed 40,000 bottles of mixtures, besides juleps, electuaries and other infallible specifics. The apothecary won the day, but Jessop died soon afterward at the age of 65, no doubt from stopping the medicine.

Fed Them on Stale News.

In the British arctic expedition of 1875 one of the chaplains had a file of The London Times twenty years old, containing the Crimean war reports. One copy was given out to each ship daily. The officers had it first, then it went to the forecastle, and soon every one was as keen about the news as if the war had been proceeding. The clergyman in control of the press was besought to issue an evening edition, and when Sebastopol was about to be taken excitement ran so high that the newspaper office—a locker—was almost stormed. The editor, however was firm and continued with his daily issue, the interest being kept up to the end of the expedition.

THREW BASIN OF WATER AND STRUCK HIS WIFE

John Sweeney Goes to Jail For Two Months—Wife Says She is as Well off Without Him—He Drinks to Excess and Abuses Her

"Two months in jail with hard labor, and when you get out, if you continue this work, we'll send you where you won't trouble anybody for some time."

Police Magistrate spoke thus to John Sweeney, who was arraigned this morning on a charge of unlawfully assaulting his wife. The accused said he was not guilty, but his wife's story more than satisfied His Worship that the prisoner had treated her shamefully and brutally. The assault occurred last night partly in the house and later on McDonnell street. Sweeney was carrying too much liquor for his own or his family's welfare when he entered his home last night. His wife told the court that he flung a basin of water in her face, gave her two or three punches and used some language that was by no means pious.

"I am just as well without him," she added, "but I must have some support for the children. He is not a fit man to live with, and he is continually saying he won't support me. Last night he abused me terribly and his habits are filthy."

There is a family of seven, the eldest being a boy of seventeen who is working.

"You're not much of a man, and the whip is what you should get," said Magistrate Dumble in sentencing the prisoner.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

AN EXPLANATION

To the Editor—Our attention has been drawn to a letter from the Union Printers of Peterborough which was published last evening. We wish, however, to correct a misunderstanding under which the writer is apparently laboring. We refer to his criticism of the "Alice In Wonderland" card being printed out of the city. In connection with this we wish to say that it is entirely beyond the control of the local management of this attraction, in-as-much as it is the custom with all theatrical work, the company playing the theatre always supplies the printing, which is not ordered in each town or city that is played, but a blanket order is usually placed for the season's requirements, and all that is necessary is for the company's agent or representative to give the different dates, and name of the Opera House. We trust this will explain the situation clearly to the local organization.

As far as we are concerned, we always buy our printing in Peterborough, and when we have occasion to use any special advertising matter, such as circulars, etc., in connection with the Opera House, they are always ordered locally. In view of this fact, we think it hardly fair to place an embargo on an attraction such as "Alice in Wonderland," which is of some local interest for those under whose auspices it is being given.

Mr. Harry Soanes has been appointed district traffic chief for Peterborough district, with headquarters in this city, where he will report to Mr. F. W. Doan, the district superintendent.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETING

After the inauguration of the North Monaghan Council at its first meeting for 1913, on Monday, Mr. May reported on the culvert at the C.P.R. crossing on the 10th concession. They thought it was necessary to have a new culvert put in and ordered the Commissioner to do so as soon as he could do the work.

The clerk was asked to notify Mr George Moncrief not to do any more work at Whitfield's wharf until further notice, as they understand that the two counties will assume the bridge at an early date.

Mr. G. H. McClelland will be refunded $3.22 error in assessment.—Carried.

Mr. John Harper was re-appointed a member of the local board of health for three years. The Council then considered the balance of outstanding taxes, and moved the following resolution:—That all outstanding taxes must be paid to the Collector immediately, or otherwise they will have to be paid to the County Treasurer, where 10 per cent. will be added as the roll will be finally accepted and all balances placed in the hands of the County for collection.

The following accounts were passed and ordered to be paid:

Wm. B. Anderson	$ 5.00
Bert Sanderson	5.00
John Armstrong	6.00
H. B. Taylor & Son	4.25
The Review Printing Co.	33.60
E. A. Peck	1.55
The Isolation Hospital	26.25
George H. May	4.00
George H. May	2.00
George H. McClelland	3.22
The Sick Children Hospital, Toronto	5.00
[illegible]	$35.87

The Local Option By-law, No. 689, was given its third reading and finally passed, and the Reeve and Clerk are authorized to attach their names and the corporate seal of the township thereto.

The Reeve and Treasurer were authorized to borrow $4,500 from the Bank of Ottawa to meet the current expenditure.

The auditors were re-appointed at the same salary, and the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, granted $5.00.

INSTALLATION OF W.O.W. OFFICERS

The annual installation of the Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, was held Monday night, when the following officers were duly installed:

Past Consel Commander—James Vallery.
Consel Commander—A. Graham.
Advisor Lieut.—E. P. Jackson.
Banker—James Kyle.
Clerk—A. A. Haskill.
Managers—Wm. Gibbs, R. Carr and R. N. Jones.
Escort—A. Vass.
Watchman—A. Heard.
Sentry—W. H. Burrell.
Installing Officer—Mr. Clarie Jarvis, Head Clerk, London, Ont.

After the installation a very interesting address was given on the workings and progress of the order by Mr. Jarvis. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER

The faithful manner in which Mr. S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, has discharged the duties of Industrial Commissioner, in addition to his other work, was referred to in the most appreciative manner at Monday's Council meeting.

A committee from the Council was appointed to arrange for remunerating the City Clerk for his work during the past year in the industrial department, and also to make provision for a suitable increase in his salary.

"LITTLE WOMEN"

"Little Women," dramatized by Marian de Forest from the book which three generations of girls have loved, will be produced at the Grand Opera House, Monday night only, January 20th.

Miss Jessie Bonstelle, who has secured from the Alcotts the dramatic rights, tells something of how the play has been worked out by Miss De Forest. She says: "It is a home play; just the life of four girls. It would be absurd as a melodrama, yet far too high ideals for a regular comedy. Although laid in four acts with two scenes, the whole production is a series of home pictures—a dramatic illustration of the book."

The production of the play will be most timely as few modern books have exceeded the popularity of "Little Women," and it still has a prominent place in all book stores.

The costumes will be in the fashion of the early '60s, and the production is planned to reflect the closest fidelity to the spirit and period of Miss Alcott's story.

For its proper interpretation an excellent cast has been selected. It is claimed that Meg, Joe, Beth, Amy, Laurie, the professor, Mr. and Mrs. March, and all the other characters in the charming story are faithfully reproduced.

MISS GRANNIS' DECISION

And a Love Match

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN.

It is so fatally easy for a misunderstanding to arise.

Johnson, galloping swiftly through the long lane of overarching June green, was musing somewhat bitterly upon this fact. It was over a month now since he had seen Helen Grannis, a month which had done a great deal toward quickening a spark hitherto not entirely recognized into a vivid flame. He had tried to see her, but unsuccessfully, and now his thoughts were brooding, as so often before, over that last unfortunate meeting. Was he to blame or she? Yet how could the fault be his?

Once again he went back mentally to the beginning—that day when he had telegraphed to ask if she would ride. They had often spoken of so doing, and this had been his first opportunity. The answer had been that she would be at the club at 4 o'clock. Johnson, promptness itself, cantered over from the stable at 4 precisely. There he waited. He waited until half after 4; he waited until a quarter of 5. There was no sign of Miss Grannis. At last reluctantly he rode toward the park, wondering what could have happened. The first person he met, walking her horse slowly down the main drive in the direction of the gate, was the girl herself, and with her, talking eagerly, was Ransome Sinclair, the man of all others whom Johnson most detested.

For a moment Johnson had stared, really incredulous, unable to trust his eyes.

Then, with a formal lifting of his hat, he was past, the dark red mounting to his cheek and rage in his soul. Had she forgotten the engagement, or had she deliberately thrown him over for Sinclair—Sinclair with his millions, who could give her everything?

In the sudden blackness revealed by the flush of jealousy Johnson realized for the first time how much this slender, dainty girl, with her pretty little air of stateliness, meant to him.

He had hardly gone a mile before the impulse which had made him bow and pass on looked the height of ridiculousness. Of course, there was some mistake. Why had he not stopped and asked? But, although he turned at once, it was too late; the two had vanished.

He had telephoned that night. Miss Grannis was out for dinner. He had called the next afternoon. Miss Grannis was not at home. He could not write, for there was nothing to say. One could not ask a lady why she had chosen to ride with another. The week after, when he tried calling once more, the house was closed. He found that the family had departed for their country place.

Johnson was in despair, but it was not entirely a bad thing for him; it taught him a lot.

As he turned in now at the Newlands place and dropped off his horse some one moving down by the tennis court suddenly brought his heart into his mouth. Could it be she? He knew that Miss Grannis and Ida Newlands were great friends. Was it possible she might be stopping here for a week end? With tingling pulses he went forward. It was—it was! And he might never have known! Somehow he managed to answer properly the greetings of Ida and the men grouped about, then he turned to Miss Grannis.

He was unreasonable enough to be disappointed when the girl gave him merely a conventional smile. He felt that he was the one with the right to be angry. Ida Newlands looked sharply at them both. She knew Helen Grannis well enough to divine that something had occurred.

Now, as she saw Johnson, after a moment, turn aside, her nimble wit leaped to a sudden guess of the truth. And as she caught Johnson's flush as Sinclair came across the lawn her conviction deepened. But what could be done? In this last month Sinclair had been pushing his advantage hard. She knew that Helen was wavering. Ida did not fancy Sinclair; it was her brother who had asked him today. And she did like Johnson. With a swift inspiration she jumped to her feet.

"Let's have some tennis!" she exclaimed. "Helen, I will challenge you and Mr. Johnson to try to beat Mr. Sinclair and myself. Here's your racket," pretending not to see the girl's reluctance. It was the only way she could [illegible] together.

Johnson could put up a strong game. He was tall, with long legs and arms that seemed to cover every corner of the court. And Helen had a clean, telling stroke. Sinclair, however, was no mean adversary. They would have to play up. But Johnson was not thinking of tennis. This was his chance. He must make the most of it before she joined that chattering group. As he brought the balls to Miss Grannis for her service he looked down at her for a moment.

"Why did you not come to the club that day?" he asked abruptly. "I waited and waited"—

"Waited!" echoed the girl. "Why"—

"Ready!" interrupted Sinclair, and Helen flashed a ball over the net. Johnson, his heart beginning to beat fast, tightened the grip on his racket. There had been surprise, unmistakable surprise, in Helen's eyes.

"Did you not expect me to meet you at the club?" he demanded as they changed courts.

"You lost that point," was the impatient response. "No, of course not. I always mount at the park entrance."

"But the maid said"— persisted Johnson.

"Then the maid was mistaken. Ah, be careful!" as he nearly missed a returned ball.

A strange desire not to be beaten had suddenly sprung to life in her breast. They must win this set, she and Johnson. They must not be beaten by Sinclair. She looked across the net at his red, rather heavy face. Could she marry him? Her family had hoped for it. He was a splendid match, of course—and yet—what did Harry Johnson mean by asking why she had not come to the club? She had told the maid to say that she would be at the park entrance and then to telephone the club for her horse.

"Waited there an hour," said Johnson. "And then to meet you coming out of the park—with another man! What could I think?"

"Ah!" said the girl, with a quick indrawn breath. Couldn't he have known that she was only walking her horse up and down while she waited? The meeting with Sinclair had been pure chance. She, too, had waited, growing more and more annoyed with the awkward position in which she found herself; annoyed also by Sinclair's veiled remarks upon Johnson's tardiness, his polite wonder, and then to have Johnson appear, raise his hat and pass on! The girl bit her lip again at the memory.

Then suddenly as she caught the look in his eager, earnest eyes her own softened. After all, he had a bad time too. And all through that stupid Marie's having the messages confused. With an impulsive gesture she turned.

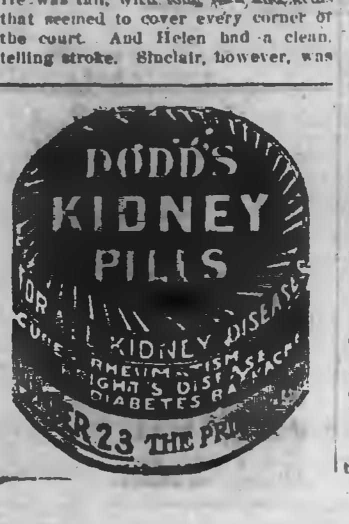
"Do play!" she exclaimed. "We must get this set."

Sinclair, rather sulky at being forced to play on a hot afternoon, had hitherto not chosen to exert himself, letting the games go to his adversaries, but now he was beginning to be interested. If they were to win, Johnson must concentrate. And Johnson, all at once infected by something in the girl's manner, straightened himself. The other side should not win a single game. Love three, love four! Sinclair, subtly aware of an unwonted tension in the air, strove his utmost unavailingly. Johnson, his mouth shut hard, played as though muscled with steel. Love five! Helen was breathless, her lips parted. Love six! Set!

With a great sigh Johnson faced her.

"We've won!" he whispered exultingly, just loud enough for her to hear. Helen, her eyes unfathomable, glanced for a moment across at Sinclair—Sinclair with his millions. Then, the sweetest, tenderest smile curving her mobile mouth, she lifted her face to Johnson.

"Yes," she said softly, "a love match."



A Departed Landmark.

An interesting little London landmark has recently disappeared from the precincts of the Law Courts, and its going leaves a blank in the daily round of many a busy lawyer, as well as of many a delayed litigant with an armful of time who hangs about the courts. This was the old bookshop in Clement's lane, at the gateway above the Inn. It had some right of shelves along the end wall of the Inn, and these were lined with many a faded volume, among them, in the experience of a Manchester Guardian contributor, Anthony Trollope, old "Good Words" with Millais illustrations (mostly torn out), and travel-books about India. Prints and caricatures of judges hung at the door, and in the window the central part was always given to Alpine books and to Early Victorian child's books, with pictures sparsely tinted with apple greens and vermilions like the paint on toy boats. In its dark, leather-smelling interior the older race of judges and K.C.'s (or rather (Q.C.'s), and sometimes even a Cabinet Minister, might at times have been seen. The business had been in existence there and in a house near by for the last 50 years. The father of the brothers Hutt had sold curiosities and bric-a-brac there for fifty years earlier, so "Alpine Hutt," as the shop came to be called, had a deep foundation in Clement Danes.

Teeth Out For Twopence.

Opposite the London Hospital, in the Mile End Road, is a little mission known as the Whitechapel Primitive Methodist Medical Mission, which in the last ten years has treated a quarter of a million patients at a fee of twopence per patient. The physician who attends the mission to give advice and medical assistance at this extraordinary cheap rate is Dr. Gittens, who also has a practice at Clapton. He attends the mission every day from 11.30 to 12.30 and from 4.30 to 5.30 p.m., and always finds a long queue of patients waiting to consult him. The cases are mostly those who suffer from complaints such as coughs, colds, and indigestion, or who wish to have a tooth extracted or be vaccinated. When a serious case comes along the patient is directed to the London Hospital across the road.

The Conservatory of Music Orchestra will practice this evening.

"Greasers" and "Gringos."

When an American terms a Mexican a "greaser" the Mexican retorts with equal truth that the American is a "gringo." Thus are honors easy and the scales of international comity nicely balanced.

Whence these titles come is only partly clear. There is nothing suggestive of grease about the Mexican. On the other hand, he holds the Yankee "pig" in low esteem, and a pig is greasy, sure enough.

Americans unconsciously fabricated the title of "gringo." At the time of war with Mexico there was a popular song in which occurred the phrase "Green grow the rushes, oh!" It occurred with frequency. Sitting about their campfires, the invaders used to roar this song, and the words impressed the Castilian listeners, although they failed to grasp the sentiment. By easy adaptation "green grow" became "gringo" and, attaching itself to a personality not particularly liked then, to this day implies a slur that fairly offsets the impolite "greaser."

All of which, perhaps of little importance, is history.—New York Sun.

What May Be the Next Advance?

Two or three years ago Lord Wemyss of the British parliament, who had just entered upon his nonagenarian's estate, recalled the social conditions of his youth, contrasting them with those of today. "I began life," he said, "with tallow dips and am ending with the electric light. Who knows what the next advance may be? Perhaps they may yet light London by rubbing radium on the dome of St. Paul's. When I first went to Oxford from Scotland I traveled by stage coach, and the journey occupied forty-eight hours. Forty-eight hours in a stuffy box, let out two or three times a day to feed. Now I get into the train at King's Cross at 2:30 and am at home in Scotland before 11. Further, we now have motorcars, and the next thing will be wings."

London Street Cries.

This is a daring age. Somebody has actually dared to criticise the vocal efforts of the itinerant vender. It was "Sweet lavender; buy my sweet lavender," that established the immunity of the street cry from cavilers. There is no doubt that the sweet lavender business had—has, we trust—a good deal of pleasantry. Other yells from the gutter got in on it too. You would hear a hoarse howl and begin to condemn it and then stop. * * * After all, was it not an "old London cry?" But too much "Milk-o!" has at last pricked the bubble, [illegible] at Highgate police court incontinently referred to this cry as "something between the scream of a hyena and the falsetto of a donkey." "Chairs to mend-o!" may be the next to succumb.—London Globe.

CROSBY'S RECORD.

Ex-Lord Mayor of London Has Made the Best of His Office.

Sir Thomas Boor Crosby, who has just concluded his year of office as Lord Mayor of London, has not been affected in the least by the arduous duties that are attached to the post. He is still youthful and energetic, despite the fact that he has celebrated his eighty-third birthday. To him has fallen the double honor of being the oldest Lord Mayor, and also the only medical man who has occupied that high position.

During his mayoralty he never spared himself, and he can look back with pride on the work that was accomplished. The huge sum of $2,000,000 was raised for the survivors of the Titanic, and the dependents of those who were lost in that catastrophe. He also presided over a meeting of mayors with the object of endeavoring to find some method of settling the coal strike, and co-operated with enthusiasm in numerous schemes of social amelioration.

When he was elected Lord Mayor he received some curious letters. One individual requested the Lord Mayor to make up the writer's rent, whilst another impecunious individual wanted the sum of ten pounds to square the bailiffs. But the letter that pleased Sir Boor Crosby most read as follows: "I saw you walk to church. I saw you walk up to the hustings. I heard you speak. I read in the papers that you are 82. If you'll tell me how it's done I'll make it worth your while."

Sir Boor Crosby has no objection at all to telling how it is done, and here is the explanation of the phenomenon: "I have never adopted any particular regimen. I take a glass of wine. I smoke a cigar. I eat what is put before me—but always in moderation. Therefore, I should say that temperance is the thing to enable a man to make the best of his life.

"One thing I do insist upon, and that is 'early to bed.' Whenever possible I always get a long night's rest. I eat as little meat as possible. And I am a great believer in plenty of exercise, although my work has prevented me taking as much of this as I should have liked. Work does not hurt anybody; on the contrary, it keeps them well. I believe it is because I have had to work so hard that has enable me to get through my year at the Mansion House."

Many men wreck both fortune and health trying to make another dollar they do not need.

INTERMEDIATES OPEN WITH THREE GOAL WIN OVER COBOURG

Petes Scored Five in a Row After Visitors Obtained 3 Goal Lead in First Half.

FINAL SCORE 12-9

To the noble seven representing this fair Electric City in the intermediate series of the O.H.A., the fans and fanettes are indebted for the tit-bit of the hockey season.

Their victory over Cobourg last night was a scream from start to finish and the handful of spielers for the visitors had a very fair share of the rejoicing. The count at the half way station was 6—4, with the invaders on the small end, and at the end of the journey, the locals were in the lead by 12—9.

It was a good nerve test for the populace on account of the forthcoming fray on Friday night, when Rankin, Laflamme and company from Toronto put in an appearance to do battle against Pete Spratt's outfit. Believe us, this is not going to be a tame affair.

N. B.—Arrange with the hired help for an early evening meal.

The fans will talk about the game of last night, for a few days to come. It was not the quality of the hockey, but rather the quantity and the variety. Neither team displayed effective team work, but somehow or other they got the goals and plenty of them. It was not because of poor goal tending. Both Wilson and Paton made all kinds of fancy stops. Sometimes they couldn't get out of the way of the rubber but for the big majority, each netman was on the alert and and prevented scores by classy blocking.

The game did not start till well onto nine o'clock, but the spectators forgot about the delay after the game had gone five minutes.

COBOURG SCORED FIRST GOAL.

Cobourg drew first honors and after the Petes evened up, the visitors shot ahead and were leading by three goals. Then they stopped and watched their blue and white opponents even up again and go two better before half time was called. The rest was as good as a week's holidays for the lakeshore seven and they came back strong and tied up the game at 6—6. Then the real excitement commenced. The Petes broke the tie and Cobourg got it back till sixteen goals were equally divided. Next the locals took a three goal lead that put them on easy street and the game was theirs.

The work of Cyril Giroux particularly in the first half was a revelation to the fans. He was one of the most prominent players in the senior game, the previous night, at Kingston but the hard game in the Penitentiary burg did not prevent him from going strong for the intermediates. He was here, there and everywhere in attack and defence and the battle might not have ended as it did, had he been among the missing. Bradshaw did a lot of good defensive work, rushed repeatedly and on several occasions right to the nets. Hall was also in the limelight. One of his tallies, he secured on a rush from the face-off. Another time he worked the puck from behind the nets and around the post for a counter.

Gliddon was the star performer for the visitors, and did the bulk of their scoring by using a fairly long and swift shot. Cunningham, a junior, and Lavis and Payne, came in for considerable prominence.

THE SCORING.

Cobourg jumped into the game right off the reel, and in 1 1-2 minutes Niles got an open shot at his wing and scored. By continued pressing the visitors made it warm for Wilson, who made good stops. The Petes worked the disc to the to the Cobourg nets and Paton drew a penalty for kneeling. Guy took the nets and made a nice stop. Bond, Hall and Ross combined, the latter scoring.

Hall missed a shot on a pass from Giroux, and on the return play Niles scored again after Wilson had blocked. Giroux was waved to the timers. For the third time Niles tallied for Cobourg, and Gliddon made the score 4—1 on a pass from the side. Half a minute later Giroux beat Paton with a pretty side shot, and in the same time Hall batted another in from a scrimmage. Niles was hurt and Pete Weatherston left the ice with him. The visitors made Wilson do a lot of hopping, but could not get the rubber in the nets. Bradshaw took a lone rush to Paton, who came out and blocked the shot. Art. Hall tied the game on a pass from Ross. Giroux slipped his second tally in from the side. The sixth counter came from a scrimmage, which found both Giroux and Hall in front of the nets, and both biffed at the rubber the same instant. Shortly before the halt was called Wilson was benched for going down on his knees.

SECOND HALF.

One minute after play was resumed Lavis had an open shot and made good. Wilson prevented a score from a two men combination play to the nets. He stopped several others, but finally Gliddon beat him with a shot outside the defence, and the struggle was a tie again. Bradshaw passed to Giroux, who returned and the Petes' cover point scored. Giroux and Ross got away, the latter scoring, but the referee called an off side. Cobourg evened up on a hard side shot by Gliddon. The visitors' line combined, but lost the puck, and when Cunningham secured, he missed an open shot. Ross sent his team ahead by accepting a pass from the side, and Gliddon got it back on a shot from a combination. He was chased for clashing, but with him absent the Petes could not do more than work the puck to Cobourg territory.

Weather made it 9—8 on a pass from Bradshaw, and Hall gave the locals a two goal lead by getting the puck behind the nets and working the puck around the western post. He took another on a rush from the face off. Gliddon scored the ninth and last goal for Cobourg from a scrimmage, and Ross the twelfth for the Petes. The teams were:

CANADIAN BASEBALL LEAGUE

The fans are keenly interested in the doings of the hockey teams these days, but another matter that should claim their attention is the question of representation in the Canadian Baseball League this coming season.

There is much work to be done if Peterborough is to be in the fight this summer and it is necessary that the business be done at once. Support is needed and the directors are looking forward to a rousing meeting in the Bank of Montreal chambers, next Monday night.

INTERMEDIATES FOR PORT HOPE

The Peterborough line-up in the intermediate O.H.A. fixture in Port Hope to-morrow night will be:

Goal—Wilson.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

MONEY may be the root of all evil, but it is also the blossoming of much joy.

Happy is the man who can make capital out of his own awkwardness.

It is easier to be critical than it is to be prepared to meet the critical.

It is something of a surprise to the man who thinks he is the whole thing to see the whole thing move smoothly along without a hitch when he takes it into his little head to drop out.

Natural gas is always found quite near the surface—in the promoter.

A gambler is a man who is willing to take a chance he knows he can't keep.

He may be called a successful man who makes his family half as well satisfied with him as he is with himself.

Women are natural optimists because it makes them look prettier and doesn't cost anything.

After a man gets to be forty he begins to wonder what makes his schoolmates look so old and to fancy himself in the same class with the youngsters.

Not Impossible.

"Herbert is going to marry that Miss Kolege."

"Is that so?"

"Yes."

"She's a university girl, isn't she?"

"Yes, but perhaps he can forgive her."

Tolerated Him.

"Who is that beautiful woman?"

"That is Mrs. Jones, the great society leader."

"And who is the man she spoke to so condescendingly?"

"Oh, that's only the merchant she owes for her fall outfit."

Was It Intentional?

"I believe Brown is next door to a lunatic."

"How dare you?"

"Don't you think so? Do you know him?"

"Know him? I live next door to him!"

Thought It For the Occasion.

"I told the boss what I thought of him this morning."

"Did he fire you?"

"Not much. You should have heard the nice things I thought for the occasion."

London's Tea Shops.

Nothing strikes Canadian ladies visiting England more than the enormous number of places where they can be supplied with dainty, light refreshments, including tea and coffee, at the cost of absurdly few pence. Besides the A. B. C. shops, properly so-called, there are hosts of others of a similar kind. They have created their own demand, and, in doing so, have radically changed the habits of a large section of the British people. In London alone, hundreds of thousands of men and women who come into the city every day are able to obtain a meal which, considering the tasteful and attractive surroundings amid which it is served, is almost incredibly cheap.

Ahead That Much.

"I like to pay cash for what I buy."

"And I like to run a bill."

"What is the advantage in that?"

"Sometimes I can outrun it."

Who?

"She is a terrible flirt."

"Who does she flirt with?"

"Any one who will flirt with her."

"Who doesn't?"

The Easiest Way.

"You weren't at the party yesterday."

"No. It was easier to get sick than to get the price of a new dress out of my husband."

Helpful.

"What's Jimmy doing round your place so much?"

"Just writing my autobiography."

His Great Want.

Man wants but little here below,
A suit of clothes, a place to eat,
Hat for his head, shoes for his feet,
Sometimes a ticket for a show.
And then his life will be complete.
Oh, did I say a place to eat?

No Place Like It.

There's no place like home, said the poet,
Or some such expression as that,
But that was, I feel very certain,
Before they invented the flat,
Before every corner and crossroad
Along on each side of the street
Had stores that were open on Sundays
With goods that were ready to eat.

The home that the poet had pictured,
That had in his mind such a charm,
Was some little cot in the village
Or some roomy house on the farm,
With vines running over the doorway,
With porches both shady and wide,
A lawn and some trees and a garden
And old fashioned eating inside.

His mind didn't hanker for dwellings
With walls that were bare and severe
Up three flights of stairways and maybe
A few darkened rooms in the rear,
Just room for a very small woman
If wed to a very small man
And, waiting him there on the table,
A dinner that came in a can.

There's no place like home, said the poet.
Some modern men say so as well,
For after they've tried it a season
They quite often seek a hotel.
The yearning for home and for mother—
What sticks in the memory like that?
But will the old man of the future
Revert to the two by four flat?

Business Head.

"Farmer Jenks is going to live a life of ease hereafter."

"What has brought this about after his struggle?"

"He has traded his farm for the mortgage."

Rather Forcible.

"How do you like Miss Gay's make-up?"

"Looks as if she must belong to the impressionists' school of painting."

FINE PROGRAM AT KNOX CHURCH

By Maude C. Bradley Concert Party But Audience Was Not Large

Much disappointment was felt at Knox Church last night because of the small audience in attendance to hear the clever talent of the Maude C. Bradley Concert Party.

Rev. Mr. Keith expressed regret that those who made it possible for Peterborough to hear the best talent, should incurr personal financial expense as a reward for their highly applaudable work.

Those who accepted the opportunity received a rich treat. Miss Bradley's party were exceptionally clever and each number on the varied program was enthusiastically received.

PRESENTATION TO SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

Annual Meeting at Cold Springs With Election of Officers: School Had a Good Year.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 9th, the annual meeting of the Cold Springs Union Sunday School was held in the S. S. Hall, with a large attendance of adult members. The reports from the various departments were encouraging and showed an advance over that of the previous year.

The total enrollment of the school is 105 with an average attendance of 76. The class collections amounted to $149.64.

The trustees have purchased additional land with a view to enlarging the building and have also made some necessary improvements to the hall. The expenses of both have been met by the school.

The following are the officers for 1913:

Superintendent—Miss Laura Bennett.
Assist-Sup't—Mr. Frank Kitney.
Fin.-Sec.—Mr. Isaac Lammett.
Rec.-Sec.—Mr. Everett Kidd.
Organist—Miss Alice Stenton.
Assist.-Organist—Miss Flo Kitney.
Sup't. Home Dep't.—Miss E. Welch.
Sup't. Cradle Roll—Mrs. T. Rose.
Librarian—Mr. Herb Peters.
Auditors—Mr. F. Kitney and Miss A. Spears.
Hall Committee—Mr. Frank Kitney and Mr. Isaac Lammett.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Herb Peters.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. W. Reid, on behalf of the school presented the Superintendent, Miss Laura Bennett, with a handsome sable stole and silk muffler. An address was read by Mr. J. A Wilson. Miss Bennett was completely taken by surprise, and in a few words thanked the school for the handsome gift and kind words of appreciation.

Light refreshments were served and a social hour spent together.

OBITUARY

The Late Nathan McIlmoyle

Nathan McIlmoyle passed away yesterday morning at the Nicholls Hospital in his 82nd year.

The late Mr. McIlmoyle was born in Smith township, where he lived his entire life, well known and highly respected. He was a regular attendant of the Baptist church. He is survived by his sons, William and Nathan, of this city; James of Vancouver; his daughters, Mrs. Robt. Garbutt, Lakefield, Mrs. Wm. Stabler, city; Mrs. Wm. Mann, Saskatchewan; Mrs. Noble Cummings, Harvey; Mrs. Steven Nicholls, city, and Mrs. Peter Nicholls, of Smith. Two brothers and two sisters are, John, of Bobcaygeon; William, of Smith, and Mrs. Phoebe Pearson, of Smith; Mrs. Robert Gilroy, of Lakefield.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from the residence of his son, Mr. William McIlmoyle, 29 King street, to Bay's Cemetery, Lakefield. The Rev. W C Riddiford will officiate.

Parents Bereaved

Henry, the five months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Cooksman, North Monaghan, passed away last night at the Nicholls Hospital.

The funeral will take place Friday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

PREMIER WHITNEY AND ADAM BECK LAUGH AT FINDING OF NEW YORK STATE COMMISSION

Declaration of Power Commission Across the Line That Ontario's Hydro-Electric System is Not a Success and is Losing Money is Described as Absurd by "Power Minister."

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—"There are a number of very extraordinary statements, for some of which there is no foundation whatever." Such was Sir James Whitney's terse comment on the "slam" dealt by the Senate committee of the New York State Legislature on the Ontario Hydro-electric system. The Premier would make no further remark on the criticism, evidently believing it was not worth the trouble.

Hon. Adam Beck and P. W. Ellis, chairman of the Toronto Hydro Commission, however, made short statements showing how utterly absurd was the finding of the New York Senators, who supposedly investigated the Ontario power system.

The report in question was published yesterday after the finding of the joint committee of 1911 appointed "to report on the water power resources of New York State and to recommend a plan for conservation and utilization" had been presented to the state Legislature. The verdict was to the effect that "it would be impossible for the State of New York to develop a sufficient amount of hydraulic power to make any appreciable impression on the power demands of the state."

The committee have investigated the plan of the Hydro-electric Power Commission of the Province of Ontario, and they report that in their opinion "it is not a success measured by economic and business standards." They oppose the adoption of this plan by the state.

The committee report regarding the Hydro-electric Power Commission of Ontario, that it has never developed any water power, but has acted merely in the capacity of middleman in the merchandising of electric energy; that it furnishes power to the municipalities below cost; that if the same methods were applied to it as are employed in business transactions of a similar nature, it would show an annual loss of at least $532,170 a year.

Attached to the report is a financial summary, showing that the operations of the Provincial Hydro-electric Commission are conducted at a loss of $259,080, in addition to its administration expenses, which have never been charged against the cost of power; that the burden placed on the several communities by the expenditures of the Hydro-electric Power Commission is of a variable character; that some have been bonded to the extent of $3.11 for each individual in the community, while others have been bonded for $31.

According to Hon. Adam Beck it was only necessary to digest a number of statements, which have been issued by the Ontario commission recently, to prove how much the New York committee was in the wrong. What worries Mr. Beck most is—Where did the New York gentlemen get their information? They did not get their alleged facts from the headquarters of the Hydro-electric Commission, and they did not ask for and did not have access to the books of the commission. As this Senate committee is known to be representative of the private interests in the neighboring state, it is surmised that the report, which favored the interests, was largely furnished on imagination.

Hon. Mr. Beck stated that it was needless to enter into a detailed reply to the report. The most powerful answer was the statement issued by the Toronto commission yesterday, which showed that there was a surplus for the first eleven months of operation of over $31,000 in this city alone.

GALLANT TORONTO MEN RESCUE TWO FROM DEATH

Thirty-Five Women Effected by Fire Which Followed an Explosion.

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Thrilling rescues of thirty-five women were effected yesterday afternoon when a bad fire followed an explosion that wrecked the top storey of McBride Brothers' building, at 35 Church street, occupied by the American Hat Frame Manufacturing Co.

Coming down Church street shortly before five o'clock Sergt. Tripp of No. 1 Police Station heard a loud report. Looking up, he saw two terrorized women climb out of a window on to a ledge some seventy feet above the sidewalk. Beseeching them not to jump, Tripp rushed to a telephone and caused a general fire alarm to be given. At the same time two gallant young fellows, John Bell, jr., of Clemes Bros., and Ambrose Kirby, bookkeeper for the F. T. James Co., rushed into the burning building, grabbed the two women who were clinging to the fourth-storey ledge and carried them through the flames to safety.

Thirty other girls employed in the factory were compelled to flee for their lives, hatless and coatless.

Premier Whitney's Letter Not Explicit Enough on Bilingual Schools.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—At a special session last night of the separate school board, which went to Toronto last month to interview the Government with regard to the new bilingual regulations, the members were authorized to write Premier Whitney asking for a more explicit statement of his intentions than that obtained in the reply recently obtained from him.

"Sir James, by his evasive answer, is trying to flirt with both the French-Canadians and the Orangemen," said Trustee Armstrong.

"I do not like the way the delegation was received, and it is well-known that the Premier has insulted other delegations, among them that for tax reform."

BOTH DEAD FROM BURNS

STRATHROY, Jan. 16.—Miss Fanny Foe, who was burned by the explosion of a lamp in her home here Sunday, died at noon yesterday, as the result of her injuries.

Her aged mother succumbed a short time after the accident, which was due to the dropping of a lighted lamp while the two women were ascending a staircase.

ALLIES STILL REMAIN FIRM

Unless Turkey Yields They Will Renew the War.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The Balkan kingdoms have not weakened in their determination to reopen the war unless Turkey accept their terms quickly, but, in deference to the powers, they may withhold the execution of their resolve a few days longer than seemed likely on Tuesday.

They wish the world to know that their policy is unchanged. As allies they inaugurated the doctrine of "The Balkans for the Balkan peoples," at a time when it appeared al- [illegible] folly to the great nations of Europe," and they declare now that they propose to maintain the height which their united armies won to be considered a great independent nation, and manage their own diplomacy according to their own views of what their national interests demand.

They assert that their diplomatic course is a straightforward and frank one, and, while willing to concede a brief period of delay for Turkey's answer, it is not with a view of resuming negotiations on any modified basis.

The Greek, Servian and Montenegrin delegations have notified Dr. Daneff that Bulgaria will have their full support in whatever course it decides to follow, but they will leave to Bulgaria, which is most directly interested in the issue, full liberty to make the final decision.

FAST FREIGHT CRASHED INTO STANDING TRAIN

Brakesman Was Killed and Others Were Injured—Accident Caused, it is Said, by Neglect of Conductor to Flag Incoming Train.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Glencoe, Ont., Jan. 16 — Walter Challis aged thirty, a Wabash brakeman, of Windsor, was instantly killed; [illegible] Button, both of St. Thomas; James O'Neil, a Lucan horseman and James Nickland, of Thamesville, a stockman, were badly injured, when Wabash freight, No. 98 eastbound from St. Thomas, crashed into Grand Trunk freight, No. 418, also eastbound from St. Thomas, at the local coal shutes. The Grand Trunk engine had just finished coaling and was about to be coupled on the train when the fast Wabash freight tore into the yards. The accident it is alleged, was caused by the conductor of the Grand Trunk train neglecting to flag the incoming freight. The Wabash locomotive ripped through the caboose of the Grand Trunk train and several cars, wrecking the line badly. O'Neil and Nickland saved their lives by jumping through the windows of the caboose. Fireman Button was pinned under the wreckage and was three hours before he was released, and was taken to the London Hospital. All traffic was blocked [illegible] by the International Limited were delayed many hours. An investigation is being held to-day.

RAILROADS ARE MAKING MONEY

Report is a Record of Great Prosperity

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—Figures and statistics relative to Canadian railways for the year 1912, made public by the Department of Railways yesterday are interesting in view of the agitation for lower freight rates.

It is shown that while the cost of operation per mile has but slightly increased the companies' earnings per mile have been greatly advanced. There was an increase in net earnings over last year of $10,978,504.

Gross earnings of the railway companies for the year amounted to $219,403,753, which was an increase of over thirty million dollars over their earnings last year. On the other hand operating expenses increased only $19,000,000, leaving a gain in net profit of nearly eleven millions.

The report goes on to show that ten years ago the gross earnings of Canadian railways were only slightly over $96,000,000. Earnings per mile in 1911 were $7,430, while for 1912 they were increased to $8,210, which means in other words that the railways earned $780 a mile more than they did last year.

Railway dividends in 1912, it is further shown, amounted to $31,164,791, as compared with $12,760,435 in 1907. The aggregate dividends for the year were equal to a little over 4 per cent. on the total stock issue, without regard to the amount which might be properly regarded as being dead.

The people of the Dominion, according to figures dealing with aid to railways, were exceptionally generous in this regard. Cash aid in 1912 amounted to $5,892,818, and of this amount the Dominion Government paid $5,828,163, the provinces $26,155, and municipalities $8,500.

Railway bonds are guaranteed by the Dominion and Provincial Governments to the extent of $245,070,045, and of this amount $91,983,553 is guaranteed by the Dominion.

IF BLOOD IS SPILT THE LIBERALS ARE THE ASSASSINS

Such is Warning of Balfour—Bill Reaches Final Stage

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The home rule bill started on its final stage in the House of Commons yesterday, and the occasion was marked by two speeches seldom excelled in the House by the Prime Minister, H. H. Asquith, and Arthur J. Balfour, the former leader of the Opposition, who have no equals as Parliamentarians. Other speakers, representing all parties, followed, and the debate finally was adjourned until to-day, when a division will be taken.

The bitterness which bills of a similar nature aroused in the past was largely absent in the discussion yesterday, but with the harder hitters on the program for to-day this may not be continued.

When the orders of the day were called and Mr. Balfour, at the request of the Opposition leader, Andrew Bonar Law, moved the rejection of the measure, the House was crowded to its capacity, and every seat in the galleries was occupied by interested listeners. Mr. Balfour, who has been absent from Parliament for some weeks, while not so fluent as the Prime Minister, delivered one of those telling speeches for which he is famous, and which rouses his supporters to the height of enthusiasm and commands the respect of his opponents.

He dealt with the bill in a general way, and particularly laid stress on the case of Ulster, the present condition to which he likened to that of the American colonies before the revolution. He charged the Government with showing a dangerous want of appreciation of the position of that section.

Pointing his finger at the Government bench, Mr. Balfour concluded: "If blood be spilled—which God forbid—the real assassin will be those who have never had the courage to face the situation."

Premier Asquith defended the bill from every standpoint. He pleaded with the House to forget the past and give Ireland what the vast majority demanded. He laid stress on the safeguards introduced in the bill to prevent Protestants from being oppressed by the majority, and repeated the Government's offer to insert any other reasonable safeguards, if only the Opposition would tell what was wanted.

The Premier recalled that Mr. Balfour had made the same gloomy predictions, as he did to-day, when the Liberals gave self-government to South Africa.

"Let us do our part," concluded the Prime Minister, "to exorcise once for all these baleful influences and join the two peoples meant to be one, whom the chances of history, the seeming caprice of fortune, the follies and passions of men have kept apart in fruitful and enduring union."

T. P. O'Connor, Hon. T. C. R. Agar-Robartes, William O'Brien, James Parker, Rt. Hon. Herbert Samuel, and Rt. Hon. J. H. Campbell continued the debate. Sir Edward Carson was unable to attend.

DUKE TO RETURN SOON?

Impression In London Is That Term of Office Will Not Be Extended.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.) —The impression is growing here that the Duke of Connaught, in view of the precarious health of the duchess will not seek an extension of his term of office.

Prince Arthur last week obtained special leave from his regiment to proceed immediately to Canada if more unfavorable news were received.

The duchess' illness has caused considerable anxiety here and bulletins are being eagerly awaited.

Fatal Railway Collision.

GLENCOE, Jan. 16.—One man was killed and four others badly injured, two of them probably fatally, when a rear-end collision occurred about ten o'clock last night at the "Y" near the coal chute here.

The dead man is Walter Challis, Wabash brakeman, of Windsor, who was in the caboose of a Grand Trunk stock train standing in the yard.

MEDALS FOR CANADIANS

PITTSBURG, Jan. 16.—At the annual meeting yesterday of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission twenty-five awards for bravery were made. Of the two silver medals given for conspicuous heroism Canada got both. One went to Doris E. Lewis, a school girl, aged fourteen. The $2,000 for educational purposes given Miss Lewis was the largest money award made. Miss Lewis saved Benjamin W. Draper, aged seven from drowning through a hole in the ice, at Cowansville, Quebec, Nov. 25, 1911.

A silver medal was given to the father of Frank Beaumont, aged 36, farmer and boatman, who died trying to save John G. C. Beaumont, aged nine, of Toronto, from drowning in Muskoka Lake at Beaumaris, Ont., July 27, 1912.

BAD FIRE AT BATTLE CREEK

Canadian Press Despatch.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 16—Fire early to-day, destroyed or seriously damaged the Eldred Block, Hinman Block, Kaph Block and the Rex Theatre, causing a loss of two hundred thousand dollars.

Illustrating Homeric Struggles.

Mr. Frederic Villiers, [illegible] artist and war correspondent, is still in active service, though he has celebrated his sixtieth year. Despite the popularity of the camera, he can hold his own with the pencil, and the sketches he has been sending of scenes in the Balkans prove that his hand retains all its old skill.

Though born in London, Mr. Villiers received his early education in France. His art studies he pursued at the British Museum and the South Kensington schools. When war broke out in Servia in 1876 he commenced his career as an artist correspondent, which he has pursued uninterruptedly till the present day. He has witnessed every campaign of any note during the past thirty-six years, and has seen the overthrow of ancient dynasties and the birth of new Powers. He possesses numerous English and foreign war medals, clasps and decorations.

HAS LETTERS OF APPROVAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Jan. 16— Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., who will introduce to-day his resolution to abolish honorary titles in Canada, says he has been deluged with letters of approval. "They all say it is a fine thing to put an end to snobocracy in Canada," he remarked.

An excuse never accomplishes half it is expected to accomplish.

PARCELS POST WILL BE INTRODUCED SHORTLY

Postmaster-General in Debate on a Resolution Brought in by Hon. Mr. Lemieux Says That Something Will be Done, But He is Not Yet Ready to Divulge Details.

OTTAWA, June 16.- That the Government is considering a parcel post system and that a plan will be laid before Parliament during the present session was the statement made in the House yesterday by Postmaster-General Pelletier. The Minister, therefore, asked Hon. Mr. Lemieux to withdraw a resolution favoring such a project until the Government had dealt with the matter.

It was private members' day in the House, and the naval debate was shelved for the time being.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux, who was supported by Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer and Messrs. W. M. Martin of Regina and E. W. Nesbitt of North Oxford, dealt with the subject of parcels post at some length. For some time he had hesitated, as Postmaster-General to take action, owing to protests, presumably from the country storekeepers, who took the ground that it would serve to increase the grasping power of the departmental stores. He had discovered, he said, that they had been put up to protesting by the express companies.

Continuing, he said that the true function of a Postoffice Department was that of communication. It should control not only the transmission of mail, but cables, telegraphs, telephones, and express. In Canada we had lagged far behind and were now unique in having no parcel post or at best a parcel post which could only be described as the "skeleton of a skeleton."

He contrasted the rates charged with those effective in other countries, and pointed out that we carried parcels sent to us from other countries in larger bulk and at much lower rates than we carried parcels to and from citizens of our own country. Our parcel post service was surrendered to the express companies, which charged the people most extortionately. There was no reason why the Postmaster-General with 14,000 postmasters in his service could not carry parcels cheaply and at a profit at least up to eleven pounds, the weight limit prevailing in the United Kingdom and the United States.

Mr. Martin, the Liberal member for Regina, voiced the western sentiment in favor of parcel post. The express rates in the west were extortionate and the people looked to the Postoffice Department for relief.

Dr. Clarke, the Liberal member for Red Deer, said that old country settlers in the west missed the parcel post service and demanded its establishment, and Mr. Nesbitt, the Liberal member for North Oxford, complained that express rates were very high in Ontario.

Mr. Armstrong, the Conservative member for East Lambton, twitted Mr. Lemieux upon the fact that he is now a progressive, but had failed as Postmaster-General to put into effect any of the reforms which he now preached.

Postmaster-General Pelletier, in opening, said that Mr. Lemieux, when in office, had been very keen for the parcel post until it came time to act and then he stopped short of the "abyss." The Postoffice Department had a big surplus, but that was no reason why the Department should recklessly run itself into bankruptcy. It was idle to say that the petitions from retail merchants were not bona-fide. The Retail Merchants' Association had protested to the Department against the establishment of the parcel post and were soon to send a big deputation to Ottawa to emphatically voice their protests.

"I want to say right here," said Mr. Pelletier, "that we are not going to establish a parcel post just for the fun of the thing, nor are we going to establish it for the purpose of competing with the express companies or reducing express rates.

"It was not the business of the Postoffice Department to reduce express rates. If shippers found the express rates too high they should complain to the Railway Commission. The same paper, he went on to say, urged him to establish a flat rate, yet it eulogized the United States parcel post, which was based on the zone system.

"I may say in this connection," he added, "that the parcel post in Canada will not be based on a flat rate, but on a zone system."

Mr. Pelletier, however, explained that the elaborate system of zones adopted by the United States would not be copied in Canada. The plan to be put in force in Canada could not be disclosed to Parliament until it had been submitted to and approved by the Cabinet.

Rural mail deliveries should precede parcel post, said Mr. Pelletier, and the extension of rural mail delivery routes was more important than the extension of the parcel post.

In conclusion, Mr. Pelletier said that some plan for a parcel post would be announced before the close of the present session, but care would be taken not to trample on any legitimate business or to run the Government into debt. The results in the United States will be watched with interest and on March 1st we would know how the experiment has succeeded there, because we had been promised a statement of the receipts and expenditures.

Upon this assurance of the Postmaster-General, Mr. Lemieux's motion was withdrawn.

Porte Extends Concessions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 16.—The Turkish Government yesterday granted an extension of the tobacco concession for another twenty years.

AUTHORS WIFE ASKS $2,000; MRS. HARRIS WANTS $1,000,000

Both Lost Their Husbands in the Disaster to the Titanic.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A flood of petitions for damages through the loss of the steamer Titanic filed yesterday included one from Mrs. Irene Wallach Harris, who claims $1,000,000 for the loss of her husband, Henry B. Harris, the theatrical manager. This is the heaviest of the 279 claims so far filed. Mrs. Mary Futrelle, of Pelham, Mass., asks $2,000 for the loss of her husband, Jacques Futrelle, author. The claim of Mrs. Lily B. Millet, widow of Francis D. Millet, the artist, a Titanic victim, is $100,000.

U. S. Judge Hand yesterday extended the time for filing petitions on claims to February 11. The claims amount to more than $10,000,000, but the White Star Line contends that its liability is limited under the United States statutes to less than $100,000, the value of recovered records and passage money.

Companies Encourage Arson.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—State Attorney Hoyne made a statement yesterday, in which he declared that some of the fire insurance companies were involved in the plot with the adjusters in connection with cases of arson.

He said these companies made no serious effort to stop incendiary fires because this class of losses offered them an opportunity to increase rates.

Icebreaking Ended Last Night.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—The icebreaking season at Port Arthur and Fort William, which was extended to permit of vessels loading grain and thus preventing a blockade, ended last night.

Fifty vessels will have been loaded by the end of the week and about nine million bushels of grain will be taken care of, ready to move out the first thing in the spring.

FAVOR CENSUS EVERY FIVE YEARS

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—That the census, in so far as it relates to population and prosperity, should be taken every five years, is the principal recommendation in the report of an inter-departmental commission on statistics, tabled by Hon. Geo. E. Foster yesterday. There are [illegible] recommendations calculated to facilitate and co-ordinate the preparation of statistical information respecting Canada, federally and provincially, including an annual census of production; and enlargement of the Canada year book.

NO REDISTRIBUTION.

Senator Lougheed Says There Is No Present Likelihood of One.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—The Senators came back yesterday after their Christmas holidays.

Senator Beique asked: "Is it the intention of the Government to present a redistribution bill during the present session of Parliament?"

Hon. Mr. Lougheed replied for the Government as follows: "From present intentions, no."

TO PREVENT RE-MARRIAGE.

Senator Cloran Would Ban Offending Party In Divorce.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—Senator Cloran introduced a bill in the Senate yesterday, which provides that when divorce has been granted, the [illegible] party shall not have the right of marriage again. It is entitled "An Act Respecting the Evil of Divorce."

The discussion which will hinge around this bill is expected to prove unusually interesting, as divorce applications to Parliament are increasing at a disturbing rate, and this year's list is the largest in the country's history.

Chippewa To Be a Lake Port.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 16.—At its annual meeting the Board of Trade put its official stamp of approval on the plan to make Chippewa a lake port, by making it the head of navigation on the proposed new Welland Canal. The board condemned the local street car service and protested against the high toll charges of the Bell Telephone Co.

"No," said Elnora. "You must not say bad words and you must be kind and polite to your sister."

"Must Belle be kind and polite to me, else she ain't a lady?"

"Yes."

"Then Belle's no lady!" said Billy succinctly.

Elnora could say nothing more just then, and she bade them goodby and started them home.

"The poor little souls!" she mused. "I think the Almighty put them in my way to show me real trouble. I won't be likely to spend much time pitying myself while I can see them." She glanced at the lunch box. "What on earth do I carry this for? I never had anything that was so strictly ornamental! One sure thing! I can't take this stuff to the high school. You never seem to know just what is going to happen to you while you are there."

As if to provide a way out of her difficulty a big dog arose from a lawn and came toward the gate, wagging his tail. "If those children ate the stuff, it can't possibly kill him!" thought Elnora, so she offered the bologna. The dog accepted it graciously, and, being a pedigreed beast, he trotted around to a side porch and laid the bologna before his mistress. The woman snatched it, screaming, "Come, quick! Some one is trying to poison Pedro!" Her daughter came running from the house. "Go see who is on the street—Hurry!" cried the excited mother.

Ellen Brownlee ran and looked. Elnora was a half block away, and no one nearer. Ellen called loudly, and Elnora stopped. Ellen came running toward her.

"Did you see anyone give our dog something?" she cried as she approached.

Elnora saw no escape.

"I gave it a piece of bologna myself," she said. "It was fit to eat. It wouldn't hurt the dog."

Ellen stood and looked at her. "Of course, I didn't know it was your dog," explained Elnora, and she told Ellen about Billy and Jimmy and Belle and the sacrificed luncheons.

"Wait until I run back and tell mother about the dog, and get my books," said Ellen.

Elnora waited, and that morning she walked down the hall and into the auditorium beside one of the very nicest girls in Onabasha, and it was the fourth day. But the surprise came at noon when Ellen insisted upon Elnora lunching at the Brownlee home and convulsed her parents and family and overwhelmed Elnora by a greatly magnified but moderately accurate history of her lunch box.

"Gee, but it's a box, daddy!" cried the laughing girl. "It's carved leather and fastens with a strap that's got her name on it. Inside are trays for things all complete, and it bears evidence of having inclosed delicious food, but Elnora never gets any. She's carried it two days now, and both times it has been empty before she reached school. Isn't that killing?"

"It is, Ellen, in more ways than one. No [illegible] o'clock, walk three miles and do good work with no lunch. You can't tell me anything about that box. I sold it last Monday night to Wesley Sinton, one of my good country customers. He told me it was a present for a girl who was worthy of it, and I see he was right."

When Elnora entered the coat room after having had luncheon with Ellen Brownlee there was such a difference in the atmosphere that she could feel it.

"I am almost sorry I have these clothes," she said to Ellen.

"In the name of sense, why?" cried the astonished girl.

"Every one is so nice to me in them. It just sets me to wondering if in time I could have made them be equally friendly in the others."

Ellen looked at her introspectively.

"Well, yes, I believe you could," she announced at last. "But it would have taken time and heartache, and your mind would have been less free to work on your studies. No one is happy without friends, and I just simply can't study when I am unhappy."

That night the Bird Woman made the last trip to the swamp. Every specimen she possibly could use had been purchased at a fair price, and three additions had been made to the bank book, carrying the total to a little past $200. There remained the Indian relics to sell on Saturday, and Elnora had secured the order to furnish material for nature work for the grades. Life suddenly grew very full. There was the most excitingly interesting work for every hour, and that work was to pay high school expenses and start the college fund. There was just one little rift in her joy. All of it would have been so much better if she could have told her mother and given the money into her keeping. But the struggle to get a start had been so terrible, Elnora was afraid to take the risk.

When she reached home she only told her mother that the last of the things had been sold that evening.

"I think," said Mrs. Comstock, "that we will get Wesley to move that box over here back of the garden for you. There you are apt to get tolled farther into the swamp than you intend to go, and you might mire or something. There ought to be just the same things in our woods and along our swampy places as there are in the Limberlost. Can't you hunt your stuff here?"

"I can try," said Elnora. "I don't know what I can find until I do. Our woods are undisturbed, and there is a possibility they might be even better hunting than the swamp. But I wouldn't have Freckles' case moved for the world. He might come back some day and not like it. I've tried to keep his room the best I could, and taking out the box would make a great hole in one side of it. Store boxes don't cost much. I will have Uncle Wesley buy me one and set it up wherever hunting looks the best early in the spring. I would feel safer at home."

CHAPTER IX.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Manipulates Margaret, and Billy Acquires a Residence.

ELNORA hurried upstairs to change her dress. Margaret Sinton came that night, bringing a beautiful blue one in its stead and carried away the other to launder.

"Do you mean to say those dresses are to be washed every two days?" questioned Mrs. Comstock.

"They have to be to look fresh," replied Margaret. "We want our girl sweet as a rose."

"Well, of all things!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "Every two days! Any girl who can't keep a dress clean longer than that is a dirty girl. You'll wear the goods out and fade the colors with so much washing."

"We'll have a clean girl anyway."

"Well, if you like the job you can have it," said Mrs. Comstock. "I don't mind the washing, but I'm so inconvenient with an iron."

Elnora sat late that night working hard over her lessons. The next morning she put on her blue dress and ribbon, and in those she was a picture. Mrs. Comstock caught her breath with a queer stirring around her heart and looked twice to be sure of what she saw. As Elnora gathered her books her mother silently gave her the lunch box.

"Feels heavy," said Elnora gayly. "And smelly!"

Elnora went down the road thinking of the children with whom she probably would divide. Of course, the bridge would be occupied again. So she stopped and opened the box. Undoubtedly Mrs. Comstock was showing Margaret Sinton the "frills." The cake was still fresh, and there were four slices. The sandwiches had to be tasted twice before Elnora discovered that beechnuts had been used in a peanut recipe, and they were a great improvement. There were preserved strawberries in the cup, potato salad with mint and cucumber in the dish and a beautifully browned squab from the stable loft.

"I don't want to be selfish," murmured Elnora, "but it just seems as if I can't give away this lunch. If mother did not put love into it she's substituted something that's likely to fool me."

She almost felt her steps lagging as she approached the bridge. A very hungry dog had been added to the trio of children. Elnora loved all dogs and, as usual, this one came to her in friendliness. The children said "Good morning!" with alacrity, and another paper parcel lay conspicuous.

"How are you this morning?" inquired Elnora.

"All right," cried the three, while the dog sniffed ravenously at the lunch box and beat a perfect tattoo with his tail.

"How did you [illegible] bologna?" questioned Billy eagerly.

"One of the girls took me to lunch at her home yesterday," answered Elnora.

Dawn broke beautifully over Billy's streaked face. He caught the package and thrust it toward Elnora.

"Then maybe you'd like to try the bologna today?"

(To be Continued.)

She Didn't Do It.

The family jar waxed fiercer.

"You talk about my being to blame for our marrying!" shrilly exclaimed Mrs. Vick-Senn. "John Henry, did I hunt you out and then make love to you?"

"No!" he snorted. "But you could have given me the glassy eye and sent me about my business, and you didn't do it, madam—you didn't do it!"—C

THE MODERN WOMAN.

What Helen Keller Has to Say About Them.

I am not disposed to praise the educated woman, as we commonly use the term. I find her narrow and lacking in vision. Few women whom I meet take a deep interest in the important questions of the day. They are bored by any problem not immediately related to their desires and ambitions. Their conversation is trivial and erratic. They do not consider a subject long enough to find out that they know nothing about it. How seldom does a college girl who has tasted philosophy and studied history relate philosophy and the chronicles of the past to the terrific processes of life which are making history every day? Her reputed practical judgment and swift sympathy seem to become inoperative in the presence of any question that reaches to a wide horizon. Her mind works quickly so long as it follows a traditional groove. Lift her out of it and she becomes inert and without resource. Such a woman comes to the gravest responsibilities like the foolish virgins who hastened to the marriage with no oil in their lamps. She is not prepared for the battle of life. Before she knows it she may be in the midst of the fight, undisciplined and disorganized, struggling for all that is precious to her against an enemy whose position she has not reconnoitered. She sends her sons and daughters into the streets of life without the knowledge that protects. Ignorance gives her confidence, and she is fearless from want of understanding.—Helen Keller in Metropolitan.

Shelter For Homeless.

A new scheme for providing shelter for the homeless poor in London will be tried out first on the Thames Embankment, that dreadful nocturnal resort of the starving and the derelict.

The commissioner of police is arranging that constables on night duty shall carry tickets to be handed to homeless persons in need coming under their notice. The tickets are to be small and simple of form, containing directions to apply at an office which is to be opened by the Metropolitan Asylums Board in the west central neighborhood. Here there will be an officer in attendance, who will ring up shelters and casual wards to ascertain where there is room for the holders of the tickets.

The office will be opened at night, and the applicants will be sent from there to shelters or casual wards most suited to them, where they will be sure of admission. Arrangements will also be made for the reception of homeless people for the night at a number of co-operating voluntary institutions.

Europe's Largest Grapevine.

What is said to be the largest grapevine in Europe is to be seen in the great conservatory of Lord Breadalbane at Killin, Loch Tay, Scotland. Planted in 1832 in a modest conservatory measuring only fifteen feet, its glass house has now grown to large proportions, the outer branches being some eighty feet off the main stem and both vine and its little crystal palace are still adding to their inches, the latter having been extended twenty-eight years ago. The 1912 yield numbered 3,075 bunches, but it was [illegible] 500 of them to mature. They have a delicious flavor and are of the Black Hamburg variety.

Shadeless Forests.

Large tracts of dense forests in Australia are practically shadeless. Many kinds of trees in that strange country turn their edges instead of the flat surface of the leaves to the sun, and thus one may stand under a tree of enormous size and be as fully exposed to the sun as though he were in the open plain. Travel through these forests is said to be exceedingly arduous work, as the trees, while they do not cut off the sun, prevent the breeze from reaching the ground, and thus the traveler experiences a stifling heat.

Some men are so far ahead of the procession that no one knows they are in it.

BRILLIANT DUNCES.

Stupid Schoolboys Who Have Set the Prophets at Naught.

"What is happening to the cleverest of our boys and girls? We cannot afford to waste a single child of real promise. I am afraid the blindness to the issue is not recognized as it should be, and children of promise are driven into a line where their gifts are of no use."

These interesting remarks were made a few days ago by the headmaster of Eton, Dr. J. E. Lyttelton, apropos of the controversy that has arisen in the London press regarding the future of the brilliant boy — the successful student, who, after winning scholarship after scholarship, finds that when he finally leaves college there is little opening for his talents. This is due to several causes, the chief one of which seems to be that the brilliant scholar does not possess that business and commercial instinct which would enable him to adapt himself to the conditions and competition of modern life.

In connection with this discussion, however, it is interesting to note that quite a number of men who are famous to-day were, according to their own confessions, regarded as dull boys at school. There is Canon Scott Holland, for instance, a leader of religious thought, who says, "I was, and am always, a very bad scholar. I could not win the chief prizes at school. I could toddle along very happily near the top of my form and do decently. This was all. I was generally the second or third, but the form was not remarkably good."

Mr. Tim Healy, the brilliant Nationalist, also says that he "was a dull boy at school, and left at thirteen," while Sir Frederick Treves, the famous surgeon, confesses that "as a schoolboy I should have been classed as indifferent, while my school record as a whole was uniformly unsatisfactory."

Then there is Father Benson, the eminent Roman Catholic preacher, who says, "I fear I was regarded at Eton by my masters as idle and rather unsatisfactory, and with justice. I was a King's scholar there, owing to the admirable teaching I received at my private school, but my school reports from Eton itself were very far from good. I attribute this partly, no doubt, to my own perversity, but also largely to the manner of education that prevailed and still prevails there. I left Eton a very grievous disappointment to my relations, my teachers, and myself."

Rev. F. B. Meyer says that while he was certainly not a brilliant boy, "I had the power of concentration and persistence; could maintain my position always towards the third or fourth place in the class—not infrequently the first—by assiduous labor."

Apparently Jack Hassall, the famous artist, was not a great scholar. "My list of honors for lessons at school," he says, "is a very short one, as I only got one prize in my life, and that loses some of its value to me, as all the other boys but one had measles."

Rose Leaf Tipped Smokes.

The latest novelty in cigarettes for London ladies is tipped with real rose leaf and edged with gold. The velvet softness of the tip between the lips of the fair smoker is apparently pleasing to her sense of refinement, while the red rose leaf tip satisfies her sense of color. But luxury-loving woman has to pay for her epicurean tastes. Her cigarettes may cost her anything up to five dollars per hundred, for she often demands her initials or her crest on her cigarettes.

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.
What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?
Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.
Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?
Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?
Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.
Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

CURED OF THIS HORRIBLE DISEASE

Edmonton Girl saved By "Fruit-a-tives"

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 20th 1911.

"I had been a sufferer from babyhood with that terrible complaint, Constipation.

I have been treated by physicians and have taken every medicine that I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I concluded that there was no cure for this horrible disease.

Finally, I read of "Fruit-a-tives" and decided to try them, and the effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good for Chronic Constipation and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—Try "Fruit-a-tives—" why suffer any longer when there is a perfect cure in this great fruit medicine"

(MISS) E. A. GOODALL.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world made of fruit and the only one that will completely and absolutely cure Constipation.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A DOUBLE CONFESSION

The Singular Case of a Pair of Lovers

By JOHN R. OGELVIE

One of the questions as to what is and what is not allowable in the legal profession that laymen are not apt to understand is whether it is honorable for a lawyer to defend a client who has confessed himself guilty of the crime with which he is charged. One of the reasons why this is not only allowable for an attorney, but is his duty, is that the confession may be false. Many persons have labored under a hallucination that they have committed a crime of which they are entirely innocent.

I had a very singular case of this kind when I was practicing, before I went on the bench. A young man was accused of forging his uncle's will. He was heir-at-law to the property involved by reason of relationship to the testator. But several years before the will was drawn one was executed leaving the property to a woman who was his housekeeper. It was this housekeeper, Anna Blake, who accused the beneficiary under the second will with having forged his uncle's name to it.

Arnold Jefferson, my client, when I came to confer with him about his case, asked me whether I would defend a person who confessed himself guilty. I said that I would, whereupon he told me that in order to prevent his uncle's property from going out of the family and secure it for himself he had forged his uncle's name to the second will.

I was somewhat staggered at this, for if I proved him innocent I would divert the property from the channel in which the testator intended it to go and deprive the real owner of it that it might go to a criminal. I plied the young man with questions as to how he had come to perpetrate such a crime, and he told me that he was in love with a girl whom he would like to marry and did not consider himself able to do so without this property. Besides, he believed that his uncle was intending to leave it to him at the time of his death.

If I declined to take the case and he could get no other lawyer to do so the judge would assign him counsel. Therefore I proceeded with it, though reluctantly, for it is not pleasant for a conscientious lawyer to defend a man who has admitted his guilt. I would content myself with trying to get my client off with as light a sentence as possible.

There was a chance for the young man in this—experts in chirography would be called who would compare the signature to the will with Jefferson's handwriting. These experts are apt to differ in such matters. The plaintiff called the most prominent one of the lot, who declared that my client must have written the signature to the will. I employed another expert, who testified that he could not have written it. But unfortunately of the five experts called four testified that there were certain strokes in the signature that were to be found in Jefferson's writing.

There were two signatures of witnesses to the will Jefferson was charged with forging. One of these persons, Edward Bronson, was dead; the other, Silas Ormsby, was not to be found. They were supposed to be myths, and the plaintiff's attorneys, though they had no proof that the defendant had written their names, threw out a broad hint that he had done so.

The case looked so desperate that I advised my client to produce his confession and throw himself on the mercy of the court. By this means he might secure a light sentence, whereas if he persisted in denying his guilt in the face of such conclusive evidence he would very likely get a heavy one.

He said that he would think the matter over. This was after court adjourned on Saturday, and I feared I could not keep the trial in progress more than a day or two longer. And as the case stood Jefferson was sure to be convicted. Sunday evening I received a call from a young lady, Miss Dora Wentworth, who turned all my expectations awry. She told me that it was she, and not Arnold Jefferson, who had committed the forgery.

I felt it incumbent upon me to subject her to a searching examination to get at the truth. She said that she was the person whom Jefferson was engaged to marry. He had been all a lover should be until about the time his uncle had died and no will was found leaving the property to him. Then she told him that a will would be found if she had to write one herself. This, she added, she had done.

I asked Miss Wentworth if she would sign a written confession to this effect, and she said she would. So I asked her to write it. Before she could again see Jefferson I went to the jail and, showing him her confession, asked him why he had made a false one himself. He seemed a good deal agitated at seeing the matter laid down in black and white. Then he burst out passionately:

"I didn't believe when she threatened to do this thing that she would be so desperate. Nevertheless when the second will was found I feared she had written and signed it. Preferring to suffer myself rather than that she should suffer for her crime, I have stood in the breach. And I propose before the court and the world to continue to stand in the breach. I still claim what I have claimed—that I concocted the will, signed my uncle's name to it and put in the names of witnesses who had no existence."

Here was a mixed up affair, and no mistake. A pair of lovers were each claiming to be guilty, and solely guilty, of a crime. Which was the innocent, which the guilty one? I had nothing by which to decide. I thought of the experts. Should I submit this new feature of the case to them? What would it avail? A preponderance of their evidence had proved Jefferson guilty. They could not be expected to go back on their former evidence by declaring that Miss Wentworth committed the forgery. I could get other experts who had not yet been brought into the case, but if they declared that Miss Wentworth had done the writing it would only prove expert testimony to be worthless.

Here I paused in my cogitations, for I was struck with an idea. I might produce Miss Wentworth's confession in court. It would probably be regarded a ruse to save her lover. But suppose I could get experts to testify that her handwriting had in it the characteristics of the forged signature. I could at least save my client. The same evening I acted on this thought, and, though I had difficulty in finding even one expert who had not been called in the case, he had as good repute for skill in his profession as any of the others. To my surprise he told me there was no doubt that Miss Wentworth was the guilty party.

That settled my course for the future. The next day when the court opened I produced the second confession and the affidavit of the expert in chirography that in his opinion the confessors had forged the signature to the will in question.

There was a great deal of confusion in what followed in court. The legal aspect of the case had entirely changed. Two different persons had confessed to have written a signature that could only have been written by one. After consultation with their client the plaintiff's lawyers took the ground that the second will was invalid because there was a confession on the part of the beneficiary under it that he had forged it. Therefore, the property going to Anna Blake under the former will, she had no interest in further criminal prosecution. They asked for an adjournment of the court and proposed to me that if my client would sign away all claim to his uncle's property they would drop the prosecution against him and so far as they were concerned would not prosecute Miss Wentworth.

I declined the proposition on the ground that it was impossible to prove either of the lovers guilty. But they, feeling confident that the chancery court would give their client the property under the earlier will, dropped the matter, and Jefferson went forth a free man.

My own solution of the problem involved in the two confessions was that Jefferson, being disappointed in inheriting the property, signified that the marriage could not take place. This threw in the way of Miss Wentworth a temptation that she could not resist. She concocted a later will, but her lover in order to save her from the consequences of her crime when criminal proceedings were commenced confessed himself guilty. Nevertheless I was not certain as to this or anything concerning the parties or the affair in which they were concerned. That either one or the other or both were guilty I did not doubt, but this opinion was rather based on the evidence than on the bearing or appearance of either of them. I could not throw off an impression that Jefferson was a fine fellow and Miss Wentworth was a lovely girl. And had not each attempted to relieve the other of the burden by a confession?

The matter of the inheritance was still in the chancery court when one day I received a letter from a man in Australia. I had that day received an invitation to the wedding of Arnold Jefferson and Dora Wentworth. I put the letter in my pocket and said nothing about it till I attended the wedding, which took place in a little church with no attendants except myself. Indeed, it had not been expected that even I would accept. When the clergyman who performed the ceremony came to the words "With all my worldly goods I thee endow" and the groom had repeated them I called a halt and produced the letter I had received from Australia. It read as follows:

> Have seen in an American newspaper reference to the case against Arnold Jefferson. I was an intimate friend of the late William Jefferson and was one of the witnesses to a will he made a few weeks before his death. I return to America soon on business and will call upon you not long after you receive this.
>
> SILAS ORMSBY.

Never shall I forget the look that passed between the bride and groom. Each had believed the other guilty of the forgery, but each had forgiven the other on account of the sacrifice involved in the act. A few rapidly spoken words passed between them, there was a quick embrace, and the ceremony proceeded. But they were both too much affected to make the responses intelligently.

The same day I stopped all proceedings in the chancery court as to the Jefferson will pending the arrival of the Australian. In due time the confessed forger inherited the property, enjoying it with his confessed forger wife.

If before handling this case I had qualms of conscience in defending a criminal who I had every reason to believe to be guilty I certainly never had afterward. Our system of jurisprudence is based on hundreds of years' experience and should be followed unflinchingly.

Where Ironing is Done With the Feet

One of the most curious sights which I beheld in Cairo, writes a correspondent of the Wide World, was men ironing with their feet! They had not been mixing their drinks; it is simply a custom of the country. These men were employed in the native tailoring establishments. Except for a long iron handle the irons were shaped like the ordinary flatiron, only larger. A solid block of wood rested on the top of the iron, and on this the men placed one foot, guiding the iron in the direction desired by means of the handle. For the sake of convenience the ironing boards were raised only a few inches above the ground. The men ironed with great rapidity and, however strange the method may seem to our ideas, it certainly does the work very well and expeditiously.

B.-P. In Disguise.

Years ago Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the head of the Boy Scout movement, began to specialize in scouting, and he is quite a genius at disguising himself. On one occasion, when he was expected at Kimberley, the populace turned out to greet him, but when his Cape cart arrived it contained only his baggage and the black driver. The latter asserted that his master was following on horseback, and a rider was observed in the distance. But on closer acquaintance it was discovered that the rider was the real black man, and the driver of the cart, who had quietly vanished, was in fact "B.-P." himself.

London Quartern Loaf.

A White Paper issued in London recently gives instructive figures as to the prices of British wheat and of the quartern loaf in London at various periods between 1800 and 1910, from which the following are extracted:

Year.	Wheat. Per Quarter. s. d.	Quartern Loaf. d.
1850	40 3	6.8
1910	31 8	5.9

In 1812 the price of the quartern loaf was actually 1s. 5d. The fall after 1850 was, of course, due to the abolition of the corn laws.

CLERGYMAN GOES IN FOR GARDENS

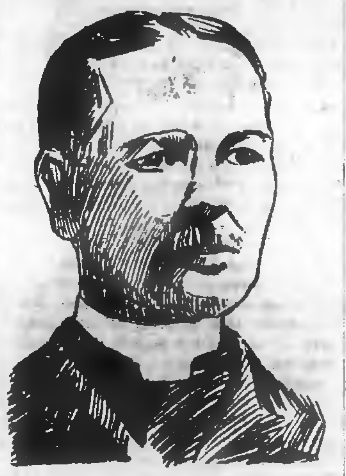
REV. A. H. SCOTT IS A PREACHER-HORTICULTURALIST.

Perth Man Who Has Been Re-Elected to the Presidency of the Ontario Horticultural Association Is Deeply Interested In Civic and Rural Improvement and Finds Time to Study Conditions Abroad.

Rev. A. H. Scott, M.A., Perth, who was elected president, for the second time, of the Ontario Horticultural Association at the Horticultural convention recently, has traveled much in many lands, but he thinks his native land the best land of all. Addressing a large audience in Toronto, Mr. Scott used these words:

"I quarrel with no one who stands up for some other place east, west, or elsewhere. But the best east and the best west that I know of is the spot on this continent that lies between Patricia on the one side and the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes on the other, the spot in North America that is surrounded at the one end by the district of the Lake of the Woods and at the other by my native Glengarry."

He is a native of Glengarry County, a graduate of Queen's University, an ex-moderator of the synod of Montreal and Ottawa, and the minister of St. Andrew's Church, Perth, in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He has a charmingly situated country place, "Elmbank Crescent," in Charlottenburg township, near the confluence of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, where his fondness for the soil and for out-of-door architecture has vent for a little season each year. He is also one of the officers of the Perth Horticultural Society which is one of the oldest, and bears the reputation of being one of the best informed horticultural societies in Canada.



REV. A. H. SCOTT.

In line with his tastes as a traveler and a lover of nature, Mr. Scott has paid special attention to matters relating to civic improvement and rural advancement in Canada. In visiting the cities of Great Britain, Scandinavia, and the continent, he has made a special study of the architectural principles that have made Paris the admiration of Europe. Two years ago from the public platform he outlined the history and progress of Washington, after a third visit to the American capital; and he has said many a time since that if the people of Canada realized what they had in and around the capital of their own Dominion, and would make judicious and generous use of the natural facilities that are found there, before a quarter of a century would elapse this young country of North America would have one of the most inviting capital cities in the whole world.

When Ambassador Bryce at the Baltimore convention was encouraging the people of the United States to set aside more national parks, Mr. Scott said to a Britisher who sat beside him in the audience that if wise discernment would set apart in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to say nothing of other provinces in the Dominion, forest areas that lie there for the carving out, we might have "National Parks," each one of them a thousand times larger than New Forest in England or Fontainebleau in France. By so doing Canadians would give evidence of sagacity and foresight, and at the same time they would be dedicating expansive areas to the health and happiness of generations to come.

Intercolonial Calendar

Bringing visions of comfortable and luxurious travel through a territory unrivalled for scenic beauty the calendar of the Intercolonial Railway just received with the compliments of the Traffic Department is warmly appreciated as a happy reminder of past enjoyments and as an inspiration for future travel.

The design of the calendar is greatly enhanced by a surprinting of gold on the background of maple leaves. As a reminder of the Intercolonial and its fine train service it is excellent. As something both ornamental and useful for office use it is much to be desired.

CHARITY.

For those who sit in places high
  And rule the land for wages
Let us have charity, because
  They cannot all be sages.
And if they do the best they can
  And show a spirit humble
When their mistakes are pointed out
  The people should not grumble.

Let us assume that just because
  They have a lofty station
They have not got it in for us
  As well as for the nation.
It is their wish, we may be sure,
  To so perform their duty
To leave a record that will be,
  Indeed, a thing of beauty.

Too harsh at times we deal with them
  And say that they are after
The spoils of office and are thus
  No better than the grafter
When it may seem legitimate
  The chance they have to take off
Without annoying any one
  Their useful little rakeoff.

Their wish is better than their deed.
  Of that you may be certain.
And if they falter by the way
  'Tis well to draw the curtain.
We send them down to Washington,
  But what's to be expected
Since more than what they get in pay
  It costs to be elected?

Hadn't It.

Mr. Augustine Birrell tells a little story about the only time he ever wanted to consult a doctor. "Once only in my life," he says, "did I feel persuaded that I was smitten with a mortal disease. I started on my way to consult a distinguished doctor. It was a hot July day, and I thought the time was come for my last walk. I walked from my house in Harley street. I found the great physician's room crowded with patients, and while waiting, I saw on a table a book written by the great physician, on the subject of this particular disease. The first words which caught my eye were these. 'The patient who is suffering from this disease never perspires.' I picked up my hat and walked out."

Poser For Churchill.

Since he went to the Admiralty, Mr. Churchill has endeavored to obtain information at first hand. Not long ago he was inquiring into the grievances of the lower deck, and on one of the ships he visited he engaged in conversation with a stoker.

"Do you like your job?" asked Mr. Churchill.

"I can't say I do, sir," replied the stoker.

"Well, what's wrong with it?"

"What's wrong with it," repeated the stoker looking straight at Mr. Churchill, "well, what's right with it?"

No Pretense.

"He seems to be a very modest man."

"You might be with him for a month and not know he was worth a million."

"But if you saw his bank account"—

"Then you would know for sure he wasn't."

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it." — Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

Write Ideas For Moving Picture Plays!

YOU CAN WRITE PHOTO PLAYS AND EARN $25 OR MORE WEEKLY

We Will Show You How!

If you have ideas—if you can THINK—we will show you the secrets of this fascinating new profession. Positively no experience or literary excellence necessary. No "flowery language" is wanted.

The demand for photoplays is practically unlimited. The big film manufacturers are "moving heaven and earth" in their attempts to get enough good plots to supply the ever increasing demand. They are offering $100 and more, for single scenarios, or written ideas.

Nearly all the big film companies, the buyers of photoplays, are located in or near NEW YORK CITY. Being right on the spot, and knowing at all times just what sort of plots are wanted by the producers, our SALE DEPARTMENT has a tremendous advantage over agencies situated in distant cities.

We have received many letters from the big film manufacturers, such as VITAGRAPH, EDISON, ESSANAY, LUBIN, SOLAX, IMP, REX, RELIANCE, CHAMPION, COMET, MELIES, ETC., urging us to send photoplays to them. We want more writers and we'll gladly teach you the secrets of success.

We are selling photoplays written by people who "never before wrote a line for publication."

Perhaps we can do the same for you. If you can think of only one good idea every week, and will write it out as directed by us, and it sells for only $25., a low figure.

You Will Earn $100 Monthly For Spare Time Work.

GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS

In reporting to the New York State Legislature against the adoption of a hydro-electric system as in operation in Ontario, the committee showed that it is unfavorable to Government or municipal ownership of public utilities and is partial to Government regulation—the old blind. The report contains this paragraph:

"The committee recommend for consideration to the legislature, the history of the Consumer's Gas company of Toronto, where without competition but by government regulation, gas has been reduced from $1.25 per thousand to 70 cents per thousand, under a statute automatically regulating the price to the consumers and dividends, to the stockholders."

In regard to the water power matter the report says:

"They find that there is undeveloped within the state only 1,196,800 h.p., 262,700 h.p. of which is actually owned by the state, and 934,100 h.p. of which is claimed by private owners.

"In view of these circumstances, the committee report that in their judgment it would be impossible for the state of New York to develop a sufficient amount of hydraulic power to make any appreciable impression on the power demands of the state."

From this extract it will be seen that the "interests" have grabbed nearly all the water power of the state.

EARL GREY BUTTS IN

Earl Grey, the former Governor-General of Canada, has written to the London Times, to say that he protests against the assumption that the negotiating of the reciprocity pact by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government was an evidence of lack of Imperial spirit. He says that it was the belief of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues that if Canadian farm products were given entrance to the protected American market, it would build up and enrich Canadian agriculture, and therefore make a larger market for the protected manufacturers of Canada. He also says that if this had gone through, there would have been an increase in the British preference.

It is much to be regretted that Grey could not have kept out of this matter of political discussion. If the Laurier politicians are to be believed, the Liberal party still has reciprocity nailed to the mast. Earl Grey left Canada just before the last Dominion election, and it is too recent for him to put his finger into the Canadian political pie, even though he now speaks in an ex-official capacity.

What the late Governor-General says does not alter in any sense the situation. It was all said at the time of the election. It was not what Laurier said about his desiring to maintain British connection, so much as what Taft and Champ Clark and others said about capturing Canada that roused the Canadian people. It was also a battle by the farmer for the protection of his home industry, as well as a battle by Canadian business men for the keeping out of American competition, save that introduced by the coming to Canada of American factories. Earl Grey will make much more difficult the selection of a Governor-General to succeed the Duke of Connaught, if he does not keep out of the active political fray.

THE UNIONIST DECISION

The decision of Mr. Bonar Law and Lord Lansdowne, the British Unionist leaders, to drop the objectionable "food taxes" part of the Unionist program, is much the wisest course. Apparently, the British Unionists are much opposed to the idea of putting duties on wheat — the restoration of the corn laws, if to keep up the proposal is to injure the chances of the Conservatives in obtaining office, then let the matter be held over until a second general election. By that time, there would have been a series of Imperial conferences, at which the fiscal relations of the dominions and the motherland would have been discussed, and a program could be evolved to include that part of a preference accompanied by other proposals that would help make it desirable. The whole idea would have to depend on the result of the conferences.

But as it is quite evident that the Unionists could not get very far if, while in Opposition, they adhered to the food tax proposal, it is better out of the way. The Dominions are not seeking such a preference. In fact, if the Borden Government were to arrange for a freight service for grain to the Motherland that would keep traffic charges on grain low, it would be giving Canadian grain a far greater preference than the British Government could give. Canada now sends nearly 40,000,000 bushels of wheat to Britain each year, and Australia and India contribute about 65,000,000 bushels. The three Dominions contribute 105,000,000 bushels out of about 190,000,000. It is not necessary for the betterment of the Canadian position, or for the establishment of a greater bond of sympathy between the various parts of the Empire, that the Mother Country should make any undue sacrifices—sacrifice that would bear most heavily on those of her population least able to bear the burden.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We move that Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., be made an honorary member of the Peterborough Ad Club. Mr. Burnham certainly leaves no stone unturned to keep Peterborough before the great reading public of Canada.

No woman is educated in values unless she is a persistent reader of the ads. She wouldn't know the news of the day unless she read the paper every day—and the same necessity applies to knowing buying opportunities.

NEW STATION AT VANCOUVER

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company in the continuation of its policy to anticipate the growth of traffic and the constantly increasing population of the city of Vancouver has found it necessary to build an entirely new station building to adequately cope with the traffic at the Pacific terminal. The company has already commenced with the erection of the additions to the hotel which is costing two millions of dollars, and an appropriation of just short of one and a quarter million of dollars has been made for the new station. The present building on Granville street will, of course, remain until the completion of the new station. The latter will be erected immediately adjoining the old site at the end of Granville street, and the architects are Messrs. Barott, Blackader and Webster, of Montreal. The work has already been started and the excavation and foundations are well under way, and the contractors, Messrs. Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., are rushing the work with the [illegible] speed as the contract calls for it to be completed in the spring of 1914. The new building which will be four storeys in height and extends four hundred feet on Cordova street, will be of an imposing character and the exterior will be composed of brick and limestone with a granite base. The design of the building is of classic type and well adapted for station requirements.

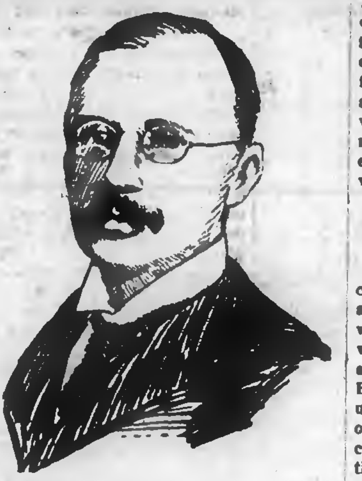
WILL SUCCEED BRYCE

SIR CECIL SPRING-RICE IS A BRILLIANT DIPLOMAT.

The Next British Ambassador To the United States Has Had a Varied Career In the British Foreign Service and Is at Present Empire's Representative In Sweden—Is In Prime of Life.

The recent resignation of Rt. Hon. James Bryce, British Ambassador to the United States, caused considerable discussion in London regarding his successor.

Mr. J. A. Spender, the editor of The Westminster Gazette, has been often mentioned as a likely man for the post, which is one much coveted by British diplomatists. However, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice is to be the new Ambassador to the United States. He is a man in the prime of life, who took the highest university honors, and one whose career has been a wholly diplomatic one. He has previously held positions of responsibility at the British Embassies at Berlin, St. Petersburg, Constantinople, Brussels, and Washington, so that he will not go as a stranger to the scene of his future labors. Sir Cecil was born in 1859 and was created K.C.M.G. in 1906. He has served at Stockholm as Minister since Sept. 1, 1908. In 1889 he was acting third secretary at Washington and was appointed acting second secretary at Washington to act as secretary to the British delegate to the international maritime conference, Aug. 27, 1889. After serving for a time at Brussels and Tokyo he was transferred to Washington in 1893. He was charge d'affaires at Teheran in 1900 and Minister to Persia in 1906-1908. His wife, whom he married in 1904, is a daughter of the famous English diplomatist, Sir Frank Lascelles. The new ambassador probably will not reach Washington until early in 1913, as the British Government desires to retain Mr. Bryce at his post pending the settlement of the Panama Canal dispute.



SIR CECIL ARTHUR SPRING-RICE.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BIRTH OF COLONEL BOGY.

Origin of the Term That Has Become a Part of Golf.

"Who is Colonel Bogy?" That is the first question usually asked by the recruit when he steps on the golf links. Professionals and veterans never tire of explaining that he is the imaginary opponent, with the fixed score for each hole, but few can tell how the name originated.

It generally is accepted that an Englishman was first to set forth the idea. In December, 1890, the scratch score of the Coventry course was taken, being the score that a good scratch player would take to each hole of the grounds, making no mistakes, but also fluking nothing nor being fortunate with any special flashes of brilliant play.

At the time they called this "the ground score," and later several tournaments were given under the system. The name, however, followed soon, and its origin was a curious one. Dr. Thomas Browne, R. N., went out to play against a friend, Major Charles A. Wellman, and they agreed instead of playing directly against each other to play against the ground score and decide their match accordingly as each fared in this way. It so happened that about the same time the bogy song was being sung by the late E. J. Lonnen at the London Gaiety theater, and everybody else was singing it. The words of the refrain were:

Hush! Hush! Hush!
Here comes the bogy man!
So hide your head beneath the clothes.
He'll catch you if he can.

There was the idea in golf. "He'll catch you if he can!" And it flashed across the mind of Major Wellman when he was playing this game and was getting "caught" by the ground score. "Why," said he to his friend Browne, "this player of yours is a regular 'bogy' man." A considerable piece of golf history was made in that chance remark, for "bogy" was from that moment established in golf. Some time later "colonel" was added.—Exchange.

The Simple Foreigner

In his new book, "The Surgeon's Log," Mr. J. Johnston Abraham describes an amusing adventure at Port Said. He was driving in the town one afternoon, and as they drew near one house the strains of music came echoing into the empty, sandy street.

"As if at a signal," says Mr. Abraham, "the decrepit chariot stood still, my guide got down, and suggested I should go in. I thought rapidly, and then followed him. It was queer, and I wanted to know. He led the way upstairs into a large room, where several men were playing roulette. None took any notice of me, but apparently the bank was having a very bad time of it. Everybody was winning. The music from the automatic piano was deafening. I looked on silently for some time and then made a move for the door. An oily-looked Greek intercepted me.

"'Won't you try your luck?' he said.

"'No, I'm not drunk enough,' I answered.

"He shrugged his shoulders and I passed out. On the stairs I paused and then stole quietly back. The music had ceased, and all the confederates who had been playing so feverishly and winning so much had ceased also, and were preparing to resume the siesta my advent had so fruitlessly interrupted.

Explained.

"She seems to be able to look so very young."

"Well, I think she ought to."

"You do?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"She has been working at it so long."

Some Difference.

"You look as happy as though you had been kissed."

"Maybe I have."

"But there is no man around."

"I might have been kissed by a woman."

"Not with that effect."

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

A. Lefebvre, a cage tender, was instantly killed by falling 120 feet at the Fourth of July shaft at Nipissing Mine, Cobalt, yesterday.

Falling on a chair while putting up curtains, Mrs. Helen O'Neill, the young wife of John O'Neill of Brantford, received injuries yesterday which proved fatal.

There is a rumor in Guelph that efforts are being made to unseat three of the aldermen of the city. It is understood that lawyers have been engaged by some of the defeated candidates.

No further efforts will be made to pull the Uranium off the rocks at Chebucto Head, Halifax. She will be allowed to wait the first easterly wind when it is expected the swell will dislodge her.

The cable from London stating that representatives of Australia, Canada and New Zealand would meet in Vancouver next May to discuss problems of Imperial defence is news to the Dominion Government.

A WALRUS ON LAND.

The Awkward and Bulky Creature Is Almost Helpless.

As might be expected, a walrus is about as helpless on land as a canal boat. It is with no little difficulty and much hitching and floundering that he drags his huge bulk upon a sandy shore even with the boosting he gets from behind by the breakers as they roll in and dash against him.

His hind flippers are of little use on land, and on sand or pebbles, where his front flippers do not hold well, the labor of floundering forward is so great that he never stirs beyond the edge of the water and usually lies with his body half awash, with the salt spray dashing over him like torrents of rain. On solid rock or ice he gets along much better, and often a herd will spread several rods back from the water's edge.

The females and younger walruses have far less development of neck to incumber them and therefore enjoy more freedom of motion than the old males, who actually seem a great burden to themselves. These creatures are strictly social in their habits and always go in herds, whether traveling, feeding, fighting or resting ashore. In the days before the slaughter of all living creatures became a ruling passion in the breast of man the Pacific species inhabited the whole of Bering sea and strait in herds which often contained thousands and even tens of thousands of individuals.

LONDON AND HYDRO ELECTRIC

Saving in Rates to Consumers for Year Amounted to $129,278

A saving of $129,278 in power rates was made for the citizens of London through the operation of the municipal Hydro-Electric system for 1912, according to figures made public by Hon. Adam Beck.

The reduction in rates to the users of Hydro power amounted to $101,278, and in addition it is estimated that the customers of private power companies have saved $28,000 by reason of rate reductions forced by Hydro competition.

The total expenses of the London system for the twelve months were $123,856.40, and the revenue $141,153.16, giving a cash surplus of $17,296.76. There was also a surplus of $9,000 from the transmission line, and adding these two sums to the total of $129,278 saved by consumers, the total benefit to the citizens of London by the operation of the municipal plant during the year reached the sum of $155,574.76.

At the beginning of November, 1912, London had $402,253.50 invested in its plant, compared with $320,361.94 a year previous.

NO ABBATOIR FOR THE PRESENT

Too Many Other Important Projects to be Considered

It is unlikely that Ald. Anderson will urge the construction of a public abbatoir for Peterborough, in council this year. The East City alderman has not gone back on his project, but feels that the ensuing year will not be opportune to push it further. The City Council are confronting a heavy budget of business, and he feels that the meat inspection will be carefully looked after by Dr. Clinton and the Sanitary Inspector.

Ald. Anderson as chairman of the Finance Committee will probably have the estimates providing for municipal expenditures in 1913, ready by the latter end of February.

MR. C. LEBRUN DIED AT TORONTO

Succumbed to Short Illness From Pneumonia

Peterborough friends and acquaintances of Mr. Carisse LeBrun will regret to learn of his death, which occurred yesterday at Toronto, after a short illness from pneumonia.

He was a brother of the late Mr. Harry LeBrun, who died on Monday, Jan. 23, 1911. [illegible] ing in this city, was prominent in business and athletic circles, and a playing member of the Peterborough Lacrosse team.

The deceased was married to Miss LeMay of this city, some five years ago. He, at the time of his death, held a position in the office of the Provincial Secretary, Toronto. Some five or six days ago, Mr. LeBrun contracted pneumonia, which terminated fatally yesterday. He was about 48 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing widow and one young son. The body will be sent to Rochester, N. Y., for interment.

CLUB BAG FOR MR. CALLENDER

Employes of Package Department of Quaker Oats Co. Will Miss Him

Last evening the employes of the Package Department of the Quaker Oats Co. gathered together to bid farewell to Mr. Orme C. Callender, foreman of the department, who leaves for Edmonton on Monday, Jan. 20, and to present to him a little token of their esteem in the form of an elegantly equipped club bag.

The presentation was made by Mr. F. Grandy and the address which was read by Miss Mabel Fower, was as follows:

Dear Mr. Callender,—It is with sincere regret that we, the employes of the package department, learn of your intended departure. Yet, while we feel that we are losing a good foreman, our heartiest good wishes will follow you to your new field of labor, and we would ask you to accept this little gift as a token of our esteem.

Wishing you the compliments of the season and success in your new undertaking.

Signed on behalf of the employes,

F. GRANDY,
M. FOWER,
M. McMANUS.

Needless to say Mr. Callender was taken greatly by surprise, but voiced his appreciation and gratitude to the employes for their good wishes in a neat and fitting manner, after which the gathering dispersed, giving three hearty cheers.

AN UNEXPECTED PRESENTATION

To Mr. Frank Pratt By Poultry Association Directors

Directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association, in meeting last night "passed the hat" and made the purchase of a handsome pipe.

They walked in a body to the headquarters of Mr. Frank Pratt, the Canadian Express Company's agent at the G.T.R. station, but found he was absent.

Proceeding they went to his home but were somewhat surprised to find the house filled with people. Totally unaware of the nature of the festivities the poultrymen made their presence known and were given the "glad hand," and informed that Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were celebrating their wooden wedding.

The pipe proved an appropriate gift. The Directors felt that Mr. Pratt's valuable services in handling the outside exhibits of the Poultry show, held last week, should not pass without some evidence of appreciation.

OFFICERS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL

Annual Meeting of Teachers and Officers at Knox Church

The Annual Meeting of the Teachers and Officers of Knox Church was held last night, when the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Hon Superintendent—Sheriff Hall
Superintendent — Mr. Malcolm Clark.
Assistant—Mr. Cecil Williamson.
Supt. Adult Dept.—J. F. Morrison
Supt. Missions—Mrs. Roy Ross.
Supt Cradle Roll Dept.—Mrs. J. F. Morrison.
Secretary—Mr. Roy Laing.
Assistant—Miss Jessie Miller.
Treasurer—Mrs. Roy Laing.
Librarian—Mr. John Anderson.
Assistant—Mr. Roy Penrose.

The financial statement was read and the finances of the church were found to be in a good condition. A donation was sent to the Point Aux Trembles School, where Knox Church has a pupil.

A Wonderful Escape.

Fleschi tried to assassinate King Louis Philippe of France in July, 1835. The king was riding along the lines of the national guard in the Boulevard du Temple. There came a crash and a rush of bullets. Louis Philippe's arm was grazed, his horse was shot in the neck, Marshal Mortier fell dead and about thirteen other people were killed and thirty wounded. Fleschi had taken the upper floors of a house several weeks before and there rigged up an oaken frame four feet by three feet six inches, supported on four posts of oak and itself supporting twenty-five gun barrels fixed in grooves at various angles so as to command an area of twenty-five feet in length and ten feet in height. When he fired the train of [illegible] his battery [illegible] would have been killed if four barrels had not burst and two missed fire.

Sorrows of Authorship.

"Paradise Lost" brought Milton only a paltry £5—about $25 of our money.

Hawthorne for twenty years continued to be, to use his own words, "the obscurest man of letters in America." "There is not much market for my wares," he said at another time.

Thoreau is an interesting example. A thousand copies of his "A Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers" were printed, but very few of these were sold, and a considerable number were given away by the author. The remainder were returned to him and were stored in his attic. He grimly observed, "I have now a library of 900 volumes, the greater portion of which I myself have written."—New York Press.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR THE BUILDING SEASON

But Some of the Industrial Activity Might Be Directed Towards the North End of the City—Ald. Langford Says This Is the Feeling of North End Residents

Building permits issued at the city hall since the beginning of the month amount to $1,200. They provide for the erection of three fair-sized dwellings and one barn, all of which are expected to be completed by April 1st.

Building activity is anticipated to be quite marked in Peterborough during the next few months. The work on the two new schools is progressing rapidly. The schools according to contract, will be ready for occupancy by the fall term of this year. The work will proceed without interruption throughout the winter.

The Henry Hope and Sons Company promised to commence building operations on their new factory in Peterborough in the spring, and a busy time may reasonably be expected in the south end of the city for the first few months after winter is over. The De Laval Company are rushing their buildings as rapidly as possible and prospects for a continued boom in industrial activity in the south part of Peterborough are assured. New houses are springing up in that section continually and many more will be commenced just as soon as the snow leaves.

Mr. W. A. McEwen has taken out two permits, one for a house costing $1,900 on Manning Avenue and the other for a barn costing $100.

Mr. Wm. Pethrick is putting up a $1,100 house on Prince street and Mr. John T. McCoy has a permit for another $1,100 dwelling. All will be completed early in April.

While no large contracts are being let just now, there will be a big demand for workmen's houses, particularly in the locality of the new industries.

Contractor Ald. Langford effpects that a general boom in the building line will be experienced this year. He considered that things were looking up in Peterborough more so than ever before. He furthermore stated that a general undertone of feeling existed in the north ward for the acquisition of industries which might locate in their section of the city. The rate-payers in that ward, he said had voted liberally on the recent industry by-laws, but they would feel greatly pleased to see anything in that line coming their way. The wishes, he felt, held good in East City.

PETERBORO' LEADS THEM ALL IN INCREASE OF POPULATION

In view of the boom which Peterborough is already beginning to feel, it is interesting to note how creditably the city compares with other Ontario centres and its wonderfully rapid increase in population within the last ten years.

The population of Peterborough is now 20,000, and the increase from 1901 to 1911 as shown by the Dominion census was 63 per cent. Comparing this ratio of increase, Hamilton is the only city which approached an increase any way near that experienced by Peterborough. Hamilton's increase in population in ten years was 65 per cent. All the other places averaged away below.

The census also shows that the percentage of increase in the products of the factories in Peterborough from 1890 to 1910 was greater than in any city in Ontario. The above facts are very striking and the reasons are obvious, namely, the natural and acquired advantages the city possesses.

The following table of population increase in ten years will prove interesting:

	Percentage.
Peterborough	63
Belleville	8
Brantford	39

OVER 100,000 DIVORCES IN THE UNITED STATES

New York, Jan. 16— More than [illegible]0,000 children mostly under the age of 10 years were deprived of one or both parents by divorce in this country during the past year, according to figures with which the Rev. Francis M. Moody stirred members of the New York state marriage and divorce commission at its meeting yesterday. "The Pacific Coast," he said, "has been the greatest divorce centre of the entire world. In the year 1912 alone there were granted in the United States over 100,000 divorces.

THE COUNTRY BANKER.

His Standing In and His Grip Upon His Own Community.

The first public convenience a new commodity wants is a bank. Ofttimes it comes before the church or a newspaper; but, as a rule, it follows both. It is hard to beat the editor and the preacher.

If the influence exercised by the bankers of our great cities constitutes a menace to the public welfare, what shall we say of the grip that the little bank holds on its community? The so called "country banker" to succeed must be eminent for all the qualities that make up a truly good man. Usually he is a church member and often a Sunday school teacher. He is consulted by politicians regarding the local government, and the candidate who has his approbation is envied, for he is usually the winner. To the country banker are confided the troubles, domestic as well as financial, of all who have access to him. And everybody seeks to have access.

The banker is first to subscribe to every good cause. He is the community's adviser as to investments and the arbitrator of its business controversies. His word is as good as his bond, and to his credit it must be added that, with rare exceptions, it deserves to be. He asks few favors, and these are always granted. He is the center of the social life of his vicinity. His voice is that of authority. He is loved, respected, admired and feared. The banker is a man of integrity. The slightest cloud on him or on his bank will settle them both. In this matter he stands with the preacher. So, from selfish considerations, if from nothing else, the banker must be deserving of the trust reposed in him by his fellow citizens.

Who wouldn't be the country banker?—Leslie's.

Gave Himself Away.

A man who is steadily employed finally had a day off and decided to go fishing, taking his luncheon with him. When he reached the creek he discovered that he had dropped the lunch packet somewhere on the road and hastened back to look for it. Presently he met a husky negro, who was looking happy and picking his teeth.

"Did you find anything on the road as you came along?" asked the gentleman.

"No, sah," answered the negro. "I didn't find nothing. Couldn't a dog have found it and eat it up?"—Everybody's.

SHAKESPEARE'S WOMEN.

Neither Original Nor Enlightened, Is Helen Keller's Verdict.

I doubt if the women in Shakespeare's comedies are to be taken seriously. They are pretty creatures intended to be played by boys. They are the vehicle of any more or less fitting strain of poetry which happens to please the poet. Alice in Wonderland is a very real little girl, but one would not make a grave, scholarly analysis of the traits of character which she displays in her encounter with the mock turtle. Neither should we press too heavily upon Shakespeare's poetry to extract his beliefs about women. The unrivaled sonnets voice the praise and also the petulant dissatisfaction of a man in love or pretending to be in love for the purpose of poetry. The woman worship in the sonnets and in the glowing passages of the plays spoken by gallants in pursuit of their ladies is only the conventional romanticism common in medieval and renaissance literature.

Shakespeare's phrasing outfiles that of all other poets. But his ideas of women are neither original nor enlightened. In studying the social ideas of a writer and his time we often learn more from his unconscious testimony than from his direct eloquence. Portia is wise, witty, learned, disguised as a man; but she is disposed of without protest through her father's will and its irrational accidents to a commonplace bankrupt courtier, and the tacit implication is that she is happily bestowed. Where Shakespeare brings Portia's career to an end a modern comedy would begin. In the other plays the delightful heroine is hurried off at the close of the fifth act into the possession of a man whom she would not look at if she were as wise and strong and witty as the situations have represented her.—Helen Keller in Metropolitan.

Punsters.

Douglas Jerrold, when challenged to make a pun on the zodiac, replied, "By Gemini, I Can-cer."

Theodore Hook, when he was improvising at a party, and a Mr. Winter, a well known inspector of taxes, was announced, went on without a moment's break in his performance:

Here comes Mr. Winter, inspector of taxes.
I'd advise ye to give him whatever he axes.
I'd advise ye to give him without any flummery.
For though his name's Winter his actions are summary.

The Danger.

A lawyer while conducting his case cited the authority of a doctor of law yet alive.

"My learned friend," interrupted the judge, "you should never go upon the authority of any save that of the dead. The living may change their minds."—Nos Loisirs.

Considerable care and industry are required to get in the way of good luck.

JOY OF CREATING.

Put Your Heart In Your Work, No Matter What It May Be.

While every man who makes a living is not a genius, yet the real joy of creating can belong to each of us in just as real and true a way. If we put into farming or banking or our school work the sense of making something we get the great treasure out of it. When we fill any task with ourselves we make something.

A girl says, "I made the room tidy," which simply means she put something of herself into the disorderly room and so beautified it. After she had made it tidy it reflected something of herself; it looked some idea of order such as she had in her own mind. A boy says, "I made a good recitation in school yesterday," and he is right, for, although the lesson was already there, it had to wait for him to come along and make it a recitation.

So it is everywhere. Making anything means, no matter how simple the task, that we bring out something that did not exist before and that that something is to some degree like the maker of it. We get out what we put in. If any one wants to be miserable the surest way is just to do things without putting his whole heart and self into them. Think of the mere outside of the tasks and they are not worth doing. But once put yourself into them and all that is changed.—St. Nicholas.

What is known as "nerve" is more common these days than formerly. A woman lately called on a wife in Kansas City and said "I love your husband and want you to give him up."

"My Husband, I Greet You"

Story of a Colonial Thanksgiving.

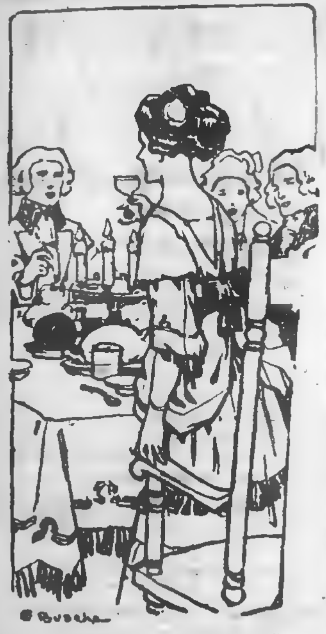
By F. A. MITCHEL

Mrs. Stanford sends greeting to Walter Washburn and would be pleased to have the honor of his company for dinner at 1 o'clock on Thursday, November the 25th, in the year of our Lord 17—.

Mrs. Stanford was a widow thirty-eight years old and of very pleasing appearance. There was but here and there a single gray hair in her head, her complexion was florid, her eye was a soft brown, and altogether she was goodly to look upon by a man who had passed twoscore years and five.

Walter Washburn had offered himself to Mrs. Stanford, but that lady, though she admired him for his stalwart form and his prowess—for he had distinguished himself in the Indian wars in the colony—was not minded to take for a partner one who was not possessed of worldly goods. So she declined Mr. Washburn's offer, with many thanks, for the honor he would have conferred upon her.

Now, the widow had a daughter, Faithful, half her age and the reproduction of her mother as that mother had been at her age—that is to say, the younger woman was like a peach with the first rosy hue painted on it by the sun, while the older was that same peach when its colors had become mellow. Mr. Washburn, having been turned away by the woman he loved, naturally sought comfort with the daughter who so nearly resembled her, and, being lonely, living by himself in his oaken domicile, smoking his pipe, solitary, before the logs burning in his great open fireplace, he mused thus:



"MY HUSBAND, I GREET YOU."

"If I cannot have the mother to keep me company, why should I not have the daughter, providing that mother will give her to me? True, I wish the older woman, who is nearer my age and with whom I can consult as to my affairs, but Faithful is stronger and can better do that work about a house which is expected of a woman. Besides, the mother and I will be aged at the same time and like the blind leading the blind, whereas Faithful when I am an old man will be in her prime and the better able to take care of me. Yet she will be old enough to have lost a desire for admiration, and I shall not have to fear the gallantry of young men."

Thus did the lonely bachelor attempt to persuade himself that it would be better after all that he should marry the daughter instead of the mother. Nevertheless there were many reasons on the other side, and down in the bottom of his heart he wanted Mrs. Stanford herself.

However, having formed a resolution, the next day he went to the house where the two women lived and, calling for the mother, asked for the hand of her daughter. He was naturally shamefaced in making his request, since not long before he had assured the lady of whom he made it that his happiness depended solely on her. He expected to be taken to task for his change of heart, but the widow simply replied that her daughter had reason to be proud of having won the esteem of so prominent a defender of the colony and she, the mother, would be happy to bestow Faithful upon him if he could show that he had the property [illegible] of the man she should marry. Since Mr. Washburn could show nothing more than he had shown on his previous application he arose with a deep sigh and left the house.

Walter Washburn, who was as simple minded as he was brave, poured his trouble into the ears of Mrs. Hurlbut, a married woman, who had shown great friendship for him. Mrs. Stanford was acting selfishly in refusing her daughter to a good man whom she did not wish for herself.

"I would advise you, Friend Walter," said his confidant, "to carry off the young woman you wish to wife."

"How could I do that?" asked Washburn.

"You are not fitted to form a plan in such a proceeding. You must have some friend to lay one for you and to assist you in carrying it out. Leave the matter to me. Come to see me again in a few days, and I may have something to say to you."

The next day Mr. Washburn received the invitation to eat a Thanksgiving dinner with the widow and her daughter. The friendly act smote his conscience that he had even thought of robbing the widow of her daughter, and he went at once to Mrs. Hurlbut to say to her that she need form no such plan as she had proposed on his behalf, for he would have nothing to do with so nefarious a matter.

But Mrs. Hurlbut soothed him and reminded him that lovers had from time immemorial eloped and had always held the sympathy of mankind. Washburn said that his own case was different from those, for he was not a young lover and had never spoken a word of love to Faithful Stanford. He had followed the custom of the times by asking her hand from her parent. However, Mrs. Hurlbut, who was a persuasive talker, finally won him over, then said that she had formed a plan as follows:

On the evening before Thanksgiving day would take place the usual Wednesday evening prayer meeting, at which all the colonists would be present, including the Stanfords, mother and daughter. Mrs. Hurlbut would go to the meeting and Walter Washburn would do the same. The road over which the Stanfords must go to their home was a lonely one. Mrs. Hurlbut and Walter would follow them, and when out of sight and hearing of others Mrs. Hurlbut would throw a bed quilt over the mother and a sheet over the daughter, using different coverings that the two might be known apart. Walter was to seize the figure under the sheet and carry her away to the minister to be married. Mrs. Hurlbut [illegible] hold the mother under the quilt [illegible] there should be no time for her to interfere. It was to be hoped that the next day being Thanksgiving, a day devoted to religious exercises and thankfulness, the mother would forgive Walter for the kidnaping of her daughter.

Mr. Washburn had misgivings as to this scheme, both fearing that the abducted girl would not marry him even if it otherwise succeeded, and if she did that her mother would never forgive him. Moreover, there was a law in the colony that any man courting a young girl without her parents' consent could be sued before a magistrate for damages.

But when a persuasive woman is determined to have her way with a man, especially one so easily led as Walter Washburn, there is no standing against her. Mrs. Hurlbut carried her point and on the evening of the prayer meeting took her friend Walter to the meeting house with her. When the meeting was over and the Stanfords went out and toward their home Mrs. Hurlbut and Walter followed them, the former carrying the quilt and the sheet, and when they came to a dark part of the road she stole up behind them and proceeded to cover them.

The sheet, being white, was easily distinguished, and Walter took the woman it contained in his strong arms and carried her off. Beyond a slight scream she made no outcry, and her resistance soon ceased. Walter as he strode along told her who he was, what was intended and asked her consent to a marriage forthwith. After a few minutes she spoke a faint "Yes," but before entering the minister's house said that she would rather not be known and preferred to keep on her covering.

But even this was unnecessary, for the minister, who had gone to bed, came down in the dark, and when he strove to strike a light the punk, which was damp, would not ignite, and Walter, who was fast losing his equanimity, begged him to proceed with the ceremony in the dark. So he did, and the two were made man and wife.

After the ceremony Walter supposed that his wife would go to his home with him. But she declined, saying that at the Thanksgiving dinner the next day she would confess all to her mother, since that would be a time when she was most likely to be forgiven. Walter could not but see the wisdom of such a course and parted not unwillingly with his newly made wife.

The next day all met at the [illegible]ice in the meeting house. Mrs. Stanford gave Walter a friendly greeting, and her daughter looked upon him as unconcernedly as if she had not so recently become his bride. He walked home with them, and soon after their arrival the dining table was loaded with a haunch of venison at one end, a wild turkey at the other, the interval being filled with other delectable viands. Walter was placed at the head, while Mrs. Stanford sat at the other end facing him. When the meats had been eaten she said to her vis-a-vis:

"Friend Washburn, when next you propose an abduction be more sure of the friend who leads you into it. Mrs. Hurlbut informed me of the plot to carry off my daughter, and, feeling that if she or I must be your wife, I, as first asked, should be the bride, I asked that I and not Faithful be covered by the sheet. It was I who went with you to the minister."

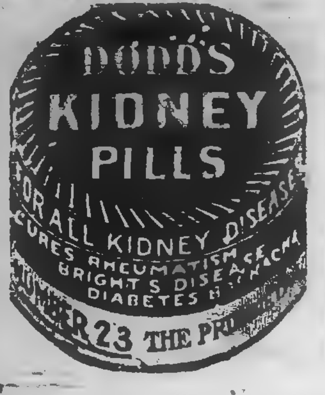
Then, raising a glass of wine that stood before her, she added:

"My husband, I greet you!"

Walter sat gazing at the speaker for some time, while the truth was slowly permeating his dull brain. Then, arising from his chair, he went to where she sat and, enfolding her in his arms, imprinted a kiss upon her lips. From his wife he passed to Faithful and, also giving her a kiss, said:

"My daughter, I forgive you."

Then returning to his seat he bowed his head and reverently gave thanks for the happy outcome of a plan that had never met with his approval, but which had turned out as he wished.



Willing to Help Him.

"Why don't you want to let me hold your hand?"

"What good would it do you to hold my hand?"

"It would make me glad and give me courage perhaps to—to say something that I—I—er" —

"There! Please hold both of my hands."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BENT BACK THE RULE.

Where Sauce For the Goose Was Not Sauce For the Gander.

In the early days of a certain club of New York, when it was rather harder sledding for the club than it is at the present time, in a meeting of the council the question came up as to the arrears of members' dues, and the treasurer reported that one man was particularly recreant in this regard. It was in the winter, and the club was then maintaining throughout the day and evening beautifully heated and lighted quarters. At this time the only person in the club who frequented it every day was this delinquent, who, in addition to doing a large portion of his writing there, was accustomed to make considerable inroads upon the stationery of the club for home consumption.

At the meeting of the council referred to there was protest against this state of affairs, and a determination was manifest to put an end to it, and after discussion the secretary was instructed to notify the member in question that his name had been dropped from the rolls of the club.

The question then arose whether there was anybody else who was in arrears, whereupon the treasurer reported that this was true of another member.

"Who can that be? Let us make an example of them both," remarked one member, bringing his fist down on the table for emphasis. The reply was that it was Mr. X., the poet.

"Oh, heavens!" replied another. "We can't let X. go. He's too important to the club."

Whereupon the resolution was then amended to read as follows: "Resolved, that the secretary be instructed to drop the name of Mr. Q. from the rolls of the club for nonpayment of dues and to retain the name of Mr X. for the same reason."—Century.

Cleopatra's Pearl.

Most persons know the story that is told of Cleopatra to illustrate her luxurious habits of living—that she dissolved in her wine a precious pearl. No one seems yet to have questioned what must have been the effect upon the drink, but scientists scoff at the possibility of such solution. The fact is pearls are not soluble in wine. The most powerful vinegar affects them slowly and never entirely dissolves them, for the organic matter remains behind in the shape of a spongy mass that is larger than the original pearl.—New York Press.

A MODERN MIRACLE

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure."

Yet Zam-Buk has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. F. M. Marsh the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when he got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk. He tried it just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little preservance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c box or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Jan. 15.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 11 were 1375 cattle, 540 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 275 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1200 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 200 calves.

The market for cattle was without any new feature, prices being steady under a good demand from butchers and packers for supplies and the scarcity of good to choice stock. The weather conditions were not so favorable, it being much milder, but, notwithstanding this fact, buyers operated freely and an active trade was done. The best steers offered sold at $6.25 to $6.50, and the lower grades from that down to $4, while good butchers' cows and bulls brought $5.25 to $5.50; medium, from $4 to $5, and common $3 to $3.75 per 100 pounds. There was some demand from American buyers for canning cattle, and shipments of three carloads were made to New York.

There was no further change in the market for lambs, prices being firm at the recent advance, with a good demand at $7.25 to $7.50, and sheep sold at from $4 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. The demand for calves was fair at from $3 to $13 each, as to size and quality.

A good trade was done in hogs, and the market was active, with prices unchanged at $9.25 to $9.50 per 100 pounds for selected lots, weighed off cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 50; steady.

Veals—Receipts, 50; active; 50c to 75c higher, at $4 to $12.50; a few, $12.50.

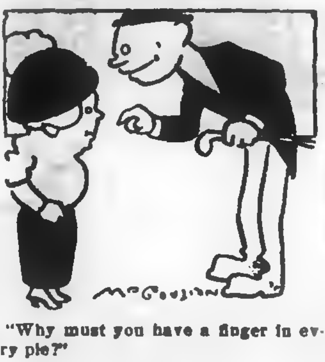
Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

In Retrospect.

Heigho!
And so
This job is off our mind
And we find
That, after all,
It was a small
And modest spree
Compared with what we thought
It would be.
The fall campaign
Has been cast
Into the past
With no regrets
And a few unpaid election bets.
And, say,
The bad taste in the mouth
Has almost gone away.
Do you remember,
Alice dear,
How seriously we took it
When it was here?
Each little side
Tried
To make itself think
That the country
Would be on the blink
If it didn't glide
In right
Side up with care
And have votes to spare.
My,
But we were excited
And ready to bet our cash
That the country
Would go to smash
If it didn't go our way!
Today
We see things in quite
A saner light.
Plain it is now,
We freely allow,
That this grand
And
Glorious old country
Of ours
Is self saving.

The Reason.



"Why must you have a finger in every pie?"

"Just to keep my hand in."

None but the Expert.

"Say!"

"Well?"

"Do you think a fellow could borrow a ten spot from Riche?"

"Well, the man who can ought to be able to get a hundred thousand out of Rockefeller."

Purpose and Success.

It is the old lesson—a worthy purpose, patient energy for its accomplishment, a resoluteness undaunted by difficulties and then success.—W. M. Punshon.

It is seldom that punishment, though lame of foot, has failed to overtake a villain.—Horace.

THE SPORTING WORLD

CAN THE PETES STOP RANKIN ON THE SMALLER ICE SURFACE

While weather conditions do not look promising for the senior game to-morrow night, a change may come to-night, with the result that good ice will be available. Such being the case, the fans will see a great exhibition of hockey. Art Armstrong, who has been on the sick list, is well again and will be on the job.

St. Mike's beat Preston at Hamilton last night by 7—4, and are coming to Peterborough with the intention of registering a win. The locals have a mighty good chance to land the honors, if Rankin can be stopped. There isn't another player, amateur or professional, who is more prominent this season. It is worth twice the admission fee to see him perform.

WINTER MEET OF TURF CLUB

Is Unlikely Unless Track Privileges are Given Free

The prospects for a winter meet of the Turf Club this year are not very optimistic. Dr. Johnston told a reporter to-day that unless the Club can secure free the use of the racing track at the Agricultural grounds, for which $50 is asked, the likelihood of a meet was very uncertain. The racing enthusiasts feel that they should be allowed the grounds free of charge.

Port Hope and Lindsay are both ready to hold meets if Peterborough will, as each depend largely upon Peterborough entries.

The local Turf Club are unfortunately scarce of money to finance a meet, and their hope of holding one will depend upon whether sufficient funds can be subscribed.

Port Hope collected $105 in three hours to go towards financing races.

The local Club expect to know definitely this week whether a meet will be held or not.

HAMILTON KOLTS TO BE STRONGER

Knotty Lee Promises the Best Team on the Circuit

Hamilton, Jan. 16— According to Knotty Lee several trades will be made by him before long that will result in Hamilton having the best team in the Canadian League circuit this season. Jo Jo Keenan, who has been engaged to manage the Berlin Dutchmen, will likely turn over Dusty Bullock to Lee as he will be playing the danger corner himself.

Manager Lee sent out a number of contracts a few days ago to the following: Corns, Killilea, Lane, Cameron, Rose, Garlow, Teed, Murphy, Fisher and Welch.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THE fellow who spends most of his time in dreamland is generally in bad with the tax collector.

Perhaps it would be an improvement upon a self made man if he had had a little advice when he was selecting his model.

The person who always knows enough to keep still ought to draw a salary for it—and he often does.

It makes a lot of us mad when the reflection is forced upon us that we deserve what we get.

The person who considers his desire sufficient reason for doing a thing generally gets to a point where his desire is entirely impotent.

Ambition is a deadly antidote for love.

Work is a good thing, but at that what's the use of saying anything about it? There's so much of it in the world that it can be depended upon to take care of itself.

Of course it was the other boy that led little Johnnie into temptation, but what mother can't explain is how he got halterbroke.

The trouble with a lot of people is that as soon as they get over being too fresh they at once go stale.

Future Travel.

When flying is a common art
  And every one has wings
The climate that we do not like
  Will have on us no strings.
If we decide that we would like
  Another clime to try
Instead of waiting for a train
  We'll pack our grip and fly.

When winter freezes up the north
  And there is snow to burn
Which doesn't burn too readily
  To other lands we'll turn.
From where they use cold storage air
  That's loaded with a sting
We will depart for some good land
  That smells and tastes like spring.

We will not have to wait around
  To shovel off the snow
When we can get about a quart
  Of gasoline and go.
We will not have to carry weight
  In coats and underwear
And wrap ourselves until we look
  The picture of a bear.

Then come, ye men of wheels and springs
  Who useful things invent,
And furnish us with wings to go
  Wherever they are sent,
Wings that are guaranteed to stay
  Aloft in stately flight
Until we find a pleasant place
  Where we desire to 'light.

SIXTY BELOW

By CLARISSA MACKIE

It was cold up there in the Klondike region. Ben Fleming thought he had experienced bitter cold in northern New England, but it had never been 60 degrees below the zero mark, as it was here. He only set his teeth the firmer, bought heavier clothing and delved hopelessly for gold.

Fleming had a part ownership in a small claim in the new strike near Dawson. It was sheer luck his being let into it, for he had reached the Yukon almost penniless. He had happened to save the life of a well equipped prospector going north, and the man—Ellison—had rewarded him with a tiny share in the new mine. If it had not been for his meeting Ellison and this stroke of good luck Ben might have starved to death in the cold unfriendly north country.

"What you going to call it?" asked Ben as he trudged home with Ellison the day they had struck the yellow metal in the new mine.

"I guess 'Sixty Below' will about hit it," laughed Ellison as he unlocked the door of their rough cabin.

"It deserves a better name than that," argued Ben as he raked down the fire.

"Don't feel as though you could spend gold that felt as cold as that sounds?"

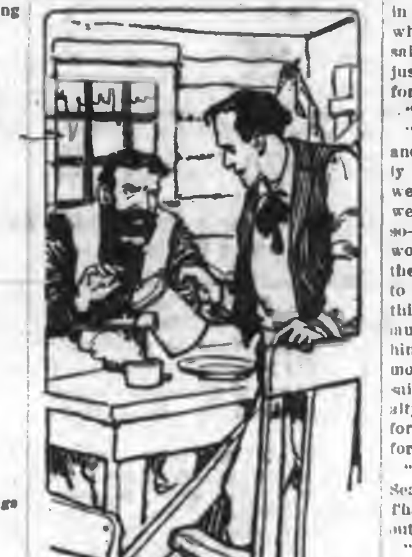
"I don't want it to spend," said Ben hastily, a red flush staining his brown cheek.

"Miser!" jeered Ellison in high spirits, as in the growing warmth of the one room cabin he removed his warm furs and emerged a tall, stoutly built figure with bearded cheeks, and bright blue eyes.

"Money is worth the greatest good it will bring," muttered Ben Fleming moodily.

"And for the young chap like you, Ben, it can bring nothing less than a dandy good time," assured his partner.

Ben Fleming did not reply. He busied himself preparing the evening meal, much of it concocted from the contents of various tinned provisions, but when it was ready it smelled good and tasted better. Ellison smacked his lips and drew up to the rough board table.



"NEVER MIND ME," ASSURED ELLISON, "I KNOW WHAT GIRLS ARE."

"Some girl has missed a good husband who can cook," he laughed as he helped himself to potatoes fried brown and crisp.

Ben was pouring coffee. "Some girl has no use for me," he said drily.

For an instant Ellison's brows drew together, and then he scanned Ben's face intently.

"Some girl back in Connecticut, or did you say it was Massachusetts?" he asked, with assumed carelessness.

"I didn't say," retorted Ben.

"Oh!" Ellison smiled in his beard.

"I don't want to be grouchy," apologized Ben hastily, for Ellison was a good fellow and, although considerably older than himself, had proved himself companionable and a thoroughly fast friend to the young stranger.

"Never mind me," assured Ellison. "I know what girls are. Why, it was a girl sent me to the arctic circle twenty years ago, and it was a girl sent me this time. Why, I had given up prospecting for good and was taking my ease back there in—er—the state where I came from when I got my walking papers for the Yukon, and so I came. With my customary good luck I struck pay dirt again."

"The same girl didn't send you twice?" asked Ben, curious in his turn.

"Lord, no! The first girl—that was twenty years ago, and I was a young chap like you then—sent me up here to make my fortune; said she'd marry me when I'd made it. Well, I did make it, but when I got back home I'll be blanked, Ben, if she hadn't gone and married another fellow, a measly little clerk in a shoe store without a penny to his name, after sending me up here to have my hide frozen stiff. That girl had some nerve."

"I should say so," breathed Ben hastily. He was looking rather wildly at his companion. "Do you suppose any girl would do that? You needn't answer that question. I know she wouldn't," he added fervently.

"There are girls and girls," observed Ellison, apparently quite oblivious to Ben's agitation. "Now, this second girl who sent me is a different sort, but she's got a nerve too!"

"How?"

"Instead of wanting me to stay home and keep out of danger she sends me off up here on a wild goose chase."

Ellison sank into silence while he smoked his pipe, and Ben, as the junior member of the firm, washed up the dishes and then drew up a chair on the other side of the table and lighted his own pipe. There were some months or so old newspapers on the table, but they were new to these men, and they read them eagerly.

Ben finished his first and sank into abstracted silence. Suddenly he looked up to meet Ellison's kind eyes bent upon him.

"Feeling low, Fleming?" asked the other man. "I don't want to butt in, you know, only if it will relieve your mind to tell it to any one why fire away. It will go no further."

"I know that. Yes, there is something, and it's a girl too," confessed Ben.

"Confounded trouble makers—God bless 'em!" commented Ellison.

"I—I don't suppose I've had your experience. I've only seen one girl I ever cared much about."

"That's enough."

"There's certainly variety enough in it," smiled Ben. "You see, I didn't have anything and her folks are pretty well to do, and when her father asked me how I was going to support her in the manner he had always done, why, I just threw up my hands and said I couldn't do that, of course—not just now—but she was willing to wait for me." Ben paused.

"Well?" urged Ellison after awhile.

"Oh, you see her father laughed and said money wasn't made so rapidly as all that. He said he supposed we wanted to be married while we were young. I said yes—in a year or so—and he laughed again and said it would take some time for a clerk in the railroad office to work himself up to be division superintendent or something like that. The second time he laughed and made me mad. I told him I'd come back in a year with money enough to marry her, and I said I was so sure of her love and loyalty that I wouldn't even see her before I went away. I knew she'd wait for me.

"I didn't count on falling sick in Seattle and breaking so into my money. That's how you found me down and out."

"Huh, if you hadn't saved my life down there on the river where would I have been, eh? If there's a balance of gratitude it's on the other side of the ledger. What does the girl say now?"

"I haven't heard a word from her," said Ben dejectedly. "I suppose I ought not to have gone off without seeing her. I couldn't say goodby, and, besides, I suppose I was ripping mad at the old man."

"It wasn't being quite square with her," admitted Ellison soberly. "You see, if you'd consulted her perhaps she would have preferred to marry you poor as you were. You ought to have given her the chance anyway."

"I realize it. I know it. And the thought strikes a chill to my heart that's way below your 60 degrees. I've written twice, and I've never had a word in reply."

There was an instant's silence. Then Ellison spoke across the table, and Ben looked up quickly to see the bright blue eyes fixed intently upon him under the glow of the lamp.

"Perhaps she's moved away and didn't get your letter," he suggested crisply.

"Why, hardly that. You see, her home was in Cleveland and she would not be likely to—"

"Perhaps her father died and she was adopted by an uncle who lived in California. Perhaps she is there." The older man spoke forcefully, convincingly.

"Why, it might be. She did have an uncle in California. It's queer you should have hit upon that, Ellison." Ben looked at his partner with a puzzled expression.

"Not so queer, young man. The curious part of it is that I didn't suspect you before." Ellison's tone was sharp.

"Suspect! What do you mean?" Ben paled and arose, leaning across the table to stare into Ellison's face.

"I told you a girl sent me up here to the Yukon country. It was my niece. Her father has recently died, and as her mother, who was my only sister, is dead, I have adopted her. She makes her home with me in southern California. Grace Ellison Gary is my niece!"

"Grace Ellison Gary is your niece?" Ben chattered the words incredulously. "She sent you up here?"

"After you—what the deuce is your name? She said Benjamin Carwood. You pose as Ben Fleming."

"Benjamin Fleming Carwood," said Ben dizzily. "What—why did she send you after me?"

"Because she wants you to come back, you young idiot!"

"And you knew she wanted me all these months we have been together, and because of this wall of reserve between us—why, I've been so down and out sometimes I've felt like throwing myself down the shaft. I wonder if there will come a chance for me to go home soon?" Ben looked wistfully at his companion.

"I guess there will. I've had an offer for the mine as she stands now, and we better take it and divide. Then we can go home next month. In the meantime, as your heart is down at 60 degrees below zero, I'll just deliver this letter Grace sent up to you if I should find you, and I trust the contents will thaw you out." And Ellison smiled as he delivered the precious missive into Ben's eager hands.

Railway Station Library.

In the refreshment room of a Sussex (England) railway station the traveler may see a small rack of books. If he is sufficiently curious to look he will discover from a written label that the books are the property of the vicar of the town, who places them at the disposal of any passenger who likes to take a volume away, the only condition being that he shall return the volume to its place on his return or post it to the vicar.

A LEGAL LEGEND.

The Tale of a Telling Comparison In an Oriental Court.

When Abd-el-Hakk was poor, as he was one day traveling across a weary plain, he came to the house of the Widow Zaidah, who was also poor, but when he made known his hunger she set before him two hard boiled eggs, all the food there was in her house.

Later, when Abd-el-Hakk lived in Marakesh and was very rich, Meludi, the lawyer, disliking him, persuaded the Widow Zaidah to sue him for the eggs, but not for the eggs alone, for they would have become two chickens, which in time would have so multiplied that the whole fortune of Abd-el-Hakk would not now pay for them. When the case came to trial the rich man was not in court.

"Why is the defendant not here?" demanded the judge.

"My lord," said counsel for the defense, "he is gone to sow boiled beans."

"Boiled beans?"

"Boiled beans, my lord."

"Is he mad?"

"He is very wise, my lord. Surely if hard boiled eggs can be hatched boiled beans will grow."

The suit was promptly dismissed, with costs to the plaintiff.—Pearson's Weekly.

Ancient Tipping.

Tipping is an exaction of no recent growth. Describing life at the court of King Henry II. of England, Peter of Blois complains of the importunity of the medieval marshals, whose annoyances continue "until they get something from you and are most ungrateful when they have—nay, open enemies unless your hand is continuously in your pocket," while the "outer porters will tell you the most unblushing falsehoods, and if you are an honest and religious man, but have given them nothing the day before, they will keep you an unreasonable time standing in the rain and mire."

His Part.

Magistrate (to witness)—I understand that you overheard the quarrel between the defendant and his wife? Witness—Yes, sir. Magistrate—Tell the court, if you can, what he seemed to be doing. Witness—He seemed to be doin' the listenin'.

Pretty Bad.

Wife—Tom, I wish you wouldn't play poker. I don't even like the name of the game. Hub—Why not? Wife—It suggests "playing with fire."—Boston Transcript.

MAGISTRATE COMMENTS ON LACK OF ACCOMMODATION FOR HOMELESS AND HELPLESS

His Worship is Forced to Discharge a Woman of 80 Years, Who Was Charged With Being Insane and a Danger to the Community

In dismissing a case, in which an old woman of 85 years was charged with being a dangerous lunatic, Magistrate Dumble expressed himself as follows:

"The prisoner herein is an infirm woman of 85 years, homeless and helpless, simply suffering from senile decay. She is brought here from the House of Providence charged as being insane and dangerous to be at large. The evidence of her insanity is that last year she broke two panes of glass and yesterday she [illegible] and let some water flow in the building, and I am asked to commit her as a dangerous lunatic. We have had several such cases recently where apparently the only crime was age and poverty. If they come from the country the County Poor House at Lakefield refuses to receive them on the ground that they have no means of guarding them. The same excuse is made at the Protestant Home and we have to commit these people to the County Jail. It is not to the credit of the province that there are not suitable places for caring for this class of people. They are not criminal, they simply have the frailties incident to old age, and they have no friends who are able to help them. If we turn an old horse out to die there would probably be information laid against the parties for cruelty to animals. The horse can be shot, but public opinion will not permit the shooting of a woman. There is no provision in the county jail for looking after these unfortunates and the jailor's wife should not be imposed upon with duties she is not paid for. Humanity demands that the Government should do now what no Ontario Government has ever done and make provision for these harmless insane people. We think it is an outrage that the Municipal Councils in this city and county make no provision for these aged helpless people. A barred window and a locked door or the care of another inmate would probably be all that was needed, but at present we try in vain to get these people taken in at the house the community thought was being prepared for the express purpose of housing their poor unfortunate neighbors. There are in our county three Houses of Providence but they do not seem to exercise a providential care over Gods infirm poor.

FIRE CHIEF AND MRS. HOWARD CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Happy Event Observed With a Large Number of Friends and Neighbors—A Presentation of a Silver Service

Surrounded by friends from London, Chatham, Toronto and Ottawa, and a large number of their neighbors, Fire Chief and Mrs. Howard last night celebrated their silver wedding at their home on Bolivar street. It was a happy event for the bride and groom of 25 years ago, and the best wishes and hopes of their friends materializing, Mr. and Mrs. Howard will enjoy many more anniversaries of their wedding day.

It was a jolly gathering of nearly forty friends of the host and hostess. Friends from a distance tendered their congratulations and evidenced their high regard for the celebrants of the occasion by presentations of silverware. The neighbors sprung a big surprise on Mrs. Howard and her husband by the presentation of an elegant silver service. George Grange doing the honors, while Mr. George Jamieson read the following address:—

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard:

Dear Friends,—We, a few of your many Peterborough friends desire to many Peterborough friends, desire to express our feeling of pride and pleasure at this opportunity of offering you our most cordial congratulations on the happy occasion of the silver jubilee of your marriage.

You have spent together twenty-five years of wedded happiness, and we feel that you have deserved it, if, as we are sure you have done, you have shown in the same circle, qualities of conduct and character similar to those that, in social and official life, have made you respected by the community and beloved by the friends that, like ourselves, have enjoyed the privilege of more intimate association and acquaintanceship.

In substantial token of our congratulations and sentiments of good-will, we ask your acceptance of this little silver tea service, in honor of the day, and as a type of the sterling qualities of the recipients. Coupled with its offering is our heartfelt wish that you may long be spared in health and happiness to enjoy its use, and that it may mark the half-way halting place on the way, through happy years, to the golden jubilee of your wedding day.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors.

Seven Social, Held By Women's Mission Circle

The annual thank offering service of the Park street Woman's Mission Circle, held on Tuesday evening, was somewhat of a diversion from the regular program. The meeting took the form of a "Seven Social," the number seven being used throughout.

The admission was seven cents, but every seventh person was admitted free. The menu consisted of seven different articles. A retiring fee of seven cents was charged and every seventh person missed the "plate"

A program of seven numbers was as follows:

Opening hymn; Scripture reading; prayer, Rev. W. C. Riddiford; solo, Miss Maud Smith, seven minute address, Rev. W. C. Riddiford; subject, seven precious sayings of the Cross; duet, Miss Mary and Miss Hazel Gillespie, recitation, Miss Ethel Hill.

The President, Miss M. Mann, thanked those who contributed to the program, and invited all to remain for refreshments, which were served on tables, at which seven could be seated.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. G. O'Brien

Emma Hayes, wife of Mr. Geoffrey O'Brien, 553 Gilmour street, passed away at noon yesterday in her 46th year.

The late Mrs. O'Brien was born in [illegible] city all her life. She was well-known and highly respected by all who knew her. She is survived by a sorrowing husband and three small children, Margaret, Edmund and Mary. Three brothers, and a sister, J. E. of the city; Timothy and Wm., of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Joseph Potvin, of Brookville, also survive.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery.

The Late James O'Sullivan

James Francis, the 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Sullivan, 140 1-2, Hunter street, East City, passed away last night.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's cemetery.

THEATRICAL

There is no gain saying the fact that Mr. Lewis Waller is a distinguished actor of exceptional ability. Supported by an all star English company and with Madge Titheradge sharing almost equally in the honors, he was seen at the Grand last night in Dumas' world famous comedy "A Marriage of Convenience," adapted for the stage by Sidney Grundy. Lewis Waller is rightly designated at England's greatest romantic actor. His splendid physique, resonant manly voice, and confident bearing, are factors which have aided him in his climb to success.

The audience responded to his playing last evening by the most hearty and frequent applause.

"A Marriage of Convenience" is admirably adapted to depict his ability and his delineation of the character of a careless dashing nobleman was excellent.

Madge Titheradge displayed great emotional ability and was a great favorite throughout. Each of the other members was good, and the production was thoroughly enjoyed.

REMOVE POLES FROM THE STREET

The array of telegraph poles on the thoroughfares of Peterborough, which have been an eye sore in the city for so long, and the stumbling block in the way of permanent paving operations may be removed sooner than expected. It will be remembered that a deputation from the city went to Ottawa last year and interviewed the Government with a view to securing legislation which would grant the city the right to remove them. The Government promised to aid the deputation in their request, as far as possible. It was this promise that prompted Mayor Bradburn to remark in his inaugural address that the Council probably would be in a position this year to force the telegraph companies to remove their poles.

BRITISH COMMONS PASSES THE HOME RULE MEASURE

Majority of 110 is Given by Coalition Government After a Series of Brilliant Speeches—Fate of the Bill is, of Course, Sealed When it Comes up For Final Disposition in the Upper Chamber.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—After a long, stern battle the home rule bill passed the House of Commons last night by a majority of 110. It was later read for the first time in the House of Lords.

There were two divisions in the lower House, Mr. Balfour's motion for its rejection was defeated, 258 to 368, while the third reading was carried by a vote of 367 to 257, one member of each side having left the House in the interval.

The result of the division was too much a foregone conclusion for a tremendous demonstration, but Irishmen inside and outside of the House did their best, and, assisted by the Liberals and Laborites, gave the measure for which they had waited and worked so long a good send-off on its way to the House of Lords, where its fate is certainly sealed.

The division was preceded by another series of brilliant speeches by the political leaders, among whom were Frederic E. Smith, and the Solicitor-General, Sir John A. Simon, two of the cleverest among the younger members of the veterans; John E. Redmond, Timothy Healy and Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

The House was crowded throughout the day. The Nationalists were only one short of their full strength, Jos. P. Nannetto being prevented from attending by a paralytic attack which he suffered yesterday. Several of the older Nationalists, who are seldom able to attend, came over from Ireland for the division.

The Laborites and Liberals also turned out in force and the Unionists were not far below their total membership. The galleries likewise were filled to their capacity, those occupying seats including many dignitaries of the church and the Bulgarian peace plenipotentiaries.

When the figures were announced the Nationalists waved hats, handkerchiefs and papers and cheered lustily for Premier Asquith and Mr. Redmond. The latter, who is usually impassive, was carried away by the enthusiasm of his followers, and entered into the spirit of the demonstrations as effusively as they.

Those who crowded the lobbies received the figures with another roar of welcome, and followed this by cheering the bill itself as a copy was carried by an official from the Commons to the Lords.

The Upper House met especially to receive the bill and formally passed its first reading.

Kingston's Stern Puritans.

KINGSTON, Jan. 17.—Because pool tables were placed in the local Y.M.C.A. a liberal giver to the institution has withdrawn his subscription. It is reported another supporter who recently cut off his support did so for the same reason.

ABOLISH ALL TITLES

First Reading of Mr. J. H. Burnham's Bill in the House.

Ottawa, Jan. 17. (Special) —The bill of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of West Peterborough to abolish titles of honor in Canada, received its first reading in the House of Commons yesterday. The bill reads; 1 All titles of honor or honorary titles received by the government of Canada and all such titles now attaching to any position at present or hereafter created by the government of Canada are hereby abolished. 2 No recommendation to confer any title of honor or honorary title shall be made by the government of Canada whether such recommendation is made to His Majesty or Governor General of Canada or otherwise. In explanation of this bill, Mr. Burnham said that its scope and power were comprised in section 12 of the B.N.A. Act conveying to the federal government powers wherefore vested in the government of the provinces.

"As I understand democracy and conditions in Canada," said Mr. Burnham, "people are not desirous of having their representatives either accept or create class badges or distinctions. The genious of democracy in Canada is that the people should remain upon a common level in so far as class or social distinctions go. My bill does not propose to deal with anything outside of Canada or outside of the scope and powers of the people of Canada or their representatives. It may seem limited but it enumerates I think a great principle and that is the principle of democratic quality in this country."

MONTREAL FIREMEN ARE SAVED

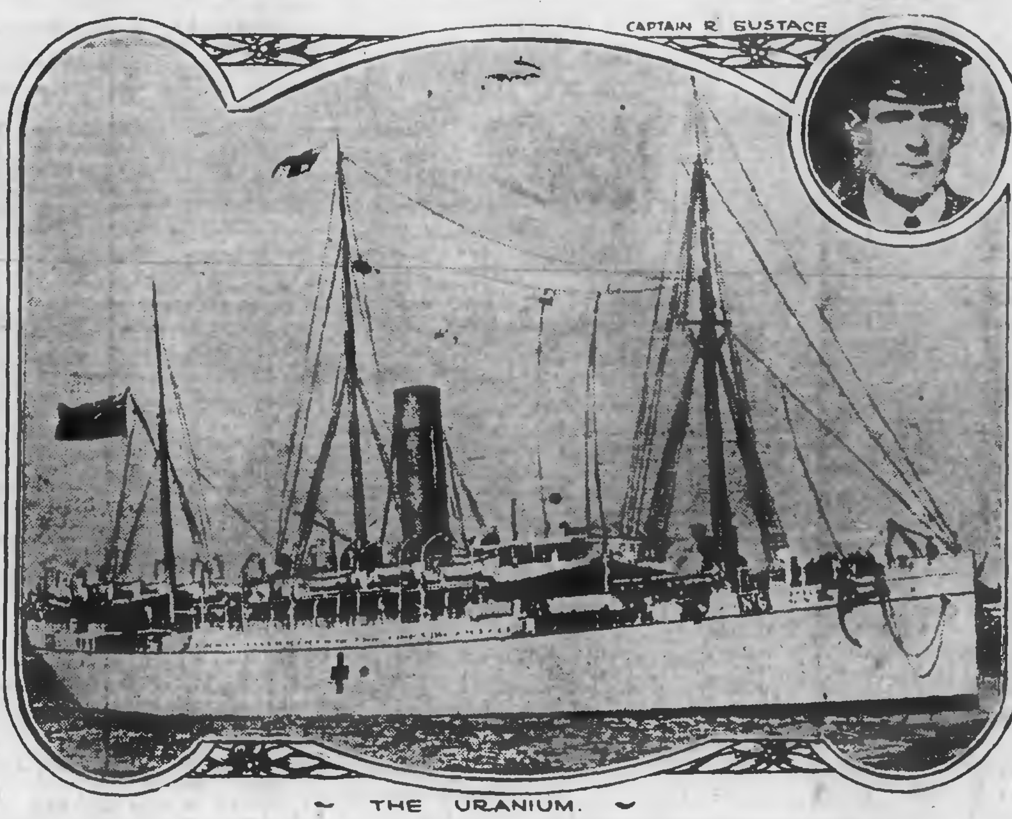
Carried Out of Burning Building —Chief Nearly Killed.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Several firemen were carried out, choked into unconsciousness by smoke. District Chief Mann escaped death by inches when a great plank came, crashing down upon a ladder upon which he was standing, and damage aggregating $100,000 was caused by a fire which broke out yesterday morning on Devisier street. The premises are occupied by the Canadian Tungsten Lamp Co. and the MacCorwick Biscuit Co. of London, Ont., the plant and stock of both of which concerns were injured by fire, smoke and water.

This was the third big fire in the city within fifteen hours, most of the firemen having been on duty for 24 hours.

Daring Hold-Up In Sombra.

SARNIA, Jan. 17.—Word has just been received here of a daring hold-up Wednesday evening of a Sombra Township farmer, who was returning to his home from town. The man was held up at the point of a revolver and relieved of his money. The men then took his horse and headed for the St. Clair River, where it is thought they crossed into the States.



CAPTAIN R EUSTACE

THE URANIUM.

HON. MARTIN BURRELL RESENTS IMPUTATIONS

Mr. Donnelly of South Bruce, Brings Runciman's Recent Aspersions up in the Commons and Minister Declares That Canadian Herds Are Freer From Disease Than Those of Britain—To Urge Removal.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—Aspersions cast upon the healthfulness of Canada's cattle by the chairman of the British Board of Agriculture were fervently deprecated in the House of Commons yesterday, both by the member for South Bruce, who brought the matter up, and by the Minister of Agriculture, who replied.

On the orders of the day being called Mr. Donnelly read the following Canadian Associated Press cable:

"London, Jan. 15.—The Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Agriculture, informed Capt. Campbell in the House of Commons that the Government did not contemplate the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle. 'During the last two years,' Mr. Runciman said, 'glanders, sheepscab, rabies and tuberculosis had been noticed among Canadian stock'."

Mr. Donnelly proceeded to say that this was a question of paramount importance to the stock raisers of Canada. It was alleged that Great Britain was not continuing the enforcement of the embargo for the purpose of preventing the introduction of diseases, but a measure of protection to the British stock raisers.

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, replied that he had received a cable from the High Commissioner in reference to the strictures of Mr. Runciman, and stating that it was not likely that the British Government would pass legislation removing the embargo.

Mr. Burrell gave a brief outline of the circumstances leading up to the imposition of the embargo against live cattle down to the protest against the policy which was made by the Canadian Government in 1907. The British reply at the time was that it was impossible, not because of the existence of disease in Canadian cattle, but because of the great extent of the boundary between Canada and the United States, which rendered easy the introduction of cattle diseases from the latter country.

Mr. Burrell showed that, as a matter of fact, Canadian herds were freer from disease than those of the United Kingdom, but it was not deemed consistent with the self-respect of Canada to continue to urge upon the Government the reversion of what appeared to be a settled policy.

POINCARE IS PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH REPUBLIC

He Was Insulted By Ex-Premier Clemenceau, But Duel Arranged For, is Called Off When Explanations are Made—Police Make Arrests of Suspects

Canadian Press Despatch.

Versailles, France, Jan. 17.—Premier Poincare was elected president of the French Republic by the National Assembly held here to-day. The vote stood, Poincare 483, Pams 296, with a number of scattered ballots. A second ballot was necessary.

Ex-Premier Clemenceau made satisfactory explanations to Poincare's seconds, and the incident is considered closed.

Versailles, France, Jan. 17.—Premier Poincare was insulted by ex-Premier Clemenceau at the opening of Congress for the election of President this morning. Poincare at once appointed seconds to arrange a duel.

Unusual police precaution had been taken by the Government and several arrests of suspects were made including one at the entrance to the place of a stranger who pulled a revolver and shouted that the election should not take place.

Versailles, France, Jan. 17.—Senators and Deputies of France assembled here this morning to elect a president. Nominally there should be 897 of them but vacancies and illness considerably reduced the number. This is the tenth presidential election since the foundation of the third republic in 1870, and seven of the presidents have been elected on the first ballot.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—A President of France will be chosen to-day by the members of the Chamber of Deputies and of the Senate sitting together as the National Assembly at Versailles. The eve of the election found the situation as respects the candidates as involved as it was at the beginning.

The joint caucus to nominate a candidate for the Presidency ended yesterday without giving an absolute majority to either Premier Poincare or Jules Pams, the Minister of Agriculture, and it is impossible to forecast to-day's result, although apparently the election lies between these two officials. The third ballot taken yesterday afternoon gave Premier Poincare 309 votes, while M. Pams received 313, and five votes went to three other candidates.

It is thought, however, that the Radical left may bring forward a new candidate, or revive the candidacy of Antonin Dubost, president of the Senate, or ex-Premier Felix Ribot, if M. Pams does not win on the first ballot, for which, it must be remembered the Socialist, Edouard Vaillant, stands.

It is explained that the uncertain situation is due to the fact that a large number of M. Poincare's supporters would on no account vote for M. Pams if the Premier withdrew, while none of the opponents of proportional representation who support the candidacy of M. Pams would vote for Premier Poincare, if the Minister of Argiculture retired.

LAURIER SCHEME IMPOSSIBLE JUST NOW SAY SPEAKERS

Dr. Edwards and W. F. Cockshutt in Debate on Bill Declare That Canada is Neither in a Position to Build Ships Nor Supply Crews.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—The naval debate was continued in the House of Commons yesterday by Dr. Edwards of Frontenac, G. H. Boivin of Shefford, and W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford. Mr. Boivin's speech was a statement of loyalty on behalf of the French-Canadians as well as the English. W. F. Cockshutt declared that the Borden naval policy included a permanent scheme of contribution, of which he heartily approved.

Dr. J. W. Edwards (Frontenac), in resuming the debate compared the loyalty of Premier Borden with that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He believed that Laurier was a separatist, and had been on both sides of the fence on every big quesion that the country had to deal with. "It is a good thing for the British Empire that not all British subjects in Canada are of the same calibre as Laurier," he declared. He doubted the possibility of the Canadian navy scheme, declaring that it would take from ten to fifteen years to build fleet units and to get men to man them. Britain, he maintained, had the men ready to man new war vessels, but in Canada there was more work than men to do it, and he saw no possibility of getting recruits for the navy under present conditions.

Mr. Boivin stood for a royal Canadian navy, built, equipped, manned and maintained by "the unitedly loyal, true and devoted spirit of Canadian nationhood."

"We would prefer to see the redistribution bill put through first," declared Mr. Boivin, "but we are ready to face the issue at any time. Let us solve the question through out manhood, not through our money. Under Mr. Borden's proposals," he argued, "Canada undertook the ridiculous proposition of wiping out the German peril by borrowing thirty-five millions from Britain and then sending it back. Let us spend the money and more if you will," he exclaimed, "but let us put ourselves into the undertaking. That is patriotism as we Laurier Liberals understand it. Australia is getting ready to go to the front whenever needed. We want Canada to be there too."

Mr. Boivin quoted the views of various Conservative members, including the Premier, Hon. Mr. Foster, Hon. Mr. Pelletier, Mr. Lamarche, Mr. Sevigny, and others. "It must be very convenient to belong to a party where it is so easy to agree to disagree, and still agree well enough to hold to office," he observed.

Mr. W. F. Cockshutt (Brantford), in reference to charges of inconsistency, said that the people did not want to know what a man said in various parts of the country formerly, but what he was going to do about it now. Canada could not man a navy, he declared. This had been shown. It required many men and great skill to operate a Dreadnought. Mr. Cockshutt condemned those in the Church and out of it who had discouraged the development of the military spirit in Canada to such a point of unpopularity that men could not to-day be obtained for naval service.

Mr. Cockshutt said that the Borden proposal contemplated a permanent policy of contribution. He heartily approved this. When he was a delegate to the Imperial Chamber of Commerce gathering in 1909 he had declared that the only policy was that of one British navy, the colonies bearing their share by permanent contributions of money and ships. "I am glad to say this is now to be started by the present Government," he declared.

At the conclusion of Mr. Cockshutt's speech Hon. Dr. Pugsley moved the adjournment of the debate at 11.30.

The feeling that municipal and provincial rights have suffered at the hands of the Privy Council and that Canadian statutes should be interpreted by the courts of Canada was voiced yesterday afternoon by W. F. Maclean of South York in the debate which arose upon the resolution offered by Finance Minister White empowering the Government to purchase at par future issues of Grand Trunk Pacific bonds guaranteed by the Government. Mr. Maclean suggested that it would be well for municipalities hereafter to insert a clause in all agreements made with public service corporations to the effect that the highest court of the province should be the final interpreter of their meaning.

A number of members agreed that the present right of appeal to the Privy Council should be greatly curtailed, if not eliminated.

Hon. W. T. White, in presenting the resolution for authority to purchase future bonds issued of the Grand Trunk Pacific, explained that the Government had been compelled to pay nearly five million dollars in cash to the G.T.P. and might be compelled to pay eight million dollars additional under the ruling of the Privy Council.

Several Liberal members, Hon. Geo. Graham, Hon. Wm. Pugsley and A. K. McLean (Halifax), agreed that in planning to buy the bonds the Finance Minister had adopted the proper course.

Schooner's Crew Rescued.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The British schooner Hardwick yesterday stranded on Fullers Rocks, four miles southwest of Popham Beach, Maine. The crew was saved by the Hunniwells Beach Life Saving Station. The revenue cutter Woodbury will attempt to save the vessel.

TWO ELDERLY MEN DISAPPEAR FROM HOMES IN SOUTH END OF CITY

Robert Mackie Left His Daughters House Saturday Morning and Search Fails to Find Him — Samuel Simpson is Missing From His Home on Chamberlain St.

Despite inquiries at local and outside points, by the police, no trace can be found of Robert Mackie, an elderly man, 65 years of age, who left the house of his daughter, at 277 Thomas street, Saturday morning, failed to return. No reason can be given for his continued absence.

He was in good health when he left his home and did not have anything to say as to his destination. He had remarked that he contemplated a trip to Hamilton, but the police of that city answered inquiries in the negative.

He wore a dark blue cloth hat, short, double breasted blue coat with dark trousers. His weight is about 160 pounds. His hair is white and he wore a short grey moustache.

There is some apprehension felt that the sudden death of his wife some time ago may have something to do with his strange act.

Another unexplainable disappearance was reported to the police this morning. Samuel Simpson, also an elderly man, left his home on Chamberlain street, and up to late this afternoon was still missing.

LONE CONSTABLE GOES INTO NORTH AND MAKES ARREST

One of Charges Against the Prisoner is Shooting With Intent to Kill.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Tracked by city detectives to the borders of Northern Ontario, followed over miles of open country into the woods and then rounded up in the heart of the bush by a lone provincial constable, are the events that preceded the arrest of Jack Weston, alias John Wilson, 52 miles north of North Bay, yesterday morning.

Weston is wanted in Toronto charged with highway robbery, shooting with intent, burglary and numerous other offences.

It was early morning when the constable reached the camp. Knowing the dangerous character of the accused, Markle took no chances in making his arrest. By adopting a ruse he took Weston by surprise and soon had him in custody.

By the arrest of Weston the city detectives believe they have cleaned up a notorious gang of robbers, of which Weston is ringleader.

Steamship Rate War.

ANTWERP, Belgium, Jan. 17.—The Atlantic steamship pool has been practically dissolved, according to the Neptune, by the Canadian Pacific Co.'s decision to inaugurate a new system between Trieste and Canada, and the Hamburg-American Line's announcement of a new line of steamers between Hamburg and Boston. An immediate rate war will be begun according to the periodical.

The delegates of all the Atlantic steamship lines are to meet in Berlin on Jan. 28.

CASTRO KEEPS UP THE FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Another application for the release of Cipriano Castro under bond pending final decision as to his right to enter the United States was made yesterday before the federal district court. The renewal of this motion was due to the fact that the Venezuelan's case is now before the Department of Commerce and Labor on appeal from the decision of the local immigration authorities ordering his deportation.

COSTLY FIRE AT EDMONTON

Five Storey Building of Canada Rubber Co. Destroyed

ITALIANS KILLED

One of the Walls Fell on Shack They Occupied

Canadian Press Despatch.

Edmonton, Jan. 17.—Fire last night destroyed the five storey brick block of the Canada Rubber Co., and a two storey frame building adjoining. The loss is four hundred thousand dollars.

The wall of the Canada Rubber Co. building fell on a shack occupied by Italians and it is believed four perished, although this cannot be ascertained till the ruins cool.

The fire was under control at two o'clock this morning.

SECOND NEW YORK STATE REPORT BOOSTS HYDRO

Ontario's System is Praised by Joint Committee of Legislature.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 17.—Quite another story as to the success of the Ontario Hydro-Electric power system is told in the report of the State Conservation Committee from that which was issued Wednesday by the joint Ferris committee of the Legislature.

In its report to the Legislature, the Conservation Commission strongly advances the storage of flood waters and regulation of stream flow, and recommends the gradual development of the undeveloped water powers by the state and the transmission of electrical energy to the various municipalities.

The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission in the Province of Ontario is cited by Commissioners G. E. VanKennen and John D. Moore in the report as an illustration of the New York commission's plan.

"It shows," says the report, "that through the Hydro-Electric Commission many municipalities in Western Ontario are being furnished with electrical energy for light and power purposes; that in Ontario the movement is not regarded as political, but as a great economic question. It is claimed that the project in Ontario is highly successful from a financial and engineering viewpoint; that the service is reliable and efficient; that the sales of electric current have constantly increased and prices have been continually reduced."

Mylius Is Deported.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 17.—Edwin F. Mylius, the journalist, detained at New York, was ordered deported yesterday by Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce, on the ground that in libeling King George he had committed a crime involving moral turpitude.

Workman Fell From Scaffold.

KINGSTON, Jan. 17.—John Robinson, superintendent for Jago & Harris, Toronto, erecting new buildings at the locomotive works, fell off a scaffold and was seriously injured.

BURNING MONEY AT OTTAWA

Discarded Notes Are Fed to the Furnace.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—A thick haze filled the corridors of the eastern block yesterday morning and the atmosphere was redolent of burning money. The odor is peculiar and unmistakable.

Three or four times a year old and worn-out Dominion notes are collected, checked up, cancelled and then consigned to a specially-constructed furnace. One of these functions was conducted yesterday morning with great ceremony, and thousands of collateral went up in smoke, new and crisp Dominion notes taking the place of those destroyed.

SIXTEEN DROWN

Passengers Fell Out of Basket While Being Rescued.

VIGO, Spain, Jan. 17.—The British steamer Veronese, with 139 passengers on board, was wrecked at an early hour yesterday morning off Leixoes, the outport of Oporto. Eighty-four of the passengers were saved by life lines from the shore, but it is reported that sixteen were thrown out of the basket and perished.

The steamer Hollandia stood by the Veronese all morning, but the tremendous seas made it impossible to render any assistance. The stranded vessel could not be reached by boats, but finally the life-savers managed to get their lines aboard.

The Veronese was bound from Glasgow to Brazil and thence to New York. She is owned by the Lampolt and Holt Line.

MILLION DOLLAR STRUCTURE FOR METHODIST BOOK ROOM

Toronto Will Have Greatest Religious Publishing House in the World.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Toronto is to have the greatest religious publishing house in the world within two years. The Methodist Book Room board will put up a million-dollar building on the site at the southeast corner of Queen and John streets.

The building committee has been authorized to raise four hundred thousand dollars for this year's operations, and four hundred thousand dollars next year. This $800,000 and the sum obtained for the Wesley building in Richmond street, will place over a million dollars at the disposal of the committee.

Work will be commenced as early as possible this spring, so that the new Methodist connexional headquarters may be available at the earliest possible date.

Sarnia Wants Hydro.

SARNIA, Jan. 17.—The new council is getting things in working order to proceed as soon as possible with the Hydro-electric matter. The citizens are very anxious that the power should be secured for the town. The council has also to deal this year with improvements which will cost $300,000, including a new waterworks.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

The dog leaped in glad apprehension of something, and Belle scrambled to her feet and took a step forward. The look of famished greed in her eyes was more than Elnora could bear. She opened the box and divided the milk between Billy and the girl. She gave each a piece of cake leaving one and a sandwich. Billy pressed forward eagerly, bitter disappointment on his face, and the elder boy forgot his charge.

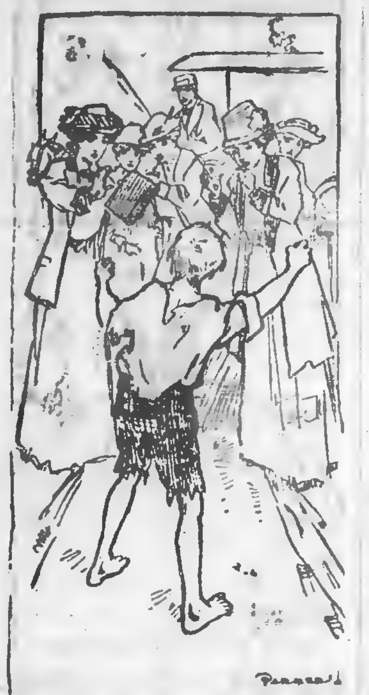
"Aw. I thought they'd be meat!" lamented Billy.

Elnora gave way.

"There is!" she said gladly. "There is a little pigeon bird. I want just a teeny piece of the breast, for a sort of keepsake, just one bite, and you can have the rest among you."

Elnora drew the knife from its holder and cut off the wishbone. Then she held the bird toward the girl.

"You can divide it," she said. The dog made a bound and seizing the squab sprang from the bridge and ran for life. The girl and boy hurried after him. With awful eyes Billy stared and swore tempestuously. Elnora caught him and clapped her hand over the little mouth. A delivery wagon came tearing down the street, the horse running full speed, passed the fleeing dog with the girl and boy in pursuit and stopped at the bridge. High school girls began to roll from all sides of it.



The Girls Scattered Before Him.

"A rescue, a rescue!" they shouted.

It was Ellen Brownlee and her crowd, and every girl of them carried a big parcel. They took in the scene as they approached. The fleeing dog, with something in its mouth, the half naked girl and boy chasing it, told the story. Those girls screamed with laughter as they watched the pursuit.

"Thank goodness, I saved the wishbone," said Elnora. "As usual, I can prove that there [illegible]." She turned toward the box. Billy had improved the time. He had the last piece of cake in one hand and the last bite of salad disappeared in one great gulp. Then the girls shouted again.

"Let's have a sample ourselves," suggested one. She caught up the box and handed out the remaining sandwich. Another girl divided it into bites each little over an inch square, and then she lifted the cup lid and deposited a preserved strawberry on each bite. "One, two, three—altogether now!" she cried.

Billy let out a roar. "You old mean things!" he screamed.

In an instant he was down in the road and handfuls of dust began to fly among them. The girls scattered before him.

"Billy!" cried Elnora. "Billy! I'll never give you another bite as long as I live if you throw dust on any one!"

Then Billy dropped the dust, buried both fists into his eyes and fled sobbing into Elnora's new blue skirt. She stooped to meet him and consolation began.

After the luncheon was given to the three children Elnora was hustled into the wagon with the girls and driven on the run to the high school. They sang a song beginning.

> Elnora, please give me a sandwich;
> I'm ashamed to ask for cake,

as they went on. Elnora did not know it, but that was her initiation. She belonged to "the crowd." She only knew that she was happy and vaguely wondered what her mother and Aunt Margaret would have said about the proceedings.

Saturday morning Elnora helped her mother with the work. When she had finished Mrs. Comstock told her to go to Sinton's and wash her Indian relics so that she would be ready to accompany Wesley to town in the afternoon. Elnora hurried down the road and was soon at the cistern with a tub busily washing arrow points, stone axes, tubes, pipes and skin cleaning implements. There were not so many points as she had supposed, and some she had thought the finest were chipped and broken. Still there was quite a large box of perfect pieces to carry to the city.

Then Elnora hurried home, dressed and was waiting when the carriage reached the gate. She stopped at the bank with the box, and Sinton went to do his marketing and a little shopping for his wife.

At the dry goods store Mr. Brownlee called to him: "Hello, Sinton! How do you like the fate of your lunch box?" Then he began to laugh.

"I always hate to see a man laughing alone," said Sinton. "It looks so selfish. Tell me the fun and let me help you."

Brownlee wiped his eyes.

"I supposed you knew, but I see she hasn't told."

Then the three days' history of the lunch box was repeated with particulars which included the dog.

"Now laugh," concluded Brownlee.

"Blessed if I see anything funny," replied Sinton. "And if you had bought that box and furnished one of those lunches yourself you wouldn't either. I call such a work a shame. I'll have it stopped."

"Some one must see to that, all right. They are little leeches. Their father earns enough to support them, but they have no mother, and they run wild. I suppose they are crazy for cooked food. But it is funny, and when you think it over you will see it if you don't now."

"About where would a body find that father?" inquired Sinton grimly. Mr. Brownlee told him, and he started, locating the house with little difficulty. House was the proper word, for of home there was no sign. Just a small empty house with three unkempt little children racing through and around it. The girl and the elder boy hung back, but dirty little Billy greeted Sinton with, "What you want here?"

"I want to see your father," said Sinton.

"Well, he's asleep," said Billy.

"Where?" asked Sinton.

"In the house," answered Billy, "and you [illegible]."

"Well, I'll try," said Wesley.

Billy led the way. "There he is!" he said. "He is drunk again."

On a dirty mattress in a corner lay a sleeping man who appeared to be strong and well.

Billy was right. You could not awake him. He had gone the limit and a little beyond. He was now facing eternity.

Sinton went out and closed the door.

"Your father is sick and needs help," he said. "You stay here and I will send a man to see him."

"If you just let him 'lone, he'll sleep it off," volunteered Billy. "He's that way all the time, but he wakes up and gets us something to eat after awhile. Only waitin' twists you up inside pretty bad."

The boy wore no air of complaint. He was merely stating facts.

Wesley Sinton looked hard at Billy.

"Are you twisted up inside now?" he asked.

Billy laid a grimy hand on the region of his stomach, and the filthy little waist sank close to the backbone. "Bet your life, boss," he said cheerfully.

"How long have you been twisted?" asked Sinton.

Billy appealed to the others. "When was it we had the stuff on the bridge?"

"Yesterday morning," said the girl.

"Is that all gone?" asked Sinton.

"She went and told us to take it home," said Billy ruefully, "and 'cause she said to, we took it. Pa had come back, he was drinking some more, and he ate a lot of it—'most the whole thing, and it made him sick as a dog, and he went and wasted all of it. Then he got drunk some more, and now he's asleep again. We didn't get hardly none."

"You children sit on the steps until the man comes," said Sinton. "I'll send you some things to eat with him. What's your name, sonny?"

"Billy," said the boy.

"Well, Billy, I guess you better come with me. I'll take care of him," Sinton promised the others. He reached a hand to Billy.

"I ain't no baby, I'm a boy," said Billy as he shuffled along beside Sinton, taking a kick at every movable object without regard to his battered toes.

Once they passed a Great Dane dog lolling after its master, and Billy ascended Sinton as if he was a tree and clung to him with trembling hot hands.

"I ain't afraid of that dog," scoffed Billy as he was again placed on the walk, "but onc't he took me for a rat or somepin and his teeth cut into my back. If I'd a done right I'd a took the law on him."

Sinton looked down into the indignant little face. The child was bright enough, he had a good head, but, oh, such a body!

Wesley Sinton reached his hand. They were coming into the business part of Onabasha, and the streets were crowded. Billy understood it to mean that he might lose his companion and took a grip. That little hot hand clinging tight to his, the sore feet recklessly scouring the walk, the hungry child panting for breath as he tried to keep even, caught Sinton in a tender, empty spot.

"Say, son," he said, "how would you like to be washed clean and have all the supper your skin could hold and sleep in a good bed?"

"Aw, gee!" said Billy. "I ain't dead yet. Them things is in heaven. Poor folks can't have them. Pa said so."

"Well, you can have them if you want to go with me and get them," promised Sinton.

"Kin I take some to Jimmy and Belle?"

"If you'll come with me and be my boy I'll see that they have plenty."

"What will pa say?"

"Your pa is in that kind of sleep now where he won't wake up, Billy," said Sinton. "I am pretty sure the law will give you to me if you want to come."

"When people don't ever wake up they're dead," announced Billy. "Is my pa dead?"

"Yes, he is," answered Sinton.

"And you'll take care of Jimmy and Belle, too?"

"I can't adopt all three of you," said Sinton. "I'll take you and see that they are well provided for. Will you come?"

"Yep, I'll come," said Billy. "Let's eat, first thing we do."

"All right," agreed Sinton. "Come into this restaurant." He lifted Billy to the lunch counter and ordered the clerk to give him as many glasses of milk as he wanted and a biscuit. "I think there's going to be fried chicken when we get home, Billy," he said, "so you just take the edge off now and fill up later."

CHAPTER X.

Wherein Billy Creates a Sensation in the Sinton Home.

While Billy lunched Sinton called up the different departments and notified the proper authorities, ending with the Women's Relief association. He sent a basket of food to Belle and Jimmy, bought Billy a pair of trousers and a shirt and went to bring Elnora.

"Why, Uncle Wesley!" cried the girl. "Where did you find Billy?"

"I've adopted him for the time being, if not longer," replied Sinton.

"Where did you get him?" queried the astonished Elnora.

"Well, young woman," said Sinton, "Mr. Brownlee told me the history of your lunch box. It didn't seem so funny to me as it does to the rest of them, so I went to look up the father of Billy's family and make him take care of them or allow the law to do it for him. It will have to be the law."

"He's deader than anything!" broke in Billy. "We can't ever take all the meat any more."

"Billy!" gasped Elnora.

"Never you mind!" said Sinton. "A child don't say such things about a father who loved and raised him right. When it happens the father alone is to blame. You won't hear Billy talk like that about me when I cross over."

"You don't mean you are going to take him to keep!"

"I'll soon need help," said Sinton. "Billy will come in just about right ten years from now, and if I raise him I'll have him the way I want him."

"But Aunt Margaret don't like boys," objected Elnora. "She won't want him in her home."

"In our home," corrected Sinton.

"What makes you want him?" marveled Elnora.

A beautiful girl loses none of her beauty when she helps her mother.

QUITE THE LATEST.

Embossed Velvet Gowns Popular This Season.

DRAPED VELVET COSTUME.

Embossed velvet in one tone colorings is a favorite fabric for dressy gowns this season. Some women object to this very expensive material on account of its resemblance to furniture coverings, but in soft tones the new embossed velvets are lovely.

The gown of figured velvet seen in the illustration is of a dull, old blue shade, further beautified with old lace and handsome skunk fur.

The band of pelt just above the hem makes the narrowness of the skirt all the more apparent.

AFTERNOON GOWNS.

Absinth Velvet Bridge Costumes Are Smart This Season.

A peculiar greenish or yellow shade, not olive and not tan, is now much fancied for formal afternoon frocks for bridge, reception or luncheon wear. A costume of this sort has just been finished for a bride of November. Absinth chiffon velvet is the material, and the suit includes a gracefully draped skirt and the most coquettish of coats, short enough at the front to reveal the black satin draped girdle, but falling at the back in long tails to the knee. These tails slope gradually from the double breasted front and give the coat a graceful cutaway effect viewed from the side. Enormous revers of the velvet are gathered at the top into a turnover Robespierre collar of black velvet and hang to the waist line over the coat front. The revers and collar open in a deep V, the coat fastening in double breasted fashion with two black velvet buttons just at the top of the girdle. Within the V of the opening is a little vest or chemisette of very fine machine embroidery insertion and pin tucked lawn. Above this dainty chemisette is a high stock of net, a pert, tiny bow of changeable green and gold silk separating the two. This bow of green-gold silk seems to be a culminating spot of color in the greenish yellow absinth tone.

The skirt has a wide front and back panels, hanging perfectly straight, the sides being caught up below the hips into a soft transverse drapery.

Women and the Ballot.

Professor Yandell Henderson of Yale university strongly approves of woman suffrage, but not until the "short ballot" is adopted. With the present long and complicated one it is very difficult, he says, for men to vote intelligently, and it would be impossible for women. The professor put it more politely than this, but he was not so crowded for space. The statement is well authenticated that in California and those other states where women vote many of them have to instruct the men of their families, as they have more leisure, and their clubs are making a thorough study of political questions and candidates. In Oakland a father and son, prominent business men, brought home a sample ballot for the wife and daughter to mark for them, and while they were doing it the cook came in with another which her brother, a policeman, had sent her to fix up for him.

Girls Should Have Professions.

Miss Laura Drake Gill of the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., says: "Every girl, rich or poor, needs a skilled occupation carried to a self supporting point. She needs it for insurance against reverses; for her mentality, which reacts better toward concrete aims; for her sense of responsibility to society or ethical development and for the joy which only comes from constructive activities. Home making should be among the paramount activities."

In Quebec.

It is said that there is no married woman's property act in Quebec. If a woman marries without a contract, and this often happens, her husband owns all she has, all she earns and all she may inherit.

"The hired man fell off the fence down in the meadow just now."

PERT PARAGRAPHS

The man who is supposed to know all about it is the man who doesn't tell.

Time may be money, but it takes hard work to transmute some hours into dollars.

The strenuous look upon the faces of the men of this nation today probably means that they are about to save the country each in some different way.

But why give the devil his due? We are told that he is quite able to take it.

The hope of the country is in the people who would rather work for a living than go without one.

A new idea isn't always a good thing to have. You should first examine its references before adopting it.

When you begin to think you have killed off your self conceit you at once begin to get conceited over it.

Sometimes we can't even enjoy the pleasant temperature of the house because we are thinking what a lot of luxury our coal dealer is able to purchase.

When a girl learns to make fudge she thinks that the whole range of culinary attainments are hers.

The keynote of character is sometimes unduly emphasized by the overtone of conceit.

Comparative.

"I hear the village is enjoying a boom."

"Enjoying it? It is just reveling in one."

"What are the manifestations?"

"Si Perkins is putting a new stoop on his house."

A Slam.

"Is she dramatic?"

"Well, she goes through a hair raising performance every night."

"She does? Where?"

"In her bedroom when she disrobes her head."

Quite So.

"Which do you like better, a motor car or a good driving horse?"

"Well, that depends upon which man takes me out riding the oftenest."

WHY KEEP ON COUGHING?
Here Is A Remedy That Will Stop It

Do you realize the danger in a neglected cough?
Then why don't you get rid of it?
Yes, you can shake it off, even though it has stuck to you for a long time, if you go about it right.
Keep out in the fresh air as much as you can, build up your strength with plenty of wholesome food, and take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne.
This reliable household remedy has broken up thousands of hacking, persistent coughs, which were just as troublesome as yours, and what it has done for so many others it will do for you.
Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne contains absolutely no harmful drugs, and so can be given safely to children, as well as adults. Your physician or druggist can confirm this statement, for we are ready to send them on request a complete list of all the ingredients.

A THANKSGIVING DINNER

It Favored a Plot That Failed

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The three girls sat around the blazing fire in the great hall. There was a light fall of snow on the ground, and the low hanging gray clouds promised another flurry of white flakes. The men of the household had taken their guns and disappeared in the direction of the woods. Bob Lindsay had promised them a rabbit pie for the Thanksgiving dinner, and Mrs. Lindsay was in her sitting room replanning the menu with this gastronomic delight in view.

"I don't believe it would hurt us one bit to go down into the woods. Of course I don't like to see them shoot the darling little fluffy rabbits, but it's awfully stupid here," pouted Lena Gilbert, looking wistfully through the window at the gray outside world.

"Why don't you go out, Lena? I will go too. Want to come, Felicia?" Amy arose and stretched her supple young form lazily. "This fire feels mighty good," she added regretfully.

"Run along, do," urged Felicia. "I want to finish this collar tonight, so you can't lure me outdoors. I enjoyed a brisk walk before breakfast."

"So did Langford," observed Amy carelessly and then bit her lip.

To a disinterested observer all three girls looked conscious at the mention of Langford Dale's name. Felicia's dark head bent more closely above her embroidery, and a deep rose color invaded her cheeks. Lena Gilbert grew quite white, and her light blue eyes scanned Felicia's charming face. Amy Lindsay, whose guests they were, was quite distressed at the suggestiveness of her careless remark.

"Come, Lena; put on your woolly cap. The first flakes are flying now."

As Lena arose, straightening her slender form with a side glance at Felicia Wendell, there came an interruption to the plans. A maidservant tripped down the wide, curving stairway with a folded bit of paper in her hand.

"I beg pardon, Miss Amy," she said with a pert toss of her head, "but what shall I do with this note? It doesn't exactly tell who it's for."

"Where did you find it, Nora?" she asked.

"In the upper hall, ma'am. It might have dropped from the basket of waste paper I had taken from the rooms awhile ago."

Miss Lindsay looked doubtfully at the outside of the twisted note. "Really, Nora, it may not be a note at all. Very likely it is merely a bit of discarded paper." She tossed it toward the fire, but it fell short on the hearth rug, and Lena Gilbert picked it up.

Nora made a movement of protest. "Oh, ma'am, I do believe it is a note, because it's signed and"— The girl stopped short and reddened furiously at Amy's look of surprised displeasure.

"Ah, you read it, Nora?"

"How could I find out where it belonged if I didn't open it? And I was right too." And Nora Brady, who knew that her term of service would soon be ended, smiled as she ventured this last impertinence and slipped away to the rear of the house. Lena Gilbert tossed the twisted paper over to Amy, who caught it deftly.

"Very likely it's only a scribbled memorandum. Nora is always creating mountains from molehills. I am so glad that she is to marry the gardener and go away. To open it or not, that is the vital question," she ended dramatically.

"Open it, goosie, and then come outdoors," advised Lena impatiently. She leaned against Amy's shoulder as the latter slowly untwisted the note and spread it out so that it could be read. It ran thus:

Darling (here was a huge black blot that obliterated the name)—There is something I must tell you before I go. Will you not be reading in the library a half hour before dinner? Devotedly, LANG.

"Oh, oh, oh!" cried Amy Lindsay as the meaning of the note dawned upon her. She crumpled it in her hand and stared excitedly into Lena's red face. "What have I done?"

"Only read my note, dear," said Lena in a silky voice, and her slim fingers drew the paper from Amy's hand and tucked it into the bosom of her gown. "I forgive you, Amy, but don't let us talk about it. It's a dead secret, you know!" She shook her finger archly at her doubtful hostess.

Lena's face was sparkling with excitement and triumph as she gently pushed Amy from the hall. "Leave that to me, Amy," she advised, with a rippling laugh. "By by, Felicia," she sang over her shoulder at the dark haired girl sewing quietly by the fire.

"Goodby," smiled Felicia, quite indifferent to the little scene about the note Nora had found.

As she wove delicate stitches in the fine linen collar she was embroidering her thoughts flew to that early morning walk in the wintry garden. She had stolen out all alone to drink in the fresh cold air, to watch the bluejays quarreling among the leafless trees, to find beauty in every frost blighted thing in the garden, for she knew that Langford Dale loved her, and this was the happiest Thanksgiving day of her life. Then to overflow her brimming cup of happiness he had joined her and had been trying to tell her of his love when the breakfast bell had warned them that the other members of the household were astir and they must not be absent.

As they hurried indoors Amy, in a warm crimson serge gown, stood in the porch and rallied them on their early rising.

"He said something about this evening," she said to herself, and a wistful smile curved her pink lips.

Lena Gilbert, passing by, saw the smile and marveled. Her own lips were set in a straight scarlet line that matched the vivid hue of her cap. "It is fate," she muttered between her set teeth.

The men did not return from their hunting expedition until an hour before dinner, but Felicia had spent the afternoon in her own room, and when she was sure that every one was dressing she stole downstairs to the music room and opened the piano. She loved these half hours of music, when in the sound proof room she played softly to herself, dreaming as she played.

When she had finished with a dainty, airy thing that seemed to express her own light heartedness she went to the library. The evening papers would be here, and it was a favorite gathering place for the women before dinner.

She was well within the great room before she was aware that it was already occupied and that her presence was an intrusion. Langford Dale was standing there, one elbow on the high mantel shelf and his head thrown back, looking down at Lena Gilbert with a rather surprised expression on his face. Lena, dazzling in pale blue, with her golden hair piled in a mass of puffs and curls at the back of her head, stood before him with flushed cheeks and drooping eyes. As Felicia entered Lena was saying:

"I received your note, Lang, and I am here."

The little scene smote sharply upon Felicia's happy mood, and the rosy veil was torn from her eyes. Before either of them had noticed her presence she had vanished. Back to the music room she flew, her fingers crushed tightly in her palms.

When she stopped in the middle of the room and stared before her she saw her own reflection in the long mirror. All in white she was, like a bride, and her face was as waxen as the white lilies of the valley on her bosom. Those were Langford Dale's favorite flowers.

All at once she laughed shortly and tossed the flowers from her. She crossed the room to another door and entered the small conservatory. Here she deliberately chose a brilliant scarlet poinsettia blossom and placed it against the white of her gown. It gave color to her cheeks and lips when she went to the dining room.

Felicia did not glance at Langford Dale, who had taken Lena Gilbert in to dinner. She talked vivaciously to Jimmy Folsom and excited vain hopes in the breast of that much smitten young man. She did not notice that Langford's handsome face was pale and set or that Lena's eyes flashed terrible anger and contempt and that the two did not once address each other, but conversed with their neighbors at the table. Felicia's heart was bleeding and sore at the faithlessness of one whom she thought worthy of her love.

After dinner Langford found her alone for an instant and approached her. "Felicia," he was whispering eagerly, when she arose and, with a withering look at him, crossed to Mrs. Lindsay's side, where she remained the rest of the evening.

"Good night and goodby, everybody. I'm going on the early train tomorrow morning!" called Lena Gilbert merrily as they all parted at the foot of the stairs at bedtime.

As they crowded around Miss Gilbert, each one adding his or her word of regret at her going, Felicia overheard Jimmy Folsom speaking to Langford Dale. "You going on that early train, too, Lang? You said you were leaving in the morning, but isn't it just a bit—eh?" he chuckled disagreeably.

"Don't be an ass, Jimmy," growled Langford.

"Well, you told me a half hour ago that business suddenly required your presence in town"— But Felicia did not hear the rest. She said goodby to Lena Gilbert and then went up to her room, the unhappiest girl in the world—if one excepted Lena Gilbert.

Just as midnight was striking in the hall below Lena came tapping at her door. "May I come in, Felicia?" she inquired in a strained voice.

"Certainly," called Felicia, who sat in her dressing gown before the fire. If there were traces of tears on her cheeks she had forgotten to remove them, and so she and Lena Gilbert stared at each other's woebegone faces without a word. At last Lena brought a crumpled sheet of paper from her bosom and laid it in Felicia's lap.

"Nora found this today. I thought it might be for me, and I waited, but it was for somebody else. He had blotted it and thrown it away, intending to write another before dinner. Don't have any misunderstanding over the matter; it's horrible to be unhappy!"

Without knowing exactly what it was all about, except that Lena Gilbert was in deep grief about something, the girl that Langford Dale loved consoled the girl who loved him so vainly until Lena recovered her old pride and in a measure her spirits and left Felicia to open the note.

To Felicia the note must have an immediate interpretation. Under that irregular blot was a name. Whose? She took a wet sponge and washed the blot away. There under the dark splotch of washed out ink a name was scratched deeply. Now the note read:

"Darling Felicia."

And the blot on Felicia's happy Thanksgiving day was washed out.

ORDER OF MERIT FOR MRS. WARD?

MRS HUMPHRY WARD

The name of Mrs. Humphry Ward mentioned in connection with the Order of Merit, conferred by King George.

Sweetheart of "Robin Adair."

"Robin Adair" was written by Lady Caroline Keppel, the daughter of the Earl of Albemarle. Robin was a real character, a young Irish doctor who had been forced by a scandalous adventure to leave Ireland and seek his fortune in England. Chance threw a rich patient in his way, a lady of quality, and at her house he met Lady Caroline, and he result was a case of love at first sight on both sides. Her parents objected and sent her away, and during her absence produced the song.

DRUNK ON CORDITE.

A Reminiscence of the South African War.

I acquired the abominable habit whilst serving as a private in the South African war, says a writer in London Ideas. The company in which I was occupied a block-house, and the awful monotony of the life drove many of the weaker soldiers to drink, and even worse things.

When all the drink was gone, and the bad food became unbearable several of my companions took to drugging themselves with the cordite from the cartridges supplied to them, and after a while I followed suit, first of all from curiosity, but later because of my inability to conquer the depraved taste I acquired.

Cordite is composed of gun-cotton, nitro-glycerine, and a small quantity of vaseline. The nitro-glycerine gives it a sweet and rather pleasant taste, but a very small allowance produces a violent headache. The first mouthful I swallowed laid me up for several hours with a splitting head and a terrible pain in my back, and I swore off cordite for some days.

Then the agony of having neither drink nor tobacco to soothe my nerves got the upper hand of my resolution, and I started to chew the explosive again, taking a very small quantity at first, and gradually increasing the dose.

I still experienced violent headaches, but after a while the cordite had a similar effect to alcohol. A small quantity was sufficient to make me drunk, and the headache did not trouble me until several hours afterwords as is the case after a heavy drinking bout.

Then the cordite began to effect my rest, and I experienced the most horrible dreams that nearly drove me insane. I made a determined effort to conquer my passion of the explosive as I was the only man who could not do without it, but the long, weary days always got the upper hand of my resolution, and usually long before nightfall I had succumbed to the temptation that lay in my cartridge belt.

My dreams were always about the war in which we were engaged. I used to see England defeated by her enemies and the wholesale slaughter of the British army. Sometimes I would picture myself captured by the Boers and put to the most fiendish tortures, and would wake up trembling in every limb, with the perspiration running off me in streams.

On one occasion I dreamt that the block-house was surrounded by a vast army of Boers, who captured it after a terrible struggle, and brought out the survivors to be burned at the stake. I saw myself, with several companions, tied to posts amidst a mass of brushwood, and could almost feel the awful heat of the advancing flames.

GOOD ROADS

The question of good roads is becoming a live one in all parts of the country now; for some years it has been alive in parts of Western Ontario. The attention of the County Councillors of Peterborough, as well as the Peterborough City Fathers is respectfully called to the following extract from the annual report of Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce:

One of the most powerful and inexcusable local causes for the high price of food is the condition of our country roads. It must be clear that if a farmer has to travel ten or twenty miles to a city to sell his produce, every hour of delay to himself and his horses and wagon, every bushel or pound less he is able to carry, every day lost in the length of the life of his horses and wagon, cause just so much increase in the cost of the article he has to sell. To the extent that this needless and cruel loss might, if avoided, partly add to the farmers' profits and partly lessen the cost to the consumer, the state of our roads is little short of a crime. If the bad roads around a city cause the price of food to be much higher than it need be, one of the results is to enable producers hundreds, perhaps thousands of miles away to enter into competition with the farmer in his own country, because the cost in transit over one mile of bad wagon road will cover the cost over many miles of good railroad. This competition may help the consumer by keeping prices from rising still higher, but it will not bring the price below the point fixed by the extra cost from the bad local roads. It will not do any good for those of us who live in well-paved cities to blame the farmers for bad roads. They cannot be expected to build good roads entirely at their own expense, and good roads will not come so long as we wait for anything as unfair as this. It is not that we do not know how to construct good roads. We know fairly well what we should do, but we hesitate to do it. In the excellent report on Highway Improvements in Ontario for 1911 there is a sufficient abstract of the systems adopted by the various countries of the world and by thirty-three states of the Unites States; of these that in use in the State of New York seems to be the most complete.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC CRITICISM

The legislative committee reporting to the Albany Legislature on a Hydro-Electric power scheme for New York state, made some most curious statements about the Ontario Hydro-Electric system. These were in effect, that the system was a failure as a piece of public ownership, because if the system were run on true business principles there would be a deficit of about $400,060, and that the municipalities were taxing themselves by making huge expenditures to make the Hydro-Electric pay.

The refutation offered by Hon. Adam Beck, that the gentlemen of the committee, never appeared at the Hydro-Electric office, never got their figures from any official sources, and were talking rot, will be accepted by most of the people of this province as confirming the idea that the report to Albany was not made with the idea of discrediting the Ontario system, but as a report for New York purposes. The Republican committee wanted to knock a previous report by a Democratic committee in favor of a state Hydro-Electric system.

But we regret to note that there is too much a disposition by most of the Ontario newspapers to spread a lot of gush about the Hydro-Electric system. Any newspaper with the courage to say what it thinks lays itself open to the insinuation that it is an enemy of th epublic. There is no reason why there should not be straight, free criticism of the Hydro-Electric without the critic being accused of lese majeste. We believe that the Hydro-Electric system in every respect is on a sound basis, a basis on which it can afford to invite criticism. Peterborough has affirmed its faith in the Hydro-Electric power, to obtain competition, and we think its faith will not be false. But let the New York committee or any other accusers come forward, because the more we know about the system, the better informed we shall be.

A PARCELS POST COMING

So Canada is to have a parcels post. Hon. Mr. Pelletier's announcement in the House of Commons has pleased most of Canada immensely. Since the inauguration of a parcels post by the United States, and the vast popularity of such a step as demonstrated by the patronage given the system, the demand in Canada for a similar public service has been almost irresistible. Especially in the larger cities has it been demanded as a relief to the high cost of living. The parcels post may be inimical to the interests of some of the rural store-keepers, in that it will make easier the mail-order business, but there will be additional benefits that will make up the loss. At any rate, the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number must prevail, and it will be a distinct advantage to the people of Canada to have relief from the exorbitant express rates. For the rural population the parcels post will have as much advantage as for the urban.

The question now is: Can the Government force the railways to live up to a service in parcel-moving equal to that given letters? The express service is frequently very poor, though the revelations in the recent express inquiry as to the profits of the companies certainly showed that lack of receipts or business was not the cause of the inadequate arrangements. The companies, having a monopoly of the business, assumed the right to do as they pleased.

The Borden Government must be strongly commended for taking this advanced step. It has done many large things since coming into office. Its measures to improve transportation, to help the good roads movement, to improve the canal system, to settle the navy question, to aid agriculture, to negotiate reciprocity treaties with such British possessions as the West Indies, to build up everything Canadian, are quite of a piece with its acceptance of the parcels post idea. The Laurier Government is being left far behind in its record of practical advances for the good of the country.

GUELPH SPEAKER UNABLE TO COME

Dr. Marsh Gave an Interesting Lecture to Astronomical Society

Dr. Marsh gave the lecture before the R. A. S. Peterborough Centre, last night, as Mr. H. Westovy, of Guelph, was unable, through illness, to come to the city.

Rev. Dr Marsh gave a lecture on the various theories regarding sun spots. In the early days it was supposed that the sun was clear and bright all over the surface, and at all time, but even with the naked eye black spots were seen and various explanations and theories regarding these were given. It was supposed that they were planets coming in between the earth and the sun. Others thought it was clouds passing between the earth and sun; and at a latter stage, it was thought that these sun spots were occasioned by a foreign matter falling upon the sun's bright surface. Others thought it was a solid body covered with illuminous atmosphere and the spots were the mountain peaks projecting through the luminous surface.

More recently again, there were those who held the theory that the body of the sun was a daro gasious mass under heavy pressure with illuminous atmosphere, and the sun spots were rifts in this luminous atmosphere, permitting the observer seeing through these rifts to the dark body of the sun.

Dr. Marsh showed how these various theories were not correct, and presented the following as the most recent. That the sun spots were the accumulation of the cooler gases assembling to return to the body of the sun to be reheated.

At the close of the meeting a number of questions were asked and answered.

THE BIBLE CLASS WAS ENTERTAINED

A very pleasant time was spent last evening at the George Street Church parsonage, when Mrs. Couch entertained her Sunday school class numbering about thirty-five young ladies. The evening was spent in guessing contests and music, after which a dainty luncheon was served.

SUBJECT FOR SPECIAL SERMON

The subject at the Park Street Baptist Church next Sunday evening, when the Mayor, Aldermen and City Officials attend church in a body will be "The Art of Progression as Applied to City Problems." There will be special music by the Harmonic Male Quartette.

MOST MONEY TO BE MADE IN HOG RAISING

Edmonton, Jan. 17.—Thirty thoroughbred Berkshire pigs, raised in Central Iowa, will form the necleus of a herd of 300 to be placed on a 320-acre ranch, 100 miles south of Edmonton, owned by George L. Simpson, formerly of Des Moines, who has come to central Alberta to engage in the hog industry.

"Hogs are the best paying livestock that can be raised anywhere," Mr. Simpson said here to-day, "but the wonder is that not more farmers are engaged in the business. I have raised hogs all my life and have made money with them. Formerly while in Iowa, I fattened hogs on corn, but I have ascertained that wheat and bran, abundant in this country, will serve the purpose."

COMFORT

Don't you spend a good deal of money for some kinds of personal comforts, and go without others of more importance,

The most satisfactory glasses you can get, TORICS, will give more comfort in proportion to their cost than anything else you can buy.

Toric Lenses may be fitted with any desired mounting.

In a large measure the attractiveness and comfort of a pair of glasses depend on the mounting — And the mounting to select depends on the features of the individual wearer.

It is a part of our Toric Service to give particular attention to selecting the mounting that will look and feel the best on your face.

In addition to this our thorough examinations and the grinding of lenses in our own shop assures you of a pair of glasses satisfactory in every respect.

THE VITAL STATISTICS OF ONTARIO

The report relating to the registration of births, marriages and deaths in Ontario for the year ending 31st December, 1912, shows that:

There were registered with the Registrar-General 57,235 births, 25,807 marriages and 34,341 deaths, an increase 1,364 births, 1,771 marriages and 34,311 deaths over the previous year.

The total births in Ontario in 13 years from 1899 to 1911 were 665,527, total marriages 264,801, total deaths 407,401.

The census taken in 1911 showed that Ontario had a population 261,653 greater than the estimated population of 1910.

COUNTIES FELL OFF

Of the 47 county municipalities, 27, or more than half, showed decreases in population. Of the city municipalities, all with the exception of Ottawa showed increases.

In the matter of births the preponderance was in favor of the male children as 107 to 100.

There were registered during the year 1262 multiple births, being 622 pairs of twins and 6 cases of triplets.

Born out of wedlock were 553 boys and 534 girls, 1087 altogether.

The ration of marriages for every 1,000 of the population was 10.2, showing that Ontario maintains a good ratio in regard to matrimony.

MONTH OF ROSES POPULAR

"Leafy June" continues to be the favorite month for marriages, there having been 3,439 couples made happy during that month; September and December come next, with 2,928 and 2,468 respectively.

In the matter of denomination, the followers of John Wesley led by a large majority, the figures being: Methodist, 14,571; Presbyterian, 10,504; Anglican, 10,402; Roman Catholic, 6,743; Baptist, 3,398; Lutheran 1,951; Congregational, 647, Hebrew, 485, Evangelical Association, 387; Salvation Army, 215; other denominations, 1,737; no denominations, 673.

AFTER ALLOTTED SPAN

Hymen's victims ranged in age from 15 to 70 "and over" there being married 5,520 between the ages of 16 and 19; 19,300 between 20 and 24; 14,013 between 25 and 29; 5,816 between 30 and 34, 2,969 between 35 and 39; 1,481 between 40 and 44; 885 between 45 and 49; 562 between 50 and 54; 317 between 55 and 59; 221 between 60 and 64; 134 between 65 and 69; and 85 took the plunge into matrimony after they had reached the age of 70. Taking advantage of the provision in the Marriage Act, which allows an applicant for a marriage license to let their age go as "over 18," 291 were put down as "age not stated."

MIXED MARRIAGES INCREASE

The figures in regard to mixed marriages are interesting. In 1910 7,351 Roman Catholics were married. Of this number, 1,509 or 20.5 per cent. entered into mixed marriages. In 1911, 6,743 Roman Catholics were married, and of these 1,519 contracted mixed marriages, a percentage of 22.5, as compared with 20.5 per cent. in the previous year.

As usual, the preponderance of couples married was between the ages of 20 and 24. The reluctance of woman to disclose her age is again proven by statistics; 258 did not report their age to the license issuers as against 33 men.

FATAL HEART DISEASE

The causes of death are varied but the "Man of the Pale Horse" found is ablest lieutenant in organic heart disease, with tuberculosis a close second. Cancer, pneumonia and infantile diarrhoea "also ran."

The percentages show that organic heart disease caused 7.63 per cent. of the total deaths; tuberculosis, 7.28 cancer 5.62; pneumonia 4.91; infantile diarrhoea 4.28; cerebral hemorrage, 3.18; diseases of the arteries, 3.08; Bright's disease, 2.55; typhoid, 1.99; paralysis, 1.68.

DEATH RATIO DECREASED

In 1911 the ration of deaths per 1,000 was 14.4, being 0.4 less than that of 1910. Thunder Bay district gave the highest ratio, and Rainy River district the lowest. The city municipalities contributed 12,940 deaths, with a ratio of 17.1 per 1000, and the towns of over 5,000 population 2,704, with a ratio of 16.6 per thousand. In the country districts the ration of deaths per 1,000 (as per complete returns) ranged 10.6 in the county of Perth to 30.3 in Thunder Bay.

MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER REPORTS ON YEARS OPERATIONS AND MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

Sewer Convictions Should be Made Where There is a Sewer on the Start—By-law to Prohibit Spilling in a Public Place—City to Build Small Pox Hospital—Board of Health to Pass on Building Permits

The annual report of Medical Health Officer McPherson was presented to the Board of Health this morning. It will be forwarded to the Provincial Board of Health in Toronto.

Thirty-two cases of scarlet fever, with no deaths; one whooping cough and one death, six typhoid fever and one death, and sixty-five tuberculosis cases and twenty-six deaths, are reported. Reference is made to the worth of the Isolation Hospital. The report says:— Another point that is worthy of note is the use that is being made of the Isolation Hospital. We had scarlet fever in 25 families, many of them with a number of children. In 18 of these the patient was sent to the hospital and in only two cases did a second case occur, and in these it was unavoidable. The remaining seven were kept at home. In two of these cases there was [illegible] child. In one case where there were two children the other was removed and kept under observation for ten day, and in three of the remaining four cases a further infection developed, making six new cases.

After remarking on the introduction of the garbage collection system and the passage of the milk by-law, the report continues:

The sanitary work proper forms a large part of our duties. This year we were able to do it more thoroughly owing to the appointment of a Sanitary Inspector. We attempted to make a systematic examination of all premises, noting the condition of cleanliness both inside and outside the buildings, the fitness of the house as a dwelling, the facilities for disposal of sewage and kitchen refuse, the water supply, the animals kept on the premises and any other points that might have a bearing on the health of the occupants or of the people in the neighborhood. This has been done as far as time would permit and a record made in each case. With your permission we will have a book made for this purpose and enter these details for future reference.

The conditions found in many places were far from what we desire. The wells are not cleaned out every year, the old privy pits are still in evidence, dirty stables and stable yards, pig pens, chicken coops, open manure heaps are found all over the city. In a number of instances we had to use the police court as a last resort to compel proper conditions. The following report of the sanitary inspection will give an idea of the work done—

Inspection of houses and premises	3865
Notices for abatement of nuisances	342
Complaints investigated ...	92
Manure heaps enclosed ...	83
Dairy farms inspected........	28

In addition to this all laundries, bakeries and restaurants have been systematically inspected from time to time. The market has been visited [illegible] meeting. Here conditions have been found that should be remedied, and it is our intention to draw up regulations for the market for your approval.

Since last year the Provincial Health Act has been revised. Several points are worthy of notice:

1. The number of members of the Local Board of Health has been reduced from seven to five, one of whom is the Medical Officer of Health.

2. The Isolation Hospital is placed under the control and direction of the Local Board.

3. The Medical Officer of Health is given the power to placard a house as being unfit for human habitation.

4. The duty of deciding what constitutes a nuisance is left to the Medical Officer of Health.

5. The municipality is given power to establish an abbatoir wherein animals may be slaughtered under competent inspection.

Before closing I would like to make a few recommendations for your consideration:

1. That the Council be asked to pass a by-law giving the local Board power to compel sewer connection being made where there is a sewer on the street.

2. That licenses be not issued to milk producers or vendors, hotels, restaurants, boarding houses or scavengers without referring the same to the health authorities for approval.

3. That a notice of all building permits issued, be given to the health authorities so that supervision may be exercised over the sanitary arrangements.

4. That a set of market regulations be drawn up, printed and posted in appropriate places.

5. That notices warning people not to spit in a public place be printed and posted and that the police be asked to enforce the by-law.

6. That a smallpox hospital be built.

Cost of Living Climbs.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—The index number of wholesale prices rose slightly in December, standing at 135.2, as compared with 134.8 in November, and 129.4 in December, 1911. Commodities advanced slightly in nearly all groups, the only decline of importance being in grains and fodders. In retail prices, the upward movement was not as strong as during the past few [illegible] meats [illegible] products being steadier.

Club For Heiress Stealing.

Clubs spring up with and without reason. One of the strangest on record was the Abduction Club, organized in 1766 by some well connected Irish youths in London, who banded themselves together to abduct heiresses and good-looking young women of gentle birth. As there was a large membership many forced marriages took place in consequence of their exploits. The evil became eventually so serious that a special act of Parliament was passed making abduction a capital offence. Two of the members were executed for the abduction of two wealthy sisters in 1770, but the club was not disbanded till 1802.

One thing a man can never understand is his wife's memory of all the fool nonsense he wrote her before they were married.—Detroit Free Press.

Ivory Smuggling a Crime.

Ivory smuggling is looked upon as a very serious crime in British East Africa, and this is only as it should be, for, in order to secure the ivory, the traders have to kill great numbers of elephants. The game preservation laws, particularly as regards elephants, are most severe, and woe betide the man who is caught breaking the game regulations or in possession of illicit spoils of the chase. The rigid laws, however, do not prevent the Arabs and Indians from indulging in an illegal trade in ivory on a large scale.

Has Seen Better Days.

Weary and footsore from a tramp over the railway ties from Golden to Vancouver, and bordering on fever caused by constant exposure, Henry Llewellyn Lewis, once a wealthy colliery owner in Wales, and cousin of the late Sir William Thomas Lewis, a world-famed philanthropist, walked into the police station in Vancouver the other day and requested to be locked up as he was destitute and hungry.

JUST A BIT OF LIFE ON A RAILWAY TRAIN

A TOUCH OF REAL HUMANITY.

The Rough Looking Man Who Proved That His Heart Was Big and In the Right Place and the Shabby but Grateful Foreigner He Befriended.

"Whenever I hear anything nowadays about 'man's inhumanity to man,'" said a Providence citizen the other day, "I am reminded of a little incident. I was coming back from Boston with a friend on the midnight train, and, getting on board at the Back Bay station, we found a seat near the rear end of the car.

"Soon after the train pulled out I happened to look around and saw the conductor apparently expostulating with a rather shabby looking specimen of humanity who was sitting in the last seat. At first I thought the man was drunk, but as I watched I saw that he was a foreigner who couldn't understand English. He was holding out a crumpled one dollar bill to the conductor and saying 'New York' over and over again.

"Finally the conductor shook his head, said something I couldn't catch and went on. The foreigner, a rather decent looking young fellow, gazed at him despairingly, then buried his face in his hands and began to cry. With the usual callous indifference of the traveling public to the troubles of any one else, I paid no more attention to the man and prepared to take a nap.

"I was just beginning to doze when I became aware that a man was standing beside me in the aisle, speaking to me. I sat up and looked at him. He was a rough appearing man, far from prepossessing, clean shaven, with a sort of bulldog face.

"'Say, gents,' he began, 'I want to know if you wouldn't like to help a feller out.'

"I stiffened instinctively, determined to refuse to let him make a 'touch.'

"'There's a poor young foreigner back there,' he went on with a jerk of his thumb toward the alien, still sitting with bowed head, 'and he's up against it for fair. He can't speak a word of English, and he wants to go to New York, where he has friends.

"'He got the idea somehow he could do it for a dollar, all he's got; but, of course, he can't, and they're going to put him off the train when we get to Providence. It's mighty hard on a feller like him, and there ain't any telling what'll happen to him getting put off in a strange city at 1 o'clock in the morning. I thought maybe you'd be willing to give a little to help him along.'

"He stopped, looked us straight in the eye and smiled sheepishly as if he were ashamed of what he was doing. We gave him a dollar, and he went on through the car, and there were few of the passengers who didn't respond to the appeal. He came back counting the money, and as he got to our seat I heard him say:

"'There's a dollar more needed—I'll make it up myself!' and he pulled out a couple of fifty cent pieces and added them to the amount.

"The conductor and the brakeman were standing at the door of the car near the foreigner's seat.

"'Here,' said the man who had collected the money to the alien; 'give me your dollar.'

"Dumbly, but trustingly, the young fellow handed it over, and, giving it to the conductor with the rest, the bulldog man said gruffly:

"'There's his fare.'

"It slowly dawned on the alien what had been done for him, and as the conductor punched the rebate check and handed it to him the gratitude in his face was indescribable. He couldn't speak, but he took his cap off and bowed again and again to the official, but the latter pointed to the passenger who was sitting in his seat across the aisle and told the youth that he was the one to thank.

"The foreigner crossed the aisle till he stood squarely in front of his benefactor, took off his cap and, with tears of gratitude in his eyes, bowed again and again. It was evident enough that the benefactor was embarrassed by this unexpected outburst. At first he waved his hand around the car to indicate that everybody had had a hand in it. But he couldn't make the foreigner understand. The latter kept on bowing, whereupon the uncomfortable individual in the seat grunted and turned to look out of the window.

"I have never seen," concluded the man who was telling the story, "a kindlier—if I were a girl I should say a sweeter—act of charity in my life. Sitting across the aisle, this hard faced man had heard the story of the foreigner, helpless, alone and frightened, and out of pure goodness of heart, without any necessity for doing it, he had taken upon himself the ungrateful task of soliciting money from the rest of the people in that car to help out a man he'd never seen before and would probably never see again."—Providence Journal.

BOOK OFFENDS ROTHSCHILDS.

Wealthy Family Sue To Suppress Family History.

Literary London is keenly interested in the efforts which are being made by the London house of Rothschilds to stop the publication of a book dealing with the history of the famous financial family. The Rothschilds applied to Justice Bailache, England's newest member of the bench, in chambers, for an injunction, but it was refused. As reports of such proceedings in camera are prohibited, no mention of the case has been made in any English papers for fear of incurring prosecution for contempt of court.

The counsel for the Rothschilds argued that the book contained libellous matter and instanced a story which he alleged it contained of how Nathan Rothschild, founder of the London branch of the firm, made a large amount of money after the battle of Waterloo. Nathan was in Paris when he received private word that Napoleon had been defeated on the Belgian battlefield. He posted to London in hot haste and arrived at the Stock Exchange next morning, worn, weary and travel stained.

The London Stock Exchange was at that time alive with reports that Wellington had been worsted and stocks were tumbling. Rothschild, who could have stopped the slump with a single word announcing Napoleon's defeat, said nothing. His woebegone appearance, due really to the fatigue of his hurried journey, was attributed to his depression over the financial losses he was supposed to have incurred, and some of his friends openly expressed their sympathy with him.

According to the story told in "The Romance of the Rothschilds," Nathan not only allowed them to remain under that false impression, but encouraged it. Meanwhile, his agents were quietly buying up all the consols they could obtain in preparation for the rise which followed the receipt of news that it was Wellington, not Napoleon, won the field of Waterloo.

Notice of appeal was given by the Rothschild lawyers, and it is expected that unless the Rothschilds prefer to avoid the publicity of a trial in open court the matter will soon be heard from again.

In another form the story of Nathan Rothschild's Waterloo coup appears in the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The sensitiveness of the Rothschild family was recently shown by their action toward the play, "The Five Frankfurters," on its production in Germany and later on its being brought out in London.

They are thought to have made financial inducements to terminate the production after a very short run.

To Prevent Sea Collisions.

Electrical science has been advanced a step further in England by the invention of a sound direction indicator, for the prevention of collision during a fog at sea.

The invention consists of a large drum, nine feet in diameter, and is slung aloft, away from any possible interference from deck sounds, and is provided with 16 receiving mouths, which receive all sound waves. At the base of the mouths are fixed contact breakers, which, while stable to ordinary mechanical vibration, are sensitive to general sound waves. Each of these receivers is responsible for sounds from a particular direction.

These contact breakers are connected electrically to a relay case, consisting of relays equivalent to the number of receivers, in turn being connected to a box having a circle of small electric lamps, to the same number as the receivers, which will indicate the direction of the sound. When a sound strikes the contact breakers this disturbs the electric circuit, thus operating the relays, and at the same time lights the lamps on the indicator. If the sound is near, then more than one lamp will be ignited.

Should the sound wave come from the right of the ship, then the lamps on the right of the circle are illuminated; if to the left, then it is the lamps to the left; and if directly ahead, then the lamps pointing in that direction. With a passing vessel successive units are operated, thus clearly denoting the course upon which the ship is steering.

Peanut Caramels.

Put into a saucepan over the fire one cupful of molasses, one cupful of sugar and a quarter of a tablespoonful of butter. Cook until the sirup crisps when dropped into water; then stir in quickly one cupful of chopped peanuts and pour into buttered tins. When nearly cold mark into squares.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Diary Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The grain markets today were nervous and irregular, but finished with a net decline due largely to a private cablegram stating that Adrianople's fall is imminent. Provisions advanced. Until the arrival of the Adrianople report gave impulse to sales, the wheat market was a sort of glorified scalping affair. Speculators sold on the hard spots and took small profits on the soft ones, or vice versa. The edge was off the export business and the trade was nervously waiting for influential news such as arrived from Constantinople.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d to ⅜d higher on wheat, and ⅛d to ¼d higher on corn. Berlin wheat closed unchanged, Budapest ½c higher.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—Cables on Manitoba wheat were firm to 1½d higher, but the demand was not so good, and only a small volume of business was worked. Demand for barley is good and further sales were made. There was a slight improvement in the local and outside demand for oats and an increased trade was done at firm prices. There was some demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour, and as bids were 3d higher sales of some fair sized lots were made, while the local trade is fairly active. Millfeed quiet. A firmer feeling prevails in cheese under an improved demand. Butter quiet and steady. Eggs weak owing to mild weather and increased receipts of new laid and prices have declined 1c to 3c.

"Boot-Legger" Under Arrest.

GALT, Jan. 17.—John Powell, an individual known as "Boot-Legger," who admitted to the chief of police that he had been pursuing that vocation at Owen Sound, got 30 days yesterday for transferring his field of operations to Galt, where local option is more rigidly enforced. He had a small tumbler in his pocket when arrested.

HOME BANK TAKES INTERNATIONALE

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—The official announcement was made last evening that the syndicate, headed by Sir Henry Pellatt, which had accumulated 75,000 shares of the International Bank, had sold out to the Home Bank of Canada, and that G. Bird, formerly general manager of the International Bank, has been appointed supervisor of branches for the Home Bank in the Province of Quebec. The formal transfer will be made in a week or two, and the official statement is also made that the Home Bank will have at least two resident directors in this city, as that institution has been endeavoring to get foothold in the province for some time past.

About the time the announcement was made Judge Leet dismissed the case in the police court, instituted by Mr. Decout of Paris, charging Bird with making a false return to the Government.

Yesterday morning John Knight, secretary of the Bankers' Association, and Chief Accountant Muir of the Merchants', went before Judge Leet and assured the magistrate that there was nothing wrong with Mr. Bird's report, and that any bank manager would have done the same thing, hence his honor's decision declining to issue a warrant.

ROWELL AT WOODSTOCK.

Liberal Leader Addresses Western Ontario Dairy Association.

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 17.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., returned to his North Oxford riding yesterday to address the Western Ontario Dairy Association, in convention here.

He urged that the ideal of people of this province should be to work out a social and industrial system whereby every man would be able to earn sufficient to keep himself and his family, to educate his children and to save something for a rainy day. A distribution of wealth rather than accumulation was suggested as a proper solution of the economic problem.

Addresses were delivered by G. H. Barron on new experimental stations, and Dr. J. F. Morrison, on the cause and prevention of fishy flavor in stored butter; by J. R. Ruddicu on "The Future of Dairying in Ontario"; by J. R. Ruddicu, on "The Work of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioners' Branch"; and by Prof. H. H. Dean, on "Cheese Investigations at O. A. C. During the Past Three Years."

S. E. Facey, Harrietsville, was elected president.

NOT PRESENTED YET.

Powers' Note Delayed By Hitch In German Instructions.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Another day has passed without progress in the peace negotiations. The ambassadors of the powers have not yet presented their collective note to the Porte. Constantinople despatches say that the delay is due to the failure of the German ambassador to receive instructions from his Government.

Part of the European press blames Germany, charging that she is standing outside the concert of Europe and playing a game of her own. The ambassadors at London deny this. One said yesterday:

"This suggestion is wholly unjust. Thank God, the most promising feature of the situation is that all the powers are marching together."

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in carrying on an exchange of views through code telegrams, and this is explained, to be the real cause of the delay. The fact that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, with his Ministers, journeyed to Mustapha Pasha for a council of war Wednesday, with Gen. Savoff and the commanders of the four Bulgarian armies, is considered as proof that the Bulgarians' threat to begin the war soon is in earnest.

Intercolonial Calendar

Bringing visions of comfortable and luxurious travel through a territory unrivalled for scenic beauty the calendar of the Intercolonial Railway just received with the compliments of the Traffic Department is warmly appreciated as a happy reminder of past enjoyments and as an inspiration for future travel.

The design of the calendar is greatly enhanced by a surprinting of gold on the background of maple leaves. As a reminder of the intercolonial and its fine train service it is excellent. As something both ornamental and useful for office use it is much to be desired.

A JAPANESE MURDERER

JUNEAU, Alaska, Jan. 17.—O. Itow was found guilty of first degree murder and E. Fushima was convicted of manslaughter by a jury in the United States District Court for killing Frank Dunn, a cannery foreman, at Dundas Bay last July.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cause that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by all druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BAT. NELSON TAKES THE COUNT BEFORE BILLY SUNDAY

Chicago January 17.—A despatch to the Record-Herald from Columbus Ohio, says:—

Oscar Matthew , Battling Nelson, one time champion lightweight, but still the undisputed holder of the typewriter division, of the publicity league when it comes to dashing off masterpieces concerning B. Nelson, is going to turn evangelist.

"The Battler reached this decision after hearing "Billy" Sunday turn Columbus upside down and back again, and, in the vernacular, "knock 'em off their seats. The Hegewisch fistic exponent was dazed. He admitted that Sunday certainly made a fellow regret every mean thing he ever did adding that it made one long, lingering impression on him, and henceforth he intended sticking to the straight and narrow row.

Nelson was so impressed that at the end of the ceremonies he made his way to the stage and introduced himself to Sunday, telling him that he was the squarest referee he had ever seen or heard. Sunday and the "Battler," after speaking in glowing terms of each other, exchanged autograph photographs and Nelson was induced to return for the evening services. The one-time champion not only returned, but occupied a seat on the platform and was prevailed upon to accept a song book and take part in the singing.

"Honest, bo, it effected my nerves more than waiting for the gong previous to my fight with Wolgast. This man Sunday certainly knows what's right and wrong. He made my feel like the meanest man in the world, but never again. Sunday himself told me that I am not half as bad as he was when he was slamming the pill around the major league baseball circuits." This was the gist of the "Battler's" statement to a fight promoter before leaving Columbus.

It is the intention of Nelson to join Sunday in a tour of the East.

TOOLMAKERS AND PLUMBERS WON THE OPENING GAMES

Canadian General Electric Ahead of Brintons by 5-1—Plumbers Defeated Machinists by 3-1

The C. G. E. tool-room and the Plumbers' sevens were returned the decisions in the first games of the Mercantile Hockey League last night.

The Toolmakers and the Brinton Carpet Company septets opened hostilities on a sugary ice surface and the boys were unable to exhibit their best brand of hockey. The their best brand of hockey.

The half-time score was 5-1 and the final tally 5-1, for the Toolmakers, whose line-up showed three O.H.A. players in Barrie, Kenneally and Art Hall. Manager Bishop of the Brinton's presented a good line-up and the team will do better in their next game.

The teams were—

Brintons		Toolroom
	Goal
Rew		Cassidy
	Point
Coughlin		McGrath
	Cover
Rose		Regan
	Rover
O'Keefe		Barrie
	Centre
Rose		Hall

Mahoney		Primeau
	Left Wing
W. Rew		Kenneally

PLUMBERS 3, MACHINISTS 1.

There was no end of excitement in the second engagement between the Plumbers and the C.G.E. Machinists. Neither team could score in the first half, but the Plumbers came back strong in the second period and beat A'Hearn for three goals. The best the Machinists could do was to pass Halpin once.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE DONE FOR THIS YEAR

The Trent Valley Hockey League for 1913 has died shortly after its birth. The League was re-organized and officers elected at the annual meeting in Marmora in December last, but only two clubs, Havelock and Stirling, entered teams. In view of that fact, the officials have decided to return the money deposited by those clubs for entry and guarantee, and to disband the League for this year. So ends Havelock's hopes of landing the League championship.—Havelock Standard.

ST. MIKE'S NOT SO EFFECTIVE ON SMALL ICE

As was expected the smaller ice surface of the new Alert-rink interfered with the work of the St. Mike's last night. Jerry Laflamme being the chief sufferer. Jerry stated after the game that Preston would be lost on a rink the size of the Arena in Toronto and that the St. Mike's were not at home on the smaller sheet. "A man hasn't room to turn around unless he is checked," he said. Perhaps the Preston team were a wee bit faster than any the Saints have met this year. chf—Hamilton Herald

HUYCKES TEAM WON BY 6-4

In the junior P.C.I. Hockey League, Huycke's seven defeated Smith's team yesterday afternoon by 6—4. The half time score was a tie, 2—2. The teams were:

EX-MAYOR AFTER FUNDS FOR THE BASEBALL CLUB

Guelph, Jan. 17.—With his duties as chief magistrate of the city at an end, ex-Mayor Thorp will now go to work to raise $11,500 by public subscription to keep the Guelph Maple Leafs here for the present year as per agreement with President Mahoney. With a good season the Leafs may come out of the hole this year, but the back indebtedness has yet to be paid off.

COCKNEYS ASK HIGHER SALARIES

London Club Will Have Trouble Landing the Regulars

London, Ont., Jan. 17— London directors will have to do some plain and fancy figuring before the Canadian League season opens in May, in an effort to retain the few good players of last season and yet keep under the salary limit.

Lindeburne, the star second sacker, asked for his release, stating he wishes to go into business in Buffalo. Neale claims he will not be able to report until June 20, because he wants to stick at college. So far no action has been taken in regard to these players. Manager Deneau has promised to run the club on an economical basis.

He is bringing many new players to try out. When he gets his team picked for 1913 it is doubtful if there will be three players on it being paid more than $125 per month.

Fierbauer, Fox, Neale, Lindeburne, Fitzpatrick and Powell will all be hold-outs. The club expects this. Powell may not return to London. He is on the reserve list but was suspended last season because he was going to jump the club. He stated in a letter since he would not return no matter what action was taken in his case. Furraden the Toronto pitcher, is also under suspension but he will come back in the spring and try for an out-field position.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

SCATTERED.

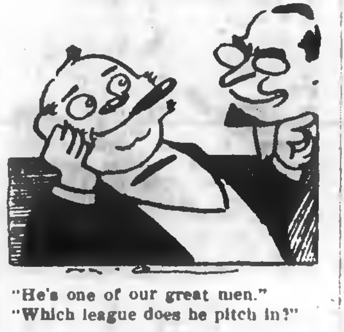
I HAVE cousins in Missouri,
I have uncles in New York,
I have sisters in Chicago
And an aunt who lives in Cork,
Second cousins in Australia
And in any other place
That offhanded you might mention.
My, but we're a scattered race!

When my father was a youngster
In a little Scottish town
He was blessed with several brothers—
Eight it was; I marked it down—
And about as many sisters—
Ten I think I heard him say—
And when they had grown and married
Each one went a different way.

And they had—how many children?
Goodness knows, for I do not,
As I never took a census,
But it must have been a lot.
And the children, grown to manhood,
As myself, for time has flown
And we all are growing ancient,
Must have children of their own.

So the stock is widely scattered,
From the palm tree to the pine,
Nearly every state and country
Has some relative of mine.
And with almost every family
It's the same old tale again,
For the world is getting ready
For a common race of men

Natural Inquiry.



"He's one of our great men."
"Which league does he pitch in?"

Nothing to That.

"How do they like the new minister?"

"Fine. He plays football with the boys, talks politics to the men and makes a good hand at bridge."

"But how about his sermons?"

"Oh, I don't know. Hardly any of them ever heard him preach."

Slow.

"What makes John look so scared?"

"He has just found out that it's leap year."

"Tell him to be of good cheer. If some damsel should propose to him he couldn't make up his mind now until next year, anyway."

Relieved.

"I hate to seem officious, Fred, but that Bill is no friend of yours."

"You don't mean it. What has he been doing?"

"He is going round telling lies about you."

"Oh, just lies!"

Wreath In Ice.

The best wreath which has yet been despatched to London by the Navy Leagues of New Zealand in connection with the anniversary of Trafalgar Day, is the one which was sent from Wellington this year. The wreath was set in a block of ice weighing about five hundred pounds. It was composed of New Zealand foliage and plumes, the red rata being particularly conspicuous. The branches of the league in New Zealand were worked in conjunction in regard to this wreath.

A Royal Slip.

Considerable amusement was once caused by a slip of Emperor Nicholas' pen in accepting the offers of several companies of Siberian militia who volunteered for service at the front. The petition read, "We humbly lay at your majesty's feet our desire to be permitted to fight and die for the fatherland." The emperor in accepting wrote on the margin of the petition in his own hand, "I thank you sincerely and hope your wishes may be fully realized."

"Deed I dunno, boss, I 'spects if I does I'll be obleeged to drum up a new bunch of customers."—Judge.

THE DANGEROUS WORK OF "SCRATTING" COCKLES

HARVEST OF THE SEA ON THE LANCASHIRE COAST.

Little Known Industry Employs About Four Hundred People In the Little Towns of Flookburgh, Banks and Bolton-le-Sands—Women Take an Active Part In the Dangerous Work.

About 400 people are regularly employed "cockle-scratting" on the Lancashire coast, but there is in addition, a great number of occasional workers. The metropolis of this industry is Flookburgh, on the north side of Morecambe Bay; closely following it comes Banks, near Southport; while Bolton-le-Sands, near Lancaster, is a good third. It has been computed that the value of this bivalve to Lancashire cocklers averages between £7,000 and £8,000 per annum, about 1,000 tons per annum being sent away from Cark Station alone. A skilled worker, when every circumstance goes in his favor, may earn 6s. within the twenty-four hours, but he cannot keep it up for six days a week.

The cocklers are humble folk, and among strangers exceedingly shy and taciturn, as well becomes their lonely vocation. They inhabit stone cottages near the rustling marram-grass and bents, they subsist on the coarsest fare, and while at all times the living they "pick up" is precarious, frequent hardships result from destructive high tides, shifting channels, and the altered position or break up of the skears. Sometimes their daily labor has to be followed at a distance of nearly four miles from the nearest house on bursting sand-banks and even on quicksands. As a rule the womenkind are not "weaker vessels" than the men; they have no sex amenities perceptible to the outsider, being apparently as robust as the stock to which they belong, and always ready to help in the search for spoil. According as the tide suits, mixed parties will brave the wet sands on autumn and winter afternoons right up to nightfall, exposed, maybe, to withering winds, clinging fog and searoke, all disastrous to anybody prone to rheumatism. These toilers are often seen in two's and three's far apart, not a word escaping their lips. They are superstitious enough to believe that disputes among themselves would be overheard and resented by the embedded cockles, in which case those sensitive shellfish would perforce quit by the next tide.

These folk do not carry "skeels" poised on their heads, nor does a smile illumine their faces even when seas are blue or skies sunny, as depicted by more than one water-color artist.

They use roughly-constructed two-wheeled carts with four corner-posts to which are nailed wood rails, so as to let the sand and water drain from each catch before it reaches shore. Carts are loaded up with jumbos, craams, skeels, and sieves; and as they splash through the channels between one sandbank and another, the wheels are often buried to the axle. Out of consideration to the horses both men and women refuse to add to the weight by riding. In winter they trudge and flop in sea-boots alongside the carts, their figures diminishing to mere specks in the distance, till at length they cannot be distinguished from shore.

Horses are unyoked and left to wander at will on the home-side of the skeers, though they really do not choose to wander many yards if given the nose-bag. It is permissible to use a spade, a fork, or a "craam," but a bylaw of the Fisheries Board has wisely made "jumbo" an illegal implement except in the first two and last two months of the year. The "craam" is a wood-handled, three-pronged fork, in which the prongs are recurved, almost hooked. So armed, and carrying a flat-bottomed basket in the left hand, each cockler—wearing sea-boots, or uprolled trousers, or skirts kirtled to the knee—begins to cast about for signs. Although anybody inexperienced might look in vain till the tide hemmed them in, the folk whose lot it is to convert cockles into bread—so to speak—cannot for a moment be misled. The cold-blooded molluscs in their white crinkled shells are embedded in a soft substratum of what is called "slutch" near low-water mark, never at any time willingly showing themselves to the ravenous gulls, black ducks, and wading birds which readily detach mussels from an exposed reef. As soon as the tide recedes they must needs betray their presence by little water jets or geysers spurting out of the sand. Wherever the cockler sees "silver eyes" he scrapes away rapidly, and adroitly tumbles five or six inches of sand containing numerous prizes into his wicker "skeel."

The Fisheries Board has imposed a size limit on cockles. Thereby the riddle or sieve these folk use is rendered liable to inspection. Any cockles that slip through its mesh when turned out of the skeels must be replaced in their native sands to grow bigger. Those mature cockles which come to the market are, as a rule, two years old, or at least never turned three. These are thrown from the sieves into the carts, which between one tide and another are filled. Craams, skeels, and sieves are then thrown in, too; horses are harnessed, and the tired cocklers leave for home, sometimes sitting on the shafts, sometimes walking. "Catches" are hauled to the village mart, there to be weighed, sold in tubs or bags, and dispatched to the nearest railway station. Whence they are entrained "all alive-o!" to the big manufacturing towns.

BIG INCREASE IN BUSINESS OF WATER COMMISSIONERS

Mr. T. F. Matthews Returned as Chairman by Acclamation—Hydro-Electric is Discussed.

In six years the volume of water pumped into the city has increased 297,476,535 gallons. In 1906 the volume was 505,049,080 gallons, and in the year just closed it amounted to 802,525,615 gallons. The figures were given yesterday to the Water Commissioners in the annual report of the Superintendent of Waterworks. The total pipe distribution for the year ending Dec. 31st was 37.98 miles, on which are 252 hydrants, and 355 stop valves.

Dr. McPherson reported the water in the Otonabee to have been uniformly free from infection during the month of December.

MR. MATTHEWS, CHAIRMAN.

Mr. T. F. Matthews was elected by acclamation to act as chairman of the Commissioners for the year 1913. In suitable words he thanked them for again conferring upon him the honor.

HYDRO ELECTRIC.

The Commissioners discussed the Hydro-Electric proposition, the management of which has been entrusted to them by the City Council, according to statute. They propose to handle the proposition as intelligently as possible, and informally talked it over at the meeting.

All the members and Superintendent Fawcett were present.

NO DAMAGES.

The City Solicitor was instructed to notify Messrs. A. W. Cressman and Robert Fair that the Commissioners do not feel responsible for the damage which occurred to stock in their premises by the bursting of a water pipe, and regretted that no compensation could be granted.

M. H. O. INVITES THOROUGH INVESTIGATION INTO THE HOSPITAL MANAGEMENT

A thorough investigation of the alleged mismanagement in connection with the running of the Isolation Hospital, will be opened on Monday afternoon by the Board of Health, at three o'clock. Ald. Gordon and Ald. Anderson will be asked to personally present whatever charges they have in a specific form. Dr. McPherson this morning held out for the investigation being conducted by a commission independent of the Board of Health. He considered it unfair that Mayor Bradburn, Ald. G.H. Duncan and himself forming a majority of the Board, should be asked to sit in judgment upon themselves. Personally, he invited the most searching investigation of the Hospital management, but he insisted that the two aldermen who complained about the hospital, being present in person to lay any charges they desired.

The object of the investigation is to satisfy the Council that there is no mismanagement, and to figure out ways and means to reduce the expenses incurred in management.

"Brownie, do you expect to keep on shaving people when you get to heaven?" asked a customer, as the towels were flirted off.

SPLENDID PRESENTATION OF ALICE IN WONDERLAND

"Alice in Wonderland" as presented by a company of two hundred and fifty young people at the Grand last night, will always remain in the minds of those who witnessed it, as one of the best amateur productions ever put on here by local talent. It was successful, viewed from every angle, and the signal triumph which was scored is but another laurel for Peterborough amateurs.

The performance received an unmistakably hearty reception and in cleverness and magnitude far surpassed expectations. It was staged and costumed on a most elaborate scale and carried out in a manner befitting a skilled company.

The prologue most auspiciously paved the way to the real story of Alice in Wonderland, where such myriad wonderful things lived.

The part of Alice was most charmingly taken by little Maida Connor, whose pretty face and sweet voice made her a general favorite.

In the first act the dances and drills were strikingly clever and pretty. The most intricate and fanciful evolutions were faultlessly performed and the ease and grace with which they were carried along indicated a high degree of training and ability.

The March of the Nations and Flag Spectacle was magnificently conducted and brought forth rousing applause. "The Maple Leaf Forever" by the whole company proved a fitting finale for the act.

In the second act Miss Jessie Spence in the role of Miss Ragtime, scored distinctly. The latter young lady is hardly a stranger to Peterborough audiences, who will remember her well in the amateur presentation of H. M. S. "Pinafore" at the old Opera House here some years ago when only a child. She was decidedly clever last evening and her dancing and singing was extremely creditable. The double sextette "On a Beautiful Night With a Beautiful Girl," given in scene 7, was also splendidly sung and made a hit.

The performance provided all kinds of humorous situations and the comical aspects of many parts of the play were irrisistable.

Miss Dorothy Allen in the costume of an "Indian Princess" excelled herself and merited a goodly share of the applause.

OBITUARY

The Late Miss E. B. Wood

Ethel Blanche Wood, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wood, lot 13, con. 13, Otonabee, passed away last night after a short illness at the age of 24 years.

The late Miss Wood was born in Otonabee, where she has always lived. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Surviving are her parents and one brother living on the homestead.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon from the home of her parents, lot 13, con. 13, Otonabee, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The Late John Sanders

Mr. John Sanders, a well known resident of Dummer, is dead, aged 84 years. Mr. Alfred Sanders of Peterborough is a son.

The Late Joshua McMahon

Mr. Joshua McMahon, probably the oldest resident of Millbrook, passed away on Monday at the age of 81 years. The funeral was held on Wednesday.

The Late Mrs. G. G. Pope

Eileen Way, wife of Mr. G. G. Pope, Water street, passed away last night at the St. Joseph's Hospital after a prolonged illness, at the age of 32 years.

The late Mrs. Pope was born in Tamworth, Ont., where she lived up to the time of her marriage, about ten years ago when they moved to Peterborough. While living in the city she made many friends with her kind and loving disposition. She was a devout member of the Roman Catholic Church. She is survived by a sorrowing husband and a young son, Allan. Her parents of Tamworth, and two sisters and three brothers also survive. The sisters and brothers are, — Misses Margaret and Helen, of Tamworth, Allan and George, residing in the West, and Ray, of Tamworth.

The funeral will leave the residence of Mr. William Pope, 555 King street, on Sunday afternoon and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery.

SECURED SOME FINE SPECIALS

Mr. M. J. Maber, local manager of Oak Hall, has returned from a three days business trip to Hamilton, where he and the heads of the other nine Oak Hall concerns in Canada have been conferring with the managers of the Sanford Clothing Manufacturing Co., the owners of the branches. He reports that he has secured some rare bargains in boys' clothing, and also odd lines of men's suits and overcoats for the big semi-annual sale, which is now in full blast. For particulars of Saturday specials see the display ad. on page 4 of this issue.

MARIAN DE FOREST'S "LITTLE WOMEN"

William A. Brady will produce Marion de Forest's dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" at the Grand on Monday next, January 20th.

Sweet, simple, quaint refreshing is this story of a half century ago, and the play is as charming as the book. A series of home pictures, bringing very close to those who know and love the story of old friends from out the covers of a book (which is to-day listed among the world's best sellers,) into the larger, more intimate life of the stage.

For the first three acts of the play, a replica of the Bronson Alcott sitting room in Concord has been used, every detail complete, even to the dish of apples which Grandma Alcott always insisted upon having on the living room table. It was in this room that the story of "Little Women" was lived. What more fitting than to use it for the stage picture. For the fourth act the Plumfield apple orchard is shown in all the golden glory of an October afternoon, a veritable harvest home, in which is brought to happy fulfillment the romance of the Alcott family. The Alcotts have kept through all these years many of the identical costumes and properties used by the Alcott girls for their home-made plays, and these will be used in the production, including Jo's boots, which she "got from a lady who had a friend who knew an actor." All the principal incidents of the story will be found in the dramatic version. It is a faithful reproduction of the life of the four girls carrying them through girlhood and young womanhood, bringing to each the consummation of her life romance, just as Miss Alcott described it in her book. This is the same company that appeared at the Royal Alexandra Theatre Christmas week. 48

VOL LXVII., NO. 15 PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, SATURDAY, JANUARY 18, 1913 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

HON. MR. BURRELL PROVIDES GRANT OF $10,000,000 FOR AIDING AGRICULTURE

Resolution is Introduced in Commons to Vote Largest Sum in the History of Dominion.

Dr. Pugsley Contends That Canadian Navy is Possible at Present.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, last night gave notice of a bill which he will introduce providing that the large sum of ten million dollars be appropriated for the purpose of aiding agriculture.

The resolution will be introduced in the House next week, and is as follows:

"That it is expedient to provide that a sum not exceeding ten million dollars be appropriated and paid out of the consolidated revenue fund of Canada during the period of ten years, beginning with the year ending March 31, 1914, for the purpose of aiding and advancing the farming industry by instruction in agriculture, including the work carried on by veterinary colleges.

This is the largest lump sum ever proposed for aid to agriculture in the history of Canada, is an elaboration of the "federal aid to agriculture" bill introduced by the Government last session, and a fulfilling of the pledges made by the Conservatives, while in opposition. It is understood that the money is to be spent in co-operation with the provinces, and that a number of agricultural colleges will be erected throughout the country. Mr. Burrill's announcement, when introducing such an important measure, is awaited with the keenest anticipation.

The speakers in the debate yesterday were: Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Mr. Morphy, Mr. Gauthier, Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, and Major Sharpe.

Dr. Pugsley, after reviewing the history of the Laurier Naval Act and its results, said the Conservative argument that Canada could not build an adequate fleet was fallacious.

Dr. Pugsley said there was every reason to believe that shipbuilding could be carried on on this continent at as low a cost as in Britain or any other country. That was shown by the fact that when Argentine two years ago invited the builders of the world to tender for the construction of two D[illegible] the contracts went to [illegible] though the builders of Britain and of Germany had competed for the order. In Canada recently the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. had underbidden British firms and had secured an order for the construction of a vessel for the Canadian Government.

Even if it cost more to build in Canada, would it not be worth the extra cost to secure the establishment of a great industry in this country? Would a few millions be too much for this? Shipbuilding was about the only industry which was not favored by the Canadian tariff with protection. There was no duty charged to bring into Canada British-built ships or parts of ships for repairs. The people of Canada paid taxes for the clothes they wore, the implements they used, and, in many cases, for the food they ate. Was it right that any form of aid should be denied the establishment of a shipbuilding industry? Hon. Mr. Hazen said he longed for the day when shipbuilding should be re-established in Canada. Well, the way to establish shipbuilding was to begin, and not to hope or talk about it.

The Conservatives claimed that it would be impossible to get in Canada men for the Canadian navy. Admiral Kingsmill did not hold this view. In his report he had pointed out that the fact that the continuance of the service was not assured had interfered with getting the men. The admiral had also said that the large number of desertions by men who had enlisted was due to the fact that most of them came from inland points and were not accustomed to sea life. They had found it uncongenial. The admiral had further stated that no effort had been made to enlist men from among the fishing population of the Dominion, but that when that effort was made plenty of suitable men would enlist.

The House had better wait and see what the Government's permanent policy was to be, said Mr. Morphy (North Perth). Without knowledge of what is to come in this respect, we know there will be a permanent Canadian policy and let Britain rule the seas what is the use of a Canadian navy? The British navy can look after us. The argument for a Canadian navy comes down to the idea of inculcating shipbuilding in the Maritime Provinces. And even this is met, because the Admiralty indicate that they will build certain vessels in Canada with Canadian workmen and Canadian material.

Mr. L. J. Gauthier of St. Hyacinthe maintained the loyalty of French-Canadians in Quebec, and their readiness to do their part in manning and maintaining a Canadian navy, to be at the service of the Empire in any time of stress. The Borden policy, he said, was unsound and was engineered for political purposes.

Major Sam Sharpe of North Ontario reminded the House that no private member was authorised to disclose the future policy of the Government.

"I, myself, hope," he said, "that the permanent policy will be a Canadian navy, but I stand where I stood in 1910 when I voted for the Monk amendment, which required the whole question to be submitted to a plebiscite. Just now I favor not two, three or four Dreadnoughts, but whatever is required to meet the demand of the hour. Any permanent policy in my opinion should not be entered upon unless by a referendum."

HORSES AND CATTLE SAVED

Fire Destroyed Large Barn Owned By Miss Wilkes

Canadian Press Despatch.

Galt, Ont., Jan. 18.—Fire destroyed one of the immense barns on the estate of Miss Katherine Wilkes, near here, last night. The blaze was discovered soon after start, and employes had time to save seventy-five valuable horses and fifty head of cattle.

Large quantities of hay and oats were destroyed. It is supposed the fire was caused by a defective wire. The loss is fully insured.

U.S. PREPARING AN ANSWER

In Regard to Protest Regarding Panama Canal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The preparation of the State Department's answer to the British protest against the exemption of American coastwise shipping from tolls in the Panama Canal, is advancing rapidly, and unless some unforeseen obstacle is encountered the document will go forward by mail to the American embassy in London within a few days.

Following the precedent established by Sir Edward Grey in requiring the British Ambassador in Washington to read his protest to Secretary Knox, the latter official will instruct Mr. Laughlin, the secretary and charge of the American embassy in London, to read his answer to Sir Edward Grey at the Foreign Office. Allowing for the usual delays, this communication can scarcely be made to the British Government much before the end of the present month. That would allow but one month and a few days in which the present administration could deal with this question, hence the inference is unavoidable that unless there should be a complete change of front by one side or the other all that can be accomplished before March 4 will be a slight advancement of the arguments in the case.

There reason to believe that such is now the sole aim of this administration, and that its latest note will be devoted to the effort to eliminate from the discussion all issues not absolutely pertinent, and to establish by mutual agreement certain facts as a basis either for an adjustment of the issue directly between the two countries, or for the drafting of an arbitration agreement under the terms of the existing treaty with Great Britain, which would carry the controversy to The Hague tribunal. In either case it is felt the State Department will have escaped the charge of having purposely delayed the negotiations, for the work accomplished will be of substantial benefit to the incoming administration in dealing with the case.

WORKMEN IMPERILED

SARNIA, Jan. 18.—With a crash that was heard for blocks, two of the steel smokestacks at the Cleveland saw mills here fell yesterday. Men were at work trying to topple over one of the stacks, but it fell in the wrong direction and carried down its mate a few feet away. Several guy wires on another 150 foot stack were carried away, and its fall was expected for a few moments.

A large hole was crushed through the roof of one mill by the heavy stacks. No one was injured.

TURKEY HAS SAY

Powers' Note Delivered to Porte and Europe is Waiting.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The next move in the long-drawn-out game of diplomacy for the settlement of the war in Southeastern Europe is for Turkey to make. The collective note of the European powers, drawn up by the ambassadorial conference at London, was handed to the Turkish authorities yesterday at Constantinople.

Since the Turks for more than a week have shared with the whole world knowledge of the purpose of the note and unofficially were given diplomatic notice of its exact contents prior to its presentation to the Ottoman Government, there is no reason why their reply should not be a prompt one. Their only motive for withholding it, it is thought, would be procrastination, with their old hope uppermost, that something will turn up.

LOWER PULP TARIFF.

Reduction In U. S. Paper Schedule Is Also Indicated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Substantial reduction of the tariff all along the line in the wood pulp and print paper schedule and retention of approximately the existing duties on tobacco, cigars and similar articles constitute part of the Democratic tariff revision program to be presented to the coming extra session of Congress. This was the situation as viewed last night by Democratic leaders, following two sessions yesterday, and another last night in the marshalling of testimony on schedules M., pulps, papers and books, and F., tobacco and its manufactures.

Just how far the Democratic members will go in cutting the paper schedule is problematical. So far they have not held a conference on the subject, but the consensus of their sentiment favors reduction wherever possible in this part of the tariff law.

Chief interest of the day centered in the presentation of the arguments of the spokesman of the newspaper publishers and of the diametrically opposed paper manufacturers.

FOUR YEAR-OLD GIRL THE VICTIM OF RABID DOG

Child Attempted to Stroke Animal and Was Fatally Bitten.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 18.—Bitten by a stray dog on Dec. 8, Alexandra, the four-year-old daughter of John Kenn, an employe of the city gas works, died yesterday morning. She did not suffer the terrible agonies usually attributed to hydrophobia. She had been feverish, but in a conscious condition for the last twenty-four hours. She was not taken ill till last Saturday. Physicians pronounced it a case of hydrophobia, but the child had no convulsions. It is the first death from such a case in St. Thomas.

The dog, which the child attempted to stroke, and which bit her on the cheek, was never found, though several resembling it were put to death by the police.

SLANDER ON THE HYDRO DISPROVED

"Power Minister" Issues a Statement Showing That the New York State Report is Based on Utterly Wrong Figures.

SENATOR DEMANDED PROOF

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission comes out with another answer to the misleading statements by the New York State Senate Committee. This one is even more effective than those previously issued, by reason of the fact that figures are given to prove how utterly in the wrong were the "young gentlemen from New York" who came north for fish under the guise of obtaining facts about the Hydro-electric system. These figures give a full account of the amount of power used, the operating and administration expenses and how the surplus of $55,166.45 was obtained. It was stated by the New York Senators that the Hydro Commission did not include administration charges. In the latest statement is given detailed expenditures on operation showing the amount of administration and general expenses, as well as operating and maintenance charges and interest on capital cost.

Owing to increased loads on the Niagara system in the last three months of operation, the commission found it advisable to revise rates, which will have the effect of making a reduction to municipalities of over $100,000 during the present fiscal year.

Sworn Evidence, He Says.

UTICA, N.Y., Jan. 18.—Former Senator T. Harvey Ferris, chairman of the joint legislative committee that recently submitted a report on the subject of water power in New York State, was informed yesterday that Hon. Adam Beck of the Hydro-Electric of Ontario, claimed that Ferris' committee did not have access to the books of the commission.

He made the following statement: "The full summary attached to the report of the joint commission of the Legislature and all figures given in it are founded upon sworn testimony taken before it. Among other things it purports to give horse-power actually used in the Niagara district September, 1912, the capital cost charged as of February, 1912, and the rates charged. If these are not in accordance with the original records of the Hydro-Electric Commission, let Mr. Beck produce those original records."

One Commissioner Dissents.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 18.—Assemblyman J. Lewis Petrie of Greene County disagrees with some of the findings of the Ferris legislative committee on the question of water power, and will file a minority report. Mr. Petrie considers the report too favorable to corporations now owning water powers and having hydro-electric plants.

In addition, Mr. Petrie does not agree that the plan of selling electric energy in the Canadian Province of Ontario was an expensive failure, as his colleagues allege, and believes he can show how the plan can be worked out for the benefit of both the state and the consumer.

THE BUCKHORN BRIDGE MATTER

Ottawa, Jan. 17 Special — Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of Peterborough has questions on the order paper re the Buckhorn Bridge, and has also given a notice of motion calling for all papers and will bring the matter up in the House in that way.

POINCARE IS POPULAR WITH FRENCH PUBLIC

President-Elect Comes of Family Distinguished in Science and Literature.

VERSAILLES, France, Jan. 18.—Raymond Nicolas Landry Poincare, for the past twelve months Premier of the French Cabinet, was elected President of the Republic of France yesterday by the National Assembly, composed of the members of both chambers of Parliament, in succession to President Armand Fallieres, whose seven-year term expires Feb. 18th.

The wildest confusion, out of which arose two challenges to duels, marked the casting of the ballots.

Premier Poincare was chosen President on the second ballot, his plurality over his nearest competitor, Jules Pams, Minister of Agriculture, being 187. The deciding vote stood as follows: Raymond Poincare 483, Jules Pams 296, Marie Edouard Vaillant 69.

Raymond Poincare's selection for the Presidency of France, although made by Parliament as required by the constitution, is regarded as representing as well the popular will of the nation.

M. Poincare, France's foremost statesman, is now in his 53rd year. He is of medium height and sturdily built. Above all he radiates an impression of force, both physical and intellectual. He is versatile and comes of a family distinguished in science and literature. The President-elect himself is a philosopher, a writer and a member of the French Academy, with a notable career in French law circles. He has a peculiarity of never sending his clients bills for legal services, always saying that they may send him whatever they consider to be the [illegible] of his work. He is capable of disposing of a great variety of affairs in a short working day, owing to his habit of keeping to essentials and effectively keeping others to them. Also, in consequence, he has time for private study and much social life. The President-elect is often seen on first nights at the theatres, and he attends the principal horse-racing fixtures.

WIFE WAS BEATEN WITH A HAMMER

Woman Nearly Killed by Husband, Who Goes Insane.

HE USED RAZOR

And Ended His Own Life by Gashing His Throat.

CLARENCE CREEK, Ont., Jan. 18.—While in a fit of insanity William Gauthier, aged 65, a farmer of Orient, in Russell County, ten miles from Ottawa, a village four miles from here, made a savage attempt to kill his wife with a hammer by striking her several blows on the head. He evidently thinking her dead when she fell unconscious to the floor, killed himself immediately after by cutting his throat with a razor.

Mrs. Gauthier now lies in a precarious condition at her home.

The only witness of what really happened besides the two principles was their little three-year-old grandson. According to the story told by Mrs. Gauthier, she was sitting sewing at a table in the dining-room. The child was playing in the room when he gave a cry of warning, and, looking around, she saw her husband behind her with a razor in one hand and a hammer in the other.

Before she could move he hit her twice over the head, and she fell off the chair.

For some time Gauthier had been acting strangely, but it was not thought he was in such a state of insanity to warrant sending him to the asylum.

CAUSES FIRE TO GET INSURANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—"Izzy the Painter," self-accused firebug, testified before the grand jury yesterday and that body presented an indictment accusing three men of having been engaged in the business of setting fires and collecting insurance with the connivance, it was said, of public adjusters. Arrests are expected shortly.

Izzy, whose last name is Stein, confessed to setting more than 53 fires within the last two years.

JAMES G. HEASLET
JOHN N WILLYS
C. W. NASH
GEORGE E. DANIELS

Practically every automobile manufacturer of importance in the United States, together with staffs of engineers, sales managers and advertising men, is now in New York city to attend the Thirteenth National Automobile Show at Madison Square Garden and Grand Central Palace.

Among those who have arrived there are John N. Willys and George W. Bennett, president and vice president respectively of the Willys-Overland Company, manufacturers of Overland cars; C. W. Nash, president of the General Motors Company and general manager of the Buick Motor Company; George E. Daniels, vice president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company, and James G. Heaslet, chief engineer of the Studebaker Corporation.

LIBERAL LEADER'S CRUSADE FOR LAND TAXATION

He Declares That the Right to Lighten the Assessment on Improvements is Now Being Demanded on Every Side.

PRINCETON, Ont., Jan. 18.—A large audience of farmers attended a meeting at the opera house here to hear N. W. Rowell, K.C., Opposition leader in Ontario, expound the principles of his proposed assessment law.

Mr Rowell stated that the complete rejection of the Rowell-Ellis assessment bill by the special committee had raised an issue in the province of first magnitude.

"What is the situation which faces us? The municipalities of this province must each year raise by taxation the revenues to provide for the municipal services for the year. The municipalities determine the amount to be raised, and the Legislature determines the method of raising. The demand of the municipalities is simply for a form of local option as to the method of raising this revenue. Surely this is a reasonable request."

"The more you tax the products of industry," he declared, the more you increase the cost of production and distribution. The more you thereby increase the cost of living to the average man, the harder you make it for him, and in this vast land of wealth you have no right to place any restrictions upon it. Yet today we are confronted, particularly in our large cities, with land prices absolutely beyond the reach of the working men," he declared. "This, coupled with the high price of food products, creates acute conditions under which the workmen have to exist. In many of the cities acres and acres of land are held up for speculation, and the securing of high profits, due not to the owner's enterprise, but that of their neighbors.

As to the declining rural population he stated the Government was only just beginning to appreciate the serious import of such a decline with its consequent reduction of supply and rise in prices. The Ontario Government was spending hundreds of thousands of dollars every year to encourage farmers to improve their farms so as to make life on the farm more remunerative and comfortable, but the system of taxation penalized the good work done, because the more the farmer improved and increased the productivity of the farm, the higher went his assessment.

"It is not an issue between us and the Conservative party," concluded Mr. Rowell. "The progressives in the Conservative party are up to us in this fight. Some of them have been pioneers in this department, and to them all credit is due for putting such a great cause above tame submission to the party whip. The real fight is between the forces of progress and those of stagnation and reaction, and with such fight there can be but one issue. Our cause is bound to win. The stars in their courses are fighting for us, the forces of progress are everywhere carrying the field."

Reporters In Error.

COOKSTOWN, Jan. 18.—Hon. Jas. Duff speaking with regard to the tax reform question at the annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of South Simcoe, held in Cookstown yesterday, stated that some papers had erred in reporting the answer of Sir James Whitney to the deputation, which recently waited upon the Ministers. He stated that it was the intention of the Government to try the scheme of sending out circulars to the various assessors giving full instructions regarding the present law. By thoroughly acquainting each official with the regulations of the act, he believed that all trouble would be eliminated. If this did not prove satisfactory, then the Government would consider the revising of the act.

BRANDT IS PARDONED

Notorious Case is Settled by Governor Sulzer.

He Must Not Accept Theatrical Engagement.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 18.—Governor Sulzer yesterday pardoned Folke E. Brandt on the ground that his sentence of thirty years for burglary in the home of Mortimer L. Schiff of New York City, was excessive.

At the request of Governor Sulzer, Attorney-General Carmody made a statement in which he said he favored Brandt's pardon, "not as a matter of mercy, but as a matter of justice." He criticized the procedure through which Brandt was tried and sentenced.

Mr. Carmody declared that the governor's action wiped out a "blot on the judiciary of the state," and shows "that there isn't anything that can defeat the end of justice."

It was stipulated by Governor Sulzer in pardoning Brandt that he is not to accept a theatrical engagement and must not in future reflect upon the character of anyone.

Express In Collision.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 18.—There was another serious wreck on the Wabash Railway yesterday morning, when No. [illegible] express ran into the rear-end of freight train No. 95, at Nixon, breaking up the caboose of the freight and injuring Brakeman A. Wilson and F. Dalton, both of St. Thomas.

The wreck, it is said, was caused by the failure of the switch to work at the siding at Nixon. The passengers were not hurt.

The wreck delayed traffic a couple of hours.

"God only knows," said Sinton. "Billy ain't so beautiful, and he ain't so smart. I guess it's because he's so human. My heart goes out to him."

"So did mine," said Elnora. "I love him. I'd rather see him eat my lunch than have it myself any time."

"What makes you like him?" asked Sinton.

"Why, I don't know," pondered Elnora. "He's so little, he needs so much, he's got such splendid grit and he's perfectly unselfish with his brother and sister! But we must wash him before Aunt Margaret sees him. I wonder if mother"—

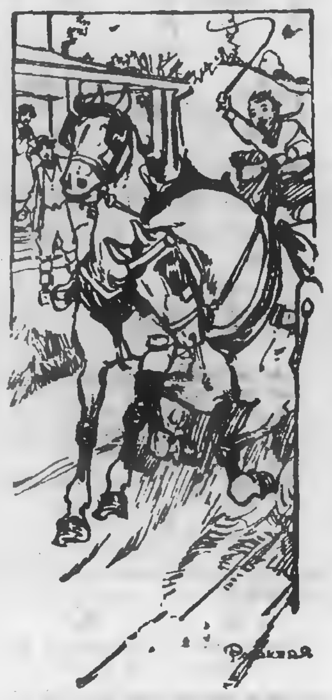
"You needn't bother. I'm going to take him home the way he is," said Sinton. "I want Maggie to see the worst of it."

"I'm afraid"— began Elnora.

"So am I," said Sinton, "but I won't give him up. He's taken a sort of grip on my heart. I've always been crazy for a boy. Don't let him hear us."

"Don't let him get killed!" cried Elnora. During their talk Billy had wandered to the edge of the walk and barely escaped the wheels of a passing automobile, in an effort to catch a stray kitten that seemed in danger.

Sinton drew Billy back to the walk and held his hand closely. When they started home Billy sat on the front seat. He drove with the hitching strap tied to the railing of the dashboard, flourished the whip and yelled with delight. At first Sinton laughed with him, but by the time he left Elnora with several packages at her gate he was looking serious enough.



'See me make 'em go!' he shouted as the whip fell a second time.

Margaret was at the door as they drove up the lane. Sinton left Billy in the carriage, hitched the horses and went to explain to her. He had not reached her before she cried. "Look, Wesley, that child! You'll have a runaway!"

Wesley looked and ran. Billy was standing in the carriage slashing the mettlesome horses with the whip.

"See me make 'em go!" he shouted as the whip fell a second time.

He did make them go. They took the hitching post and a few fence palings, which scraped the paint from a wheel. Sinton missed the lines at the first effort, but the dragging post impeded the horses, and he soon caught them. He led them to the barn and ordered Billy to remain in the carriage while he unhitched. Then leading Billy and carrying his packages he entered the yard.

"You run play a few minutes, Billy," he said. "I want to talk to the nice lady."

The nice lady was looking rather stupefied as Sinton approached her.

"Where in the name of sense did you get that awful child?' she demanded. Her husband told her Billy's story.

"He's half starved. I want to wash him and put clean clothes on him and give him some supper," he said.

"Have you got anything to put on him?"

"Yes."

"Where did you get it?"

"Bought it. It ain't much. All I got didn't cost a dollar."

"A dollar is a good deal when you work for it the way we do."

"Well, I don't know a better place to put it. Have you got any hot water? I'll use this tub at the cistern. Please give me some soap and towels."

Instead Margaret pushed by him with a shriek. Billy had played by producing a cord from his pocket, and, having tied the tails of Margaret's white kittens together, he had climbed on a box and hung them across the clothesline. Wild with fright, the kittens were clawing each other to death, and the air was white with fur. The string had twisted, and the frightened creatures could not recognize friends. Margaret stepped back with bleeding hands. Sinton cut the cord with his knife, and the poor little cats raced under the house bleeding and disfigured. Margaret, white with wrath, faced Sinton.

"If you don't hitch up and take that animal back to town," she said, "I will."

Billy threw himself on the grass and began to scream.

"You said I could have fried chicken for supper," he wailed. "You said she was a nice lady."

Sinton lifted him, and something in his manner of handling the child infuriated Margaret. His touch was so gentle! She reached for Billy and gripped his shirt collar in the back. Sinton's hand closed over hers.

"Gently, girl!" he said. "This little body is covered with sores."

"Sores!" she ejaculated. "Sores? What kind of sores?"

"Oh, they might be from bruises made by fists or boot toes, or they might be bad blood from wrong eating, or they might be pure filth. Will you hand me some towels?"

"No, I won't," said Margaret.

"Well, give me some rags, then."

Margaret compromised on pieces of old tablecloth.

Sinton led Billy to the cistern, pumped cold water into the tub, poured in a kettle of hot and, beginning at the head, scoured him. The boy shut his little teeth and said never a word, though he twisted occasionally when the soap struck a raw spot. Margaret watched the process from the window in amazed and ever increasing anger. Where did Wesley learn it? How could his big hands be so gentle? Sinton came to the door.

Cookery Points

Chicken and Veal Pie.

Buy chicken giblets, the necks, gizzards, hearts and livers. By adding to these half a pound of veal cutlet there is enough for an excellent chicken pie. Put the giblets into a saucepan with a pint of cold water, a slice of onion, a small carrot and a level teaspoonful of salt. Simmer until there is only half a cup of liquid. Strain this and set aside. Cut the veal into small cubes and cook slowly until well done and a light brown. Put into a baking dish with the giblets cut up and scatter a little salt fat pork, cut to shreds, through the meat. Thicken the chicken liquor slightly with flour moistened with water to a paste. Cover with good, rich pie paste, puff paste if you have it, and bake in a steady oven for an hour and a half.

Shrimp Salad.

Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and four tablespoonfuls of flour together, add yolks of three eggs and two cupfuls of milk and cook until thickened. Add salt, pepper and a pinch of cayenne pepper, one-half teaspoonful of mustard and one can of shrimps broken in small pieces.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

Left Week, Miserable and Prey to Disease in Many Forms.

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada during the winter months is la grippe, or influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. It tortures its victims with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves him an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, and even consumption. Indeed the deadly after-effects of la grippe may leave the victim a chronic invalid. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and red by an occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease attacks you ,you can banish its deadly after-effects through the use of this same great blood-building, nerve-restoring medicine. Here is proof of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over this trouble.

Mr. Emmanuel Laurin, St. Jerome! Que., says: "I was seized with a severe attack of la grippe. I was obliged to stop work and remain in my bed for several weeks, and while I appeared to get over the first stages of the trouble, I did not regain my usual health. I suffered from headaches ,loss of appetite and extreme weakness. I did not sleep well at nights, and would arise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. This continued for about two months during which time I was taking treatment, but apparently without avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a half dozen boxes. By the time I had taken three boxes there was a decided improvement, and actually before I had completed the sixth box I was enjoying my old-time health. I was strong as ever, could sleep well and eat well, and no longer suffered from lassitude and headaches. I have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the pernicious after-effects of la grippe, and can therefore recommend them to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the trouble in the blood, which they enrich, and make red and pure. These pills cure all troubles due to bad blood, and if you are ailing you should start to cure yourself to-day by taking this great medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. 1dlw

The reported drop from $1,125 to $800 in the rice of great auks' eggs indicates that the price crusaders are no respecter of eggs.—Manchester Union.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS
BROOKLYN TABERNACLE
INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDIES

THE DEATH-CURSE.

Genesis 3—Jan. [illegible]

"Every one that committeth sin is the bond-servant of sin.—John 8:34.

ADAM'S first sin brought the penalty specified in this lesson. The Bible proposition is that God, having made Adam perfect, required perfect obedience as the condition of everlasting life. One act of disobedience broke the covenant between God and Adam. (Hosea 6:7, Margin.) Immediately he dropped from favor, under the sentence, "Dying, thou shalt die." Nothing that Adam or his children could do subsequently could recover covenant relationship with God. The death penalty was the limit.

By the law of heredity, Adam transmitted to his race a share of what he possessed, good and bad. As Adam could not increase his penalty, neither can his children. But as Adam could, by obedience to the Divine Law, prolong the process of his dying, so may his children. But the impairment wrought by sin has so progressed that many of Adam's children die in infancy; and few maintain the struggle for existence for a hundred years.

Death the Curse—Not Torture.

Our forefathers during the Dark Ages misunderstood the Heavenly Father's character and Plan. Misunderstanding the Bible to teach that God arranged for the eternal torture of all except the Church, they sought to copy their misconception of Jehovah by torturing their fellow-creatures. Because God's people have been gradually getting back to the teaching of His Word, the horrible practices of the past are no longer approved. But many have much yet to learn respecting the true teaching of the Bible.

The serpent spoke by signs.

The curse which God pronounced against our race is not eternal torment at the hands of devils; but as the Apostle says, "The wages of sin is death." The remedy is a resurrection, secured through the Redeemer's death at Calvary. "The gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." All experience the death penalty. All will have opportunity sometime of regaining everlasting life through Messiah's redemptive work and His Kingdom.

For a Little Flock, who in this Age have obeyed the Master's Voice, God has provided glorious things, far superior to anything that Adam lost. To those who walk in Jesus' footsteps, God promises a share with the Master in His glorious Kingdom.

The Lesson of This Study.

If our Christian forefathers could properly have appreciated to-day's lesson, they would have known what the Bible teaches respecting the "wages of sin," and have seen how seriously public thought had drifted away from the Divine testimony, to "doctrines of demons." How distinctly God forewarned our first parents that eating the forbidden fruit would bring upon them the death penalty! After they had disobeyed, God drove them out of Eden, that the penalty pronounced against them might be accomplished. Had they continued in Eden, eating of the life-sustaining fruits, they would have lived indefinitely.

Why Evil Was Permitted.

God foreknew the fall of man, before the foundation of the world, and provided the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world. God had a glorious purpose interwoven with His permission of sin, which the majority but faintly discerned until lately. Jesus intimated that shortly before the establishment of His Kingdom His Church will understand features of the Divine Plan previously kept secret—they will have an appreciation of God's purposes, and His reasons for having permitted sin and death for six thousand years.

The Temptation of Eve.

How Lucifer and holy angels became disloyal to God we will inquire into later. In this lesson Lucifer, or Satan, is shown as seeking to alienate our first parents from the Creator, that he might enslave them as servants. A spirit being, he would be unseen to Eve. It suited his purpose to possess a serpent, through which to tempt Eve. The serpent doubtless spoke by signs; as we sometimes say, "Actions speak louder than words."

Driven out of Eden.

The serpent ate of the forbidden fruit in the sight of the woman and then manifested its wisdom. The woman perceived. She craved knowledge. Could it be that God wished to keep them in ignorance, and for that reason had forbidden their eating of the fruit? Such disloyal thoughts should have been promptly spurned. But the insidious poison worked. She was not deceived as respects the wrongdoing, but regarding the result. Seeing that the serpent was not poisoned by the fruit, she did not realize that the poison to her was that of disobedience, bringing the death sentence. Adam's eating of the fruit was with full knowledge of the result. In love with his wife, he ate knowingly, preferring to die with her rather than to live without her.

Common Sense.

To act with common sense according to the moment is the best wisdom I know.—Walpole.

WHY SHOULD NOT OLD PEOPLE RETAIN THEIR YOUTHFUL VIGOR

No Reason Why Men And Women Of Sixty, Seventy And Eighty Should Not Be Well—The Secret Of Happy Old Age

"Fruit-a-tives", The Famous Medicine Made Of Fresh Fruit Juices, Again Proves Its Great Value In Curing Kidney Trouble.

Old age pays the cost of living. Few men and women of fifty, sixty and seventy are free of Kidney Trouble. Hard work, mental strain and general debility, tell in the long run. And many men and women show they have Kidney Trouble by suffering with pain in the back, headaches, rheumatism, sciatica, bladder disease.

To such people "Fruit-a-tives" has proved one of the wonders of the age—and the most remarkable discovery of the century in modern medical science. This fruit medicine has performed hundreds of cures where the sufferer had been told that the case was incurable.

Take, for instance, Mr. Geo. W. Barkley, a prosperous farmer and one of the leading citizens of Dundas County, Ontario.

At seventy-six, he is the picture of health—with the vigorous actions and the sprightly step of a man of fifty.

Yet for twenty years, he suffered with Kidney Trouble. He took "Fruit-a-tives" and it cured him.

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., JAN. 25th, 1911

"For over twenty years I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and said I would be a sufferer all the rest of my life. Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using them all the time since and am glad to say that I am cured. I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible."

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit, and is the only one that acts directly on the kidneys. It cures. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Kitchen Table.

When the kitchen table becomes spotted and discolored, it may be bleached with lemon. Cut a lemon in half and rub it over the entire surface of the wood.

Rinse well with clean water. The result will be a smooth, snow white top.

Pastry boards may be treated in the same manner.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Diary Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Local grain markets declined again today, while provisions gained slightly. At its best today wheat was nearly a cent under yesterday's top and generally ruled under the previous close. A report of 30 loads sold at Manitoba and Duluth for export helped the early price to the highest of the session, but this gain was only momentary. Prices slumped heavily on moisture in the winter wheat country, indifferent cables, an easy spot market and a private estimate that the Argentine will have 160,000,000 bushels to export to Europe. Exports from that country continue on a huge scale. The northwest freely offered to arrive here at the opening of navigation at 1-2c under May.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ⅛d lower on wheat and unchanged to ⅛d lower on corn. Antwerp wheat closed 1¼c lower, Berlin ⅛c lower, and Budapest ⅜c lower.

SIR EDMUND WALKER'S ANNUAL MESSAGE ON FINANCE AND COMMERCE

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS

Tuesday, 14th January, 1913.

The forty-sixth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce was held in the banking house on Tuesday, 14th January, 1913, at 12 o'clock.

A large number of shareholders and others were present.

The President, Sir Edmund Walker, having taken the chair, Mr. A. St. L. Trigge was appointed to act as Secretary, and Messrs. W. Murray Alexander and A. J. Glazebrook were appointed scrutineers.

The President called upon the Secretary to read the Annual Report of the Directors, as follows:—

REPORT.

All the assets of the Bank have been as usual carefully revalued and ample provision has been made for all bad and doubtful debts.

In accordance with an agreement entered into in December, 1911, this Bank took over on 1st March last, the business of the Eastern Townships Bank, with headquarters at Sherbrooke, Que., and ninety-nine branches and sub-agencies chiefly situated in the Eastern Townships District of the Province of Quebec. In addition to fifty-two new branches and thirty-two sub-agencies in the Province of Quebec, the Bank thus acquired new offices at Coleman and Taber, Alberta; Grand Forks, Keremeos, Midway, Naramata, Phoenix, Summerland, and Vancouver (two offices), British Columbia; and Winnipeg, Manitoba. The business of the Eastern Townships Bank branches at Lethbridge, Princeton, Quebec, and Victoria, was at once transferred to our own offices, and later in the year the business of their principal offices in Montreal and Winnipeg was also consolidated with our branches in those cities, the change at Winnipeg taking place as soon after the opening of our new building as it could be conveniently effected. The nine months' experience which we have had with the new business has given us every reason to feel satisfied with our purchase.

There were issued to the shareholders of the Eastern Townships Bank in exchange for their stock in that institution 60,000 shares of new stock of this bank, having a par value of $3,000,000. This has increased the paid-up capital stock of the Bank to $15,000,000. The by-law passed at the last annual general meeting increasing the authorized capital stock to $25,000,000 received the approval of the Treasury Board on 26th February, 1912.

In addition to the offices acquired from the Eastern Townships Bank, the Bank has opened during the year the following branches: in British Columbia—Rock Creek, North Vancouver, Powell Street (Vancouver), and Oak Bay Avenue (Victoria); in Alberta—Athabasca Landing, Hanna, Tilley, Vulcan and Youngstown; in Saskatchewan—Elaine Lake, Laird and Lewvan; in Ontario—Brockville, Cornwall, Ingersoll, Niagara Falls, Port Colborne, Port Stanley, West End (Sault Ste. Marie), Smith's Falls, St. Thomas, Sudbury, Tillsonburg, Danforth and Broadview (Toronto), and Earlscourt (Toronto); in Quebec—Fraserville, Maisonneuve (Montreal), Prince Arthur and Park (Montreal), Nicolet, and Three Rivers; in New Brunswick—Fredericton, and in Newfoundland—St. Johns'. The sub-agencies at Keremos, B.C., East Angus, Howick, St. Chrysostome, Ste. Elizabeth, and Weedon, Quebec, have been equipped as branches. The branches at Bounty, Sask., and Stewart, B.C., and the sub-agencies at Midway, B.C., and St. Constant, Que., have been closed. Since the close of the year branches have been opened at Courtenay and Pandora, and Cook (Victoria), B.C., Port McNicoll, Ont., Campbellton and Moncton, N.B.; the Dunham, Que., sub-agency has been equipped as a branch, and the Upton, Que., sub-agency closed.

In accordance with our usual practice the various branches and agencies of the Bank in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, and Mexico, and the Departments of the Head Office have been thoroughly inspected during the year.

The Directors again desire to record their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which the officers of the Bank have performed their respective duties.

B. E. WALKER,
President.

ALEXANDER LAIRD,
General Manager.

In moving the adoption of the Report, the President called on the General Manager to address the shareholders.

General Manager's Address.

The General Manager then said:

We have closed another year with a record of uninterrupted prosperity, and we take pleasure in submitting a report which will compare favorably with any previous statement in the Bank's history.

In reviewing the business of the early part of the year we have to note a steady development. Great industrial activity, accompanied by large orders for manufactured goods of all kinds, gave an impetus to business which at once arrested our attention and produced a feeling of concern lest we should have difficulty in meeting the requirements of our customers. There was apparently a sound and healthy basis for this activity, and the money market was for a time comparatively easy, but we had to look forward to the harvesting of a large crop and were naturally desirous of doing our full share in moving it. The necessity for a close supervision of credits was never so obvious, and this period, usually one of dull and inactive business, proved to be a time for the exercise of great caution.

We had expected the gradual return of better conditions in the great financial centres which, by permitting the marketing of a large amount of first-class securities, would enlarge the supply of available capital, but untoward events in Continental Europe and the uncertainty surrounding an exciting Presidential campaign in the United States made this impossible. The latter half of the year was therefore a time of great stringency and consequent high rates for money and it became increasingly difficult to satisfy legitimate demands, notwithstanding the inherent soundness of business generally.

With the amalgamation of the Eastern Townships Bank our capital was increased to $15,000,000. The average capital employed during the year was $14,210,437, and the net earnings on this amount were $2,811,806.42, an increase of $506,397 over last year, being at the rate of 19.78%. This result was attained after making the usual provision for all bad and doubtful debts, and a thorough revaluation of the entire assets of the Bank.

We are pleased to report that an examination of the accounts of the Eastern Townships Bank leaves us no reason to doubt the value of our purchase, and we record our appreciation of the zeal and hearty co-operation of our associates in the difficult task incident to the adjustment of so important an acquisition.

We disbursed in dividends $1,568,622.43, being at the rate of 10% per annum, and an extra bonus dividend of 1% for the year. The policy of paying bonus dividends until such time as we are confident of being able to maintain a higher rate would seem to be a wise precaution, in view of the extraordinary development of our business and the desirability of making ample provision for any contingency likely to arise.

We had expressed the hope that our building program could be curtailed, but the acquisition of the large territory covered by our eastern branches, and the continued growth in the West, necessitated the opening of a considerable number of branches requiring the building and remodelling of offices on an extensive scale. We have also a serious problem to face in the changes absolutely essential for the proper accommodation of Head Office and Toronto branch, our present premises having been for several years quite inadequate. Bank Premises account has been increased to $4,423,993.07, which includes premises acquired from the Eastern Townships Bank, and we have written off $500,000, keeping the account at approximately 50 per cent. of the value of our properties.

The increase of the staff, now numbering 3,000, required the appropriation of $75,000 for the Pension Fund. We have added $2,742,180 to Rest account and carry forward a balance of $771,578.88 in Profit and Loss. The Bank's Circulation account showed important fluctuations during the year, the minimum reached in January being $10,403,322 and the maximum in November $16,660,709. We had occasion to take advantage of the emergency provisions of the Bank Act amendment of 1908 early in October, and we closed our statement with a circulation of $1,422,864 in excess of the amount of our paid-up capital.

If the Bank Act introduced at this session of Parliament should be passed in its present form and a "Central Gold Reserve" established, there will be no apprehension of a scarcity of currency at a time when the emergency provisions are not operative; for with the deposit of gold or Dominion notes in the custody of trustees the banks will have the privilege of issuing their own notes to the full amount thus deposited. This will undoubtedly be a very important step towards ensuring that the business of the country should not be embarrassed through lack of currency. It is evident, however, that there will be no profit to the banks availing themselves of the suggested privilege, and as we have reached the time when the need of currency is beyond the present limits of the banks' power to supply, it is desirable that in addition to the additional aids so wisely provided in the new Bank Act the Banks should anticipate an increasing demand for bank-note currency by the issue of additional capital.

During the year our deposits increased $31,651,727. There was a considerable accession of special amounts which will be withdrawn in due course, and we received $19,111,119 as a result of the Eastern Townships Bank amalgamation. The ordinary deposits show a very handsome increase. Current loans and discounts increased $[illegible] and call and short loans $[illegible], compared with last report. Investments in Government bonds, municipal and other securities were increased by $2,821,924 and cash resources by $1,625,271.

You will notice from the report of the Board of Directors the large increase in the number of our branches. We fully realize our responsibility in undertaking to control so many units in a great bank, and the importance of arranging for a complete organization of competent and loyal associates, with geographical divisions which thoroughly cover the field of our operations. We endeavor as far as possible to clothe our superintendents and managers with authority for a prompt discharge of the duties of management, and believe we have succeeded in perfecting a system which meets every reasonable requirement. The distribution of branches at the close of the year was as follows:—

Alberta	49
British Columbia	42
Manitoba	23
New Brunswick	2
Nova Scotia	13
Ontario	79
Prince Edward Island	5
Quebec	91
Saskatchewan	53
Yukon	2
Total in Canada	359
Newfoundland	1
London, England	1
United States	4
Mexico	1
Total number of Branches	366

The number of the Bank's shareholders has increased during the year from 4,142 to 5,666, the increase being principally due to the taking over of the Eastern Townships Bank. The stock of the bank is now quite widely distributed, not only in Canada, but abroad, as will be seen from the following figures compiled as at the close of our year:

	No. of Shareholders	Amount held.
Ontario	1,388	$4,087,500
Quebec	1,127	3,213,650
Martime Provs.	702	1,544,450
Western Provs.	118	242,950
Great Britain ..	1,569	3,204,400
United States ..	669	2,549,950
Other Countries	83	157,100
	5,666	$15,000,000

We have referred to the provisions of the new Bank Act for increased note circulation, and would like to advert to the proposal that is now being considered, of creating a system of independent audit to supplement what has always been regarded as complete and satisfactory in every well-organized bank. There can be no question as to the importance of a strict supervision of all matters pertaining to our banks, and we should welcome any plan which makes for more efficient management and a proper recognition of the great responsibilities we are called upon to assume. We are disposed to believe that with the co-operation of the Canadian Bankers' Association, working through the various bank clearing houses, effective service could be rendered in the correction of abuses and the perfecting of methods for the encouragement of sound banking. We have possibly not taken advantage of our opportunities in this respect.

The Bank Act will probably sanction, under proper liens and assignments, the loaning of money to farmers and ranchers on the security of grain and cattle and other live stock in their possession. This will undoubtedly be a great advantage in many instances, and will at least legalize a practice already quite common, and probably tend to prevent hasty marketing of produce. As a matter of fact, large advances are made to farmers on the security of notes, but actually upon what they possess in the way of products of agriculture, and their reputation for honesty and ability, always an essential consideration when lending money. We have no hesitation in stating that our farmer customers are, almost without exception, satisfactory borrowers. Our aggregate advances to farmers run into large figures, estimated at $15,000,000 for the Western Provinces.

Despite the money stringency during the closing months of 1912, and the fear that we may feel the pinch for some time to come, there are offsetting influences at work. The wonderful revival of trade in every branch, the bountiful harvests throughout the land, and the consequent enormous increases in traffic on the railways, afford excellent grounds for the assumption that the unusual prosperity we are enjoying is on a sound basis. There is, therefore, some warrant for the belief that with reasonable care and judgment in measuring our commitments there will be a continuance of prosperous conditions for the coming year. We must of course reckon with the adverse circumstances prevailing abroad, for in conducting a world-wide business we are sensitive to these influences. We are hopeful that with the settlement of present difficulties in Europe and the return of trade to normal channels, any apprehension for the immediate future will be dispelled. We are likely to experience on the part of investors a very decided reluctance to pay fancy prices when we come to dispose of the securities now awaiting a favorable market, and we should be prepared for a revaluation which will probably mean a higher yield for the purchaser.

In moving the adoption of the report, the president said:—

President's Address.

The area of Canada in which the bank is directly interested has become so large that we have decided to present the information collected regarding its industrial position in a new form. We shall hereafter include in the statement made to our shareholders reports from those senior officers of the bank who have charge under the general manager of the various geographical divisions of the bank and who are better qualified than we are to set forth the facts regarding such districts.

The year has been one marked, even in comparison with recent years of large expansion, by a continued increase in immigration, in building operations of all kinds, especially in connection with railroads, in foreign and domestic trade, in bank deposits, indeed, in almost everything connected with the prosperity of a country. Our object in stating what is so well known is that we may consider the [illegible] rapid growth and whether in the methods of our expansion there is anything which needs to be checked. Our financial requirements are mainly determined by the volume of immigration. It is because of this that we must build so largely, and this also is the main cause of the excess of our imports over our exports. The immigration for the calendar year, December being estimated, was 394,784, an increase over the record year of 1911 of 13 per cent. The immigrants came to us from forty-one countries and were divided as follows: British, 144,830; American, 140,456; from other countries, 109,498. In order to transport them to their inland destination 800 passenger trains of ten cars each, averaging 50 persons to each car, would be required. In the last two years we have added nearly ten new people to each 100 people already in Canada taken as a whole, but as over half of these immigrants have gone to the Western Provinces, the proportion of newcomers to these Provinces in the same period has been about 20 to each 100. The population of Saskatchewan has increased five-fold in ten years. Clearly this is proportionately the largest immigration problem ever handled by any country. In order to house, settle, and arrange transportation for these people, we must borrow very largely, and as long as such streams of newcomers continue we are likely to be borrowers on a large scale, at least for many decades to come. In the excess of imports over exports and in the volume of our securities sold abroad in order to settle that difference, one can clearly see the strain put upon Canada by this enormous accession of new people. The total of our foreign trade for the fiscal year ending March, 1912, was $874,538,000. Our imports were $559,220,000, and our exports $315,317,000, the balance against us being $243,903,000, and the figures for the half year ending September, 1912, show imports on an even larger scale. The imports of iron and steel in various forms from raw material to highly complicated manufactures amount in value to $95,000,000. Almost all these articles are already being made in Canada, but not in sufficient quantities, or not of high enough quality, to satisfy our requirements. It is to the last degree desirable that such articles should be made at home, and to the extent of, say, $50,000,000 or $60,000,000, they clearly should be. With the exception of motor cars and parts to the extent of $7,387,000, and a few other items, the whole of this amount may be safely attributed to the erection of new structures or the opening up of new farm lands. It is this large difference between our exports and imports which causes us to send so many securities to the London market, and if it were true that we are offering too many securities it would mean that we are importing too many goods or exporting too little, or both. Doubtless some Canadian securities are offered which should not have been created, and doubtless our imports are unwisely increased to some extent by the extravagance of an unusually prosperous people, but the main cause each year is the same. We need more than ever new mileage of railways, vast quantities of new rolling stock, warehouse, and port facilities, municipal expenditures in hundreds of new towns, and an enlarged scale of improvements in all the older municipalities, the building of ordinary roads, bridges, etc., in many new areas of settlement, the creation of plants for new industries, and the general increase of existing plants throughout all Canada, the erection of private dwellings in greater numbers, and of more permanent construction than in the past, and many other forms of betterment which need not be detailed. But while our needs are mainly measured by our immigration, we are apt to forget that it is the investor in our securities who has the power to determine finally the pace of our expansion. For every dollar we wish to fix in permanent improvements somebody should have saved a dollar, and at this extravagant moment the borrowers throughout the world exceed those whose savings take the form of loanable capital. It is for us therefore, to consider not so much our needs as the opinion of the investor regarding our securities, and the condition of the world's money market. If we do this we must conclude to restrict our building operations as much as possible for the moment, and we must expect to pay a higher rate of interest for our requirements. Men with business experience before entering upon building operations, large or small, assure themselves that the needed money is available. It is only our municipalities and reckless promoters who incur large obligations before they are sure of the necessary investor in the securities they propose to offer. Many of our towns and cities who have refused to consult the banks, find themselves embarrassed as a result, and improvements which may be wise and much needed, must be postponed for the moment. The existing securities will doubtless be absorbed in the near future, but at lower prices than heretofore in order to meet the investors' expectations of a higher return. Our municipalities, however, should seriously consider whether, during periods of such rapid expansion, the tax rate should not be largely increased. In the days of Western expansion in the United States 25 and 30 mills on a fairly high valuation of property were not uncommon rates. Again, should we not pay for local improvements in a far shorter time than we do? The western cities of the United States make their local improvements by the issue of short term securities, the average life of which is usually not more than five years. Such securities often carry six per cent. interest and do not appeal to the same class of investor as do long-term municipal debentures. We can easily see the bad effect on the credit of our municipalities of adding the heavy cost of local improvements, spread over long terms, to the ordinary general debt. Such a system as that followed in the United States would probably not find favor with the sub-division promoter because it would be a powerful check on all speculative real estate schemes. At least a year ago it became generally known that there were many Canadian securities in existence which had not been absorbed by the investor and that real estate speculation was proceeding at too rapid a pace. Undoubtedly the knowledge of these facts has exercised some restraint upon our people. Transactions in inside city properties have probably been larger than ever, but the sub-division promoter has not prospered. Direct investments of British capital in agricultural lands to be resold have been made in both the east and the west on a large scale.

In common with the rest of the world we are living in a time of high prices, and the incidence of these prices on those who have fixed incomes or earnings is so heavy as to constitute the greatest economic difficulty we have to face. I shall not attempt to deal [illegible] subject which is being [illegible] by Government commissions [illegible] many leading countries and which will, let us hope, be referred to an international commission. There are some forces which affect the general trend of prices, others which may cause any particular commodity to go above or below the line of the general trend, and again others which are local and produce such apparent anomalies as higher prices for foodstuffs in cities nearer sources of cheap production as compared with more remote centres of consumption. Without, therefore, discussing the effect of an enlarged and cheapened supply of gold, the enormous increase of credit partly made possible thereby, and the effect of many other forces causing a general upward trend of prices, we may profitably consider some local causes which put the people of Canada at an unnecessary disadvantage. One of the most powerful and inexcusable local causes for the high price of food is the condition of our country roads. It must be clear that if a farmer has to travel ten or twenty miles to a city to sell his produce, every hour of delay to himself and his horses and wagon, every bushel or pound less he is able to carry, every day lost in the length of the life of his horses and wagon, cause just so much increase in the cost of the article he has to sell. To the extent that this needless and cruel loss might, if avoided, partly add to the farmers' profits and partly lessen the cost to the consumer, the state of our roads is little short of a crime. If the bad roads around a city cause the price of food to be much higher than it need be, one of the results is to enable producers hundreds, perhaps thousands, of miles away to enter into competition with the farmer in his own county, because the cost in transit over one mile of bad wagon road will cover the cost over many miles of good railroad. This competition may help the consumer by keeping prices from rising still higher, but it will not bring the price below the point fixed by the extra cost from the bad local roads. It will not do any good for those of us who live in well-paved cities to blame the farmers for bad roads. They cannot be expected to build good roads entirely at their own expense, and good roads will not come so long as we wait for anything as unfair as this. It is not that we do not know how to construct good roads. We know fairly well what we should do, but we hesitate to do it. In the excellent report on Highway Improvements in Ontario for 1911 there is a sufficient abstract of the systems adopted by the various countries of the world and by thirty-three States in the United States; of these, that in use in the State of New York seems to be the most complete. Under this system roads are classified as follows:

(1) State roads built at the entire cost of the State.

(2) County roads to which the State contributes one-half, the county 35 per cent., and the township 15 per cent. For maintenance the State collects from the townships $50 per mile per annum, the remainder being contributed by the State.

(3) Township roads, to which the state contributes one-third of the cost of construction.

Can the people of Canada be made to realize that every man, woman and child suffers from the evil of bad roads whether they use the roads directly or not? Have we not as much intelligence as the citizens of these thirty-three neighboring States?

Another cause of high prices is the general inefficiency of most kinds of labor. Employment is so easily obtained and the worker is apt to be so lacking in training for the particular calling it falls to his lot to occupy, that for this reason alone three men are often needed to do the work of two. The necessity of buying food for three families instead of two clearly raises the price of food and every non-producer of food in Canada therefore suffers from this inefficiency of labor. Still another evil, tending to high prices and growing rapidly in these extravagant times, is the waste in the use of food. As seen in a modern hotel or dining car this shocks most of us, but in countless families the waste is nearly as bad proportionately. If three animals are bought where only two are really needed, the price of meat is raised for everybody. I must apologize for repeating facts which are so palpable, but in our desire to blame some one else for the suffering caused by high prices, we often refuse to see local causes which largely contribute to it and which we could at least moderate if we chose.

We have often spoken of the tendencies of modern life which increase the food consumers out of proportion to the food producers, and it is pleasing to see some slight evidence of a return to the land which may help to correct this disproportion, but while the quantity of fruit, vegetables, and cereals grown may immediately be increased so as to affect prices, the state of the cattle industry of North America is so serious that some years must pass before we may hope for a return of normal conditions. It looks as if the United States would soon cease to export beef, and unless we at once change our course we may be in a similar condition. We must increase the number of beef cattle, sheep, and swine on the land very largely if our annual consumption is to be supplied without depleting the herds. We shall hope the Commission regarding our cattle ranges will produce good results, and that the assurance of high prices for meat for some time to come may induce mixed farming to a degree not yet accomplished. Since 1908, while there has been a small increase in the number of horses in Canada, there has been a serious decline in the number of milch cows, beef cattle, sheep, and swine. There should have been a very large increase, and unless every possible effort to arrest the decrease in made, this class of food will grow steadily dearer in price. The falling off is most noticeable in Ontario, while the only important gains are in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The Clearing House statements again give ample evidence of our rapid growth. The returns of twenty Clearing Houses of 1911 made a total of $7,391,368,000, while for 1912 the figures were $9,146,236,000, a gain of 23.74 per cent. Once more we have to record a gain in every Clearing House in Canada.

The building permits of the four chief cities were as follows:

	1911	1912
Montreal ..	$14,580,000	$19,642,000
Toronto ...	24,374,000	27,401,000
Winnipeg ..	17,550,000	20,475,000
Vancouver.	17,652,000	19,388,000

The motion for the adoption of the report was put and carried. By-laws increasing the number of Directors of the Bank to twenty-two and increasing the amount available for the remuneration of the Board of Directors were then passed. The usual resolutions expressing the thanks of the Shareholders to the President, Vice-President, and Directors, and also to the General Manager, Assistant General Managers and other officers of the bank were unanimously carried. Upon motion the meeting proceeded to elect Directors for the coming year and then adjourned.

The scrutineers subsequently announced the following gentlemen to be elected as directors for the coming year:

Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L., Hon. George A. Cox, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Flavelle, LL.D., A. Kingman, Hon. Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones, Hon. W. C. Edwards, Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., E. R. Wood, Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G., K.C., LL.D., William McMaster, Robert Stuart, George F. Galt, Alexander Laird, William Farwell, D.C.L., Gardner Stevens, A. C. Flumerfelt, George G. Foster, K.C., Charles Colby, M.A., Ph.D., George W. Allan, H. J. Fuller, F. P. Jones.

At a meeting of the newly elected Board of Directors held subsequently, Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L., was elected president and Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., vice-president.

UNION LABEL

MR. BURNHAM'S BILL

If Mr. Burnham has achieved no other object in bringing forward his bill to restrain the Canadian Government from recommending Canadians for knighthoods and other undemocratic honors, he has succeeded in touching an issue that many Canadians have been thinking about lately. There is no particular harm in a knighthood, so long as it dies with its possessor, and we don't think it unduly tends to create class distinctions. Canada has now, and is going to have far greater class distinctions through the creation of groups of high financiers than it will have through the distribution of honors. At the same time, it does not harm to draw attention to the fact that most Canadians want this country to be where any man is as good intrinsically as his neighbor, where a poor man of sufficient education and refinement need not hesitate to rub shoulders with the plutocrat. We want in Canada not a big class of very wealthy people, and a big class of poverty-stricken workers, but a great middle class. There will always be extremes of poverty and wealth, because human nature is what it is, in spite of Socialism, but there ought to be a tendency to level all Canadian humanity into about a common mould. To give some of the plutocrats titles, because they have been successful in watering stock, or in creating some fictitious values and shunting the thing onto the public, is a proceeding that should make the ordinary good Canadian say "No thanks" to any offer of such an honor.

PATRIOTISM BEFORE PARTY

The arguments against the Government's naval policy are breaking down for lack of foundation and want of force, and because they contradict one another. To deny that there is an international crisis is to ignore the withdrawal of British warships from almost every ocean for defence purposes at home, it is to reject the declarations of the Admiralty and of every British Cabinet Minister, it is to overlook the fact that Great Britain is this year raising its naval expenditures to $240,000,000 in a strained endeavor to meet the naval activities of continental powers, says the Toronto News. Those who say that there is no emergency also forget the assertion of Admiral Mahan, the greatest of United States naval experts, that England may be attacked by a European nation at any moment. Should Canadians be less concerned for the safety of the Empire than a foreigner?

The Liberal assumption that the Government's emergency policy antagonizes the idea of a Canadian navy is wholly untenable. As the Prime Minister has more than once declared the present step is of a temporary character and quite in keeping with a permanent policy to be submitted to the electors at the next general election. The provision for recalling the Canadian Dreadnoughts gives the nucleus of a permanent naval force and puts this aspect of the question beyond peradventure.

Opposition leaders now express their readiness to provide a thirty-five million dollar Canadian navy. They were in office up to sixteen months ago. Why were they not equally liberal then? Can their conversion be regarded as sincere? If in power once more, would they not again evade their duty? Do they not see, moreover, that the creation of an efficient Canadian naval force will occupy many years and that the thing to do first is to place the most powerful ships procurable at the service of the Admiralty in the shortest possible time?

Instead of sacrificing the autonomy of Canada Mr. Borden is securing for the country a larger place and a greater voice in those Imperial affairs which most vitally affect her interests. On the whole the arguments advanced by the Opposition and by Opposition newspapers have a hollow sound. Certainly they have not proved influential or roused enthusiasm in the constituencies. Dr. Edwards, of Frontenac, says that 90 per cent. of the electors in his riding favor the Government's proposals. At Calgary the other day Hon. Frank Oliver and Dr. Michael Clark could hardly get a hearing in opposition to the Ministerial policy. The Moose Jaw Times (Liberal) is not pleased with the Dreadnought proposal but advises its party against pressing for a general election. The Times observes: "Is it worth while? Is place so important, more important than patriotism? The bad impression such a fight would cause abroad and the encouragement it would give to the disloyal element are to be deprecated." It adds: "It is not enough for Sir Wilfrid to have proposed a great alternative policy. He should show the greatness which is his by putting patriotism before party."

EDITORIAL NOTES

In London, Ont., the Mothers' Club is agitating for the ringing of the Curfew Bell at 9 o'clock. The ringing of the bell at that hour might "wake the city up." It should be rung earlier.

At the January sitting of the Circuit Court at St. John, N.B., no criminal indictments were presented to the Grand Jury. The same newspaper that comments on the fact tells of a church that has just raised $26,000 for a new building after having had the best year in its history in every respect. Apparently St. John is starting out the New Year well.

In this city of churches it seems a pity that the Police Magistrate should have to make a special plea for a place for other than the jail for poor old people whose only crime against society is that they didn't or couldn't make provision for their maintenance in their declining years. The city should build and maintain a House of Refuge of its own, or arrange for the care of its infirm poor in the County House of Refuge.

You'll Sleep More Soundly
If You Keep Healthy With Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Insomnia goes with indigestion.

The man or woman with a good appetite, sound digestion, and bowels and kidneys working right, is never troubled much with sleeplessness. It is when the bowels become constipated and the liver and kidneys sluggish that the trouble begins.

Lazy liver and constipated bowels quickly bring on biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, making a sound, refreshing night's sleep impossible. Or the inactive kidneys allow the blood to becomes loaded with uric acid, which causes rheumatism, with all its sleep-destroying tortures.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, taken regularly, induce sweet and dreamless sleep by keeping all these organs active and regular. The headaches disappear, the digestion becomes good again, the blood is purified and perfect health returns.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been a favorite household remedy in Canada for over half a century, and they are in daily use throughout the world. Being purely vegetable they are safe for young and old. Made by W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., Brockville, Ont., and sold by all dealers at 25c. a box. 9

A Man's Fall Bonnet Recipe.

First you get your price mark, and be sure it's high enough.
Lay it carefully aside, then choose the other stuff.
Take some velvet and some wire, some ribbons and some lace;
Twist the wire and weave till you've got it for your base.

Save the price mark carefully. Be sure that it is high.
Get a plume and droop it so it strikes an ear or eye.
Put a glassware buckle on, and later, if you choose,
Grab some artificial blooms of most unearthly hues.

Mix the whole thing thoroughly and practice saying: "There!
With another switch and puff it's just what you should wear."
Now the crucial test has come. Be steady on your feet;
Put the price mark on the hat, and then it is complete.

Modern Morals.

Bishop Wilson said the other day that the morality of politicians was not all that could be desired.

"In politics, as in some lines of business," he continued, "the remark of the very cynical young woman holds true.

"'So you are going to marry George at last,' she said to a friend. 'What is he like?'

"'He is the most upright, high minded, honorable fellow in the world,' was the enthusiastic reply.

"'Goodness, my dear!' said the pretty cynic. 'You'll starve to death.'"—Washington Star.

INVESTING — IN — COMFORT

Don't you spend a good deal of money for some kinds of personal comforts, and go without others of more importance,

The most satisfactory glasses you can get, TORICS, will give more comfort in proportion to their cost than anything else you can buy.

Toric Lenses may be fitted with any desired mounting.

In a large measure the attractiveness and comfort of a pair of glasses depend on the mounting — And the mounting to select depends on the features of the individual wearer.

It is a part of our Toric Service to give particular attention to selecting the mounting that will look and feel the best on your face.

In addition to this our thorough examinations and the grinding of lenses in our own shop assures you of a pair of glasses satisfactory in every respect.

Write Ideas For Moving Picture Plays!

YOU CAN WRITE PHOTO PLAYS AND EARN $25 OR MORE WEEKLY

We Will Show You How!

If you have ideas—if you can THINK—we will show you the secrets of this fascinating new profession. Positively no experience or literary excellence necessary. No "flowery language" is wanted.

The demand for photoplays is practically unlimited. The big film manufacturers are "moving heaven and earth" in their attempts to get enough good plots to supply the ever increasing demand. They are offering $100 and more, for single scenarios, or written ideas.

Nearly all the big film companies, the buyers of photoplays, are located in or near NEW YORK CITY. Being right on the spot, and knowing at all times just what sort of plots are wanted by the producers, our SALE DEPARTMENT has a tremendous advantage over agencies situated in distant cities.

We have received many letters from the big film manufacturers, such as VITAGRAPH, EDISON, ESSANAY, LUBIN SOLAX, IMP, REX, RELIANCE, CHAMPION, COMET, MELIES, ETC., urging us to send photoplays to them. We want more writers and we'll gladly teach you the secrets of success.

We are selling photoplays written by people who "never before wrote a line for publication."

Perhaps we can do the same for you. If you can think of only one good idea every week, and will write it out as directed by us, and it sells for only $25., a low figure.

You Will Earn $100 Monthly For Spare Time Work.

FREE Send your name and address at once for free copy of our illustrated book, "MOVING PICTURE PLAYWRITING"

Don't hesitate. Don't argue, Write now and learn just what this new profession may mean for you and your future.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE OF FORGERY

Wm. Killoran Admits the Theft of $1.10 From Coal Dealer —Detective Newhall Had Trouble At C.P.R. Station —Fines Imposed at Police Court

Two charges were laid against William Killoran this morning in police court, one of forging his name to a cheque payable to A. Weir of the firm of Weir and O'Brien for $10.40, and the other of stealing $1.10 from the same firm. He admitted the latter charge but although it was understood he would plead guilty to the first, he entered a plea of not guilty.

Both cases were remanded until Tuesday, Jan. 21st.

The prosecution will be conducted by Crown Attorney Wood. The cheque to which Killoran affixed his name was one made out by G. A. Goheen, payable to Mr. Archibald Weir at the Bank of Toronto.

After electing summary trial this morning, Killoran made the statement that he signed his name to the cheque but he didn't do it with any intention of taking the money. He is a teamster for Weir & O'Brien.

SIXTY CENTS LEFT.

William Harrison asked to be let down easy on a charge of being intoxicated, which he admitted.

"Are you ready to pay a fine?" asked His Worship.

"Well I only have $2.60 left," he answered. Harrison was allowed to retain the 60 cents.

ROUGH ACQUAINTANCES.

Detective Newhall was about to board the 1.01 C.P.R. train this morning, when he was assailed by two rough looking characters. One of them addressed some language to him; the other struck him a severe blow on the side of the head. The officer closed with them and succeeded in arresting the one who used the foul language. His companion crawled under the train and escaped.

The prisoner was fined $5.70. He is a recent arrival from the West.

TOO MUCH SPEED.

Angus Louden drove his horse at an immoderate speed on George St. last Tuesday and also failed to keep on the right side of the road. It cost him $2 this morning.

A man named Henry Nesbitt also forfeited two "bones" for driving a team of horses at what was alleged to be an immoderate rate, at two o'clock in the morning. Nesbitt was bringing fourteen members of a fraternal society back from Lakefield, and boasted that they had made the distance in one hour and a half.

AUTO CONTEST

Will Be Held By St. James' Epworth League

The St. James' Epworth League have completed plans for an auto contest (ought to contest) which will commence on Monday, Jan. 20th, and continue till Monday, March 24th. Mr. G. Baker will act as starter and the Rev. J. N. Clarry as judge. There will be two contesting parties, each possessing an Auto. Miss V. Palmer will be the chauffeur of one auto, and the members of her party will wear red emblems. Mr. A. Ridley will act as Chauffeur for the other party, whose members will wear blue emblems. The speed of the Autos will be regulated as follows:—For every member of the Red and Blue parties present at the Epworth League services, their respective autos will register one mile, and for every new member, 10 miles. The auto registering the greater number of miles, during the time mentioned, wins the contest.

"Ah, yes, of course, but you see my charges are based not upon the state of the patient, but upon the character of the disease."—Ex.

TWO FIRSTS FOR LOCAL BIRDS

Exhibits of Mr. F. Head Won a Belleville

At the Belleville Poultry Show, which closed yesterday, Mr. Frank Head of Wallace Point, Otonabee, won two prizes in the Barred Plymouth Rock class, taking first with a cockerel and a hen. This showing was in a class of fifty.

Mr. Head also tied with Mr. Watson of Madoc for the best Plymouth Rocks. Among the competitors were, Mr. Connor, of Madoc and Mr. Marsh, of Napanee, all showing very choice birds. Altogether there were between 500 and 600 birds. It was the first poultry show held in Belleville.

BEN HOBSON AT PORT HOPE

Benjamin Hobson pleaded guilty in the police court this morning to a charge of vagrancy, and like all the others, he wanted a chance. He came from Madoc and at one time owned a large farm. He was a prominent Orangeman and Oddfellow and was well educated in Belleville. He promised to take a last fond look at Port Hope if given a chance, so the Magistrate advised him not to return.—Port Hope Guide.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. BENJ. H. STANSBERY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

IMPROVEMENTS AT WM. HAMILTONS

Improvements are being made at the office of The Wm. Hamilton Co. The front entrance is being closed and hereafter the entrance will be made from the side. This door will open into a passage way, from which the doors of the smaller offices lead off. Glass partitions are being built, and things generally arranged to make it more convenient for the office staff.

HAWAII'S VOLCANIC INFERNO.

A Peep Into Kilauea's Lake of Brimstone and Fire.

Kilauea, in Hawaii, is a round, extinct crater about three miles across and 700 or 800 feet deep. It has been the scene of terrific explosions in past ages, but it has now dwindled to the small active crater of Halemauman, which is sunk near the middle of it like a huge pot, 200 or more feet deep and 1,000 feet across.

In the midafternoon a party of eight or ten of us on horseback set out to visit the volcano. The trail led down the broken and shelving side of the crater, amid trees and bushes, till it struck the floor of lava at the bottom. Our course took us out over the cracked and contorted lava beds, where no green thing was growing. The forms of the lava flow suggested mailed and writhing dragons, with horrid, gaping mouths and vicious claws. The lava crunched beneath the horses' feet like shelly and brittle ice. At one point we passed over a wide, jagged crack on a bridge. As we neared the crater the rocks grew warm and sulphur and other fumes streaked the air.

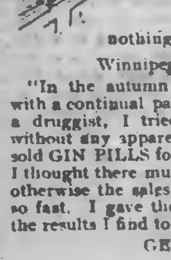
When half a mile from the crater we dismounted and, leaving our horses in charge of the guide, proceeded on foot over the cracked and heated lava rocks toward the brink of this veritable devil's caldrom. The sulphur fumes are so suffocating that it can be approached only on the windward side. The first glance into that fearful pit is all that your imagination can picture it. You look upon the traditional lake of brimstone and fire, and if devils were to appear skipping about over the surface with pitchforks, turning their victims as the cook turns her frying crullers in the sputtering fat, it would not much surprise you. This liquid is rather thick and viscid, but it is boiling furiously. Great masses of it are thrown up forty or fifty feet and fall with a crash like that of the surf upon the shore.

The mass of boiling lava is said to be about one and one-half acres in extent. Its surface is covered with large masses of floating crust, black and smooth, like leather or roofing paper, and between these masses, or islands, the molten lava shows in broad, vivid lines. It is never quiet.

Looking upon this scene with the thought of the traditional lake of fire and brimstone of our forefathers in mind, you would say that these black, filthy looking masses floating about on the surface were the accumulation of all the bad stuff that had been fried out of the poor sinners since hell was invented. How much wickedness and uncharity and evil thought it would represent! If the poor victims were clarified and made purer by the process, then it would seem worth while.—John Burroughs in Century.

A MAN WHO KNOWS

Says GIN PILLS Are Good For Pain In The Back



WHEN your grocer tells you he uses a certain tea in his own home, you feel pretty sure it's good tea.

And when a prominent druggist takes GIN PILLS for his own backache, you can feel quite sure there is nothing else quite so good.

Winnipeg, May 19th, 1912.

"In the autumn of 1911, I suffered with a continual pain in the back. As a druggist, I tried various remedies without any apparent results. Having sold GIN PILLS for a number of years, I thought there must be good in them, otherwise the sales would not increase so fast. I gave them a fair trial and the results I find to be good".

GEO. E. ROGERS.

GIN PILLS have well earned the confidence which druggists, as well as the public, have in them. For years they have been relieving the pain of Rheumatism, Lumbago and Kidney Troubles generally, and changing tortured cripples into strong, supple men and women.

Why should you go on suffering when there is a remedy so easily obtained and so reliable? GIN PILLS cost but 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Money back if they do not help you. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 150

Helping the Books.

Persons about to install new libraries or those who find their books in bad condition will be glad of the advice offered on this subject by a writer in Les Annales (Paris). Glass cases should always be avoided except for a few precious volumes which are specially looked after and frequently dusted since the confined atmosphere and lack of air circulation in such bookcases are favorable to the development of germs, insects and mold. "Secondly," adds the Scientific American, "the simple precaution should be taken of placing on the shelves behind the books strips of cloth or flannel moistened with benzine, phenol, tobacco juice or turpentine. These strips give excellent results if renewed from time to time."

CONSTIPATION CURED BY BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can use to relieve her little ones from constipation and all other stomach and bowel troubles. They act as a gentle laxative, are pleasant to take and are absolutely safe. Concerning them, Mrs. Philippe St. Pierre, St. Perpetue, Que., says:—"My baby was badly constipated and was cross all the time. Nothing I gave her seemed to do any good till I began Baby's Own Tablets. They are the best medicine in the world for little ones and quickly relieved my baby." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Intercolonial Calendar

Bringing visions of comfortable and luxurious travel through a territory unrivalled for scenic beauty the calendar of the Intercolonial Railway just received with the compliments of the Traffic Department is warmly appreciated as a happy reminder of past enjoyments and as an inspiration for future travel.

The design of the calendar is greatly enhanced by a surprinting of gold on the background of maple leaves. As a reminder of the Intercolonial and its fine train service it is excellent. As something both ornamental and useful for office use it is much to be desired.

Manitoba Railway Plans.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18.—The time allotted for the completion of the work allowed in the charter of the Midland Railway expires this year, and the Midland Company will ask the Legislature for an extension of time for five years so as to complete the various works for which they have charters in the province.

The company has also increased its capital from $500,000 to $10,000,000, and is planning a big program of work for Manitoba.

One of the Stipulations.

A vegetarian engaged a German cook lady not long ago. His wife liked the appearance of the applicant. Her references were good and the wages she demanded not exorbitant.

"I'd like to have you come," said the lady of the house, "but perhaps you won't want to live with us. We are vegetarians and never have any meat in the house. Would you be [illegible] with a vegetable diet?"

The fraulein scratched her head.

"Vell," she said dubiously, "iss beer a wegetable?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Word Blindness.

Verbal antipathies are common. Most of us hate the feel, so to speak, of certain words—"victuals," for instance. Is verbal astigmatism prevalent, too, we wonder? We never know the difference between "subjective" and "objective," and we have a high respect for writers who use those words intelligently. "Ingenuous" and "disingenuous" always puzzle us too.—Franklin P. Adams in Metropolitan.

Sharp-Tongued Bernhardt.

Sarah Bernhardt is quoted as having paid her respects to Isabella of Bavaria, consort of Charles VI. of France, in this wise: "It is to her that we owe the invention of the corset, but it was she, too, who sold the half of France to England. There was no crime of which that woman was not capable."

The Darkest Hour.

The darkest hour is when you find that all your coin is spent
And nothing but your timepiece stands between you and the rent.
You never know its value till you paw the old thing o'er
As you stand beneath the shadow of the gloomy pawnshop door.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The darkest hour is when you find the team three runs behind
And batsmen cleave the atmosphere as if they had gone blind.
You never know the value of a solid three base clout
Until the bags are filled with waiting men and two are out.
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The darkest hour is when you find your dome devoid of themes,
When nothing seems to make a joke in spite of all your schemes.
You take your shears and pen and add unto some other's stock.
(The darkest hour is passing now—five forty-five o'clock.)
—Buffalo News.

The darkest hour, we think, is when the wife of any man
Finds when he comes in off the road a dainty, fragile fan
In his inside coat pocket. Oh, the wicked ways of men!
It's time for us to go home and explain that fan again.
—Houston Post.

WHY ZAM-BUK IS BEST CURE FOR SKIN SORES

An illustration of the way in which Zam-Buk cures even the most serious and chronic cases of ulcers, eruptions and sores is provided by Mr. R. H. Barker, of Glencairn, Ont. He says:

"I would not have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly, and at the same time so effectively, as Zam-Buk cured me.

"My face became covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. The rash then turned to sores, which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and the eruption got worse and worse, until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad), my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when someone advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and, marvellous as it may sound, within little under a month every sore on my face was healed. I was so amazed that I have told the facts to several persons, and I have no objection to your stating my experience for the benefit of other sufferers."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal in composition, and is the ideal balm for babies and young children, for whose tender skin coarse ointments are so dangerous. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toron-ceipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

WEDDING BELLS

STEADMAN—MONTGOMERY

The chimes rang out this afternoon for the wedding Mr. James Edgar Steadman to Miss Lillian Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N Montgomery of the Rev. Canon Davidson in St. John's Church. The wedding was quiet only the immediate friends being present.

The Style.

Oh, how I love the old plush hat
I bought four years ago!
I poke it into some new shape
It ne'er before did know,
And then it is in vogue again,
Quite swell and up to date.
It is the best investment that
I've chanced to make of late.
This year I jumped on it a lot
And beat it up a pile,
I let a car run over it,
And, lo, it's right in style!
—Chicago Journal.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more or less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont

CONVENTION AT BETHANY TABERNACLE BEGINS MONDAY

The annual convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held in Bethany Tabernacle from Monday, January 20th, to Friday the 24th.

The opening meeting will be held on Monday at 7.45 p.m., and on each of the following days, the meetings will be at 2.45 and 7.45 p.m.

The Rev. W. H. Chandler of Wheaton, Illinois, whose Bible teaching was so much enjoyed when he was here last year, will have charge of the convention. Rev. R. H. Glover, M.D., brother of Mrs. J. E. Fee of this city; for fifteen year a missionary in China, now Deputational Secretary for the Alliance, and Rev. Iner Wickware, for many years a missionary in Congo, Africa, will speak on missionary themes. The Rev. E. J. Richards, Home Secretary for the Alliance, was expected to be present, but as Mr. Richards recently met with an accident, it is as yet uncertain whether he will be able to fill his convention engagements or not. There will be meetings for children on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 4.15 p.m.

NORMALITES WOULD ALLOW WOMEN TO USE THE BALLOT

A very interesting meeting of the Literary Society at the Normal School was held yesterday afternoon when the question of votes for women was debated.

The subject was resolved that; women should not have the vote. The arguments in the affirmative were ably presented by Miss Ina A. Carmen and Miss Balston, while the negative side of the debate was upheld by Miss Annie Fox and Miss Marie Meehan, who won the decision of the judges, Mr. Keyes, Miss Sonley and Mr. Tucker. The judges had no easy task, as it was only after considerable deliberation that the decision was awarded to the negative debaters.

President Connor occupied the chair. Miss Elliott contributed a solo. It was decided that the annual at home should be held on or near the date of St. Valentine's Day. A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual group photograph and a supply of pins emblematic of the school.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

Think Kindly.—Your conduct will betray your thoughts, so think as you want to act. As you think, so you are. If you would be kind, think kindly. You can make yourself and others either happy or miserable by the thoughts you entertain. If you would have a happy home, think kindly of its inmates. Put the best construction on the actions of others. If they have done you a wrong, give them the benefit of the doubt and think kindly of them. If you would have others think kindly of you, think kindly of them. You will usually be repaid in your own coin. Think Kindly.

"Have you loved with love unbounded,
Has that love been sorely wounded,
Has the friend you trusted ever
Lifted up his hand to sever
All the chains he clasped around you
When in friendships bonds he bound you?
"Judge him gently, judge him kindly,
Men do wrong, but do so blindly,
God forgives—O pitying heaven,
What were we if not forgiven?
"Has the confidence you cherished
In your brother sadly perished?
Have the vows that once were spoken
Rashly, cruelly, been broken?
Though betrayed, and crushed and bleeding,
Still hear Mercy's gentle pleading.
"Let us judge each other kindly,
Men do wrong, but do so blindly,
God forgives—O pitying heaven,
What were we if not forgiven?

ONE OF MISSING MEN WAS FOUND BY WOOD PILE

Samuel Simpson, the other aged man who left his home on Chamberlain Street yesterday afternoon was found lying behind a wood pile on Romaine Street late last night. When found he was suffering greatly from the exposure.

No trace of Robert Mackie, the elderly man who disappeared from his home at 227 Thomas Street has yet been discovered. The police department have learned nothing more.

He Escaped.

Mrs. Newlywed was fairly jubilant over her first pie. It was hubby's duty to sample it.

"Your mother never baked your father a pie like that, did she, darling?" said she as poor hubby tried to eat it.

"No, my dear," he replied. "Father is still alive and hearty."—Fun Magazine.

Speaking of Coal.

"I have to raise the price of coal,"
The retail dealer said.
"The operators and the roads
Have got retailers dead.
As for our profits, my dear sir,
They've knocked them in the head."

"We've not advanced the price of coal,"
The operators say.
"The rates as per our circular
Are still in force today.
We haven't asked the retail trade
A nickel more to pay."

Yes, truth is mighty, as you've heard,
And always must prevail,
But in this case it seems hard work
To get upon its trail.
Meantime the price of coal goes up
On bushel, ton and pail.
—New York Press.

In the Nick of Time.

Woman (excitedly)—Have you filed my application for a divorce yet?

Lawyer—No, ma'am, but I am at work on the papers now.

Woman—Thank fortune, I am not too late! Destroy all papers and evidence at once, please.

Lawyer—A reconciliation has been brought about between you and your husband, I infer?

Woman—Gracious, no! He was run over and killed by a goods train this morning, and I want to retain you in my suit against the company for damages.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Rapid Work.

Residents in rival cities, Jones and Brown were bragging hard about the excellences of their respective homes.

"Take our fire brigade," said Jones after an hour's heated discussion. "Do you know, the other day a fire broke out in our town and within three minutes the engine came along, but it was going so fast that the driver couldn't pull up till he was a mile past the burning house?"

Brown smiled in a superior fashion.

"My dear fellow, that's nothing," he said. "One day two men were working on a church steeple in my city and suddenly one of them slipped. A terrible death would have been his, only, fortunately, a spectator had the presence of mind to call the fire brigade on the telephone, and they came just in time to catch him in a blanket."—Detroit Free Press.

"Had he hit the ground when you fell?"—London Advertiser.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

THE SPORTING WORLD

SENATORS HAVE SHORTSTOP TO SUCCEED ART SCHWIND

Ottawa, Jan. 17 — The Ottawa Baseball Club has signed a shortstop to take the place of Artie Schwind, last year's speed boy who was drafted by Boston Nationals. His name is Harry Williams, a rangy youngster who hails from Elbert, West Virginia and has quite a record in the Appalachian League. Season before last he played on the same club with Red Robertson. In a letter to the local management he says:

"I don't think I will have any trouble sticking as I understand Robertson was considered a good man up there, and, judging from that, I will have no difficulty holding my own."

If Williams comes up to expectations it will complete the infield, as Dolan, Louden and Robertson will be in line again.

CALLING WINNERS IN THREE O. H. A. SERIES

Selecting winners in the three senior groups of the O.H.A. is not an easy task although in group One which is composed of Varsity, Peterborough, Kingston and St. Michael's, the chances are strong that St. Michael's will emerge with the honors. The Saints have already defeated Peterborough and Varsity, and Peterborough have disposed of the Frontenacs in Kingston. If St. Michael's can win in Peterborough they will have the group honors cinched. Varsity will give them a strong argument the next time they meet, but hardly strong enough to defeat the "green shirts."

TORONTO OR PRESTON.

In group two Toronto R. and A.A. have already won victories over Parkdale and Stratford, while Parkdale have walloped Stratford. Preston, who won the intermediate championship last year, have not played a senior game this season, but a good line on their chances will be obtained when they play Parkdale. Parkdale gave Toronto R. and A.A. a good argument the last time they met, but the chances favor the Toronto R. and A. A. with Preston as the dark horse. Stratford looks as if they were outclassed by the other three.

MIDLAND HAS THE CALL

In group three, which includes Toronto Canoe Club and the Midland and Collingwood intermediate teams it is hard to get a line on the different teams. Toronto Canoe Club have already defeated the Simcoes who have since dropped out, and while they have a pretty likely looking team, they do not appear to class with the senior teams of the other districts. Midland and Collingwood have been shuffling their players around to try and keep in the intermediate and senior series at the same time, but Midland looks like the class of the district, with the Toronto Canoe Club giving them a good chase—Toronto News.

FEE ASKED FOR USE OF GROUNDS

D. Johnson was asked to-day if the communication which appeared in reference to the fee asked for the use of the Driving Park was correct. He replied that the party who informed him said that Mr. Turner had first asked $50, but later the amount had been reduced to $45. It is not the Turf Club, however, who are seeking to promote the winter meet, but a number of interested horsemen outside of the club.

The Society pays $500 per annum for the use of the grounds and only use them three days.

Churchill or Nelson?

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—In the Senate yesterday, on motion of Senator Casgrain, an order was made for the production of plans, reports, soundings and all other germane information respecting the ports of Churchill or Port Nelson. He said there was a good deal of doubt about the availability of Nelson because of shoals. He thought it might be well to have a special committee of the Senate look into the information so far collected.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Not the Cylinder.

Short of breath and angry withal, the motorist emerged from beneath his car, and the helping friend, who was presiding over the oil can, beamed upon him.

"I've just oiled the cylinder, Shirley, old man," remarked the helpful friend, with a grin of pleasure on his countenance.

The motorist became angrier and shorter of breath. His hand went to his head and he grew red with vexation. For a moment he battled with his temper.

"Good heavens!" he gurgled eventually. "That wasn't the cylinder. It was my ear you were oiling."—London Answers.

Jell Time.

There's jelly in the chafing dish
And every old flower pot;
There's jelly in the dipper and
In every glass we've got;
There's jelly in the teacups,
And there's jelly in the sink.
A feller's up against it when
He wants to take a drink.
There's jelly in each parlor vase
And the tobacco jar;
There's jelly in the beer steins
That we stole down at Pete's bar.

There's jelly in the washtube and
In all the stewpans, too.
The fireless cooker's full of it,
And still she isn't through.
Receptacles are all full now.
I have a haunting fear
I'll wake some morn and find that she Poured jelly in my ear.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

True Often Enough.

At the railway surgeons' dance in Philadelphia recently Dr. E. C. Bush of Zanesville told, apropos of operating fanatics, a little story.

"Two old fellows," he began, "were talking at a seaside sanitarium about their ailments.

"'My doctor,' said the first, 'wanted to operate on me, but the consulting surgeon vetoed it.'

"'Vetoed it, eh? Why?' said the second as he watched a fishing boat rocking on the blue waves.

"'He considered,' was the answer, 'that I wasn't wealthy enough to stand such a serious and difficult operation.'"—Philadelphia North American.

Smart Cub.

"I have a big story!" puffed the cub reporter as he tore into the office.

"What is it?" asked the city editor.

"Woman arrested for shoplifting," replied the cub.

"That's no big story," said the C. E.

"Yes, it is," insisted the cub. "This woman was not young and beautiful; she was not the wife of a wealthy business man, and she was not a leader in her social set."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An Ideal.

I know a little girl, and she
Sure thinks an awful lot of me.
She does not love me for my pelf,
But wholly, simply for myself.
She flaunts no artificial wiles,
Her hair's her own, so are her smiles,
She never paints, she never flirts,
And she despises hobble skirts.
She's quiet, and she's never bold—
But she is only five years old.

A BIG GOLD BRICK

The Trap That Jernegan Baited With Salt Sea Water.

SCHEME OF A CLEVER ROGUE.

The Smooth Swindler and His Accomplice Showed How Easily They Could Extract Gold From the Ocean—Fleeced Their Dupes and Then Decamped.

Various inventors have been working for years on the theory that there is plenty of gold in sea water if only some process of extraction could be developed.

Some years ago the Rev. Prescott J. Jernegan was the salt water wizard of the hour. From the day his bubble burst and he left for Europe nobody seems to know what has become of him. Jernegan, who posed as a clergyman, and C. E. Fisher, once a floorwalker in a New York department store and before that a diver, got together in the fall of 1896 and for a whole year carefully considered the problem of extracting gold from salt water. It is true, their whole field of thought compassed the use of salt water as an accessory only, the real material from which the gold was to be extracted being the American people.

Very artistically Jernegan, to whom was left the matter of publicity, permitted some vague rumors to leak out. "A leading clergyman had a marvelous money making device. The world was soon to be stunned by a fact that would make the possessor of the original secret so rich that all the multimillionaires would be paupers in comparison." When they had stirred up public curiosity Jernegan and Fisher went to New England and there set up some mysterious machinery.

On Narragansett bay was an old half dismantled wharf, and at the sea end of this the two erected a cheap frame shanty about 8 by 10 in size, with a square hole cut through the floor and looking directly down into about fifteen feet of water. An electric wire from a small battery was run along the piling of the wharf and attached to a mysterious box, with heavy iron clamps and holes all through to permit of free passage of the water back and forth.

Finally the great secret was divulged. These two men had discovered a way of taking all the gold they wanted from the salt water at a cost so trifling that it was ridiculous to mention it. Two wealthy persons, one a Providence jeweler and the other a New York florist, were approached by Jernegan with what seemed to be such a trustful and childlike proposal that they both embraced it eagerly. It was that, all his apparatus being ready for experiment, they would come to the shanty on the wharf prepared to go through a night's vigil and witness the result, accompanied by any scientific friends they cared to bring along.

The idea, as outlined by Jernegan, was to send a current into a pan of mercury held within the box, the receptacle then being sent to the bottom of the sea and drawn up after several hours, when it would be found that the mercury had absorbed gold from the ocean.

When the night of the experiment came the box was prepared in the shanty, two chemists, friends of the capitalists, bringing their own mercury with them. The box was lowered to the bottom, and then the party of five began their wait. Soon after daylight Jernegan announced that it was time to draw the box up again. This was done, and the whole party eagerly set to work to find out whether any gold had been received. When the chemists announced that gold to the value of $14 was found mixed with the quicksilver all were stunned by the discovery and realized at once the vast possibilities in more extensive operations, the original experiment having been practically made with a toy apparatus.

The story spread like wildfire, and the modest Jernegan was prevailed upon to organize a company. Stock was sold, and after getting possession of thousands of dollars the promoter sailed away to Europe. The success of the great experiment was explained afterward. Fisher, the diver, had gone out from the shore in his diving suit, opened the box and, taking out the mercury that had been brought by the chemists, substituted a vial of his own that had been strongly impregnated with gold.

Both before and since the Jernegan fraud many attempts have been made to extract gold from salt water, some of them fraudulent, some genuine and based on scientific grounds that have from time to time appealed even to deep students. But all so far have failed dismally. Though traces of gold are to be found in salt water, commercial application is practically impossible.—New York Press.

A Constant Sufferer.

"Is your mother a suffragette, Robert?"

"Yep, she's always suffering. If it ain't with her shoes or her corset it's because somebody that owes her an invitation had a party and didn't ask her to it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Root of All Evil.

As a general thing when a man and his wife fall out over money it is a sign that he has it and she wants it, or she has it and he wants it, or neither has it and both want it.—Galveston News.

Fortune gives many too much, but no one enough.—Laberius.

"Doctor, isn't your bill rather high?"

GET WHAT YOU WANT.

You Can Finally Grasp It if You Are Persistent and Patient.

Get what you want in this world. It's here waiting for you. All you have to do is to reach for it. If you reach hard enough and far enough and long enough you'll get it, no matter what it is you want.

Suppose you are foolish enough to want great wealth. You can get it. But to get it you must make up your mind that you want wealth; that you want it above everything else in the world.

Observe an industrious alien with a pushcart. He wants $1,000. He sleeps in a cellar. He rises at 4. He works till 10 at night. He denies himself food to save. Some day he will have his thousand dollars.

"But," you protest, "I can't sleep in a cellar. I'm above running a pushcart." Very well, then. There is little likelihood that you will ever be rich. There are other things that you want more than wealth—your comfort, your social position.

Suppose you are more sensible. Suppose that it is success you want. Good! There are few joys in this world that can compare with the joy of achievement. Set your mark and start climbing toward it. You'll reach it if you keep at it. Be persistent and be patient. If you are in Maine you can't wish yourself in California. You can't get there overnight, either. But you'll get there some time if you start, and keep going, even if you go on your hands and knees.

But remember this: No man ever climbs higher than the mark he sets himself. No man ever reaches the top walking sideways. No man achieves who keeps turning back.

And one thing more:

Pick your apple carefully before you start to climb the tree. Some apples are sour.—William Johnston in American Magazine.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

CITIZENS NOT FOLLOWING GARBAGE BY-LAW REGULATIONS

Sanitary Inspector May be Forced to Take Cases to Police Court

In spite of the notices that recently appeared in the press with reference to the keeping of garbage separate from other refuse, it is found that householders continue to violate the by-law in this respect. Whether this should be attributed to pure "cussedness" or carelessness it is difficult to say, but in either case it has reached such a degree that the Sanitary Inspector feels that severer measures will have to be taken to enforce this particular clause of the garbage by-law, though such a course is repugnant to him. It seems that the cry of "wolf" has been raised so often that the familiarity of the warning has bred contempt.

Of course it was recognized from the beginning that the garbage collection system for the first year would meet with difficulties, and that the public would have to be educated up to the principles that such a measure involved; but after nine months' education the results are not flattering to the pupils' aptitude. The custodian of the dump is constantly finding matter in the collectors' loads that should have been consigned to the garbage can.

It seems a favorite habit with householders to wrap up entrails of fowls, meat, etc., in paper and deposit them with the ashes, with the result that the garbage men, innocently or otherwise, deposit them at the dump, and if it were not for the careful manipulation of the man in charge there, one can imagine what conditions would prevail in the spring. It is permissible to deposit clean material only at the dumping ground, and the public should understand that the garbage collectors have no more privilege in this respect than other carters, and are just as liable to prosecution when doing the contrary.

GARBAGE EXPLAINED.

For the benefit of those who are not yet cognizant of the meaning of the word "garbage," be it known that garbage constitutes edible refuse of every kind; To be more explicit—bones, meat, cooked or raw, entrails, legs and heads of fowl, fish, fruit, vegetables, peelings, in fact everything in the nature of waste food is garbage, and must be kept in a covered garbage can, and not be mixed with ashes, crockery, tins and other refuse.

A WARNING

The by-law is perfectly clear on this point and violation of the clause renders the offender on conviction liable to a fine of ten dollars and costs. The Sanitary Inspector is very reluctant to prosecute—indeed it should not be necessary for him to do so—but the law must be respected, and unless the above conditions are adhered to no other recourse is left to him.

One more point in connection with the collection of garbage which requires comment is this—not to put the receptacles out until the morning of the day of collection. The justification of this clause is palpable. If put out the night before during the cold weather, the contents freeze and the collectors have to leave it behind, because it is quite impossible to empty the receptacles.

Don't hurt anyone who likes you. As you grow older you will find they are pitifully few in number.

Music and Drama

Jake Tannenbaum owns a theatre in Mobile. Furthermore, he exercises great care in his scrutiny of the bills any company wishes to present in his house. One morning he received from a celebrated Shakespearean actor the list of plays to be put on during a run of seven days. "I see here 'Romeo and Juliet,'" said Jake, running his finger down the list, "and I will stand for that. But I shrink when I think of that fellow playing Romeo. And here's 'Hamlet.' No living man can play Hamlet as he should be played. And here is 'Othello'!" At this point Mr. Tannenbaum leaped out of his chair and hung on the ambient atmosphere a long and lingering groan. "It is too much," he cried, in anguish "I am no fanatic. I am not a crazy man on the race question. But I'm a son of a gun if I'm going to have in my theatre any black man handing out a lot of mushy talk to a white woman!"

While the cities of Canada to-day may plume themselves on entertaining a good many more celebrities "within their midst" than in the days when they were young, it is made occasionally apparent that they enjoyed enviable privileges in the past. Recently the Toronto Globe reprinted an item from its issue of January 7th, 1863, which read as follows:

> Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson will deliver two lectures on Monday and Tuesday evenings next, under the auspices of the Ontario Literary Society, Mr. Emerson is one of the most prominent thinkers of the day, a man of great original genius and a pleasing an instructive lecturer.

The future fame of Emerson was not then suspected in this country, and the term "pleasing and instructive lecturer," seems tame in comparison with what a modern press agent would have said under similar circumstances.

Charles Klein's "The Gamblers" which remained at Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York, for over 200 consecutive performances and was conceded the greatest success among serious dramas produced last season will come here shortly under the management of The Authors' Producing Company.

In this play the defaulter's act is not condoned in spite of the fact that he is made loveable. The methods of bank looters are bared and the folly of crime in business is distinctly shown in the personal abasement that comes to each participant. The great point of interest is the coming together of the defaulter and the wife of the attorney for the prosecution who formerly had been lovers and had been separated by circumstances. Thus, it is not primarily a drama of moral purposes although that purpose is not absent, but one of sentiment. In other words the sentimental situation is not unfamiliar, but the circumstances and the treatment are.

In this we have a drama of sentiment and situation. The incidents and detail are so cumulative that the action is instinct with life and character and emotion and comedy as well. As a production it is said to reach the high water mark.

Laurie Ordway, an English comedienne, is proving a strong card on Western Vaudeville Managers' Association time, rendering numbers that rank with the masterpieces in songs brought to America by foreign artists.

Nan Halperin, featured in William B. Friedlander's tabloid production, The Suffragettes, is to be seen in a $1.50 show with the title The Princess. Miss Halperin is considered one of the cleverest women of musical-comedy-vaudeville.

"Snoozer" is a bulldog, being displayed on the Orpheum Circuit by Ed. Meredith. His intelligence leads the critics of the West to discourse at great length on his excellent training. "Snoozer" seems to know how to entertain a vaudeville audience as well as his master.

Supreme Court Justice Cohalan has set aside the verdict of a jury for $2,500 in favor of Percy Darrell Standing and against William A. Brady, for alleged breach of contract. Brady's defense was that he offered the actor a part in "The Nigger," which Standing refused to accept. The contract showed that the plaintiff was bound to play any part assigned to him by Brady.

Anna Held Ziegfeld filed judgment in the Supreme Court of New York against her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld, for $3,045 on notes executed by her husband in Paris in 1910.

Fire destroyed relics of the poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, including letters from notables all over the world, and manuscripts were burned or seriously damaged by smoke and water, which partly consumed the building occupied by the Whittier House Association, at Amherst, Mass. Only a small part of the collection of relics, with which the house was filled, was saved.

The recital here next week at the Conservatory of Music by Miss Agnes Black, of Boston will be a rare dramatic treat and should draw a large audience. Tickets may be secured from the Peterborough Music Company and at Greene's Music Emporium.

The Montreal Opera Company has announced the operas to be produced during the first week of its three weeks stay at the Royal Alexandre Theatre, which commences on February 10th. The entire repertoire of the company this season embraces twenty operas, and those to be given during the first week will demonstrate the choicest flower of both the French and Italian schools. The first performance in Toronto of Massenet's opera, "Herodiade," founded on the Salome legend, will herald the engagement, and other works to be produced during that week will be Verdi's superb opera "Aida."

At Narobi, British East Africa, a son was born to Mrs. Mervyn Beech who was once known to playgoers as Stella Campbell, who is a daughter of Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

The audience at the Mehesy Theatre, in Salt Lake City, Utah, was given a scare by the falling of some wet plaster. Several of the audience made a break for the doors, but what might have been a serious panic was averted by the presence of mind of Miss Conway, the head usher who rushed among the patrons informing them of the cause of the trouble, and soon had the house quieted. No one was hurt. The trouble was caused by a leaky drain pipe in the roof.

When Haddon Chambers, the author of Passers-by, completes the remaining two acts of the new play Charles Frohman commissioned him to write, Ethel Barrymore will be given a unique type of stage heroine to play. Mr. Chambers's half finished play is founded on the novel Tante. Miss Barrymore's part will be that of a very marriageable young woman who revels in excitement. Is there any one that has not met one of those women who live on excitement; who do not in the least mind an automobile accident, a house on fire, or even a near shipwreck, if only the calamity affords her a good acting part, preferably the centre of the stage: Such will be the chief character in Mr. Chambers's next play. She is a kind of public scene lover; unconsciously believing that a calamity at home is worth two in the newspapers.

Lillian Russell, the noted actress, punched the bag with much dexterity at the Kinemacolor studios a few days ago, as a portion of her initial set of films which she will use as hints for health. However, the actress has signed new contracts with the Kinemacolor company for La Tosca and other famous plays in which she has appeared.

SPLENDID PLAY BY EXCELLENT CO.

On Monday evening there will be presented at the Grand Wm. A. Brady's production of "Little Women." Local theatre-goers should avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing this splendid play which will be presented by the same company intact as played The Royal Alexandre Theatre, Toronto, Christmas week, to capacity audiences at every performance. The play is perfectly staged, attention being paid to every little detail and the company is one of exceptional merit. The attraction is personally guaranteed by the management of "The Grand." 50

FREE LECTURES AT RED MILL

There will be interesting services to-morrow (Sunday) at 3 o'clock and at 8 o'clock, in The Red Mill Theatre. The International Bible Students' Association has made arrangements for Mr. Perrin, Bible scholar and lecturer, to give two lectures, illustrated by a large chart. The object of the lectures is to stimulate Christians and others to a study of the Bible. The Association has arranged for similar lectures throughout the county, and at all of them seats are free and no collection is lifted. To the lectures to-morrow all are welcome.

CAPT. KINGSFORD GAVE LECTURE

Captain Kingsford, the officer in charge of the Instructional Staff for Ontario, visited Peterborough last night and delivered a very interesting lecture at the Armories, the subject being, "The Employment of Cavalry." The meeting was well attended and very interesting. The principals laid down were explained by reference to the operations of General Jackson and those opposed to him in Northern Virginia during the earlier part of the American Civil War.

WOMEN WERE BANQUETED

The Women's Association of St. John's Church entertained 125 women Wednesday evening. The affair was along the lines adopted by the Laymen's Missionary gatherings and was a splendid success. After a sumptuous repast, an enjoyable program was given.

REV. DR. SMITH SPEAKS TO-MORROW

Rev. Dr. Smith, the representative of Peterborough Methodists in China who has been in furlough, is making his farewell visit to this city and speaks in Charlotte street church Sunday morning, and at St. James in the afternoon and evening. Dr. Smith returns to China the first week in February.

Gospel Lectures

Those dear ones dead, not good enough for Heaven, yet not so very bad—what hope for them? Hear "The Great Hereafter." 'Twill ease the mind and cheer the heart. Speaker, J. H. Perrin, I.B.S.A. Sunday, Jan. 19, 3 and 8 p.m. Red Mill Theatre, George street. Seats free. No collection.

Band Sunday

To-morrow will be the annual Band Sunday at the Salvation Army. Special music will be rendered by the band commencing to-night and the services throughout Sunday will be in the nature of a big musical festival. Open air music will also be liberally provided.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT THE SECOND PRESENTATION

A capacity house attended "Alice In Wonderland" at the Grand last night and with one night's experience before an audience, the production went along with a snap and vim, almost professional. The encores were frequent and Miss Jessie Spence, the role of Miss Ragtime, after returning many times was greeted with a beautiful bouquet of carnations, tied with pink ribbon. It is perhaps not fair to pick any one or two out, so perfectly did they all carry out their parts, of which a great deal of credit is due to Miss D. Hope Leonard and Col. Bragg. After the performance the principals and sextettes were taken in flash light on the stage.

CHORAL SOCIETY GAVE PROGRAM

The regular concert of the St. St. George's Society was held last night in the Sons of England Hall. Mr. W. Stocker presiding.

The entire program was given by the St. George's Choral Society, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The following was the program:

Pianoforte Duett—Messrs. C. and R. J. Devey.
Laughing Chorus—The Choir.
Song—Miss Daisy Sharman.
Violin solo—Mr. Hartshorn.
Song—Mr. George Allen.
Song—Mr. Wells.

Accompanists—Miss Flowers, Mr. Cyril Devey and Mr. R. J. Devey.

C COMPANY ENTERTAINED

About a hundred couples swayed over the floor of the band room of the armories to the strains of Tucker's Orchestra at the most successful Second Annual Ball given by the Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and members of C. Company of the 57th Regiment last night. The guests included Col. and Mrs. Clegg, Major and Mrs. Mills, Capt. and Mrs. Carruthers, Capt. McLean, Capt. Langford, Lieut. Henry and officers of the 3rd Dragoons. About midnight refreshments were served by the wives of the members of C Company.

BIBLE CLASS OF EIGHT HUNDRED

To-morrow afternoon at 2.30 Mr. Wood, of Seattle, will give a short address at the Charlotte street Methodist church Men's Bible Class, telling of the organization of John Rockefeller's Bible Class of 800 men. Also of other big Bible classes he has known in big cities. Rev. T. J. Mansell will teach the lesson, "Man's First Sin". All men are invited.

TURKEY WILL HOLD NATIONAL ASSEMBLY ON WAR QUESTION

May Mean Further Concessions to the Balkan States.

Government Determined Not to Give up Adrianople.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Jan. 20— A news agency despatch from Constantinople says Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro to-day presented an ultimatum to Turkey giving the Porte fourteen days in which to make a favorable reply to their demands.

London, Jan. 20.—The Bulgarian Premier has telegraphed the Bulgarian peace delegates, giving them full power to break off negotiations with Turkey when in their opinion they become useless.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Porte's decision to call a National Assembly on Tuesday to take under advisement the Balkan situation probably heralds further concessions on the part of Turkey—concessions which could not be yielded by the Cabinet without risking its fall. In any case, the Balkan delegates in London do not believe that the Porte's reply to the joint note of the powers will be such a flat refusal as foreshadowed from Constantinople.

Yesterday's despatches reported that the Turkish Government had reached a decision not to cede Adrianople or the Aegean Islands, but was willing to enter into negotiations respecting those islands some distance removed from the Dardanelles. If Turkey's answer is unsatisfactory, the allies, in deference to Europe, will ask the powers whether they have means to compel Turkey to comply with their wishes. If not, the allies will carry out the plan already announced, leading to the resumption of the war.

In such event, the allies will regard all concessions heretofore made for the sake of peace, either to Turkey or the powers, as void. Thus they will not recognize the undertaking consenting to an autonomous Albania, or the promise of Servia and Montenegro to retire from the Adriatic.

Opposed to Concessions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 20.—The Turkish Foreign Minister, Noradunghian Effendi, Saturday night submitted to the Council of Ministers a draft of the reply to the note of the powers. It is understood that it insists upon the retention of Adrianople for the following reasons:

First, because the Bulgarian inhabitants are in the minority in Adrianople, not only in comparison with the Moslems, but as compared with other Christians. Second, because of the splendid defence of the garrison. Third, the loss of Adrianople, containing the temples of the Caliphs, would ruin the prestige of Islam. Fourth, the loss of Adrianople, which is the gate of Constantinople, would endanger the existence of the empire.

"The Porte therefore prays," continued the reply, "that the powers take consideration of the vital necessities of the empire and make representations to the Balkan States, with a view to peace. Turkey sincerely desires to find a common ground of understanding and will even consent to fresh sacrifices."

Regarding the Aegean Islands, the reply says that Turkey refuses to abandon the islands near her coasts, but is ready to continue pourparlers respecting the distant islands.

Noradunghian Effendi has instructed the Ottoman ambassadors abroad again to sound the powers with regard to Adrianople. The Superior Council of War has handed the Council of Ministers a report on the military situation.

FANNY WARD DIVORCED BY WEALTHY HUSBAND

FANNY WARD

A decree of divorce has been granted in London against the American actress Fanny Ward, of St. Louis, on the petition of her husband, Joseph Lewis, the wealthy South African. The suit was undefended.

Mrs. Lewis has appeared in many plays, both in Europe and America. Her collection of jewels is one of the most famous in England.

ONE YEAR AND TWENTY LASHES

Married Man With Family Assaulted Young Woman

Brockville, Jan. 20.—Clarence Langley, a married man of twenty-two years, with a wife and two children, was sentenced by Judge McDonald to one year at hard labor in the Central Prison, and to receive twenty lashes for indecently assaulting Maud Hewitt, a young woman, early on the morning of January 1. The assault was committed in the Holiness Movement Church at Glenmore, following a watchnight service. Ten lashes will be imposed one month after admission to the prison and the other ten three months later.

ROBBER IS IDENTIFIED

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—J. C. Edwards, a clerk in the Buffalo office of the Grand Trunk Railroad, identified Wm. Manogue yesterday as the man who robbed the Buffalo ticket office of $327, on Dec. 23.

Manogue is under arrest here, charged with holding up the Boston and Albany ticket office, last week and is wanted in Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia in similar cases.

Three Schooners Aground.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 20.—The coal steamer Evelyn, from Philadelphia to Key West, with coal for the navy, was driven hard aground off Cape Henry early Saturday in a southwest gale. Captain Hecker and his crew were taken off safely. The schooner, General White, from Mobile, was driven aground and an unknown schooner was sunk. The crew later were rescued.

BRIAND IS PREMIER

He is Busy Forming New French Cabinet.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Although M. Briand, the Minister of Justice on whom President Fallieres imposed the task of forming a Cabinet, was busy throughout Sunday, interviewing the political leaders, he has not completed his arrangements, and cannot give a definite answer to the President until to-morrow. However, his acceptance of the Premiership is now regarded as certain.

President-elect Poincare, yesterday attended the professional jubilee celebration of his old teacher, the academician Ernest Lavisse, at the Sobonne.

France Shakes Up Diplomats.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Various diplomatic and consular changes were announced yesterday. Henri Merou, consul-general at San Francisco, is retired on a pension, Raphael Monnet, now consul at Newcastle, Eng., replacing M. Merou. Baron de Vaux Moisson, secretary at Mexico, is appointed second secretary at Havana and M. Ayguesparsse, third secretary at Mexico.

LIFELONG WORKER AMONG THE LEPERS IS STRICKEN

But Sir George Turner Will Not Abandon His Work.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Although Sir George Turner is afflicted with leprosy as the result of his heroic self-sacrifice he has no intention of abandoning active work among the sufferers of the disease. He has decided to devote the remainder of his life to lepers and has offered his services to the mission to lepers in India and the East, but it is felt there is greater scope for his work in South Africa, where he knows all the conditions. He will probably return to that field of labor. He is full of brave hope to do something more for his fellow-sufferers.

Sir George Turner, interviewed, said his treatment of lepers so far had been on the general principle of making the lepers more comfortable and in retarding the advance of the disease. There was a great possibility, however, that some remedy might be found. "Generally speaking," he said, 'people have a very erroneous idea with regard to the contagiousness of leprosy. In my opinion leprosy usually, if not always, is spread by contagion, but most lepers are not nearly so dangerous to the public as a person suffering from phthisis."

Ironworkers to Meet in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 20.—The annual convention of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers will be held here Feb. 24, it was announced Saturday by J. E. McClory, acting secretary-treasurer.

The convention was to have been held in Milwaukee last September, but was postponed because of the trials of thirty-two labor leaders in the "dynamite conspiracy."

At the convention questions arising out of the convictions of the leaders will be considered.

RIVER IS ON A RAMPAGE

Serious Damage is Caused by Floods—Crops Ruined.

CHATHAM, Jan. 20.—As a result of the floods in the river Sydenham at Wallaceburg, due to heavy rains, the tug Maude early Saturday broke loose from her moorings and drifted down stream, crashing into the Duncan street bridge. The force of the collision swung the bridge open and the tug went through, lodging against the Pere Marquette bridge further down, closely followed by a freight boat, which, after striking the bridge, sank in thirty feet of water. The barge Belknap and the tug Roney also broke loose, striking the Duncan street bridge, forced the swing shut, and jammed there. The south approach of the bridge is demolished and the ice piled five feet high in places. Cellars and stores are flooded.

Grand River Subsides.

GALT, Ont., Jan. 20.—The Grand River flood which came on Saturday, suddenly and unexpectedly, somewhat subsided yesterday. Beyond flooding cellars abutting on the stream, no damage was done. But oldest inhabitants say that midwinter flood is invariably followed by heavy and disastrous spring freshets. Not a pound of ice have been stored in Galt this winter, and if the weather keeps open, it will mean importation of 5,000 tons to supply the town next summer.

Ohio's Rise Ruins Crops.

GOLCONDA, Ills., Jan. 20.—The rise of the Ohio River is causing the most damage to live stock and crops since the flood of 1884, according to reports received here. The river rose nine inches in the last 24 hours. Thousands of bushels of corn and many head of hogs and cattle have been destroyed.

CONDUCTOR KILLED WHEN ENGINE STARTS SUDDENLY

Fractured Rib Punctured the Heart and Lungs Causing Instant Death.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 20.—George Pennock, a G.T.R. conductor, residing in Brockville, was killed yesterday morning a few miles west of Thousand Island Junction.

The engineer mistaking the approach of a west bound train for a signal to stop, applied the emergency brakes. A few seconds later, noticing his mistake, he opened the throttle wide again. In the meantime Pennock had gone to the door of his caboose to throw out a fusee to flag No. 8 express, following closely.

The sudden shock of getting under motion, threw him violently against the railing, breaking his ribs, which punctured the heart and lungs, causing instant death.

Pennock's body was picked up between the tracks. He was one of the oldest conductors in this section of the line. He leaves a widow and grown-up family.

Jaurez Lines Repaired.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 20.—After burning many bridges on both railroads between Jaurez and Chihuahua City, rebels have permitted the repairing of the telegraph lines. This enables them to use the wires for their own purposes, and at the same time hear all that is transmitted by the federals. No attempt has been made to repair either road.

MRS. J. B. HARRIMAN GOING INTO BUSINESS.

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is to convert her beautiful country home, Uplands, at Mount Kisco, Westchester county, N. Y., into a rest cure for invalids. The illness of Mr. Harriman, she is quoted as having told friends, induced her to take this step.

Under the arrangements as announced Mrs. Harriman will devote nearly all of her time to the exclusion of the social and civic activities which have claimed most of her time in the past, to the management of her rest cure and will have a physician to minister to her patients.

Mrs. Harriman has been one of the leaders in New York society for several years and recently has devoted much of her time to women's political affairs and to civic betterment.

ROWELL GIVES VERSION OF TAXATION BLOCKADE

Comparing Sir James Whitney's Regime to That of the Family Compact, He Declares That the Province is up in Arms For a New Assessment Act.

BRIGHT, Ont., Jan. 20.—"Why are we forced to obey the autocratic assumption of a dictator?" asked N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Liberal Opposition in Ontario, at a meeting here, which is the north border town of his own constituency. He assailed Sir James Whitney for what the speaker termed his reactionary methods on the question of assessment reform, and declared the writing was on the wall for all opponents of needed tax reform.

Mr. Rowell deplored what he characterized as the tendency of the present administration to belittle self-government and to hold back reforms for no particular reason. "Why cannot we have this legislation in this province?" he asked. "Why cannot we have it?" he reiterated, amid applause. "Cannot we manage our own affairs? Are not we supposed to legislate for ourselves? The reasons are that we have a dictator who is determined to force his own whims and fancies upon us but has no ear for public needs. How long are the people going to stand it? We have never been subjected to such systems since the days of the Family Compact.

"We had experts appear before our House committee for the express purpose of telling us how we could eliminate the grievances voiced all over the country, but Sir James Whitney was away on a holiday, and unfortunately he came back before we had come to that stage where we could have handed in a recommendation to the Government. He was in the Parliament building while these men were giving evidence, but did not bother himself to hear them, until one morning he called and practically ordered the committee to throw out the bills."

Mr. Rowell read a long list of names of cities, towns and townships, there being 217 bodies of different shades of opinion, 119 labor organizations, 169 newspapers, Conservative and Liberal. "And yet," he said, "Sir James says there is no demand. These petitions have been filed at the Parliament buildings, and he can see them if he will take the trouble. Mustn't that man be blind to these appeals of the people? But he doesn't stay there, he says, 'you don't need it. There is no demand for it, if the assessors in the province would properly administer the act.'"

E. W. Nesbitt, M.P., also addressed the meeting.

TWO CENTS MAY BE ADDED TO THE PRICE OF BREAD

It is announced in Toronto that the price of bread has jumped from ten to twelve cents.

Local bakers have been looking for such a move for some time and it is probable that by spring, they too will ask 12 cents. The higher price is being paid at points not such a great distance from Peterborough. Lindsay people for instance have been paying 12 cents so long that it has become a habit.

A prominent baker told the Review to-day that while the price of flour was the lowest for some time, the bread dealers had contracted at a high price and when it was thought that a further advance would be made.

It is said that several of the local bakers are having a hard time to make both end meet and their operations are nothing more than a daily struggle to continue business. The local bakers have no association and this partly accounts for the lower price of 10 cents.

WANTED TO END HIS LIFE

His Comrade of Years Died From Pneumonia

Toronto, Jan. 20.—Grief stricken over the death of a comrade whose friendship he had enjoyed unbroken for 12 years, Private Edward Fraser of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, turned a rifle on himself. He is in the Military Hospital.

Fraser's comrade in war and peace was Private George Shandley of the Royal Canadian Regiment, who died suddenly of pneumonia.

When the unexpected news was [illegible] he became crazed with grief, and before anyone could anticipate his purpose, seized his rifle and slipping a cartridge into the breech pulled the trigger. Last night it was stated his recovery was expected.

PRISONER CONFESSES HE MADE ARSON HIS BUSINESS

Isador Stein, Known as Izzy the Painter, Was in the Habit of Receiving Clients on the Street Corner—Efforts Being Made to Get Men "Higher Up" in the Traffic.

CHICAGO HAS TRUST TOO

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Additions to the striking revelations for which arson for profit is practiced in this city, furnished by "Izzy the Painter," the convict firebug informer, were made by him yesterday to the district attorney, whose office spent a busy Sunday preparing for the examination of witnesses in the "arson trust" investigation by the grand jury to-day when more indictments may be returned.

"Izzy," who is more formally known as Isador Stein, continues to tell of fires that he made throughout the city, giving facts and circumstances with the greatest detail and accuracy, says a statement from Assistant District Attorney Weller last night. The accuracy of so many of Stein's statements as shown by comparison with the official records, is gratifying to the prosecuting officials as making easier the task of securing necessary corroborative evidence against men "higher up" in the "trust."

Stein, who, according to the authorities, has confessed to setting more than fifty fires, told the district attorney that the vicinity of a fire engine house was preferred as the location of a fire. Mr. Weller's statement said, as when no alarm was turned in it took longer for information about the fire to get to the fire marshall's office giving time for the odor of gasoline or benzine used by the firebug to disappear.

Stein says that more than 100 people have asked him to make fires for them since he came to this city in 1907, the statement adds. "Stein says that while standing on the street corner, two or three people each day would ask him to make a fire for them." In one case a man told Stein that he wanted to have a fire, but that he could not have it until the following week, because he wanted to move out his new piano. Accordingly the piano was moved out and Stein went ahead.

Chicago's Arson Trust.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Revelations Saturday in an all-day investigation of the "arson trust" by the states attorney concerned at least five persons in a fire fraud scheme, which involved several big fires in Chicago and other cities. A number of witnesses were examined and their testimony will be presented to the grand jury.

Included in the list of suspected men in Benjamin Fink, alias Finkelstein, alias Franklin, now in custody under suspicion of being one of the leaders of a nation-wide gang of incendiaries.

BABES BURNED

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 20.—In a fire believed to be of incendiary origin in a frame tenement house here yesterday, a woman and her two children were trapped on the third floor and burned to death. Two men were injured, one probably mortally, by jumping from a third storey window.

Mrs. Louis Simbro and her two daughters, two months and four years of age respectively, are dead. Rafeal Murillo, a boarder, is in the hospital in a critical condition. The charred bodies of mother and children were found in the ruins.

BORDEN IS INDISPOSED

Premier Has Slight Attack of Influenza.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—The Cabinet sat practically all day Saturday, but Premier Borden had no announcement to make at its close.

There will be no naval talk this week, and there is practically no change in the political situation, at least upon the surface. Tuesday is mentioned as the day when the opposition will hold a caucus to discuss the party's future attitude towards the naval bill, but this by no means is definite according to Liberals who were about the lobbies last night.

Premier Borden has a slight attack of influenza and will likely be kept out of the House for a few days.

Chicago Garment Workers May Strike.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Threats of 40,000 Chicago garment workers to walk out in sympathy with the New York strikers became positive Saturday. A strike committee, composed of business agents of local unions, was appointed and empowered to manage the details.

At a mass meeting of non-union garment workers, 200 recruits pledged themselves to join the organized workers in case of a strike. Union organizers are said to be working in many big garment factories, urging non-union employes to join the organization.

INFANT BORN PASSING THROUGH SARNIA TUNNEL

DIRIGIBLE CARRIED ON TO A HOUSE

Mechanic Jumped Breaking His Arms and Legs

BERLIN, Jan. 20—The dirigible balloon Schuettelanz, which was forced to land near Potsdam yesterday because of the failure of the elevating rudder, was seized by a cross wind and carried on to a house where it hung, the envelope badly rent, and the balloon otherwise damaged. A mechanic jumped out from an altitude of 60 feet, breaking his arms and legs. The accident followed a three-hours' trip in a high wind.

Passengers Passed the Hat and Contributed $200 as Gift For Child.

SARNIA, Jan. 20.—As a Grand Trunk train was passing through the tunnel under St. Clair River yesterday afternoon there was born by a woman of Italian parentage a baby girl. The woman was traveling alone, knew no words of English, and to learn her name was impossible. Her ticket showed that she was traveling from Toronto to Chicago, and a brief note which she carried indicated that she had intended to reach the metropolis and there present her husband with a smiling daughter. A note indicated that she would be met in Chicago by her husband.

Traveling was too severe a strain for her delicate condition, and as the train was passing through the tunnel the babe arrived. Conductor Callahan was in charge of the train. He passed through the various coaches calling for a physician, but none was among the passengers. A veterinary surgeon, traveling from a Canadian city, offered his services, and because of the absence of one more skilled he was asked to officiate.

The mother objected vigorously when an attempt was made to move her from the train at Port Huron and take her to the hospital. Though she could understand no English, she realized that if she stopped here her husband in Chicago would be disappointed when she failed to arrive, and refused to leave the train.

The passengers became nurses to the child born on the boundary between the two countries and exerted every effort to lend comfort to the mother and infant. A purse of about $200 was collected when a hat was passed among the tourists, and this amount was presented to the infant girl.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"Have you got any peroxide?"

"A little," she answered stiffly.

"Well, I need about a pint, but I'll begin on what you have."

Margaret handed him the bottle. Wesley took a cup, weakened the drug and said to Billy: "Man, these sores on you must be healed. Then you must eat the kind of food that's fit for little men. I am going to put some medicine on you, and it is going to sting like fire. If it just runs off I won't use any more. If it boils there is poison in these places, and they must be tied up, dosed every day, and you must be washed and kept mighty clean. Now, hold still, because I am going to put it on."

"I think the one on my leg is the worst," said the undaunted Billy, holding out a raw place. Sinton poured on the drug. Billy's body twisted and writhed, but he did not run.

"Gee, look at it boil!" he cried. "I guess they's poison. You'll have to do it to all of them."

Sinton's teeth were set as he watched the boy's face. He poured the drug, strong enough to do effective work, on a dozen places over that little body and bandaged all he could. Billy's lips quivered at times, and his chin jumped, but he did not shed a tear or utter a sound other than to take a deep interest in the boiling.

"Now am I clean?" asked Billy.

"Yes, you are clean outside," said Sinton. "There is some dirty blood in your body, and some bad words in your mouth, that we have to get out, but that takes time. If we put right things to eat into your stomach that will do away with the sores, and if you know that I don't like bad words you won't say them any oftener than you can help, will you, Billy?"

Billy leaned against Sinton in apparent indifference.

"I want to see me!" he demanded.

"How long until supper, Margaret?" asked Sinton.

"You are going to keep him for supper?" she asked.

"Sure!" said Sinton. "That's what I brought him for. It's likely he never had a good square meal of decent food in his life. He's starved to the bone."

Margaret arose deliberately, removed the white cloth from the supper table and substituted an old red one she used to wrap the bread. She put away the pretty dishes they commonly used and set the table with old plates for pies and kitchen utensils. But she fried the chicken and was generous with milk and honey, snowy bread, gravy, potatoes and fruit.

Sinton repainted the scratched wheel. He mended the fence, with Billy holding the nails and handing the pickets. Then he filled the old hole, digged a new one and set the hitching post.

Billy hopped on one foot at his task of holding the post steady as the earth was packed round it. There was not the shadow of trouble on his little freckled face. Sinton threw in stones and pounded the earth solid around the post. The sound of a gulping sob attracted him to Billy. The tears were rolling down his cheeks. "If I'd a knowed you'd have to get down in a hole and work so hard I wouldn't 'a' hit the horses," he said.

"Never you mind, Billy," said Sinton. "You will know next time, so you can think over it and make up your mind whether you really want to before you strike."

Sinton went to the barn to put away the tools. He thought Billy at his heels, but the boy lagged on the way. A big, snowy turkey gobbler resented the small intruder in his especial preserves, and with spread tail and dragging wings came at him threateningly. If that turkey gobbler had known the sort of things with which Billy was accustomed to holding his own he never would have issued that challenge. Billy accepted instantly. He danced around with stiff arms at his sides and imitated the gobbler. Then came his opportunity and he jumped on the big turkey's back. Wesley heard Margaret's scream in time to see the flying leap and admire its dexterity. The turkey tucked its tail and scampered. Billy slid from its back and as he fell he clutched wildly, caught the folded tail and instinctively hung on for life. The turkey gave one scream and relaxed its muscles. Then it fled in disgured defeat to the haystack. Billy scrambled to his feet holding the tail, and his eyes were bulging.

"Why, the blasted old thing came off!" he said to Sinton, holding out the tail in amazed wonder.

Sinton, caught suddenly, forgot everything and roared. Seeing which, Billy thought a turkey tail of no account and flung that one high above him, shouting with childish laughter as the feathers scattered and fell.

Margaret, watching, burst into tears. Wesley had gone mad. For the first time in her married life she wanted to tell her mother. When Wesley had waited until he was so hungry he could wait no longer he invaded the kitchen to find a cooked supper baking on the back of the stove, while Margaret with red eyes nursed a pair of demoralized white kittens.

"Is supper ready?" he asked.

"It has been for an hour," answered Margaret.

"Why didn't you call us?"

That "us" had too much comradeship in it. It irritated Margaret.

"I supposed it would take you even longer than that to fix things decent again. As for my turkey and my poor little kittens they don't matter."

"I am mighty sorry about them, Margaret, you know that. Billy is very bright, and he will soon learn"—

"Soon learn!" cried Margaret. "Wesley Sinton, you don't mean to say that you think of keeping that creature here for some time?"

"No; I think of keeping a decent, well behaved little boy."

Margaret set the supper on the table. Seeing the old red cloth, Wesley stared in amazement. Then he understood. Billy capered around in delight.

"Ain't that pretty?" he exulted. "I wish Jimmy and Belle could see. We, why, we ist eat out of our hands or off a old drygoods box, and when we fix up a lot we have newspaper. We ain't ever had a nice red cloth like this."

Wesley looked straight at Margaret, so intently that she turned away, her face flushing. He stacked the dictionary and the geography of the world on a chair and lifted Billy beside him. He heaped a plate generously, cut the food, put a fork into Billy's little fist and made him eat slowly and properly. Billy did his best. Occasionally greed overcame him, and he used his left hand to pop a bite into his mouth with his fingers. These lapses Wesley patiently overlooked and went on with his general instructions. Luckily Billy did not spill anything on his clothing or the cloth. After supper Wesley took him to the barn until he finished the night work. Then he went and sat by Margaret on the front porch. Billy appropriated the hammock and swung by pulling a rope tied around a tree. The very energy with which he went at the work of swinging himself appealed to Wesley.

"Mercy, but he's an active little body!" he said. "There isn't a lazy bone in him. See how he works to pay for his fun."

"There goes his foot through it!" cried Margaret. "Wesley, he shall not ruin my hammock."

"Of course he shan't!" said Wesley. "Wait, Billy; let me show you."

Thereupon he explained to Billy that ladies wearing beautiful white dresses sat in hammocks, so little boys must not put their dusty feet in them. They must just sit in them and let their feet hang down. Billy immediately sat and allowed his feet to swing.

"Margaret," said Sinton after a long silence on the porch, "isn't it true that if Billy had been a half starved sore cat, dog or animal of any sort that you would have pitied and helped care for it and been glad to see me get any pleasure out of it I could?"

"Yes," said Margaret coldly.

"But because I brought a child with an immortal soul there is no welcome."

"That isn't a child. It's an animal."

"You just said you would have welcomed an animal."

"Not a wild one. I meant a tame beast."

"Billy is not a beast," said Wesley hotly. "He is a very dear little boy. Margaret, you've always done the church going and Bible reading for this family. How do you reconcile that 'suffer little children to come unto me' with the way you are treating Billy?"

Margaret arose. "I haven't treated that child. I have only let him alone I can barely hold myself. He needs the hide tanned about off him."

"If you'd cared to look at his body you'd know that you couldn't find a place to strike without cutting into a raw spot," said Sinton. "Besides, Billy has not done a thing for which a child should be punished. He is only full of life, no training and with a boy's love of mischief. He is just a bully little chap, and I love him."

"Oh, good heavens!" cried Margaret, going into the house as she spoke.

CHAPTER XI.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. Sinton Clash Over Billy.

SINTON sat still. At last Billy, tired of the swing, came to him and leaned his slight body against the big knee.

"Am I going to sleep here?" he asked

"Sure you are," said Sinton.

"Where can he sleep?" he asked Margaret.

"I'm sure I don't know," she answered.

"Oh, I can sleep ist any place," said Billy, "on the floor or anywhere. Home I sleep on pa's coat on a store box, and Jimmy and Belle they sleep on the store box too. I sleep between them so's I don't roll off and crack my head Ain't you got a store box and a old coat?"

Sinton arose and opened a folding lounge. Then he brought an armload of clean horse blankets from a closet.

"These don't look like the nice white bed a little boy should have, Billy," he said, "but we'll make them do. This will beat a store box all hollow."

Billy took a long leap for the lounge When he found it bounced he proceeded to bounce until he was tired. By that time the blankets had to be refolded. Wesley had Billy take one end and help, while both of them seemed to enjoy the job. Then Billy lay down and curled up in his clothes like a little dog. But sleep would not come. Finally he sat up. He stared around restlessly. Then he arose, went to Sinton and leaned against his knee. Sinton picked up the boy and folded his arms around him. Billy sighed in rapturous content.

"That bed feels so lost like," he said "Jimmy always jabbed me on one side and Belle on the other, and so I knew I was there."

Billy slid from Sinton's arms and walked toward Margaret until he reached the middle of the room. Then he stopped and at last sat on the floor. Finally he lay down and closed his eyes. "This feels more like my bed; if only Jimmy and Belle was here to crowd up a little so it wasn't so alone like."

"Won't I do, Billy?" asked Sinton in a husky voice.

Billy moved restlessly. "Seems like—seems like—toward night as if a body got kind o' lonesome for a woman person—like her."

Billy indicated Margaret. "You don't like boys, do you?" he questioned.

"I like good boys," said Margaret.

Billy was at her knee instantly. "Well, say, I'm a good boy," he announced joyously.

"I do not think boys who hurt helpless kittens and pull out turkeys' tails are good boys."

"Yes, but I didn't hurt the kittens," explained Billy. "They got mad 'bout ist a little fun and scratched each other. I didn't s'pose they'd act like that. And I didn't pull the turkey's tail. I ist held on to the first thing I grabbed and the turkey pulled. Honest, it was the turkey pulled." He turned to Sinton. "You tell her. Didn't the turkey pull? I didn't know its tail was loose, did I?"

"I don't think you did, Billy," said Sinton.

Billy stared into Margaret's cold face. "Sometimes at night Belle sits on the floor and I lay my head in her lap. I could pull up a chair and lay my head in your lap—like this, I mean." Billy pulled up a chair, climbed on it and laid his head on Margaret's lap. Then he shut his eyes again. Margaret could have looked little more repulsed if he had been a snake.

Billy was soon up.

"My, but your lap is hard," he said "And you are a good deal fatter an Belle, too." He slid from the chair and came back to the middle of the room.

"Oh, but I wisht my pa wasn't dead!" he cried. The flood broke and Billy screamed in desperation.

Out of the night a soft, warm young figure flashed through the door and with a swoop caught him in her arms. She dropped into a chair, nestled him closely and drooped her fragrant brown head over his little bullet eyed red one and rocked softly as she crooned over him:

"Billy, boy, where have you been?
Oh, I have been to seek a wife.
She's the joy of my life.
But, then, she's a young thing, and she can't leave ner mammy!"

Billy gripped her with a death grip Elnora wiped his eyes, kissed his face, swayed and sang.

"Do you love me tight as that?" he questioned blissfully.

"Yes, bushels and bushels," said Elnora. "Better than any little boy in the whole world."

Billy looked at Margaret. "She don't!" he said. "She don't want me here 't all."

Elnora smothered his face against her breast and rocked.

"You love me, don't you?" he said.

"I will if you will go to sleep."

"Every single day you will give me your dinner for the b gns, won't you?" said Billy.

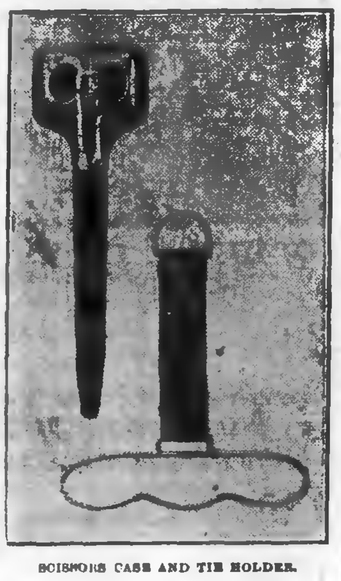
When Shopping For Christmas.

When looking about for Christmas presents, and it is not a bit too early to begin this work, why not buy for a masculine relative or friend one of the new scissors cases, equipped with several pencils and a good fountain pen, or a sporty tie holder which comes this season in the guise of a stirrup. Both of these very useful gifts are to be seen in the illustration.



SCISSORS CASE AND TIE HOLDER.

True.

"Is that so?"

"Sure it is."

"Why?"

"Sign there's going to be a funeral in the family."

Her Age.

"How old is Nellie? Do you know?"

"Yes. If none of the family is around she is twenty-four."

"Otherwise?"

"Well, if her grandmother is present she is thirty-seven."

Acute Dyspepsia

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed [illegible] arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. ACT I.
The infant 'tis who speaketh,
If speech it may be called,
And yet mine ear can only hear
One syllable that's bawled—
"Wa-wa-wah!"

ACT II.
He's grown in childish troubles,
He makes a grievous fuss
And comfort seeks in treble shrieks
In accents sounding thus—
"Ma! Ma-ma!"

SHE TURNED TRAITOR

And Was Glad of It

By GERTRUDE S. VARNEY

When the war between the states broke out I was living on a small plantation—or, rather, a farm, as it would be called in the north—in Georgia and the only girl in a family of seven. I was so bitter a rebel that Bob, the youngest, said I'd better organize a corps of amazons to help repel the invaders.

Father said that if a Yankee soldier smiled on me I'd drop.

"Do you mean to say, pop, that I would ever love a man who had come down here to deprive us of our liberties and take away our property?"

"I wouldn't trust you, Kit, if he had sense enough to flatter you, and more especially if he should enlist your sympathies."

I was so mad at this that I went out to the barn, fearing that I might say something disrespectful.

The invaders kept coming nearer and nearer till at last we had them all about us like pestiferous animals, or, rather, like a flight of locusts or grasshoppers eating up our diminished supplies and burning our fences for their campfires. If I hated them before I now both hated and dreaded them. "I wish," I said, "they had one neck and I could chop their heads off with an ax as I would kill a chicken." Pop only laughed at this.

One morning I was on my way to Aunt Mary's when, crossing a stile, I looked right down into the face of a Yankee asleep. He was very pale, and I noticed that he was handsome. There's something defenseless in one asleep that takes away animosity. I was about to say "poor fellow" when I thought of what pop had said about woman's weakness through her sympathies, and I made up my mind I would show the family that I was of some use in the struggle even if I was only a girl. So I ran back to the house and, taking pop's rifle that stood in a corner behind a door, without saying anything to any one I went back and, aiming the gun at the sleeper, called out:

"Wake up!"

He opened his eyes, but he must have been very much exhausted, for, seeing a girl confronting him, he was going to sleep again.

"Wake up, you horrid Yankee!" I called. "You contemptible, bloodthirsty"—

He opened his eyes once more and moved slightly. An awfully pained expression came over his face, and he put his hand to his side. I noticed blood on his clothes and knew he was wounded. The words "Poor fellow!" came up again, but I checked them on the tip of my tongue and said fiercely—at least I tried to say it fiercely: "Get up. You are my prisoner."

He now began to realize that there was something serious for him in the situation. I was pointing the rifle straight at him. It was cocked and my finger was on the trigger. He raised himself in a sitting posture, supported by one hand on the ground—though I saw it hurt him dreadfully—and, looking me in the eye, said:

"It would be better for me to be killed than captured. I haven't a load in my revolver, and if I had I wouldn't shoot a girl. Fire!"

I heard some one behind me and saw the Yankee's expression change. I turned, and there was pop. He had seen me go out with his rifle and had followed me. He took the weapon from my hands and, seeing that our prisoner was wounded, sent me back for a couple of the neighbors to come and carry him to the house. When we got him there the men searched him and found papers on his person giving the location and strength of the Confederate forces in the neighborhood. He had been chased and shot by our men. Having distanced them, he had fainted where I had found him. Later he had sunk into a slumber.

I heard the men speaking of him as a spy and debating whether they had better hang him to a tree or notify the Confederate general commanding the forces in that region of his capture. Finally one of the men mounted a horse and rode away. I was told he had a long ride before him and wouldn't be back before evening or perhaps by noon the next day. The Yankee was put in a room upstairs at the rear of the house. A man was put on guard at the front door and another one in the rear, under the prisoner's window.

Of course we weren't so inhuman as to leave the man's wound unattended to, and I rode over to a doctor, who came and dressed it. Mother gave me some corn pone to take up to the man for his dinner, and when she went out about something during the afternoon I killed a chicken and made him some broth. He was very grateful to me and said it was the only thing he could have eaten. I was mighty careful to get rid of the remains of the chicken and washed the dishes carefully, fearing that mother would find out what I'd done and would tell father. I wouldn't have him know that I had weakened toward a hated Yankee for anything.

After I had got rid of the evidence of that sympathy father had said would unfit women for soldiers I went back to my prisoner and asked if there was anything else he needed. He said there was. He undoubtedly would be hanged, and he would like me to write a letter to his mother. I saw this would do more to break me down than a hundred guns, and I didn't wish to do it, but I couldn't refuse him, and, getting the materials, I sat down by his bed, and he began to dictate. The very beginning caused me to waiver. "Dearest mother," spoken in a tremulous voice, was like sticking a knife into my heart. He went on to tell her that she must not grieve for him; that he died for his country and had he got through without being captured would have rendered it a great service. I was weak enough to regret that I had been the cause of his capture, and when he came to the last words, "Your loving son who is about to die," I burst into a torrent of tears and sprinkled them on the paper.

This ended the fight for me. My rout was complete. I was ready to turn traitor to my country by assisting in the escape of one of her enemies who might cause the defeat—indeed, the slaughter—of her sons, among whom were my own brothers. To get him out of the house during the day seemed impossible, and by evening the messenger might return with soldiers to take him away. But I was now as hot for the enemy as I had been against him. I looked out of the window. There was the man on guard, sitting on a wood pile with a shotgun between his knees. A wheatfield extended from a few yards of the house to a wood an eighth of a mile away. In the interval there was not a tree or an obstruction of any kind. The wheat had been cut and was stacked on the ground in sheaves. Could anything be more hopeless for an escape?

But that power of duplicity, sympathy, unreasoning antagonism to seeing a fellow creature—especially a man who has awakened the divine spark of love—suffer, had been aroused in me, and I was as ready to do and dare in my field as a man in his. I must act in broad day; I dare not risk waiting for night. I looked at the sheaves and the guard below, and an idea—no, two ideas—came to me like the flash of a gun. Seizing a part of the bed covering, I began to tear it into strips.

"Are you strong enough," I asked the invader, "to let yourself down from the window by this?"

"I am strong enough, sweetheart," he said, his countenance lighting with hope and love, "to do anything you require."

Oh, that word "sweetheart!" It stung me with ecstasy. When I had made a rope long enough to reach nearly from the window to the ground I went downstairs and, taking an empty bucket and giving it to Sam Warder, the guard, who (a crown for my treachery) had asked me to be his wife, asked him to go to the spring across the road in front of the house and bring me some water while I guarded "the detestable Yankee" in his place, and I sealed the iniquity by giving him a Judas kiss.

His absence gave me just time enough to seize one of the sheaves and toss it up to the prisoner, whom I called to the window. He caught it and took it in. Then I returned to the room where he was and unbinding the sheaf put it about him and tied it up again. Then I put one end of the rope of bedclothes into his hands and tied the other end to a leg of the bedstead. This all done, I told the spy to watch by the window and if he saw me disappear, when he heard me give a little shriek, to make the descent and take position in the field as a sheaf of wheat.

Going downstairs again I began to talk to Sam Warder about our affair, putting up my lips near his to tempt him. He begged for a kiss, and after teasing him awhile I told him that if he would come around the corner of the house where there were no windows I would give him one. After a hesitating glance at the prisoner's window he consented—"only for a minute"—and attempted to take the kiss. I gave a little shriek, then allowed him to take me in his arms and give me as many kisses as he liked. When he started to go back to his post I looked at him reproachfully and asked him if he was through so soon. This detained him for a few minutes longer, when, fearing that if I endeavored to keep him further he might suspect my design, I went back with him to the rear of the house. There was the wheatfield, but I could not detect the sheaf which contained the man for whom I had become a double traitor. While my heart was beating wildly I ran upstairs.

The room was empty.

I danced for joy. There would be no hanging. I had undone what I had done for my country and deserved to be hanged instead of the spy. But in a twinkling I had been changed. I would rather suffer death for the prisoner than live for my country. My demoralization was complete.

Later in the day I looked at the wheatfield and saw that one sheaf had fallen on the ground. I knew the man inside it could not stand. I was terrified, for fear some one would go and set it up. In an agony of suspense I waited for darkness to come. It came at last and the messenger did not return till 10 o'clock at night, to find that the spy had escaped.

When the war was over the Yankee spy came back to claim the girl who had saved his life, and the story came out. But I had become shameless. The whole family, remembering my Confederate proclivities when the war began, laughed at me. But father said:

"Kit, you made the kind of a soldier women are fitted to make, and you deserve a medal of honor."

"No," I replied. "I made a coward, a renegade, a traitor and deserve to be hanged, but I'm glad of it."

Not Disturbed.

Two spiders that dwelt in different parts of a church one day chanced to meet and got into deep conversation and asked one another where they lived.

"I live under the pulpit," said No. 1, "and every week I always think I shall be getting killed. The parson bangs his hand down, and I have to get into the smallest corner for fear of getting squashed."

"Oh," said No. 2, "you ought to come and live with me. I never get disturbed from one year end to another."

"Why, where do you live?" asked No. 1.

THE PRESIDENT'S MAIL.

How the Great Mass of Correspondence Is Handled Daily.

The president's mail is of such proportions that he cannot, like the business man, read all his letters as a part of the morning's routine. By a carefully developed system, however, the contents of the White House mail are in substance laid before him each day.

The work of doing this falls upon a corps of confidential clerks, who open the letters and give them a first reading. Then they are carefully sorted. Many of them, of course, need not go to the president at all, since they are simply recommendations for office. These, after courteous acknowledgment, are referred to the proper departments and placed on file until they may be taken up for consideration.

Many of the president's letters are purely formal or contain requests for something which cannot be granted. These the clerks answer and the president's secretary signs. The requests for charity are so many that a special "form" has been drawn up for answering them.

Such communications as the president ought to see are carefully brief—that is, a slip is pinned at the top of each letter, and on this is a typewritten synopsis of its contents, telling who the writer is and what he has to present. Frequently the president is sufficiently interested by the brief to cause him to read the whole letter. Sometimes the communication is referred to a cabinet officer, in which case the slip is retained at the White House and filed.

When a large number of persons write on the same subject the letters are bunched and the brief at the top gives the names of those who present one argument and in another list the persons who offer a different view.—

Many a man who lets his wife get up and light the fire every morning of her life shows his appreciation by erecting a $10 tombstone to her memory.

WINTER PORTS

Inquiry has been made as to the success of the Russian authorities in keeping the port of Vladivostock, Siberia, open in winter, as an indication of what Canada might expect to be able to accomplish at Port Nelson. The reply is that with the assistance of ice-breakers there is no difficulty in keeping a channel open for sea-going vessels all the year round, and hence it is inferred that at Port Nelson, the same thing, if desired might be done. But what we in Canada want to know is, not how to keep the harbor of Port Nelson open, but how to overcome the difficulties and dangers of the passage of Hudson Straits. We all know that on the bay, navigation can be carried on easily for at least five months in the year. The Straits are open hardly more than three months. Great use will some day be made of the bay in connection with the internal commerce of Canada; but as to our export trade, the case is very different. No ice-breakers can keep the Straits clear of icebergs.

CONCERTS IN CHURCHES

The Review is in receipt of a letter from "Observer," protesting against the use of churches for concert purposes. For the reason that the letter is a reproach to a minister and his church, and the writer fails to sign his name, The Review doesn't feel justified in publishing it in full, but following is an extract from it:

"I was also surprised to read the complaint from the reverend gentleman, as I always understood that churches were built for the worship of God. I think it is a desecration of the church, besides the church (and other churches) does not pay taxes, and why should they want to compete against places that are paying taxes and license. If the churches want to go into the concert or theatrical business then they should pay their taxes and take out a license."

The letter was no doubt, written by some person interested in the amusement enterprise, and there is some ground for complaint from those whose business is to cater to the public in an amusement way. Owing to the fact that church societies are able to get the use of the church property for a nominal sum or free, and can "work" some newspapers for more notices for less money than the professional promoter or amusement purveyor, there is a growing desire on the part of concert or amusement companies to use the church as a vehicle to ride into the towns and cities on, instead of performing in Y.M.C.A. auditoriums or licensed theatres and halls.

But there are concerts and concerts, and the Review does not agree with the letter writer who practically says that God cannot be worshipped in song. For the presentation of the "Messiah," "Elijah," and many other oratorios, there is no more suitable or appropriate place than a church. The environment lends effect to the production, and has an uplifting effect on the hearers. Productions of this class should be encouraged; the playing of travelling concert and purely amusement companies in places of public worship should be discouraged.

PROMPTNESS

Promptness in getting out repair work is a specialty with us. Having our own Lens Grinding Plant enables us to replace almost any kind of lenses in from one to three hours.

It doesn't make any difference where you bought your glasses, if you save the pieces we can duplicate the lenses. We have a special instrument for neutralizing lenses which gives a positive accurate correction. We will make a record of your lenses and then [illegible] the pieces in future. If you bought your glasses from us, we have your correction on record and all you will have to do is to phone us which lense is broken, and we can have one ground for you when you call.

We can duplicate any kind of lense, including Toric, Flat, Kryptok, Semi-Invisible and all kinds of Bifocals. The next time you have an accident give us a call and investigate the facilities which we place at your service.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is to be hoped that there will be a good turn out of baseball fans and business men at the meeting of the Peterborough Baseball Club, Limited, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers to-night, when the future of the local Canadian League team will likely be decided. Peterborough should remain on the league map, as an advertisement if for no other reason. But there are other good reasons for keeping the franchise here. Remember all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

In presenting his annual report to the legislature, the treasurer of Saskatchewan submits that his province is the most prosperous in the Dominion. While wishing our prairie neighbors the compliments of the season, a little investigation will show that British Columbia has more real money to its credit than any one, or possibly two, of the other members of confederation.—Vancouver Province.

President-elect Wilson, in his speech in Chicago laid down this principle: "I do not care how big a business grows provided it grows big in contact with keen competition." Dr. Wilson evidently still holds to the old idea that competition is the natural and safe regulator of prices and stimulus to trade. This of course, is the basis of the low tariff or free trade theory. It is a fact, however, that modern business men have grown steadily away from the competitive idea and the tendency of civilization is to get still farther from it. This is not the result of tariffs and it will not be changed by alterations in the tariff.—Buffalo Express.

THE AGE OF WOMEN.

What the Benedict Thought and the Bachelor Said About It.

Smith's idea of women in general underwent a radical transformation when he got married. Where formerly he held the tender sex to be beneath comparison with his own, now he believed the women to be wonderful beings, his wife the most wonderful of them all.

Consequently when Mrs. Smith espoused "votes for women" and became an ardent worker for this cause Smith backed up her every act and declaration. During the first week of this transformation Smith met his friend Stevens, a confirmed bachelor.

"Stevens," he enthused, "women are certainly the noblest works of God."

"Well, maybe you're right," was the reluctant rejoinder.

"And, Stevens, this is the age of women."

"Tut, tut!" retorted his friend, turning on his heel. "Neither you nor any other man knows the age of a woman."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Prisoners Were Happy.

Wild turkeys and wilder partridges, ducks, geese and other birds helped make the prisoners at "Hams Farm," at Fort William, happy on Christmas Day. The dinner was of more than an ordinary character, and the fowl was game of the finest kind. All this was taken by the prisoners during the proper season in clearing up the one thousand acres just north of the city, and of which three hundred and fifty acres have been cleared and planted.

PARTS OF THE DOMINION WHERE THE WOMEN VOTE

Municipal Vote Is the Only One Permitted to the Gentler Sex Under Canadian Law, But Wives Are Debarred Except In Three British Columbia Cities and In Nova Scotia When They "Keep the House."

The cry of "Votes for Women" has swept around the world and there are few countries to-day where it is not a burning question or an accomplished fact. Eighty years ago women could not vote anywhere, except to a very limited extent in Sweden, and in a few other places in the old world, but since then the gains have been remakable, though usually accomplished one step at a time—school suffrage, municipal suffrage, and finally the full Parliamentary vote. China is perhaps the only country where women have come into possession of equal suffrage with men without going through the preliminary stages. The other countries where women are now fully enfranchised are: Australia, New Zealand, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Iceland, the Isle of Man and the American States of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington and California. Ohio will probably be the next, as the bill for equal suffrage has passed both Houses and been referred to the people; while Kansas and Oregon are expected to follow soon.

It is important for Canadians to know just where they stand and what powers they already possess, for we are accustomed to hearing the rather vague statement that "Women possess the municipal franchise in Canada, but do not make much use of it." The limited municipal suffrage we already possess varies in the different provinces of the Dominion.

In Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Alberta and Saskatchewan, widows and spinsters over 21 years of age who own property are entitled to the municipal vote.

In New Brunswick and Manitoba all widows and spinsters who are ratepayers to any extent have the municipal vote.

In Ontario widows and spinsters who are assessed as owners or occupants of property to the value of $400, or income of not less than $400.

In the above-mentioned provinces a woman on marriage becomes disfranchised and her husband acquires the right to exercise the vote belonging to her property either by itself or in addition to his own; in Nova Scotia, however, whenever a woman actually supports her husband and he has no property or income of his own, it is she who votes, while in all other provinces the husband, under the same circumstances, is entitled to vote on his wife's property or income.

In Nova Scotia, the qualifications for widows and spinsters is property to the value of $150, or personal and real property to the value of $300.

In British Columbia widows and spinsters who own property are entitled to the municipal vote, and in addition to this, the right to exercise full municipal franchise on the same terms as men has been granted to women, married or single, in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria.

No woman in any of the provinces of Canada may hold any municipal office. This is very unusual, as in almost all countries where municipal suffrage for women exists, they are entitled to hold office. In England there are three women mayors and three of the members of the London County Council are women. In Birmingham ten women were recently elected to the Board of Guardians. Of these two were unopposed, and the rest, with one exception, headed the polls. In Kansas there are 77 women holding elective offices in the state, two of whom are judges and one a mayor. Not a single instance of a woman defaulter, of careless or incorrect books, has ever been reported among women who hold county offices.

Widows and spinsters in all the provinces who are either holding independent property, or who are ratepayers, are entitled to vote for school boards. In addition to this a woman property owner in Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, is not disqualified through marriage from the exercise of the school franchise, as she is in other provinces.

British Columbia is the only province where (with the exception of Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo, where only women, both married and single, whose names are on the assessment rolls are entitled to vote) wives of voters in school districts have the right to vote for and to serve as school trustees without having to possess separate property or income of their own. It is therefore the only part of Canada where mothers, as mothers, and not as property owners, have the right to control the education of their children.

The great argument against giving women a fuller franchise is that they do not make use of the privileges they already possess. To this we may answer that the majority of women possess that right only when they are too young or too old to care about it. At twenty-one few women—or men either, for that matter—take an interest in politics, and the majority of widows are old or infirm, and having been debarred of this privilege for the greater part of their lives, have ceased to care for it.

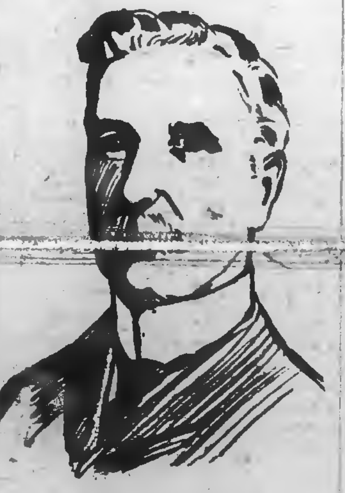
THIS POLICE OFFICER HAS A GOOD MEMORY

INSPECTOR ARCHIBALD IS A TERROR TO OLD OFFENDERS.

Toronto Police Official Has an Uncanny Power of Remembering Faces and Many a Criminal With a Record Has Had His Plea of "First Appearance" Rudely Shattered by "Davie."

The rumored retirement from the Toronto police department of Inspector David Archibald, would remove, if it were true, a picturesque official, who has been identified with police activities in Canada for many years. Inspector Archibald is known wherever police officers foregather in Canada and he is always a prominent figure at convention time when resolutions regarding legislation are under way. His recommendations have resulted in several changes in the Canadian criminal code.

The chief inspector has not lost one day in the past twenty-five years through illness. Six feet three inches in height, and tipping the scales at close to two hundred and fifty pounds, his very appearance has put fear in the heart of many a criminal, who has learned to respect his unique ability to connect them with previous criminal acts, and many interesting stories have been told of this trait of memorizing and recalling faces even after a number of years have elapsed. Only a few days ago a case of this kind occurred: A man charged with shop-breaking, giving his name as Murphy, appeared before Col. Denison, pleaded guilty, and asked for leniency on the ground that it was his first time in the police court. The chief inspector, after a careful survey, informed the cadi, that though the accused had not been in court for some years, he had a long criminal record. Even this statement failed to shake the man's story, and he still insisted that it was his initial appearance. He was told to sit down, a detective sent for his photograph, and he was soon identified as a man who had been arrested eight years before on a similar charge.



INSPECTOR ARCHIBALD.

A case even more remarkable was that in respect to "ballot stuffing" a few years ago. This case excited considerable comment. Counsel for the two men charged with tampering with the ballot boxes, was unable to find a law to cover this particular kind of case, and an injunction had been taken out to restrain any action on the part of the magistrate.

Then along came the chief inspector with another little tale in which he quoted from out of the depths of his memory, a case in point which had occurred twelve years before. After citing the names of the prisoners, of the judge who tried the case, and the circumstances connected with it, the injunction to restrain the magistrate was quashed, the case proceeded with, and sentence imposed.

Another instance of the inspector's memory for faces appeared recently in the case of a lad of fifteen, who committed an unnameable offence and later left the country. He returned after an absence of nearly fifteen years, a fully grown man. Arrested on a minor charge and appearing in court he was at once recognized as a man long wanted by the police. Charged with the offence committed so many years before, he was convicted and received a sentence of two years, which at that time was the maximum penalty in such cases.

Chiefly through the instrumentality of Inspector Archibald, the penalty for offences of this kind and others of a similar nature have been raised.

Inspector Archibald joined the Toronto police force, Oct. 17, 1865. Previous to this time he had served four years in the Irish Constabulary, and so has been fifty-one years in police work. He was privileged to retire with a pension after twenty-five years of service, but instead chooses to remain in actual service.

It Had a Smoke.

A noted English wit was at a dinner [illegible] lasted much longer than the usual affair of its kind. He was a great smoker, and he was hoping the ladies would withdraw so that he could enjoy his weed. The hours advanced, but the hostess showed no sign of withdrawing. The candles had burned low and one of them [illegible] the wit began to smoke.

"Oh, please, sir," said the hostess when she noticed the smoking candle "will you be good enough to put out?"

"Happy candle," said the famous wit, extinguishing the smoking taper.

School For Waiters.

Boys just out of school are trained by the London County Council to become chefs and waiters. Not long ago a luncheon to 100 visitors was both cooked and served by the boys who are being so trained.

MAP WENT WRONG.

How the Beavers Played Tricks With Hon. Col. Hughes, Et Al.

The constant necessity of revision of military maps in a country infested by a hostile army is recognized by every military man. The blowing up of a bridge or the turning of a stream from its course may create a changed topography, as the result of which an army may very well be demoralized. There is no hostile army in Canada at the present time; and yet Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, had this same necessity of revision of his military maps very forcibl impressed upon him quite recently when on an expedition to the big camp at Petawawa. The colonel placed his reliance upon the most recently compiled map in his department, and as a consequence landed up in an impenetrable swamp, from which he extricated himself and his forces with some difficulty, and a heap of annoyance.

What appeared on the map as a "well-defined" road led the colonel into a muskeg. Where good marching country was indicated there was nothing but squidgy mud, and waste of water. Why did the map deceive the Minister of Militia and lead a good soldier astray? There was no hostile army in the country, and there had not been since long before the colonel attained his present position. The "sappers" who had in this case turned a stream from its course, submerged a road, and swamped a large trace of manoeuvreable ground, were Government sappers, real "Canadian" sappers, under Canadian supervision ever since Canada had a national emblem. Beavers, nothing more or less than beavers, who, increasing for many years under Government protection, constructed their dams, forced back the stream—and almost encompassed in disaster the military representative of the Government from whose hand they have practically fed. Most ungrateful creatures to be sure.

It happened this way. Col. Hughes, who is as strenuous in his play as he is in his work, organized a partridge shooting expedition to Petawawa a few weeks ago, his guests being several members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, with whom the colonel is a prime favorite. It was a pleasure expedition, but the colonel had them out of bed before sunrise—a real campaign reveille hour. The rest of the party were content to carry one weapon, but the colonel sallied forth with two—a ten-pounder Winchester repeating shot gun, and his own favorite Ross sporting rifle—there always being the chance of a stray deer in the district. Armed thus, and with a companion, the colonel picked out a "well-defined" road which was marked on the map, and which led across a gully and to the deep woods beyond, and they started out.

After half a mile the "well defined" road lost itself in black oozy slime and water, from which stray hummocks projected themselves here and there. It didn't look right somehow, but the map was of recent origin and surely could not err. It would no doubt, thought the Minister, take them into good territory beyond. But it didn't. The hapless expedition lost the road entirely, and splashed through swamp and muskeg for hours. Mud hens flapped among the bushes; muskrats swam about, and beaver rippled the water as they sank from sight. The stream had been entirely dammed back, and the country had been flooded for miles around. For hours they tramped, not so much as finding a place where a partridge could place its foot on dry ground, and late in the afternoon returned to the car.

It is worth noting that Col. Hughes, who is a man of three score years, had toted two weapons, weighing in the aggregate twenty pounds, with ammunition to correspond, and had tramped through country which would have frightened an Indian guide, and yet when he reached the car he was as fresh as when he started out. But he returned with the realization that military maps, even in a peaceful land, cannot long be relied upon, and, it is since rumored, contemplates adding hydro-aeroplanes to the equipment of Canada's big military training ground.—Saturday Night.

Surprised Politician.

Dr. T. J. Macnamara, the Canadian who is a British M.P., keeps adding to his collection of child stories for the amusement of a grateful world. His latest batch, which he has obtained from teachers in various parts of the old country, he made public when speaking recently at a meeting.

Here are a few which betray the working of the child mind:

"Why would David rather be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord?"

"Because he could walk outside while the sermon was being preached."

"How do you know the earth is round?"

"Because it says in the Bible, 'World without end'."

When Dr. Macnamara once asked a London class of girls what they would say if he told them he saw the sun rise in the west, he got the reply that it was impossible.

"But," he persevered, "supposing I still declared I had seen the sun rise in the west?"

"Well," a little girl replied, "I [illegible] you must have got up rather late."

Industrial Accidents.

According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department of Labor, 114 workmen were killed and 359 injured during the month of November. Compared with the record for October, which was 105 killed and 415 injured, there were nine more killed and 47 fewer injured during November. The greatest number of fatal accidents occurred in Steam Railway Service, Navigation and Building Trades, the figures for which were 28, 24, and 13 respectively. The largest number of non-fatal accidents occurred also in Steam Railway Service, the record being 125, followed by the Metal Trades with 79, and by the Building Trades with 33.

MILD WEATHER MEANS SAVING FOR RAILWAYS

The directors of the various railway companies are among those who are welcoming mild and unseasonable weather that the present winter has brought.

The big railways are indeed being saved an expenditure of many thousands of dollars a day just now, and it would only be justice were they to put the weather man on their payroll as a compensation for the consideration he is showing the transportation officials.

Winter generally is looked forward to by the railway executives as a period of severe trial. Large numbers of men and much machinery are needed to keep the lines clear of snow particularly in the Western divisions. It is estimated that the mild weather means a saving of $250,000.

CARRYING OUT THE ASTOR WILL

New York, Jan. 20— In carrying out the will of the late John Jacob Astor the trustees of the Astor estate, James R. Roosevelt, Douglas Robinson, Vincent Astor and Nicholas Biddle, transferred eight parcels of real estate, aggregating $3,968,000 to Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor, her infant son, John Jacob Astor, and Ava Alice Muriel Astor, Mr. Astor's daughter by his first wife.

The Astor will left the income of a trust fund of $5,000,000 to Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor, $5,000,000 in trust for Ava Astor, to be hers absolutely on her reaching her majority; and a trust fund of $3,000,000 to young John Jacob Astor.

While these eight parcels have an assessed value of only about $4,000,000, the income from them probably represents a much larger amount. The value of them is not, however, great enough to cover all the bequests of Mr. Astor to the three persons named in the deeds.

GABY DESLYS LOSES JEWELRY WORTH $70,000

New York, Jan. 20— Gaby Deslys, who has just returned from a week's engagement in Toronto, announced last night that she had been robbed of $70,000 worth of jewelry.

The $70,000 worth of jewelry that Gaby says she has lost disappeared somewhere between Albany and this city. She had most of it in a couple of trunks. The trunks and those of her company were put aboard ten baggage cars which left Albany, where Gaby and her company had been appearing at 3.40 o'clock yesterday morning. The cars were behind the cars on which Gaby and the company traveled. They got into the Grand Central yards here at 7.02 o'clock this morning. Gaby went to the Plaza.

SCENIC SPLENDOR.

Australia's Beauty and Variety Is the Marvel of Travelers.

The untraveled Australian, as a rule, does not properly appreciate the beauty and variety of the scenery of his own country (says The Sydney Mail. He has heard of the scenic charms of far distant lands, and longs for the opportunity of seeing them for himself, and when world-travelers visit us and enthusiastically declare that they have found in Australia spots of unrivalled charm he is inclined to doubt the genuineness of their expressions of admiration. It is a gratifying fact, however, that the majority of Australians who travel abroad return firmly convinced that not only is their own country the best in all the world in which to live, but that in scenery it has a richness which they had not previously realised. In Australia a vast area, equally nearly the whole of Europe, there is a lot of uninteresting country, but so there is in every other continent, and Australa has been favored beyond most of them.

New South Wales is rightly proud of Sydney Harbor, the wonderful Blue Mountains, with their wooded ravines of unsurpassed grandeur, their purpling streams, and dainty cascades; the unique limestone caves, which never fail to throw into ecstacies of delight even the most widely-traveled of our visitors; the Hawkesbury river, long stretches of which equal, if they do not surpass in natural beauty the most picturesque parts of the much sung Rhine; the tropical richness of the north coast forests; and the striking outlines and vivid coloration of the south coast district. Queensland is rich in coast scenery of indescribable charm. In the Barron Falls she has a wonder spot of rare splendor; and her fields of sugarcane, her pineapple, banana, and cocoanut plantations lend variety to the landscape.

Victoria has a wealth of mountain scenery, the picturesque Gippsland lakes are full of charm, the Lorne district has been described as a veritable fairyland of waterfalls, and in the Dandenong forests are some of the highest trees in the world. South Australia, too, abounds in scenic attractions. The captivating views from Mount Lofty are not readily forgotten, and there are few more interesting spots in the Commonwealth than Mount Gambier, where volcanic action in past ages has done wonderful things, here are weird caves and charming lakes—one of which—the Blue Lake—has become famous far beyond the state. In Western Australia there are some of the most remarkable natural caves in existence; and botanists agree that nowhere, save perhaps in parts of South Africa is there to be seen such a riot of color as that presented by the blaze of spring flowers in the southern part of the state. Tasmania is known as the Switzerland of the south. Towering mountains, fascinating gorges, foaming cataracts, groves of tree ferns and miles of orchards, all contribute to the scenic glories of the island states.

Profits of the Mint.

Judge Rentoul, examining a Mint official in a coinage case, which came before him the other day in London, elicited the fact that a crown piece costs the Mint 1s. 6d. in the making, leaving a clear profit of 3s. 6d. The late Lord Goschen, while Chancellor of the Exchequer, an office he held in conjunction with the Mastership of the Mint, was keenly alive to any opportunity of increasng revenue by cultivating this rich field. He gave directions (recalls "The Scotsman") that the men at the dockyards receiving weekly wages which amounted to less than £2 should be paid in silver. This is quite as convenient for the men as if they were paid in gold, whilst it appreciably affects the revenues derived from the Mint.

The profit of the silver coinage, it is stated, is exceedingly handsome all round. On every shilling turned out the Mint makes a profit of nearly 3d. The exact metal value of a shilling is 9.72d. Our silver coin is composed of a mixture of 92.5 parts silver and 7.5 parts copper. Sixty-six shillings fresh from the Mint weigh exactly 1lb. troy. The cost of minting has to be added, but that is a mere fraction. The profits on bronze coins are not less attractive, and account for the jealousy with which a recent incursion of French bronze was peremptorily stopped. On every ton of penny pieces taken out from the Mint there is a profit of £382.

With a Sense of Humor.

Authors with enough real sense of humor to tell good stories on themselves are rare, but Luther Munday, journalist and world wanderer, has that quality. In his volume of memoirs, "A Chronicle of Friendships," he tells on himself the following yarn:

"From time to time, after the manner of weaklings, I fancied myself a little at writing sonnets, notwithstanding the fact that I had had one snubbing from Yates, the editor of the London World. 'Twenty years have passed,' said I, 'and I may have improved.' So I sent up to Sir James Knowles this time my sonnet called 'Why do I live?' His reply was, 'You live, dear Munday, because you sent your poem by post and did not bring it yourself.'"

Melba as a Whistler.

Mme. Melba is to have her [illegible] hung in the national gallery of her native Melbourne. Another native of Melbourne remembers that Mme. Melba, when a pupil at the Ladies' Presbyterian college, was already famous among her fellow pupils as a whistler. She could stick two fingers into one corner of her mouth and whistle as long and loudly as the most accomplished larrikin.

Women In Mills.

Of the nearly 900,000 women operatives in textile industries in England about one-third are employed in the Lancashire and Cheshire cotton mills. Girl operatives may earn from 20 to 22 shillings a week, a relatively high wage rate for women in British industries.

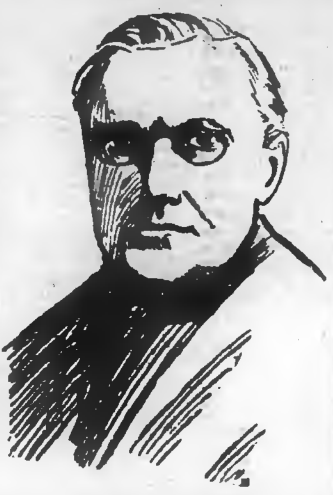
ARCHBISHOP McNEIL STEPS INTO HIS NEW POST

Prelate Who Two Years Ago Was Scarcely Known, Left His Diocese In Newfoundland to Become a Figure of Continental Importance in Vancouver, Is Now In the Archiepiscopal Chair of Toronto.

Catholics of Ontario have watched with more than ordinary interest the installation of Very Rev. Neil McNeil in the archdiocese of Toronto.

A man of action, but action tempered by judgment and experience, is the new archbishop. It is perhaps owing to the fact that his boyhood and early days as an ecclesiastic were spent in the eastern and older part of Canada, and that his scholastic career was for the greater part abroad, that Ontario had heard little until recently of him, but since his appointment to the See of Vancouver a little less than two years ago the name and work of Archbishop McNeil have been before the entire continent.

A thorough Canadian and a true celt, Archbishop McNeil has the credentials which mean much among Canadians. His grandfather was one of the sturdy islanders of Barra, Scotland, who, with his Irish wife from Kilkenny, came to Canada and settled in Hillsborough, Inverness, Nova Scotia. Here the coming archbishop was born on Nov. 21, 1851, his father being Malcolm McNeil, and his mother Ellen Meagher. Before being sent to the College of the Propaganda at Rome, the young student had pursued his studies at the College of St. Francis Xavier, Antigonish. After six years' study at the Propaganda he was ordained to the priesthood in April, 1879, in the noted Basilica of John Lateran, by the late Cardinal Patrizzi, and in the same year received the degree of doctor in both philosophy and divinity. He also studied in Marseilles, paying particular attention to astronomy, one of his favorite subjects, and perfecting his knowledge of French. Thus equipped, the young ecclesiastic returned to Canada to take up the work of teaching in his old alma mater at Antigonish. In 1881, the year following, he assumed a branch of work which was surely a work of love, and the affection for which after events have proved to be lasting. The new field of endeavor was a plunge into newspaperdom, when Father McNeil became editor of the Aurora paper. Later he edited The Antigonish Casket, a paper noted for its long career of fine editorship. In 1884 Dr. McNeil became rector of St. Francis College. Here, for a period of seven years the young professor gave of his best until in 1891 he was appointed to parish work, his pastorates being West Arichat and Descousse. In 1895 he was made a bishop and consecrated at St. Ninan's Cathedral, Antigonish, Bishop of Nicopolis and Vicar Apostolic of St. George's, Nfld., being appointed Bishop of St. George's in 1904. In these territories of his early episcopal career Bishop McNeil had the personal experience of the pioneer missionary, when long journeys on foot or by any available vehicle, are a common part of daily life.



MOST REV. NEIL M'NEIL.

It is not often that skill in languages and in the exact sciences are found in the same individual, but Archbishop McNeil has considerable note both as mathematician and astronomer, and speaks English, French, Italian, and Gaelic. His extensive writings to newspapers and magazines are largely on religious subjects.

SPAIN TO GET REFORMS.

New Premier's Program Is Said To Be Sweepingly Liberal In Tendency.

MADRID, Jan. 20.—Count Alvaro de Romanoes, the new Premier, will publish his program as soon as the King returns from a hunting trip in Granada. The program, which is strongly marked by liberal tendencies, is understood to comprise complete reconstruction of the associations' bill, after negotiations with the Vatican, complete religious freedom, secularization of the cemeteries, obligatory civil marriage, a diminution of the number of non-elective senators and a corresponding increase of elective senators, abolition of the death penalty, freedom of education, increased salaries for teachers, important public improvements, the creation of a second squadron of the fleet and various measures to improve the condition of the working classes.

43 WERE DROWNED

OPORTO, Portugal, Jan. 20.—Forty-three lives lost is the toll from the wreck of the Lamport and Holt liner Veronese, near Leixoes, on Thursday in a heavy gale.

There were 234 persons aboard the Veronese—142 passengers and a crew of 92. Of these 191 were saved. Five persons died aboard the steamer from exposure, 38 were swept off by the seas or perished while being transferred ashore by the life lines.

The Infant Terrible.

The occasion was a choice little tea party on the lawn, and the hostess was beaming and busy among her guests.

"Yes," she remarked, "my little girl is very clever. She can imitate almost any one."

"She can, my dear," echoed the host delightedly. "Come, Alice; show what you can do. Pretend to be the housemaid."

The little girl, eagerly enough, came forward and bowed to one of the guests.

"Will you take some more tea, madam?" she asked politely. Then she turned to another guest.

"May I move your chair, madam? The sunlight is very strong."

At this the guests were exceedingly interested and asked for more.

Backing away from her father, Alice exclaimed in a terrified tone:

"Sir, let me go! Don't touch me, sir! Give you a kiss, indeed! Supposing the missus was to hear you?"

Then the clever little darling was wafted away suddenly.—New York Globe.

Good Business.

In his early days, when he was beginning to be recognized as one of the most brilliant of the "Glasgow school" of painters, John Lavery sold a picture to a famous Scotch collector.

"I'm glad," said the latter, "to be able to give some encouragement to a fellow countryman."

Mr. Lavery said nothing at the time, but [illegible] he wrote to the [illegible] as follows:

Dear Sir,—I am an Irishman, but I have enough Scottish blood in me to have concealed the fact until I have cashed your check.

Ancient Skull Found.

The skull of a paleolithic man—by far the earliest trace of mankind that has yet been found in England—has been discovered in a gravel pit in Sussex.

The discovery has caused excitement among scientists. The skull is that of a man who lived, probably, millions of years ago, and it may prove to be the oldest remnant of a human frame ever found on this planet. It belongs, roughly, to the same age as the famous Neanderthal skull, but represents a much more primitive type of mankind.

VARIETY OF THE BIBLE.

Vivid Descriptions, History and Stories of Adventure.

One of the striking things about the Bible as a single piece of literature is the variety of its literary forms, sufficient, indeed, to appeal to the most widely different tastes. There are excellent examples of the short story all through the historical books, such as the absorbingly interesting account of Joseph sold into slavery and afterward elevated to a position next to Pharaoh himself and the intensely realistic story of Paul's shipwreck, which, were it not too well written, might be an extract from some book of adventure.

The books of which many of these short stories form a part constitute a body of most intimate and fascinating tribal and national history. Wedged in between two of the historical books we find the story of Ruth, a "prose idyll," as delightful as any of which profane literature can boast. The Book of Esther, though not in form a drama, has a plot of dramatic power, in which Haman, who is raised to triumphant satisfaction at the thought of hanging Mordecai upon the gallows, becomes himself the victim of his own vengeance.

At the end stands that wonderful Apocalypse, which is at once an inspiration and a mystery, full of beauty and rich cadences. Interspersed among all the narratives are delightfully suggestive descriptions, sometimes presenting to us the simple life of the shepherd, again the luxurious surroundings of Ahasuerus' court. It is not strange, therefore, that the Bible makes a strong intellectual appeal to lovers of literature and to men of untrained tastes.—Edgar F. Shannon in Sewanee Review.

Sea Gypsies.

In the archipelago of Mergui, off the coast of lower Burma, live the "sea gypsies." Instead of carts they own covered boats, in which, with their families, dogs, cats, chickens and pets, they float about on the sea and wander from island to island. By day they fish or harpoon turtles or dive for pearl oysters, and at night they seek the shelter of the land. Only in very bad weather do they seek employment on shore. They seem to have solved the housing problem in a manner perfectly satisfactory to themselves and pay no rent or rates to any man.—New York Press.

Nero and Big Noses.

Nero never liked a person with a large nose. He flippantly told the sorrowing relatives of Plautus—whom, it is alleged, he killed—that it was only on inspecting the corpse that he discovered that Plautus had so large a nose and if it had been pointed out before he would have certainly spared his life. "Life with such a nose," coolly added Nero, "would have been ample penance for any crime."

Brandt Must Go to Prison Unless He Keeps Silence

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—After serving six of the 30 years to which he was sentenced for burglary at the home of Mortimer L. Schiff, where he was a servant, Foulke E. Brandt left for Minnesota on an early train Saturday to begin life anew and enjoy the freedom of the pardon granted him by Governor Sulzer because the sentence was excessive.

Brandt has been warned if he repeats or refers to the slanderous statements previously made, which he retracted publicly Friday, or seeks to gain any notoriety by either writing of his case or appearing on the stage, the pardon will be revoked.

COMPULSORY SUICIDE.

Utah Man Suggests It as Capital Punishment System.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 20.—The method to be used hereafter in executing criminals in the State of Utah has become a topic widely discussed since the Legislature convened two weeks ago.

The latest idea expressed is that condemned criminals be allowed to take their own lives after they have exhausted every means to have the death sentence set aside.

The state law now provides that condemned criminals be executed either by shooting or hanging, the choice to be made by the persons to be executed. Governor Spry, in his message to the Legislature, has recommended that the state adopt the electric chair. Judge Thomas Marioneaux, an attorney of this city, has issued a statement in which he sets forth the advantages of the Chinese customs, permitting a condemned criminal to commit suicide.

U. S. Soldiers Seize Rail Land.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 20.—A company of the 29th Infantry marched from Fort Porter to the foot of Erie street Saturday and seized that part of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western coal trestle which, the Government alleges, encroaches on Federal property. The land is fifteen feet in depth, extending along about 1,000 feet of the harbor entrance, and is worth seven hundred thousand dollars. It has been the subject of litigation between the railroad and the Government for twenty years.

The next move, U. S. Attorney O'Brian said, rests with the railroad, and unless they move quickly, he added, the trestle will be torn down.

It keeps wives as busy providing for the inner man as it does husbands providing things for the outer woman.

BURGLAR WILL GET PATENT FOR HIS ALARM

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—After serving twenty-eight years in prison for various burglaries, Wm. Gornell hopes to put an end to the burglary business for others. In his cell in the tombs where he is awaiting trial on a new charge of burglary he received a letter from Washington Saturday notifying him that a burglar alarm which he had invented had been approved, and he would receive a patent shortly.

THE SKEPTICAL BRITISH.

Only Two Persons Would Buy Five-Pound Notes at a Penny.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—As the result of a wager and to test the scepticism of the British public a man disguised as a peddler appeared in the West End streets of London on Saturday and offered genuine £5 notes for a penny each.

Although he offered the extraordinary bargains for an hour, flourishing the notes in his hand and crying "Five-pound notes for a penny each," even permitting people to examine them, the peddler sold only two.

As William Faversham, the actor, was having his luncheon in a hotel he was much annoyed by another visitor, who during the whole of the meal stood with his back to the fire warming himself and watching Faversham eat. At length, unable to endure it any longer, Mr. Faversham rang the bell and said:

"Walter, kindly turn that gentleman around. I think he is done on that side."—New York American.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

THE GOLDEN EGG

And the Curious Yolk It Concealed.

By M. J. PHILLIPS.

When Buckley asked the sanction of his employer, Professor Rudolph Kinfein, to the marriage of that young man and Kinfein's niece, Donna, he expected that there would be extraordinary conditions attached to Kinfein's approval. Kinfein was a wealthy and eccentric scientist, metallurgist and physician, who dabbled in various strange matters for his amusement. Buckley, his assistant, had grown in time to understand the old man's oddities and to have a profound respect for the intellect which had already made several valuable scientific discoveries.

Kinfein smiled benevolently and combed his long white beard with his fingers when the younger man spoke. "Well, John," he began, "Donna is twenty-two, and of course she will marry some time. I suppose you are no worse than other men. Now, if I impose a task upon you before I give my consent you will agree to perform it?"

"If I can," replied Buckley cautiously.

The old gentleman chuckled. "It won't be very hard, John." From a private compartment beneath the laboratory shelf he drew out a box and handed it to Buckley. "Open it," he said.

John did so and revealed an oval yellow object nearly the size of a football and practically of the same shape. It seemed to be of metal.

"Now, John, there's your golden egg," went on the scientist. "I fixed it up for you in my leisure moments. If you open it inside of a month you get Donna and a wedding present too. If not, you'll have to wait awhile."

"What tools may I use in opening it?"

"That's the point, John. You may use your own two good hands and any instrument which does not weigh over fifty grains."

"Fifty grains!" repeated John, amazed. "Why, that's less than a quarter of an ounce."

"Exactly."

John stared first at the egg and then at the scientist. "But, professor," he expostulated, "an instrument weighing fifty grains will be practically useless. Why, the blade of a small penknife weighs that much. A thin latchkey weighs more."

"But an instrument much less in weight will open that egg."

John looked dubious. "But supposing I use something which weighs more?"

"You wouldn't do it, John, if you agreed not to," responded the professor comfortably, "and I'd catch you at it if you did."

John was young, in love, and energetic. His three years' work in the various hobbies which the scientist affected had given him an unusual technical education, great confidence in himself, and a certain delicate manual dexterity which almost surpassed that of his employer, clever as the older man was. It was very natural that he should accept the challenge and bear away the egg.

He found Miss Donna in the parlor and explained the situation. It is hardly germane to mention that when the girl placed her elbows on the table and settled her chin in her pink palms to listen she looked distractingly pretty—so pretty, in fact, that John was compelled to interrupt his narrative while he kissed her.

When he had finished his account of the conditions she rose. "You are to go right to your room, John," she commanded, "and open that egg. I'm dying to see what's in it. No; you can't stay here with me and work on it. I would disturb you." With the wariness of long experience, she dodged around the table at this moment, anticipating by the fraction of a second a lunge on the part of John. From a place of safety behind a chair she pointed to the door. "Avaunt! And tell me tomorrow morning what you found." John reluctantly gave up a chase which promised to be fruitless, and obeyed.

Settled in the easy chair in his own room, he paid the professor the compliment of examining the egg very carefully before beginning operations. He went over it with his fingers, but could feel no joints beneath the yellow paint which covered the metal. There was no depression on the surface. It was his theory that a hidden spring would open the sphere, and he spent the balance of the evening in searching for it. At midnight the [illegible] was still undiscovered, and he gave it up for the time being.

Donna was inclined to poke fun at his failure the next morning. As the chuckling professor readily allowed her to try her hand, she spent an hour and broke two hairpins in an equally fruitless effort.

The egg was rather light than otherwise for its size, but John felt certain that machinery of some description, hidden within it, controlled the situation. By shaking it persistently he was finally rewarded by the sound of a very faint clicking. That evening he made a sort of cat's cradle of string and placed the egg therein. With the contrivance he was able to whirl the egg over and over, in this way hoping to start the machinery. Occasionally he reversed the motion, but he tired his arms with the monotonous labor to no purpose.

Next he essayed to saw his way through the metal. He secured a burglar's saw of the finest steel, but was compelled to dispense with the handle as it brought the weight of the little instrument up to nearly 100 grains.

Intermittent labor for the next three evenings with the saw, a bit of cloth serving as a handle, resulted in some badly blistered fingers and the scratching of the paint in several places. That was all, if the fact that the egg was proved to be steel as fine and hard as the saw is excepted. In desperation Buckley attempted to crush the obstinate oval between his hands and failed again.

"I've made up my mind to get the paint off," he announced to Donna. "Then I can tell where we're at."

"We're at sea," she replied dolefully, tenderly kissing one of the blistered fingers.

Buckley secretly agreed with her, but his pride had been aroused by repeated failures and the whole souled chuckling of the professor, whose sides seemed to be shaking constantly with merriment over his assistant's predicament. He would open the egg now or die.

The young man took his penknife apart, sharpened the lightest blade to a razor edge and attacked the paint. Although it clung exasperatingly, in time he had cleared it from the surface. This revealed the presence of thousands of little holes in the metal, each closed by a minute fleck of the paint, which the blade would not dislodge.

It was well into the fourth week when this was done. "Just look at those confounded needle holes!" he exclaimed in disgust.

Under the stress of a brilliant inspiration Donna jumped up and clapped her hands delightedly. "That's it, John—a needle!"

One was brought, and John set himself to the task of thrusting it carefully as far as it would go into each of the little holes. This removed the fleck of paint, and as the absence of paint showed that a hole had been tested no time was lost in subsequent explorations.

"Foxy old gentleman, your uncle," smiled John, "but he overlooked that point. If he'd thought about it, I know he'd fixed it to keep the paint out of these wretched holes."

It was the evening of the last day of the allotted month that the busy needle, penetrating farther than usual, produced the hoped for result. There was a whir of clockwork, and a heavy spring, the pressure upon it suddenly removed, thrust itself through the side of the egg.

John fished a metal cylinder from the broken shell, opened it and, with his arm around Donna's neck, read the paper which it contained. It was a check for $5,000 signed by Professor Kinfein and payable to "Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley."

A Famous "Bone Cave."

An extraordinary "bone cave" may be seen in the island of Tenerife. It is situated near the summit of a lofty sea cliff near Orotava, close to the small plain of Le Paz, where peace was finally made between the conquering Spaniards and the Guanches, the original inhabitants of the island. Here the Guanches made their last stand, and this cave formed a shelter for the small remnant left of the tribesmen after the Spanish had finished with them. In former times the place had evidently been a burial ground of the Guanches, and when first discovered a number of mummies were found in it. Now, however, only a huge pile of bones remains. Access is obtained by descending a rope through a hole dug in the roof, but the original occupants must have had a difficult and dangerous scramble down the face of the almost perpendicular cliff to the natural entrance.—Wide World Magazine.

Where the Audience Was.

A London actor appearing at a cheap theater in Salford found so small an audience that he sought out the manager for an explanation. "You see," the manager told him, "my people are at the Halle concert." "Oh," the actor said, surprised, "I should hardly have thought your patrons would care much for high-class music." "No," the other explained. "To tell the truth, they go to pick pockets."—London Mail.

A Rank Offense.

"May we have the pleasure of your company this evening, colonel?" she asked.

The colonel drew himself up haughtily and replied, with every evidence of offended dignity:

"Madam, I command a regiment."

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—All board of trade markets were dull and featureless today the usual week-end situation. Prices decline slightly. Cables being unchanged from Liverpool and advices generally without color, somebody started a story that the best known of the private crop prophets was preparing a bullish bulletin on wheat. It helped prices until the prognosticator published a formal denial. There was another report that one of the most influential traders was buying wheat, and this was formally denied, but not until it had caused a slight upward flurry. In general the pit followed any important buying or selling orders and in the absence of these did nothing. Primary receipts for the week were larger than a week ago, the gain coming from the southwest. Northwest receipts decreased a little.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d lower on wheat and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged, Budapest ½c higher, Berlin ⅝c to ⅜c lower, and Paris ¼c to ½c higher.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 18.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat came weaker today at a decline of 1½d to 3d, in sympathy with the lower American and Canadian markets on Friday. At the above reduction there was a good demand from foreign buyers, there being a number of orders in the market for round lots, but as the prices bid were out of line with exporters' views no sales were made. The local market for oats was dull, but there was some demand for new crop American No. 3 yellow corn and sales of several cars were made at 60c per bushel, ex-store. The sales of wheat here for export account for the week were over 1,600,000 bushels. The export trade in flour was quiet, but the local demand is fair and the tone of the market steady. The demand for millfeed is slow and prices are easy. Butter is quiet and steady. Cables on cheese were firmer, but the demand from English buyers is still quiet. The egg market is unsettled and easier. Receipts for week 1831 cases, against 898 a year ago. Demand for provisions is fair.

BRAVE MOTHER STORK.

Her Nest Ablaze, She Will Stay by and Perish With Her Young.

So strong is the mother love developed in the stork and the lark that it amounts to a heroic passion. The stork, which spends the winter in Egypt and the summer in northern and western Europe, likes to build its nest on the top of some steep gable roof. Such a nest is often a real nuisance to man. It is from three to five yards in diameter. It swarms with lizards, frogs, toads and other disagreeable creatures. It becomes in course of time so heavy that it will break the roof if not artificially propped up.

Nevertheless for various superstitious reasons the stork is not only welcome but even courted by the European peasants, and it cannot be denied that the respect with which the bird is regarded is to some extent deserved. If the house takes fire and the young storks happen to be of an age at which they cannot be saved by being taken away from the nest the stork mother does not abandon them. Standing erect in the nest, flapping her wings to waft away the smoke and the flames and crying out now and then, she remains with her young, perishing with them.

The skylark, which builds its nest in the meadows, runs away from it when frightened. She proceeds for four or five yards under the clover and rises perpendicularly in the air, pouring forth her song in its wildest strains in order to divert the intruder's attention. But the peasant boy knows that so long as she remains hanging at the same point in the air he is still four or five yards from the nest, and he uses the direction of her movements and the ring of her song to ascertain the exact spot.

If it chances that the young larks are just about to break through the shell of the eggs, at which time the mother instinct is at its height, it is said that at the very moment when the nest is touched the little bird will actually attack the intruder.—Harper's Weekly.

AN EMPEROR'S TASTE.

It Was the Origin of a Once Common Saying In Austria.

An anecdote which was current of Ferdinand I. of Austria at one time greatly delighted his subjects and gave rise to a common saying. One summer day he was hunting in the Syrian mountains and was overtaken by a violent thunderstorm. He sought refuge in a farmhouse whose occupants were just then at dinner, and his fancy was caught by some smoking dumplings made of coarse flour. He tasted them, liked them and asked for more, and when he got to Vienna, to the horror of the royal cooks, he ordered the same dumplings to be served up daily. The courtiers were scandalized that such a coarse dish should figure on the menu, and even his physicians remonstrated against the use of such food.

The emperor had always been the most pliant of men, but he now showed that he had a will of his own and persisted in gratifying his new fancy. Finally the physicians pretended that it was dangerous to his health to be living on dumplings and insisted on his giving them up. The hitherto docile sovereign stamped his foot and declared that he would never sign another official document if his diet were denied him.

"Emperor I am," he shouted, "and dumplings I will have!"

To prevent a stoppage of the government machinery opposition was withdrawn, and his majesty clung tenaciously to his dumplings. Then the imperial phrase became proverbial, and thereafter when any one insisted on gratifying a silly whim some one was sure to say:

"Emperor I am, and dumplings I will have!"

Profanity and Thought.

Just as soon as a man starts to swearing he stops thinking. Didn't you ever notice it? Well, just notice and see. We don't endeavor to explain it, but it is so. There must be some psychological explanation for it—as, for instance, just at that moment the devil gets into the brain and scrambles it up so it cannot think. It is just like him to do it, for his greatest hold in this world is murky and disheveled thinking.—Ohio State Journal.

Where a Trunk Is a Box.

Don't look for the ticket agent at an English railway station, so that you can buy a ticket to your destination. Look for the "booking agent" and "book" to the point, and, keeping in mind that what you really want is the baggage car, hunt up the "luggage van," and, having found it, remember that if your trunk is in it it is in it as a "box," not as a trunk.—New York Post.

SHOULD REALIZE RESPONSIBILITY

The pulpit of Charlotte street Methodist Church was taken yesterday morning by Rev. Dr. Smith, of China, who has been in Canada several months on furlough. He made a strong plea for aid in his work of evangelization through more earnest prayers by the congregation and pointed out the necessity of the churches realizing their responsibility in regard to Christianizing China's millions.

He also referred to the good work of the British and American Foreign Bible Society who have made it possible for all denominations in China to sing the same hymns.

In the evening Dr. Smith filled the pulpit of St. James' Methodist church. He returns to China in the early part of February.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor,—Will you allow me just a word in your esteemed journal? I notice Mrs. Agnes Knox Black is to give a recital in the Conservatory to-morrow evening. I also find from casual conversation that this lady is not so well known in Peterborough as I should have expected.

Some years since she was a prominent educationalist and elocutionist, as Miss Agnes Knox. She married Prof. Black, of Harvard, brother of Rev. Armstrong Black, lately of St. Andrew's, Toronto. Since her marriage she has resided in the U.S., making all too few and flying visits to Canada. In my judgment she is the finest elocutionist Canada (or, in fact, America, so far as I know) has ever produced. During my residence here we have had a number of such entertainments, some good, and others—well, not so good—but during this period there has been nothing of the kind to be compared with the recitals given by this lady, and I speak with a fairly intimate knowledge of her and the subject generally. I write this voluntarily, not being at all interested in the recital or its proceeds. I would much like, however, to see Mrs. Black get the reception she deserves, but much more desire my friends here to avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing the distinguished and powerful interpreter of the best in literature.

SCIATICA EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating [illegible] than anything [illegible] for relieving pain. I advise everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. FIRST DIVISION TEAM IN IMPORTANT MEETING TO-NIGHT
CANADIAN BALL LEAGUE

The last call for a bumper attendance at the baseball meeting to-night is one that should not go unanswered. Peterborough wants to retain the franchise and be on the baseball map.

The experience gained last season will help a whole lot, in the 1913 race to the pennant and there isn't any doubt but that the local club would be perched in the first division.

The financial side of the proposition is one that must be considered right now and that's the explanation of to-night's meeting. It is hoped that the attendance will be large and representative. No doubt some information of interest to the fans will be given out. The meeting will be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers.

OSHAWA JUNIORS MEET LOCALS TO-MORROW NIGHT

The Junior Bates have an important game to-morrow night, when the much-touted Oshawa seven will do battle against Capt. Kenneally's braves. Advance notices give the boys from the automobile town, the edge on every club in the district and others as well. Some of the dope is straight goods as the performances of the team indicate a well balanced septette. It will be a real hard contest for the locals, and the fans can figure out the district champs on the results.

OTTAWA SEXTET COULD NOT SCORE AGAINST CANADIANS

Ottawa, Jan. 20—George Kennedy's Canadiens gave the Ottawas the worst beating they have ever sustained on their own ice in last Saturday night's N.H.A. match at the Arena. The playing surface was slushy, and the conditions, it was calculated, would suit Ottawa, but Canadiens outplayed them all round and won by 6-0. Play was remarkably fast considering the ice. Only one major foul was meted out, that falling to Newsy Lalonde who tripped Darragh in the second period. Five thousand people saw the game, and the apperance of the visitors in their tri-color, barber-poled jerseys and the Ottawas in White, caused so much confusion that supporters of the home team were often cheering for the Frenchmen. Russell, Bowie and Eddie Phillips officiated. Line up:

Canadiens (6)— Goal, Vezina; point Dubeau; cover, Laviolette; centre, Lalonde; wings, Pitre and Smith.

Ottawa (0)— Goal, Lesueur; point, Lake; cover, Shore; centre, Ronan; wings, Broadbent and Darragh.

Substitutes—Payan for Laviolette, Berlanquette for Smith, Lowery for Shore, Shore for Lowery, Lowery for Broadbent, Broadbent for Lowery, Benedict for Lesueur, Lowery for Broadbent.

JOHNSON TO FIGHT PALZER

New York, Jan. 20.—In spite of the fact that Federal indictments are hanging over his head, Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight champion has agreed to fight Al Palzer twenty rounds in Paris, France, on June 25, the date of the running of the Grand Prix. Tom O'Rourke, Palzer's manager, accepted the offer of a French boxing promoter a week ago and promptly wired Johnson in Chicago, asking him to give his consent. Johnson had received a cablegram from the same promoter in Paris offering him a $25,000 guarantee. The negro sent word to O'Rourke that he could consider the match arranged. He also cabled his acceptance to Paris.

O'Rourke, who arrived home from Los Angeles Thursday, says that Palzer was suffering from a nervous breakdown a week before he met McCarty and was in such poor condition that he could not do himself justice.

Treatment For Bees.

A young man on a local newspaper was recently given charge of the "Helps For Suburbanites" column in the absence of the regular editor. The young gentleman managed to wade through the majority of the perplexing questions in his day's mail until at last he came to a stickler. Rushing into the news room, he stopped beside the city editor's desk and asked, "Mr. ——, can you tell me how to treat sick bees?"

"With respect," retorted the city editor as he resumed his perusal of the rival sheet.—Boston Traveler.

HEAT OF THE SUN

Old Sol Has a Strong Pull at the Capitol In Washington.

SWAYS THE MAMMOTH DOME.

On a Hot Day His Torrid Rays Will Drag the Massive Iron Structure Way Out of Plumb—Turns the Same Trick With Washington Monument.

Not many people have any idea as to the enormous amount of heat that the sun sends off into space. The earth gets only a very small portion of it. The head of a pin placed twenty feet away from an electric light gets in proportion to the light on the surrounding walls of a room about what the earth gets of the sun's light and heat radiated into space. Yet that portion the earth does get is great enough to cause great structures to move.

In fact, all stone or metal buildings are constantly changing their positions under the hot rays of the sun. The great dome of the capitol building at Washington is the largest surface of cast iron in the world, and the effect of the continuous heat of a hot summer day can best be appreciated, says Harper's Weekly, when it is known that this mammoth mass really sways back and forth under the scorching rays until the top feather in the cap of the statue of Freedom describes an ellipse the diameter of which on a hot day varies from four to eight inches.

The giant plinth base of the dome, resting on the roof of the old sandstone building, measures 136 feet on a side. The greatest diameter of the round dome is 125 feet, while the whole iron structure is 218 feet high from the old capitol's roof to the base of Freedom on the apex. The cast iron covering this surface is made in thin sheets, offering a good conductor for the heat, which swells even the bolts and beams of the inside before the sun has made its circuit.

The southern side of the dome suffers most from the heat, being exposed longer to the sun, which passes south of the zenith while on its journey from the east to the west. If the metal were exposed to a constant heating the result of the continuation of such expansion as that received on very hot days might prove disastrous, but as it is little if any permanent injury is done, since the iron returns regularly to its normal position as the cool night comes on.

But what seems more remarkable is the fact that marble is also changed in volume so perceptibly by the sunlight that the mammoth shaft of the Washington monument sways back and forth in the sun on a hot day. The outer surface being of hard marble the expansion is much greater than it would be had granite instead of marble been used. On a hot summer day the sharp aluminium apex that crowns the obelisk points to a position at least four inches north of normal, but always returns to its proper position in the cool of the night.

From the extreme top of the monument inside a long pipe line runs perpendicularly to the bottom, leading to a small closet behind the elevator. This contains a long pendulum, whose bob hangs in a vessel of mercury, which prevents its oscillation. Two stationary transits with highly magnifying lenses are focussed directly upon the suspended wire, and through these each quiver of the monument is detected, being magnified on a fine scale graduated to thousandths of an inch.

Every morning at 10 o'clock a statement of this plummet line is taken and reported to the war department, and it was by this means that the effect which the sun's rays have on the huge white shaft was discovered. This plumb bob, of course, was placed in the monument for the purpose of detecting any settling it might undergo, and, although the great weight of its mass has pressed the ground for many decades, it has settled only a slight fraction of an inch in one corner.

This seems extraordinary when it is realized that its weight of 81,720 tons rests on a foundation only 126½ feet square and 38 feet deep from a height almost fifteen times that of the depth. The whole rests on the sandy bank of the Potomac river, with the enormous pressure of five tons to the square foot. Not only does the sun's heat away the big obelisk, but at times, when a stiff winter gale was blowing, it has been reported as much as two inches out of plumb.

Misery Ahead.

"More tough luck," whispered his wife.

"Well, what now?" he muttered.

"You know Miss Green never sings without her music?"

"Yes."

"Well, she's brought her music."—Detroit Free Press.

The Point of View.

"Say, pa, what is the difference between a visit and a visitation?" Fond Parent—A visit, my boy, is when you go to see your Grandmother Jones, and a visitation is when your Grandmother Jones comes to see us.—New York Times.

THE FIGHTING WORD.

I'm a calm and placid person, and my temper seldom rises.
(You can take that with a modicum of salt.)
I can bear my share of troubles and of worries and surprises,
And it's truly very seldom I find fault.
But there's one thing gets my nanny, and it gets her good and plenty,
And my language grows cerulean in tone,
When I telephone—this happens fully nineteen times in twenty—
And somebody snorts "Whoisthis?" on the phone!

Then I want to bust that party where a bust is greatly needed,
On the jawbone, on the blinker, on the nose.
But my wild, satanic anger isn't very greatly heeded,
And it doubtless never will be, I suppose.
Yet I'd like to use a pistol or a cutlass or a cleaver
On the vast unnumbered masses who are prone
To wait until my coral ear is glued to the receiver
And then bellow out "Whoisthis?" on the phone!

I'm a calm and placid person with a kindly disposition,
But I'm truly something ugly when I'm mad,
And I wish I owned the tortures of the Spanish inquisition,
Every rack and grill and thumbscrew that they had.
I would seize these surly parties, and with eyes that fairly glisten
I would rack 'em with a fury never known,
And for years I'd sit and watch 'em, and for years I'd make 'em listen
While I bellowed out "Whoisthis?" on the phone!

—Berten Braley in Pittsburgh Press.

Form Versus Food.

A famous humorist says that a newrich family in Cleveland, who were beginning to put on a lot of airs, hired a colored girl just arrived from the south to act as their serving maid. Her new mistress insisted that all meals should be served in courses. Even when there wasn't very much to eat it was brought to the table in courses.

At the end of a week the girl threw up her job. Being pressed for a reason for quitting so suddenly, she said: "I'll tell you, lady. In dis yere house dere's too much shiftin' of de dishes fur de fewness of de vittles."—Saturday Evening Post.

Sailor (to his shipmate)—What do you think of that, Bill? Here we've been sailing on soup for ten years and never knew it.—Pittsburgh Press.

Ancient.

"This inn must be very old," remarked the tourist.

"Very old," assented the landlord. "Would you like to hear some of the legends connected with the place?"

"I would, indeed," said the tourist. "Tell me the legend of this curious old mince pie. I notice it every time I come."—Washington Herald.

Correct.

George Ade, like all bachelors, inveighs against marriage cynically.

At the Congress hotel in Chicago a young lady reporter said to Mr. Ade at supper, "What is the correct meaning of mesalliance?"

"Marriage," he answered promptly. —Los Angeles Times.

PLUCKY BIRDS

Compared with mammals, parental love is stronger in birds. In protecting their nests and young, birds often show courage and strategy, more or less of which is doubtless inherited. Even the so called dangerous mammals, the bears, mountain lions, wildcats and other mammals that are best able to protect themselves, seldom make a stand against domestic intrusion. Rarely do they attempt to entice an enemy from their home by strategic means, but at the first warning of danger they either hide or watch the intruder from a safe distance. But there are very few species of birds that do not attempt to defend their homes in some way, and even the most timid evince more intelligence than most mammals.—Collier's.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

$211 FOR Y.W.C.A. FROM ALICE IN WONDERLAND

Thirty-five hundred people witnessed the four presentations of Alice in Wonderland at the Grand Opera House. Miss Grey, Y.W.C.A. secretary, announced this morning that the Association's share of the receipts was $211. This will be applied to the new home at the corner of Dalhousie and Park streets.

The largest attendance was on Saturday afternoon, when the audience numbered 1,100. Nearly 600 were children. On Thursday, the first night, the attendance was 400; on Friday night 1,000, and on Saturday night 1,000.

Two weeks ago to-day practices commenced, and the first presentation on Thursday night, was likewise the first performance of the company together. The young people certainly made a remarkable showing.

MENTALLY UNBALANCED YOUNG MAN GOES TO JAIL

A young man named Copper Smith, residing at 582 Boliver street, became suddenly insane yesterday, and his conduct was such as to require forcible restraint.

P.C. Reid was called and accompanied the patient to the jail. He was brought to the Police Court this morning, and the Magistrate, after considering the case was forced to again commit him to the jail temporarily, in the absence of any better accommodation for such cases.

The young man has never been very sound mentally, but his actions have never previously compelled his confinement.

Percy Holland when charged with being drunk in a public place, on Saturday, claimed that the information was incorrect. P.C. Sills, however, who arrested him, said otherwise, and the fine was $5.70, with the alternative of ten days in jail. Holland had not the ready money, so he went to the hill until it is forthcoming.

William Harrison was up on Saturday for being [illegible] and fined, but it failed to teach him sobriety. This morning he was fined $5.70 or ten days on the hill. He had not the money.

All Saints' Men's Club

The regular fortnightly meeting of the All Saints' Men's Club will be held to-night in the Parish Hall, at 8 o'clock. Mr. S. J. Keyes, B.A., of the Normal School staff, will give a short address on Paris.

WEDDING BELLS

MOUNTJOY—McGILL

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGill, of Manvers, on January 15 when their daughter, Mildred Alzina, was united in marriage to Mr. Merwin Lavern Mountjoy, of Enniskillen, Ont., by the Rev. Isaac Snell of Blackstock. The bride was given away by her father while Miss Parr of Cadmus played the wedding march, the ceremony being solemnized under an evergreen arch decorated with wedding bells in the parlor in the presence of over sixty guests. She was handsomely gowned in grey silk with bridal veil and orange-blossoms arranged as a Juliet cap, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The only attendant was Master Ray McGill, the bride's brother, who was ring bearer. Her travelling costume was of gray tweed with velvet blouse, black and white hat with plumes and sable furs. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and fob. After dejeuner the young couple left on the evening train for Peterboro and points east. An interesting feature was the presentation to the bride of a generous sum of money by the congregation of Lotus church, where she ably served as organist for several years.

DAVIDSON—DICKSON

In Asphodel, on Jan. 15th a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dickson, when their daughter, Annie Maud, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Percy Davidson, also of Asphodel. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Goodwill of Keene. The bride leaning on the arm of her father and carrying a bouquet of white carnations and maidens fern tied with cream duchess satin ribbbon, entered the parlor and took her place beside the groom under a beautiful arch of evergreen and a large white bell, while the wedding march was being played by the bride's cousin, Miss Bessie Elmhurst, of New Haven, U.S. The bride looked most beautiful in a gown of white duchess satin with pearl trimming and silk allover. Her veil was tastefully arranged with knots of ribbon. The only ornament was a gold watch and chain a gift from the groom.

After congratulations had been bestowed upon the young couple, the bride lead the way to a hansomely decorated dining room, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of by about ninety guests, the Westwood Methodist church choir serving as waiters. The balance of the evening was spent very enjoyably in music and games.

The young couple received a large number of costly and beautiful presents showing the esteem in which they were held. Among them was a handsome fur lined coat and parlor suit to the bride from her parents.

The bride's going away costume was a navy blue broad cloth suit with a King's blue satin waist and a large picture hat with willow plume.

JUDGMENT REVERSED AT TORONTO

Judgment has been delivered in the case of R. R. Hall vs. the Trusts and Guarantee Company, Limited, the liquidators of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., Limited, and which matter has been before the courts for the last five years, following the closing up of affairs of the old Company. Mr. Justice Middleton delivered the judgment upon the appeal by the liquidator from the judgment of His Honor Judge Huycke, upon the petition of Mr. Hall, the purchaser of the assets of the Insolvent Company, reversing the judgment in Mr. Hall's favor upon all counts covered by the judgment of His Honor Judge Huycke, with costs to the liquidator throughout, and also dismissing Mr. Hall's cross appeal claiming $15,000 damages in respect of the patterns.

In effect this judgment places Mr. Hall in the position in which he stood at the time of the fyling of his petition, namely, that of a debtor for the unpaid balance of the purchase price of the assets, amounting to $14,548.52, whereas had the appeal not been taken Mr. Hall would have been entitled, under the judgment appealed from to receive from the liquidator, the sum of $36,000.51, with interests and costs, amounting to several thousand dollars, and in addition to this the insolvent Company would have had to bear its solicitors' costs of the proceedings.

Mr. Hall has served notice of appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Middleton, and the case will be carried to a higher court.

CITY COUNCIL ATTEND SERVICE AT PARK STREET

Rev. Mr. Riddiford Suggests a Branch of the Public Library For the South Ward But Says the People Don't Want it Built With American Money

The members of the City Council and City Officials attended divine service Sunday evening in Park Street Baptist church. The address was a source of inspiration to the whole congregation but particularly to the Council, the subject being "The Art of Progression as Applied to City Problems." Rev. Mr. Riddiford who handled the subject, treated it intelligently and in a sane and thoughtful manner.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford extended a warm welcome to the visitors, and assured them that no citizens were more interested in all that tended to make a city great in the highest sense of that term than were the members of the workingmen's church.

His text was "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and it's righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you," and "speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." "Gentlemen of the Council of this beautiful and progressive city," said Mr. Riddiford, "you were elected by the free elective franchise of a free people to lead this great city to a higher standard of morality a deeper sense of the responsibility of citizenship and a higher appreciation of the unparalelled possibilities lying all around us and be assured gentlemen that no class of men in this city will watch with deeper interest and respect your deliberations to make this city a place where Howard Payne's "Home Sweet Home," can become a reality, and a fact, than the workingmen of the south ward.

The preacher said that a branch of the Public Library would be appreciated in the south end, but they did not want it built with American money.

"No wonder the pillars were crooked," he remarked. "We want it built out of the money earned and cheerfully paid over to the city by the workingmen, or else generously donated by some public-minded citizen who is fully alive to the real value of the sons and daughters of toil.

Mr. Riddiford suggested also that drinking fountains be supplied.

The Harmony Male Quartette, contributed to the musical program and Miss Edith Smith gave two vocal selections.

WITNESS DENIES HAVING TALKED WITH WITNESSES

Cardwell Vs. Breckenridge Action is Resumed Before High Court.

The adjourned sittings of the High Court were opened this morning again at the Court House with Mr. Justice Hodgins presiding.

The hearing of the Cardwell vs. Breckenridge action was resumed. In this action plaintiff seeks to obtain damages for the flooding of his lands.

When Mr. Thomas Roach, the first witness was called, Mr. W. H. Watson, K.C., counsel for plaintiffs said that he had heard witness had been making speeches and talking to the witnesses, presumably for the purpose of influencing them in giving their evidence. Mr. Roach, however denied it emphatically, although he said he had heard rumors to that effect.

The evidence proffered by witness extended back twenty years. It was given with apparent difficulty and he was questioned by Mr. Watson with the object of ascertaining the height of water in the creek at that time. Witness was asked if he remembered the evidence of two previous witnesses and said that he didn't. Later, however, when his memory was prodded he recalled parts of it.

FOUR OF FAMILY STRICKEN WITH FEVER; MOTHER DIES

Mrs George Garrison, passed away yesterday morning at the Nicholl's Hospital, aged 40 years. Her death was due to typhoid fever.

The late Mrs. Garrison, formerly of Havelock, had resided in this city about a month.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss a husband and six children, three of them being confined to the Nicholl's Hospital with typhoir fever.

The body of the late Mrs. Garrison was forwarded to Havelock last night for burial.

Mr. Garrison is night porter at the Hotel National.

SOME OF THE ACCOUNTS FOR SUPPLIES AT THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL

To-morrow afternoon at three o'clock the investigation into the expenses incurred in running the Isolation Hospital during the past year, will be commenced by the local Board of Health. Alderman Gordon and Alderman Anderson, who allege mismanagement of the Hospital are both expected to be on hand to substantiate their assertions, that the expenses have been altogether too high. Some interesting facts are expected to be brought out by the inquiry.

There were twenty-six patients in the Hospital reported to have received treatment during the year 1912, making the total number of days of treatment altogether 1,190.

During that time $1,150.82 was spent on groceries and provisions and $98.71 on drugs and medicine.

The amounts of a few of accounts during December were:

E. F. Mason, groceries	$ 30.87
Gordon Davies	19.94
Coleman Bros	4.40
W. J. Oke	11.40
J. John [illegible]	2.50
Fred T. Brown (milk dealer)	4.90

OBITUARY

The Late Miss Shaughnessy

Miss Ada Shaughnessy, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Dennis Shaughnessy of Otonabee passed away yesterday at the home of her parents in her 23rd. year.

The late Miss Shaughnessy was well known and highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her father and mother, three sisters. Annie, Bertha and Carrie, and two brothers John and Edmond, all residing at home.

The funeral will leave the family residence, lot 18, concession 13, at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, to Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's cemetery.

The Late Mrs. Mennel

Mrs. Annie Mennel, aged [illegible] years, passed away this afternoon at the House of Providence. The deceased was a former resident of Hastings. She leaves to mourn her loss, three daughters, Catherine of Hastings, Dorothy of Edmonton, Mary of Ottawa; and a brother, John of Hastings.

Her husband predeceased her some years ago.

This is the winter of discontent for the ice man who can't sleep for calculating the coal man's profits.

MR. MACKIE IS STILL MISSING

The police have not yet located Robert Mackie, the aged man who wandered away from 227 Thomas street. It is believed that he has left the city, as diligent inquiry and much searching has failed to elicit any information about him.

TANKARD GAMES ON FRIDAY

The Tankard primaries announced for to-morrow at the curling rink, are postponed till Friday.

Wire.

Wire was first beaten out by a hammer, but the artisans of Nuremberg, in 1350, began to draw it, which was the great step forward in that art.

Unslaked Lime.

Unslaked lime is useful in preventing rust because of its extraordinary capacity for absorbing moisture. Some careful workmen who take pains that their tools shall always be in the best condition make a practice of keeping a piece of lime in their tool boxes to absorb any moisture which might otherwise cause rust.

Great Sale of Tea

The wonderful era of prosperity that is now being enjoyed in Canada is exemplified by the report of the SALADA Tea Co., which states that, during the year just ended, there were 1,223,437 pounds more SALADA tea sold than in 1911.

This increase would supply every household in the Dominion with one pound of tea. 52

A Remarkable Tree.

There grows on Vashion Island, in Puget sound, one of the most remarkable trees in the world. Inside of it twenty adult persons have found room to gather at one time and, comfortably seated, to eat their luncheon, which they spread around the wonderful living spring that bubbles up continually in the center. Probably there is no other such growth in nature. The circle inside, on the ground, is eighteen feet in diameter, and the tree is hollow, having been burned off at the top, the bark scorched and the heart gutted by a forest fire of many years ago. The condition leaves what is really a trunk or stump standing, about twenty feet high and open at the top, thus making the chamber very light. One can see clear through the tree by reason of the holes burnt through by the fire.—National Monthly.

Oil Fires.

Two Danish inventors have found a way to put out oil fires by applying carbonic acid that is foaming violently. The foam is produced by a mixture of two liquids, and it is said that when it is thrown on burning substances, such as oils, benzine and tar, it spreads rapidly over the surface and puts out the flames by cutting off the air. Many tanks that contain oil or other highly inflammable liquids are now permanently fitted with perforated pipes, through which the foaming mixture can be applied directly to the surface of the burning material. Hitherto fires in oil tanks have been allowed to burn themselves out or the contents have been drawn out from below and wasted. According to Chambers' Journal, many private and government institutions have adopted the new system.

MUNICIPALITIES WILL BE ABLE TO CONTROL STREETS

Minister of Railways and Canals Promises a Reform in the Law—Railway Commission Will Have Jurisdiction to Deal With Poles.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—When the new Railway Act is introduced it will likely contain the provision that all telephone, telegraph and power transmission companies must come under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission and Canadian municipalities will be given the power to control their own streets. This was intimated by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, yesterday afternoon to a delegation which waited upon him, representing the Canadian Municipalities Union.

This was the real intention of the original legislation, but federally incorporated companies, which had received charters before the Railway Commission Act was enacted, always contended that the act was not applicable to them.

If Mr. Cochrane carries out the idea which he intimated yesterday afternoon, the real purpose and intent of the original act will be secured.

NO VOTES FOR WOMEN

Antis in England Vigorously Oppose Any Reform.

Women Would be Inferior Political Units,

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Lord Curzon aroused frenzied enthusiasm at the anti-suffrage meeting in Queen's Hall last night by declaring: "We don't want an open door at all, not to the million women dressed up as municipal electors, or thirteen million women marching as the vanguard of the great army which will eventually take charge of the destinies of state."

Members of Parliament, both Liberal and Unionist, members of the aristocracy, and representatives of arts and letters constituted the gathering which met to protest against the female suffrage amendment to the franchise bill which comes before the Commons on Friday. The topic is monopolizing political interest and embarrassing the Government more than any other.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward was a picturesque figure in lace cap and black gown. "Women with votes," she declared, "would be inferior political units serving as raw material for the political purposes of men."

NEW TRIAL FOR BECKER?

It is Said One Juror Was Absent From His Fellows.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Allegation that one of the Becker jurors was separated from his fellows during the course of the trial will be used by counsel for former Police Lieut. Chas. Becker, convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, in asking for a new trial. Joseph A. Shay, attorney of record for Becker, yesterday confirmed reports to this effect, and declared that he had in his possession affidavits of witnesses who saw Juror Samuel H. Haas twice in the neighborhood of his home in Bedford Park at night during the progress of the trial.

PUTTING THE LID ON NEVADA

CARSON CITY, Nev., Jan. 21.—Governor Tasker L. Oddie, in his message to the Nevada Legislature, yesterday recommended passage of a law requiring residence of one year instead of six months in the state before a divorce could be obtained. He also advocated a law limiting the number of rounds in a prizefight.

CHAMBERLIN NOT WORRYING

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—"I don't know very much about it, and I am not paying any attention to it."

So said President E. J. Chamberlin in regard to the indictment returned in Washington in connection with the alleged agreement between the Grand Trunk and New Haven roads not to extend the Grand Trunk Railway into Boston.

President Chamberlin was here to spend the week-end with Mrs. Chamberlin.

MADERO IS DENOUNCED

Revolution in Mexico Grows to Alarming Proportions

CRISIS IS FACED

Deputies Go About in Daily Fear of Assassination.

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Jan. 21.—While the rebels are becoming more active in many quarters in Mexico, a mass meeting here was the scene of violent attacks upon Madero and his Government, and it is feared there will be more trouble in the Chamber of Deputies the next time it convenes.

Fighting between the Federal and rebel troops is reported in the vicinity of Acapulco. Three hundred insurrectos are now between San Angel and Contrearas, suburbs of Mexico City, and a band of a thousand has taken Napantla, killing or wounding many of the rurales, while six women were carried away by rebels from villages in the State of Mexico.

Five leaders of the independent group of Congress spoke violently in denouncing Madero at a mass meeting of protest at the arrest of editors and newspapers. The editors are said to have been fined without trial. All the speakers bitterly arraigned the Government, while Deputy Meheno gave a pledge to demand justice from the courts, and declared if that was refused he would call upon the people to revolt. Another Deputy said that in the event of intervention, however, they would be with Madero. The audience shouted "No, we will fight, but without him."

Luis Cabrera, Government leader in the Chamber of Deputies, in a speech in the Chamber yesterday said that Deputies feared an attack from crowds in the galleries. He said he was convinced that many spectators were armed, and said that all Deputies carried pistols for their defence.

It was learned later that serious fears of such an attack exist in the Government group of Deputies, and that steps may be taken to have persons searched on entering the galleries.

NEW YORK GANGSTERS ASSIST GARMENT WORKERS

Strikebreakers Attacked and Police Have Busy Time — Thirty Arrests Made.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A few thousand girls went to work in the dress and shirtwaist factories yesterday, but in other branches of the garment makers' trade the strike developed more violence than the police have had to contend with on any other day since the trouble began.

The strike-breakers were attacked as they came out of the subway stations and the police say that east side gangsters played an important part in these battles. More of the rioting occurred in the area bounded by Fourth and Fifth avenues and Bowery, Bleecker and Fourteenth streets. Men and women were beaten and trampled and policemen engaged in rough-and-tumble fights all over the streets. More than thirty arrests were made.

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday afternoon to grant a sweeping injunction against the employes of manufacturers belonging to the New York Clothing Trade Association. The injunction, if granted, would restrain the strikers from all manner of interference with employes who remained at work.

Says Preference Is Dead.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Speaking at the city of London free trade meeting yesterday, Lord Avebury referred to the Unionist policy of food taxation and the recent Unionist speeches. Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Bonar Law did not wish to put on food taxes, and would only do so if the Dominions [illegible]. The Dominions never [illegible]. Food taxes were dead and manufactures only remained, but then we import no manufactures from the Dominions. That being so, what became of preference? It was dead.

CHAPLAIN OF PENITENTIARY PASSES AWAY

KINGSTON, Jan. 21.—After a few days' illness from pneumonia Rev. Canon Arthur W. Cooke, Protestant chaplain of the penitentiary for the past eighteen years, died yesterday afternoon, aged 72. A widow, four daughters and two sons survive.

THE PRESIDENT ELECT OF FRANCE AND HIS WIFE

RAYMOND POINCARE — MME. POINCARE

Mr. Raymond Poincaré is the new French President-elect. He is one of the strongest men who have participated in politics in France in recent years. He is a comparatively young man, only in his fifty-third year. He has been in politics, however, for many years, having been elected Deputy in 1887. He became Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs on January 11 last year.

Mme Poincaré was Mlle. Henriette Benucci, an Italian by birth. She and her husband live now only a short distance from their new home, the Elyse Palace, where they will go on February 18 next.

TURKEY IS WORKING HARD TO SAVE HER REPUTATION

Delegates Hope That Mediation by the Powers Will Give Excuse For Ceding Adrianople and Ending the War—Turks Weakening.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vienna, Jan. 21—Increasing optimism is displayed in telegrams received here from Constantinople. Even should Turkey's reply to the powers be not altogether favorable it is believed the powers having once taken hold, will not allow hostilities to be resumed.

Belgrade, Jan. 21—All leave of absence from Servian regiments has been stopped.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Balkan plenipotentiaries, who are awaiting the Turkish reply, do not conceal their impatience and their firm determination to prevent Turkey from postponing the settlement longer than a week. Meanwhile unofficial conversations have begun among the allies regarding their inter-Balkan delimitations. Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, and the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, were engrossed in this task yesterday. As no agreement has yet been reached concerning Saloniki, the Greeks hope to find no difficulty in retaining the town when the Bulgarians get Adrianople.

Rechad Pasha received long cipher messages from Constantinople yesterday afternoon, and it is asserted that he was instructed to confer with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, with the object of obtaining direct intervention by the powers under the form of mediation, or in another way, if more acceptable, so that Turkey might be spared the humiliation of ceding Adrianople at first hand.

Rechad Pasha, accompanied by Tewfik Pasha and Osman Nizami Pasha, later in the day visited the British Foreign Secretary, but the nature of Sir Edward Grey's reply has not been disclosed.

The meeting of the National Assembly at Constantinople has been postponed until Wednesday and the Porte's reply to the note of the powers will be presented after this meeting. The general impression is that the Turkish Government is weakening with respect to the demands of the allies.

A Bucharest despatch says it is expected that a settlement between Roumania and Bulgaria will be effected before Feb. 1 by an agreement providing for rectification of the frontier. Roumania, however, will not get as much as she wanted; Bulgaria will cede some of the forts in the neighborhood of Silistria, but not the town itself.

DETECTIVE IS KILLED

Auto Bandits Slay Officer With His Own Revolvor.

Was Murdered in Flat When He Sought to Make Arrest.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A climax to the season for members of the automobile bandit crew came yesterday with the shooting and killing of Detective Peter Hart with his own revolver, supposedly by one of the bandits.

The detective was shot through the heart when he entered a flat at 1,617 South Wabash avenue for the purpose of arresting "Bob" Webb, said to be an accomplice of James B. Perry, confessed bandit, now under arrest.

After shooting Hart, the assassin leaped through a window to an adjoining roof, ran the length of the block, went down a stairway and escaped in a crowd.

Knowledge that Webb had a woman friend in the flat led the police to watch the place. Arrangements were made with an occupant of another flat in the building to notify the detectives if Webb should come. Hart was told yesterday afternoon that Webb was there, and the detective hurried to the place. He evidently encountered his slayer soon for other detectives, attracted by the sound of a shot, arrived in the flat within a few minutes after Hart and found him near death. He died before they could call a doctor.

The woman in the flat was arrested. Her name has not been revealed to the police.

Stage Wound Was Real.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—During the third act of "Le Portefeuille Rouge" at the Theatre Nationoscope yesterday afternoon, Ernest Valhubert, as Maurace, was accidentally shot down by Paul Coutle, as Vestrias, when the former breaks away from his guards and rushes across the stage. Blank cartridges are used in the performance, but some hard substance in the barrel of the rifle entered Valhubert's groin, and he was painfully but not mortally wounded.

Few of us who are entitled to the consequences are willing to take them.

IDAHO IN GRIP OF BLIZZARD

HAILEY, Idaho, Jan. 21.—As a result of a severe snowstorm in the Wood River district, several passenger trains are stalled, wires are down, and cattle are perishing. For two weeks a blizzard has raged, entirely isolating several points from communication.

Two hundred head of cattle near Hailey are snowed in without water or food. Many other herds are lost or unable to reach the river.

DUCHESS LEAVES THE HOSPITAL

Montreal, Jan. 12.—Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught has been removed from the Royal Victoria Hospital, and is now staying with the Duke and Princess Patricia at the residence of Mr. James Ross, Peel street. She is a little weak, and is confined to her bed, but is steadily gaining in health.

CANADA SHOULD BE SOUNDED

Conference Needed to Examine Naval Enthusiasm, Says Times.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times urges that before Premier Borden settles Canada's permanent naval policy there must be another Imperial Conference to ascertain the extent of Canada's desire to co-operate with the other Dominions having a pacific interest. The Dominions now take a broader outlook on the Imperial policy, a fact of which Winston Churchill has shown intermittent perception. Should he be tempted to look only to British convenience, rather than to Imperial development, he would impair the regard entertained for the Admiralty by every Dominion.

In a leading article in the Berlin Vossiche Zeitung, entitled "The Downfall of Chamberlainism," Vice-Admiral Hoffman (retired) declares that neither the people of Britain nor of the Dominions have been persuaded of the advantages of Imperialism as understood by the Conservative party. Democratic Imperialism, he says, has gained the day.

FRENCH CABINET SELECTED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Jan. 21.—Premier Aristide Briand completed the Cabinet this morning and went to Elysee Palace to consult President Poincare.

Briand's selection is as follows: Premier and Minister of the Interior, Aristide Briand; Minister of Justice, Jean Barthou; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Charles Jonnart; Minister of War, Eugene Etienne; Minister of Marine, Pierre Baudin; Minister of Finance, Louis Klotz; Minister of Public Instruction, Jules Steeg; Minister of Public Works, Jean Dupuy; Minister of Agriculture, Jean Morel; Minister of Commerce, Ferand David; Minister of Colonies, Gabriel Guisthau; Minister of Labor, Rene Besnard.

CAN PRODUCE COLD LIGHT

French Scientist May Have Revolutionized Illumination.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—M. Dussaud, a French scientist, who has discovered a means for the production of what he terms "cold light," gave yesterday some details of his discovery, which, it is thought, may revolutionize electric lighting.

Starting on the principle that rest is as essential to matter as to animal organism, he has constructed an electric lamp, in which the light is concentrated on a single point by filaments working successively; thence the light is projected through a lens magnifying a thousand-fold. Thus he has succeeded in concentrating a two-thousand candle-power light on one point and in passing 32 volts into an eight-volt lamp, which, with the ordinary light, would burst.

Experiments with this lamp have established that the new light is absolutely without danger, as no heat is given off, and it requires a hundred times less current than the ordinary lamp. It can be worked by a tiny battery, or sufficient motive power can be obtained from a jet of water from an ordinary faucet, or even a squirrel turning a cage.

MAY WIPE OUT THE WHOLE TOWN

Canadian Press Despatch.

New London, Ohio, Jan. 21.—Fire, which started at two o'clock this morning, had consumed almost an entire block by eight o'clock, and is threatening to wipe out the town.

The average man would like to get a divorce from most of his relatives.

EMMERSON EXPATIATES ON FEEDERS FOR RAILWAY

Former Minister Proceeds to Outline His Views in Spite of Hon. Frank Cochrane's Assurance That Case is Under Consideration.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—The greater part of yesterday's session of the Commons was spent in discussing Hon. H. R. Emmerson's resolution declaring that it would be desirable that the influence of the Intercolonial Railway should be widened and extended by securing by "lease or purchase such of the branch lines now connected with the I.C.R. as will serve direct and profitable feeders." The resolution further declared that it would be in the general interest of the country "to secure these lines without a special consideration to the immediate financial results."

Mr. Emmerson had only got nicely started when Hon. Frank Cochrane interrupted to say that it would not be necessary for him to proceed. The first part of the resolution, he said, declaring it to be desirable to secure these branch lines, was still under consideration, and as for the second part of the motion, it was not in the public interest for the Government to give an estimate of the value of the branch lines.

Mr. Emmerson did not propose, however, to be silenced. He declared that because of the laxity of the Government in taking over branch lines touching the Intercolonial in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, these small lines were absorbed by the C.P.R. and the people of the Maritime Provinces were getting in the grip of a railway monopoly. Already there were many complaints from many sections of high freight and passenger charges. Mr. Emmerson said that he did not wish to treat the matter from a partisan point of view; it was one phase of the great transportation problem, which sooner or later would have to be grappled with and solved.

Clarence Johnson of Digby, who followed, twitted Mr. Emmerson with not having put his principles into practice while Minister of Railways, and expressed the belief that the present Government would safeguard the interests of the people.

The discussion was continued by several members, including Hon. C. Marcil, ex-Speaker of the House. Mr. Marcil received applause from both sides. It was his first speech since quitting the Speakership.

A number of important questions were asked by the Opposition and answered by the Government when the House met.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier wanted to know if a remission of customs duties had been given to the Algoma Steel Co. on steel rails imported at Fort William, the date of the remission and the statute under which the remission had been made.

Hon. Dr. Reid stated, in reply, that this remission was made at various times after June 1, 1912, under section 92 of the Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act. The whole of the remission was $294,000, being one-half of the duty on 75,000 tons of imported steel rails. Fifty thousand tons of these rails were for the use of the G.T.P. Railway and twenty-five thousand tons for branch lines of the C.P.R. in the northwest. The rails were urgently required by the railway companies for the completion of lines in the northwest provinces in time to be available for the movement of the crop, and evidence was submitted showing that the rail-producing companies of Canada would not be able to supply the rails required by reason of being under contract for the full output for the season.

Mr. E. B. Devlin asked a question relating to labor conditions and the high cost of living, which elicited from Hon. T. W. Crothers the information that the Labor Department were investigating the cost of living and wages in Canada as compared with the United States.

Mr. J. H. Sinclair of Guysboro was told that the Government is considering a suggestion of increasing the rate of interest to depositors in the postoffice savings bank from 3 to 3 1-2 or 4 per cent.

Hon. J. D. Hazen told A. K. MacLean of Halifax that repairs to the Niobe had cost to date $202,715, with some items still to be considered.

Mr. Cash of Yorkton was informed by Hon. J. D. Reid that Dr. J. D. R. Williams had been dismissed from the position of collector of canal tolls at Cardinal, Ont., because of lack of qualifications and neglect of duty. Dr. Williams' successor is George Reid, a brother of the Minister, who had previously held the position, and had been dismissed without "just reason."

BANQUET FOR LEADER ROWELL

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Ontario Opposition, was the guest of honor at a banquet of the North Toronto Liberal Club in Masonic Hall last night. About 160 were present. In the course of a short address, Mr. Rowell launched out his present pet subject—tax reform.

PEOPLE FLEE FROM THEIR HOUSES

Before Dreaded Eruption of Colima Volcano

Canadian Press Despatch.

Guadalannara Mexico, Jan. 21 — The volcano of Colima burst into eruption on Monday, and hundreds of residents of that vicinity were forced to flee from their homes.

Rounded Up Boundary-Jumpers.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 21.—Seven Chinamen, four of whom were from Brockville, were caught by U. S. immigration officers near the shipyards in Ogdensburg, N.Y., yesterday morning. It was a clean round-up. The gang, it is thought, organized here before making the dash across the river to Uncle Sam's domain.

GASOLINE SAUSAGES

They Were Part of Stock-in-Trade of Chicago Firebug.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—"Gasoline sausages" were used to start incendiary fires by members of the alleged "arson ring," according to testimony presented to State Attorney Hoyne yesterday. In one fire, it was said, a score of sausage skins filled with gasoline were strung on wires. These "gasoline sausages" exploded when the fire reached them and spread.

A new chemical preparation known as "fire powder," also was used by the alleged "firebugs" in starting the incendiary blazes. This preparation enabled the alleged "firebug" to be several miles away from the building before the fire was discovered.

GUELPH CUTS LIGHT CHARGES

GUELPH, Jan. 21.—At the first meeting of the light and heat commission for 1913, Mayor Carter was elected chairman. It was decided to reduce the minimum charge of 50 cents a month for gas consumers to 25 cents, and the one dollar charge for setting meters was cut off. This puts the gas on the same basis as the electric light.

ENTIRE CREW BELIEVED TO HAVE GONE DOWN WITH SHIP

Danish Steamer Was Lost During Hurricane—None of the Bodies Recovered.

CHARLESTON, S.C., Jan. 21.—Another tragedy of the sea was recorded here yesterday, when Captain Ree, of the Dutch steamship Preoda, reported the sinking of a large Danish tramp steamer, about fifty miles off Plymouth, England, on Dec. 26, during a hurricane. The entire crew perished. The name of the vessel is not known, but officers of the Preoda believe it probably was the Ivar of Copenhagen.

The vessel was sighted by the Preoda during a storm on the afternoon of Dec. 26. Captain Ree signalled to the steamer offering assistance, but received no reply. The Preoda continued to approach the distressed steamer, but before she was reached a high sea broke over her and she sank.

The Preoda stood by the spot where the ship went down in the hope of recovering bodies. None were found, and near midnight the Preoda resumed its journey to the port here.

To Honor George Clare.

GALT, Jan. 21.—Arrangements have been made for a public reception to George A. Clare, M.P., at Preston, on Friday night, to express appreciation of his services as Parliamentary representative, and to offer congratulations on his recent elevation to the Privy Council of Canada.

Veteran Orangeman Dead.

KINGSTON, Jan. 21.—Charles Riley, aged 73, one of the oldest Orangemen in Eastern Ontario, is dead at his home in Camden East. He resided there half a century. A widow and one son survive.

MEDAL FOR LORD KITCHENER

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A good deal of interest has been created in Britain by the suggestion made in Paris, that the medal for the Franco-German war should be awarded to Lord Kitchener, who took part as a volunteer in the operations of the war.

"Yes, I will," replied Elnora. "But you will have as good lunch as I do after this. You will have milk, eggs, chicken, all kinds of good things, little pies and cakes, maybe."

Billy shook his head. "I am going back home soon as it is light," he said. "She don't want me. She thinks I'm a bad boy. She's going to whip me—if he lets her. She said so. I heard her. Oh, I wish he hadn't died! I want to go home," Billy shrieked again.

Mrs. Comstock had started to walk slowly and meet Elnora. The girl had been so late that her mother reached the Sinton gate and came up the path until the picture inside became visible. Elnora had told her about Sinton taking Billy home. Mrs. Comstock had some curiosity to see how Margaret bore the unexpected addition to her family. Billy's voice, raised with excitement, was plainly audible. She could see Elnora holding him and hear his excited wail. Sinton's face was drawn and haggard and Margaret's set and defiant. A very imp of perversity entered the breast of Mrs. Comstock and danced there.

"Holty, tolty!" she said as she suddenly appeared in the door. "Blest if I ever heard a man making sounds like that before!"

Billy ceased suddenly. Mrs. Comstock was tall, angular, and her hair was prematurely white, for she was only thirty-six, though she looked fifty. But there was an expression on her usually cold face that was attractive just then, and Billy was in search of attractions.

"Do you like boys?" he questioned.

"If there is anything I love it is a boy," said Mrs. Comstock assuringly. Billy was on the floor.

"Do you like dogs?"

"Yes, almost as well as boys. I am going to buy a dog just as soon as I can find a good one."

Billy swept toward her with a whoop.

"Do you want a boy?" he shouted.

Katharine Comstock stretched out her arms and gathered him in.

"Of course I want a boy!" she rejoiced.

"Maybe you'd like to have me?" offered Billy.

"Sure I would," triumphed Mrs. Comstock. "Any one would like to have you. You are just a real boy, Billy."

"Will you take Snap?"

"I'd like to have Snap almost as well as you."

"Mother!" breathed Elnora imploringly. "Don't! Oh, don't! He thinks you mean it!"

"And so I do mean it," said Mrs. Comstock. "I'll take him in a jiffy. I throw away enough to feed a little tyke like him every day. His chatter would be great company while you are gone. Blood soon can be purified with right food and baths, and as for Snap I meant to get a bulldog, but possibly Snap will serve just as well. All I ask of a dog is to bark at the right time. I'll do the rest. Would you like to come and be my boy, Billy?"

Billy leaned against Mrs. Comstock, reached his arms around her neck and gripped her with all his puny might. "You can whip me all you want to," he said. "I won't make a sound."

Mrs. Comstock held him closely and her hard face was softening. Of that there could not be a doubt.

"You like boys!" exulted Billy, and his head dropped against Mrs. Comstock in unspeakable content.

"Yes, and if I don't have to carry you the whole way home we must start right now," said Mrs. Comstock. "You are going to be asleep before you know it."

"Billy, are you going to leave without even saying goodby to me?" asked Sinton, with a great gulp in his throat.

Billy held tight to Mrs. Comstock and Elnora.

"Goodby!" he said casually. "I'll come and see you some time."

Wesley Sinton gave a smothered sob and strode from the room.

Mrs. Comstock started for the door, dragging at Billy as Elnora pulled back, but Mrs. Sinton was before them, her eyes flashing.

"Kate Comstock, you think you are mighty smart, don't you?" she cried.

"I ain't in the lunatic asylum, where, you belong, anyway," said Mrs. Comstock. "I am smart enough to tell a dandy boy when I see him, and I'm good and glad to get him. I'll love to have him!"

"Well, you won't have him!" exclaimed Margaret Sinton. "That boy is Wesley's. He got him and brought him here. You can't come in and take him like that. Let go of him!"

Wesley Sinton appeared behind Margaret in the doorway, and she turned to him. "Make Kate Comstock let go of our boy!" she demanded.

"Billy, she wants you now," said Wesley Sinton. "She won't whip you, and she won't let any one else. You can have stacks of good things to eat, ride in the carriage and have a great time. Won't you stay with us?"

Billy drew away from Mrs. Comstock and Elnora.

He faced Margaret, his eyes shrewd with unchildish wisdom. Necessity had taught him to strike the hot iron, to drive the hard bargain.

"Can I have Snap to live here always?" he demanded.

"Yes, you can have all the dogs you want," said Margaret Sinton.

"Can I sleep close enough so's I can touch you?"

"Yes. You can move your lounge up so that you can hold my hand," said Margaret.

"Do you love me now?" questioned Billy.

"I'll try to love you if you are a good boy," said Margaret.

"Then I guess I'll stay," said Billy, walking over to her.

Out in the night Elnora and her mother went down the road in the moonlight, and every few rods Mrs. Comstock laughed aloud.

"Mother, I don't understand you," sobbed Elnora.

"Well, maybe when you have gone to high school long you will," said Mrs. Comstock. "Anyway, you saw me bring Mag Sinton to her senses, didn't you?"

• • • • • • • •

On Sunday, while Mrs Comstock was in town with the Sintons, Elnora, although repeatedly cautioned not to enter the Limberlost alone, went after specimens and was soon carrying five fine cocoons of different species as her reward. She pushed back her hair and gazed around longingly. A few rods inside she thought she saw cocoons on a bush, to which she went and found several. Sense of caution was rapidly vanishing; she was in a fair way to forget everything and plunge into the swamp when she thought she heard footsteps coming down the trail. She went back and came out almost facing Pete Corson.

(To be Continued.)

New German Envoy.

Prince Charles Max Lichnowsky, the new German ambassador to England, succeeding the late Baron von Bieberstein, began his diplomatic career in London twenty-eight years ago. He has been stationed since at Stockholm, Bucharest, Constantinople and Vienna. Besides being a diplomat he is a soldier, having seen service in the German army. He is a hereditary member of the Prussian house of peers and is fifty-two years old.

Must Never Lend.

Parting advice to his daughters in regard to money was given at the end of his will by Mr. Charles William Milne, of Rosery, Blossomfield, Solihull, Warwickshire, who left estate of £15,866 gross. He stated: "I solemnly make this parting injunction that none of my daughters shall ever diminish her capital by giving away or lending any money to anybody male or female."

Cookery Points

Peanut Brittle.

Shell the peanuts and remove the skins, then roll the nuts with a roller on a marble slab until they are as fine as possible. Measure the nuts and for every half pint take one pound of granulated sugar. Put the sugar in a saucepan without a drop of water, let it melt very carefully and when thoroughly melted and brown (not burned) remove from the stove. Stir in the peanuts at once, pour on a marble slab and roll very quickly with a roller until thin as a wafer; then cut in strips.

FOR BURNS — ZAM BUK

Stops Pain at Once

This is the verdict of all who have tried Zam-Buk. The woman in the home knows best its value. A burn from the stove, from a flat-iron, or a hot pan, is instantly soothed by Zam-Buk. When the little ones fall and cut or scratch themselves, Zam-Buk stops the pain, and, incidentally, their crying. The best proof of this is the fact that children who have once had Zam-Buk applied come for it again. For more serious burns, too, it is unequalled. Mr. John Johnston, of 734 South Marks Street, Fort William, a moulder in Copp's Foundry, says: "Some time ago I burned the top of my foot severely by dropping some molten iron from a ladle I was carrying. A large hole was burned through my shoe and into the top of my foot. I was taken home, and Zam-Buk was applied to the burn directly. It was surprising what relief this balm afforded. The burn was so deep and so serious that it required careful attention, but Zam-Buk prevented other complications arising, and as it was daily applied, soothed the pains and allayed the inflammation. In the course of two weeks the hole burned in my foot had quite healed."

Mr. W. B. Gibson, of Belleville, writes: "We have tried Zam-Buk often on cuts and sores, and I think there is nothing than can equal it."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

ABOUT FINGER NAILS

To keep the finger nails clean the nailbrush and soap and warm water should be used daily, and every time the hands are washed and while they are still soft and warm the free edge of the scarf skin, which, if not attended to, is apt to grow upward over the nails, should be gently loosened and pressed back in a neatly rounded form, by which the occurrence of cracks, hangnails, etc., about the roots of the nails will be prevented, and a graceful oval form and the display of a crescent-like space of white will be insured. This scarf skin, as a rule, should never be cut and should on no account be torn or picked off, as is commonly done. The less it is meddled with, other than in the way recommended, the better.

The Wind Month.

November was called by the ancient Saxons the wint monat, or wind month, on account of the gales then prevalent. It was also named the blot monat, or blood month, from the ancient practice of then slaughtering cattle for the winter provisions.

Write Ideas For Moving Picture Plays!

YOU CAN WRITE PHOTO PLAYS AND EARN $25 OR MORE WEEKLY

We Will Show You How!

If you have ideas—if you can THINK—we will show you the secrets of this fascinating new profession. Positively no experience or literary excellence necessary. No "flowery language" is wanted.

The demand for photoplays is practically unlimited. The big film manufacturers are "moving heaven and earth" in their attempts to get enough good plots to supply the ever increasing demand. They are offering $100 and more, for single scenarios, or written ideas.

Nearly all the big film companies, the buyers of photoplays, are located in or near NEW YORK CITY. Being right on the spot, and knowing at all times just what sort of plots are wanted by the producers, our SALE DEPARTMENT has a tremendous advantage over agencies situated in distant cities.

We have received many letters from the big film manufacturers, such as VITAGRAPH, EDISON, ESSANAY, LUBIN SOLAX, IMP, REX, RELIANCE, CHAMPION, COMET, MELIES, ETC., urging us to send photoplays to them. We want more writers and we'll gladly teach you the secrets of success.

We are selling photoplays written by people who "never before wrote a line for publication."

Perhaps we can do the same for you. If you can think of only one good idea every week, and will write it out as directed by us, and it sells for only $25., a low figure.

You Will Earn $100 Monthly For Spare Time Work.

FREE Send your name and address at once for free copy of our illustrated book, "MOVING PICTURE PLAYWRITING"

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World —Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

Fox Creek, N. B.—"I have always had pains in the abdomen and a weakness there and often after meals a soreness in my stomach. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM S. BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N. B.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

DUSKY ROYAL EXILES.

African Rulers Thrust From Their Thrones by France.

The club of kings in exile does not exist yet, but its organization may soon become desirable if France continues to dispossess little African rulers as she has been doing. For president and vice president of the club Abdul Aziz and Mulai Hafid, former rulers of Morocco, are clearly indicated, for both are extremely wealthy. The former is negotiating at present for the sale of his personal possessions in Morocco, valued at several millions. Mulai Hafid, his successor, receives from the ministry of foreign affairs an annual indemnity of 375,000 francs.

After them the most popular sovereign in exile is Ranavalo, ex-queen of Madagascar. When the monarchy was abolished in her island Ranavalo was sent to Algiers, where she dwells in a picturesque Moorish palace, drawing an allowance of 250,000 francs a year.

Then comes Behanzin, Jr., son of the former king of Dahomey. He soon squandered the money he received on the death of his father, and his picturesque career has supplied Parisian vaudeville with many a funny sketch. He became successively a waiter, a peddler, a carriage man and now he is a liveried messenger for a Montmarte restaurant.

Salina Machimba, ex-queen of Mobeli, draws an annuity of 3,000 francs. She recently married a retired policeman and is spending idyllic years on a farm in the department of Cote d'Or.

Not far from Ranavalo's palace in Algeria lives Han N'ghi, ex-king of Annam, whose title of nobility goes 4,000 years back. In 1887 he took up arms against France and was deported to Africa. He receives 80,000 francs a year.

The sultan of Grand Comora, personally wealthy, has submitted to exile, but has never accepted a penny from his victorious enemies. The ex-sultan of the Tuaregs, the highwaymen of the Sahara desert, is drawing 25,000 francs a year from the administration of the colonies.

Some less important kinglets whose capture was relatively easy are receiving more modest, sometimes ridiculously modest, indemnities for the loss of their possessions.—New York Sun.

Beauty Patches Revived.

Patches have arrived in London. A period of coquetry has begun, for with the draped gowns, the pannier skirts and feminine laces and ribbons and flowers come the powder and patches of other days. In Bond street and Piccadilly one already notes patches being worn with all styles of dress. These beauty spots are quite large and of the round variety. They are worn a little under the left eye. The dimple or chin [illegible] have not yet made their appearance.

A Tall Family.

Mrs. Sophia Hill, of Hornsey, Eng., has a family of sons and daughters with a remarkable height record. One, a gunner in the Canadian Artillery, and said to be the tallest man in the Dominion army, stands six feet six inches; another is six feet four and a half inches in height; a third, six feet one inch; and two other sons, six feet; while there are four daughters who average six feet each.

IN A MOTOR-BOAT

By SARAH PRICE VAUGHAN

Her father called her Pussy, and her mother called her Tottle and several other pet names. She was the only child, and we all know what that means. Her father and mother lived for her alone. Without her their universe would have collapsed.

When she was sixteen she was what girls of that age usually are—half woman, half child. She realized the woman part, but of the child part she was unconscious. She considered herself quite old enough to have a lover and was not long in getting one. Johnny Walker was the young man she decided upon for that position.

She made Johnny's acquaintance in this way: His father owned a summer cottage on the Atlantic coast, and one season Mr. Cummings, Pussy's father, rented a cottage near by. There is no coast in the world so adapted to boating in a medium way as this—that is, it isn't ocean boating or row boating, though there may be both. It is especially fitted for motor boating. All day one hears the rapid explosions of gasoline engines coming over the water far and near.

It was a motorboat that did the business for Pussy and Johnny. Johnny was eighteen years old and had grown up, so to speak, in a motorboat. He had a very nice one, so Pussy thought, only she would have preferred that it should have been painted blue, her favorite color, instead of white. When she first saw Johnny go out in it she stood on the shore looking at him so wistfully that he asked his mother to call on their neighbors so that he could take "that pretty girl" out in his boat. His mother called, and Johnny and Pussy did the rest.

That was the first summer. When the two families went home "after Labor day"—the American people all go home from the country at one time after Labor day, much to their discomfort—Johnny and Pussy were engaged. Pussy managed it all, though Johnny was quite willing. Pussy before starting in for another year at school told her mother of her engagement.

The good lady was as much surprised as if her daughter had announced the engagement of her doll, that had been laid aside but two years before. Nevertheless since Johnny was a nice boy and of a good family and all that she told her daughter that if she and Johnny were of the same mind in four years she would have no objection to their being married.

"Four years!" exclaimed Pussy.

"Yes; when you are twenty."

"Why, mother, I'll be as old as Methusaleh in four years. It's an age."

The next summer Pussy was seventeen years old. Like most very young people, she had very little respect for the opinion of her elders. She thought it was time for her and Johnny to be married. Johnny hadn't thought much about it, but since Pussy thought so he thought so too. But he didn't make any move in that direction.

The two families occupied during this second summer the cottages they had occupied during the first. One day when Johnny and Pussy were out in his motorboat Pussy said:

"Johnny, how long do you propose to keep me waiting?"

"Waiting for what?"

"Are you going to marry me or not?"

Johnny caught his breath. "Why, of course I am."

"When?"

"When we're older."

Pussy turned her back on him. Johnny colored and added: "All right. Now is a good time. We'll go to B. and be married."

He had "seen" Pussy's bluff and gone her one better. But she was tired of waiting for all those years to pass before being married, so she said she believed she would consent to go to B. and be married.

Johnny put on all the power in the engine and pointed the boat toward B., five miles away. Pussy sat very quiet. She neither moved nor spoke. Johnny occasionally looked at her out of the corner of his starboard eye, but he didn't say anything either. In half an hour they reached the floating dock at B. Johnny got out and made fast the boat, then put out his hand to Pussy. She didn't move.

"Come," said Johnny.

"Where are you going to take me to after we're married?"

"We'll go on a wedding trip. I have a nice little sum saved up in bank."

"I wonder what papa will say?"

"I don't know."

"And mamma?"

"I don't know that, either."

"It would be nice to have her with me when I am married."

Johnny cast off the line, threw it into the boat, got in himself and started for home.

The ride was not a chatty one. Pussy remarked that the boat was not going as fast as usual, and Johnny replied that he thought it was doing quite as well. This was the only remark made during their return, though the distance was eight miles and they were an hour doing it.

When the interminable four years of waiting were ended Pussy had been engaged three times and at twenty would have scorned to marry any of the men to whom she had been engaged, but she still thought she was not extraordinarily particular as to the man she would marry. At twenty-five she admits that she was very particular. She has a fair prospect of being an old maid.

FREED THREE BIG TURTLES.

A Japanese Tribute of Regret For the Late Emperor.

In connection with the funeral of the late emperor of Japan a strange ceremony was performed. A Japanese correspondent writes:

"Following the custom of carrying birds in large cages at Buddhist funerals, to be liberated over the graves, the Tokyo city and the Tokyo branch of the Red Cross society joined together in a ceremony of freeing three large tortoises as a mark of regret at the death of Emperor Meiji.

"The shell of the largest specimen was three feet five inches long, and upon the shell were engraved the characters: 'We humbly beg leave to show our deepest regret at the death of our Meiji Tenno. Let free in the sea off Ogasawara island on the day of the state funeral, Sept. 13, 1912. Hiroshi Abe, governor of Tokyo.'

"On the back of another tortoise was signed the name of the president of the Tokyo branch of the Red Cross society. At first it was planned to inlay the characters on the back of the tortoises in gold, but, fearing that they might be captured again for the sake of the gold, the characters were done in black lacquer. On the evening of Sept. 13, just as the gun gave the signal for the starting of the imperial funeral, officials who had been waiting in a boat off Ogasawara island gave the tortoises their freedom.

"All three of the creatures appeared to be delighted to be once more at large in the ocean and put their heads out of the water, as much as to say 'Thank you,' and then disappeared from sight."—Chicago News.

Three Sentences Ahead.

The Georgia law requires that the charges of a trial judge to the jury shall be taken down by a court stenographer.

An old judge, who was accustomed to make about the same charge in every case, was hammering away one day when he looked over his desk and saw that the court stenographer, who had been out the night before, was fast asleep.

"Wake up there, Mr. S.," thundered the judge, "and take down the charge of the court!"

"Oh, go 'long, judge," protested the stenographer. "I am three sentences ahead of you now."—Saturday Evening Post.

FRY'S Cocoa—A Gracious Stimulant

Not only is FRY'S a rich and delicious food beverage, but it possesses to the full that mysterious, elusive but very desirable "spirit of cocoa" which scientists call "theobromine," a quickener of the brain and nervous force, with no unpleasant after-effects. Exquisite in aroma, of sure purity, easy of digestion—FRY'S is the result of nearly two centuries' experience in high-grade cocoa making.

A CABINET FIGHT

There will be a most interesting time in the British House of Commons this week, probably on Friday, when the Franchise Bill is debated. The discussion of the clause extending the franchise to every "male" person will be in order. Around that word "male" is concentrated an intense amount of political interest, for it has caused one of the sharpest divisions in the British cabinet since its formation. Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of Foreign Affairs will move that the word "male" be eliminated, this giving the vote to women as well as men. There are 25,000,000 men to be affected anyway, and 13,000,000 women in case woman suffrage should triumph.

What accentuates the political interest is that when Sir Edward Grey moves the expunging of the word "male" Premier Asquith will probably go on record as strongly opposed to it. Behind the Premier in his opposition to woman suffrage are Winston Churchill, C. E. Hobhouse, Lewis Harcourt, Sydney Buxton, Reginald McKenna, Colonel Seeley, and with Sir Edward Grey, in the opposite camp, are Lloyd George Augustine Birrell, John Burns, Rufus Isaacs, Walter Runciman, and McKinnon Wood. When these Cabinet warriors are set against each other, it is hard to say how the House will divide, since neither the Liberals or the Unionists will follow strictly party lines. It is a distinctly interesting situation, and may produce a warm discussion.

THE PERMANENT POLICY

Many Conservatives would like to know what authority W. F. Cockshutt, Dr. Edwards, and other Conservative members had for intimating, by inference if not direct, that there was to be no Canadian navy proposal as a permanent policy. Mr. Borden is discreetly silent on the nature of his permanent policy if he has yet any broad ideas of how the thing can be worked. That he will have one, and the people of Canada will be given the opportunity to vote on it, is his spoken word, and as such will not be departed from. But why should Canada not make so much of a compromise with its Imperialism as to enter upon some program of local defence, as well as contributing to the strength of the Imperial navy?

The London Times makes what seems like an excellent suggestion when it says that before the permanent policy of the Borden Government is settled, there should be an Imperial Conference to ascertain what steps can be taken to have Canada co-operate with the other dominions with Pacific interests. It is quite true that Australia and Canada should find a common field for co-operation in the Pacific, thus relieving the Mother Country of the care of that ocean entirely. Australia is mightily concerned in the naval protection of the Pacific, and rightly so. With Canada it is not a matter of so much importance. On the Atlantic side, Canada is not likely to get into much danger at any time, while Britain holds command of the North Sea. Any danger to Canada of real moment would come from Europe, and unless British supremacy in home waters were gone, there would be no chance of any attacking fleet making a 3,000 mile trip over to Canada.

The Westminster Review, an English supporter of Lloyd George and the Radicals, says that Canada will help itself enormously by strengthening the British fleet. Its party affiliations are dead against the Borden Government, but this is what it says:

"Canada knows perfectly well that no wealthy community can exist today without means of self-defence; she knows that so long as Anglo-German relations are in their present the bulk of the British fleet must be concentrated in home waters. She sees quite clearly that under the circumstances: if she wishes to remain an independent entity she has only two alternatives: to pile up armaments on her own account, or to help the Mother Country to defend her. She has chosen the latter alternative; it is enormously cheaper and more practical."

PROMPTNESS

Promptness in getting out repair work is a specialty with us. Having our own Lens Grinding Plant enables us to replace almost any kind of lenses in from one to three hours.

It doesn't make any difference where you bought your glasses, if you save the pieces we can duplicate the lenses. We have a special instrument for [illegible] lenses which gives a positive accurate correction. We will make a record of your lenses and then it will not be necessary for you to save the pieces in future. If you bought your glasses from us, we have your correction on record and all you will have to do is to phone us which lense is broken, and we can have one ground for you when you call.

We can duplicate any kind of lense, including Toric, Flat, Kryptok, Semi-Invisible and all kinds of Bifocals. The next time you have an accident give us a call and investigate the facilities which we place at your service.

THE CATHOLIC POPULATION IN BRITISH EMPIRE

London, Jan. 21 — The Catholic Directory for 1913, just published and compiled with Cardinal Bourne's authority, says that in England and Wales there are twenty archbishops and bishops, 3,838 priests, and 1,797 churches, chapels and stations. For Great Britain there are 27 archbishops and bishops, 4,401 priests, and 2,182 stations.

For the first time the directory attempts to state the number of Catholics in the British Empire, the figures whenever possible being given from state returns. In England and Wales there are 1,793,038 Catholics; Scotland, 547,336; total for Great Britain 2,340,374. In Ireland there are 3,242,670 Catholics.

The total number of Catholics in the British Empire is 12,968,814, an increase in twelve months of 392,589. The Catholic population of the world is estimated at 292,787,085.

GRAND OPERA FOR PETERBORO?

Are there enough music-loving people who appreciate high class music to justify the management of the Grand Opera House is bringing here the Sheehan English Opera Co on Thursday, Feb. 6th, in "The Bohemian Girl." That's the question. The Sheehan English Opera Company is the largest and most expensive English Opera Company on tour at the present day. Besides having the largest and most brilliant array of opera stars ever assembled under one banner Mr. Sheehan has secured the services of Mrs Emily Grey, famous harpist, direct from Covent Garden, London, Eng., and Miss Sinley Remus, violinist virtuoso, Paris Opera Comique, and a special Grand Opera Orchestra under the direction of Wm. Glover, England's foremost director. It costs $1200 to bring this attraction to Peterborough and the tickets must be sold and subscribed for at least two weeks in advance of the show, if this great opera company is booked for the Grand Opera House. What's the use of having an opera house, yet never having English opera?

The subscription list and seat reservation will be placed on sale at the box office Thursday and Friday Jan. 23rd. and 24th. Do not order tickets unless you expect to pay for them at least two days ahead of the performance. 54.

HANDSOME NEW GATES FOR THE LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY

During Certain Months Funerals Must be Held not Later Than 3 30 p. m.—The Annual Meeting.

Tenders are about to be asked for the construction of a costly and attractive set of gates, leading into the Little Lake Cemetery, to replace the present gateway. In addition a wrought iron fence will extend to the right and left of the gates in semi-circular shape, terminating with stone pillars of the best quality.

Plans of the proposed work were viewed at the meeting of the Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company yesterday, and favorably discussed. The proposed new entrance will greatly enhance and beautify the appearance of the cemetery. There will be the usual large main entrance for vehicles, the gates for which will be 7 feet 6 inches in height, and the pillars surmounting it either side, by about a foot and a half. Adjoining it right and left are the smaller gateway for pedestrian use, each flanked by stone pillars. When built the gates and fence are expected to exceed anything similar in Peterborough, both in costliness and design. The cost will range around $2,000.

A resolution was passed yesterday at the meeting compelling all funerals to be in the cemetery by four o'clock from November 1st to April 1st. The object of the resolution was that all funerals will be over while daylight lasts, as during the winter months darkness sets in earlier and somewhat interferes with the burial operations when funerals reach the cemetery later than four o'clock.

Another proposal that met with the approval of the directors was one which would require the delivery of funeral burial certificates at a certain fixed place in the cemetery before interments take place. This procedure is not always adopted at present, and there is a penalty for breaking the law. The directors are desirous that no such liability for prosecution for failure to carry out the requirements of the Act may be incurred.

The following reports were read:

Gentlemen—I beg to submit the following report of work done in your cemetery during the year 1912.

Although the new work undertaken has not been very extensive, still there has been a large amount of extra work. Owing to the wet condition of the grounds last spring a large number of graves had sunken, which had to be filled and resodded. Then again the wet season required the continual operation of the lawnmowers. Coupling this with the difficulty of securing skilled labor explains why so much more wages were paid out this year than formerly.

Last spring the old stables and sheds were removed from the west front of the cemetery, and during the summer the ground whereon they stood graded and prepared for seeding next spring. This will add very much to the appearance of the lawns at your entrance.

The roof of the residence within the cemetery was repaired and the chimney rebuilt, one of which was found to be just an ornament was pulled down and the hole in the roof filled in and shingled. Two coats of paint were given to all the outside woodwork and a lattice fence and cedar hedge placed and planted around the yard and garden, giving a neater appearance to the surroundings.

A new fence was placed between the Company's property and the adjoining lots on Ware Street and painted an iron fence along the roadway on Haggart Street.

An addition has been made to the greenhouses joining the two together, making much more room and much more convenient to work in.

I would recommend that during the coming season your directors undertake to erect a new fence of iron and concrete along the west front of the cemetery as the old one is beyond repair and not in keeping with the interior of what is considered one of the most attractive cemeteries in Canada.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

FRANK WISE,
Superintendent.

The Correct New Undergarments for Women will be Close Fitting and of the Softest Texture

We have come to the conclusion that price is not the first consideration in the purchase of Undergarments by the women of to-day. If the garment is not made of the right material and trimming, the correct cut and well finished, the average woman does not want it at any price. In selecting our Whitewear this year we were careful to buy only such makes as were perfect in every particular, and we think a visit to our immense exhibit on our second floor will prove both pleasing and profitable.

FRACTURE OF COLLAR BONE

And Other Injuries Sustained By Mrs. Andrew Jackson

Mrs. Andrew Jackson, who resides at the corner of Park and King streets, suffered a fracture of the collar bone and severe bruises to the right shoulder on Saturday evening last, when the performance of "Alice in Wonderland" was being concluded.

Mrs. Jackson was waiting for her little daughter to come up on the stage behind the scenes, through a trap door and later commenced to descend the steps to ascertain what was detaining her. The trap door, it seems dropped down upon her, inflicting the above mentioned injuries. The accident occurred about ten o'clock.

Her injuries, although not serious, are sufficiently severe to cause confinement to her home for a considerable time.

57th Regiment

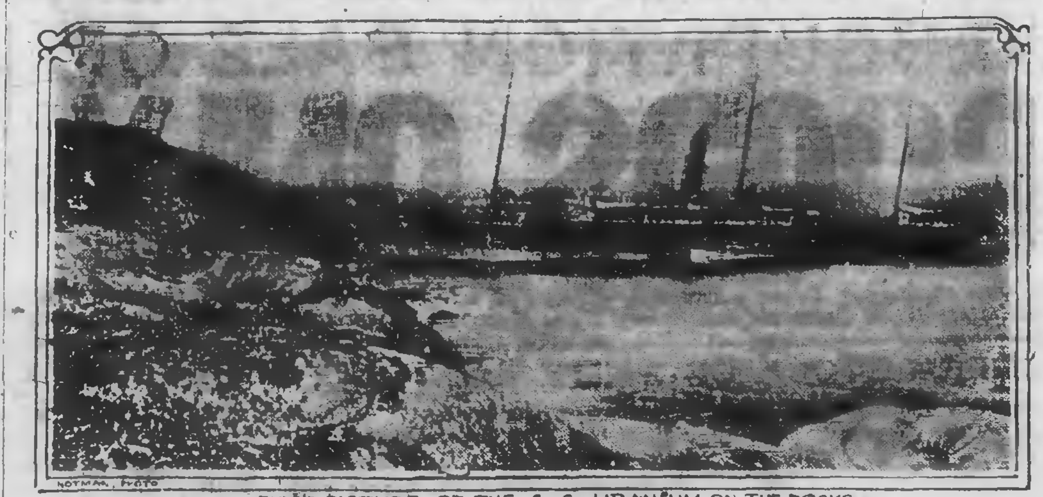
The officers of the 57th Regiment discussed last night the advisability of asking permission for the increasing of company strength from 4 2to 60. The regiment averaged 39 per company last season. It was decided that the annual regiment ball be held after Let.

EGGS AND NESTS

One of the most curious of eggs is that of the apteryx of New Zealand, writes the Hon. Gladys Graham Murray, in "Chambers's Journal." The size of the egg is out of all proportion to the bird. It is so large that it is affirmed that the egg cannot be replaced in the skeleton without breaking or displacing one or more of the bones. Most eggs are hatched out by the warmth of the body of the hen bird, who sits for several days upon the eggs, the periods of incubation differing among the various birds. On the soft bill of a newly-hatched chick being examined there will be found at the tip of the upper half of the mandible a tiny hard nodule, which is known as the eggtooth; this acts as a file to the imprisoned chick when it is chipping its way out of the egg, and, since it has no further use in life, it completely disappears long before the bird reaches the adult stage. In hot countries birds are very often the makers of artificial incubators; in the case of the Moleo birds of the Island of Celebes the nesting-site is chosen in a beach of loose black sand, a hole of three or four feet is excavated, and in this the eggs are deposited at intervals of about a fortnight.

These birds do not brood, and the hatching of the eggs is, therefore, due to the warmth of the sand and the powerful sun rays. The brush-turkey of Australia is one of the mound builders. These birds construct huge mounds of leaves and grass, and the warmth produced by the fermentation of this vegetable matter helps to hatch out the eggs. Among ostriches the cock bird digs a hole in which the hens lay, all in the same nest—15 to 30 eggs being found—and the duty of incubation falls chiefly to the cock. No egg is hatched under more curious conditions than that of the emperor penguin of the Antarctic regions. It lays its large single egg on the sea ice, with a surrounding temperature of 60deg. below zero; but nature has not allowed this bird to perish, and the parent bird keeps the egg off the ice by placing it on the upper side of its feet and covering it from above by a feathered fold of skin.

The tailor-bird, a native of the East Indian region, actually sews together its own nest. By means of its beak it pierces a row of holes along the edges of conveniently hanging leaves, and then, with the fibre of some plant, it sews these together, forming a bag-shaped sort of nest, which is lined with a soft white down, and swings from the branch on which the leaves grow. The weaver birds, inhabitants of Asia and Africa, have curious pensile nests, which are slung from the branches of trees. The sociable weaver-bird builds a joint nest, like a thatched roof, in a tree, the different pairs occupying separate nestling holes in the thatch. The bower-birds of the Australian region, while they build nests in no way specially remarkable, have the extraordinary habit of constructing "bowers" decorated with small, bright objects of various kinds, and use by the birds as playgrounds. Among these the gardener-bird seems to carry the instinct for decoration to the highest pitch, employing flowers and bright-colored fruits to adorn his "bower."



FIRST PICTURE OF THE S S URANIUM ON THE ROCKS

Nearly 900 passengers were aboard when the vessel ran on the rocks of the Nova Scotia Coast near Halifax on January 11th. She has since made port under her own steam.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ended Jan. 18, were 1911 cattle, 700 sheep and lambs, 3500 hogs and 350 calves. The supply in the market this morning for sale amounted to 1600 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 225 calves.

An easier feeling developed in the market for cattle today and prices, as compared with a week ago, show a decline of 25c per cwt. At the opening of the market holders of choice steers asked as high as $7 to $7.10 for full loads, for which buyers bid $6.85, and for good cattle sellers demanded $6.75 per cwt., which buyers refused to pay, consequently the trade was rather slow for the first hour, but later on when drovers eased prices trade became brisk. The top price paid for picked lots of choice steers was $7 and for good $6.50, while canning stock was in good demand at $3 to $3.25 per cwt.

The tone of the market for sheep and lambs is strong owing to the small supplies now coming forward and the keen demand for the same for shipment to outside points, but the local demand is quiet at present as buyers in most cases have ample supplies of frozen stock on hand. Prices were unchanged for lambs, but sheep were 25c per cwt. higher with sales of ewes at $5.25 to $5.50 per cwt. The demand for calves is fairly good at steady prices.

The market for hogs was unchanged, prices being firmly maintained under an active demand from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.50 to $7; medium, $5 to $6; common, $4 to $4.75; canners, $3 to $3.25; choice cows, $5.50 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each $75 to $80; common and medium, $65 to $70; springers, $50 to $55.

Sheep—Ewes, $5.25 to $5.50; bucks and culls, $4.75 to $5; lambs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Hogs—F.o.b., $9.25 to $9.50 per cwt.

Calves—$3 to $12

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 4400; slow and 20c to 25c lower; prime steers, $8.50 to $8.75; butchers, $6 to $8.25; bulls, $4 to $6.50; stock heifers, $4 to $4.50; shipping, $7.25 to $8.25; heifers, $4.75 to $7.50; cows, $3.25 to $6.50; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $6.75; fresh cows and springers, active and strong at $35 to $80.

Veals—Receipts, 800; active and steady at $4 to $12.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,500; active, 5c to 10c higher; heavy, $7.90 to $8; mixed yorkers and pigs, $8; roughs, $7 to $7.10; stags, $5.50 to $6.50; dairies, $7.90 to $8.

LIVERPOOL LIVE STOCK.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 20.—John Rogers & Co. cable that on shorter supplies there was a firm trade at Birkenhead market, and the Saturday's quotations still rule at 12½c to 14c per lb. for Irish steers. there is every prospect of an early further advance.

A Slight Resemblance.

A story of the late Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema concerns the close resemblance which existed between the great painter and George du Maurier. A lady sitting beside the latter at dinner one night refused to acknowledge any resemblance.

"You know, Mr. Alma-Tadema," said she, "I think it is absurd to say that you and Mr. du Maurier are so awfully alike. There is really no resemblance at all. Don't you agree with me?"

"Quite," replied the author of "Trilby," "but, you see, I happen to be Mr. du Maurier."—Argonaut.

Cabbage Worship.

The cabbage was adored by the Egyptians, who raised altars to it. Afterward they made this strange god the first dish in their repasts. The Greeks and Romans ascribed to it the happy quality of preserving from drunkenness and looked upon it as a sovereign remedy against paralysis.

Our Lighthouses.

The lighthouse service of the United States costs about $5,000,000 a year. The greater part of this sum is used in caring for the lighting of the coasts.

Her Opportunity.

Wife—I had better take that hat for 25 shillings. Husband—But I've only got £2 with me now. I'll have to owe them the odd 5 shillings. Wife—Oh, then, I'll take this one for 3 guineas. Five shillings is too insignificant a sum to owe.—London Telegraph.

The Settlement Worker.

Quick Action on a Cold

One of the most important points in treating a cold is to act quickly, at the first sign of trouble, before the cold has a chance to get "settled" anywhere.

The other point of vital importance is to take

NA-DRU-CO
Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne

This safe and reliable household remedy acts very quickly. It relieves the irritation and "stuffed up" feeling in the air passages, loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, soothes the tickling which makes you cough, and drives out the cold before it gets troublesome.

But even if the cough or cold has become deep-seated and persistent, Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne will break it up.

FURNITURE LOST IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

Blaze in Building Used as Storehouse, on Charlotte St.

About 3.05 this morning a telephone call was sent into the local fire department, stating that there was a fire on Charlotte street, near the Methodist church. The brigade appeared on the scene shortly afterwards and found a two storey building which has been used for a store house, blazing merrily. The fire was soon under control, but the damage to the furniture stored there will amount to several hundred dollars.

The building was stored with furniture belonging to Mr. J. B. McWilliams and J. W. Sherwood, both of this city. Both parties had their effects insured.

The building is owned by Dr. H. Wightman and is insured.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

Physical culture classes are in full swing again. A course in fancy cooking will be started immediately if any desire it, by Miss Coila Dyer, of Washington.

The committee from Y.W.C.A. who were responsible for securing for Peterborough Miss Leonard's operetta "Alice in Wonderland" heartily thank all of those who so kindly and willingly assisted in the putting on of the play.

Men seldom make good who try to be good on the instalment plan.

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

HANDSOME NEW GATES FOR LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY

REPORT OF DIRECTORS.

During the past year your Directors have had all the old barns, stables and sheds removed from the Cemetery grounds, and the place where they stood, containing upwards of half an acre, levelled and graded up, with the object of enlarging the lawns and terraces in that locality. This will much improve the entrance along the side of the lake, besides recovering a large plot of land for burial purposes.

The main gates and circular fence adjoining having become decayed and out of repair, your Directors several months ago decided to prepare to replace them with more substantial and lasting materials, and possessing in a considerable degree a character of elegance and distinction. Your Directors also recommend that a new fence be erected along Haggart street in the Western and Southern limits of the Company's lands.

Mr. Charles Stapleton, for many years a Director of the Company, died on the twenty-sixth day of July last, and a deserving tribute to his memory was placed in the minutes in acknowledgement of his devotion to duty during a long term of office.

On the fifth day of October last Mr. T. H. G. Denne was elected by the Board a Director for the remainder of the year, in Mr. Stapleton's place

There was placed to the reserve fund during the year $1,500. That fund now stands at $15,917.31, with a balance in the bank of $2,068.29, and accounts owing the Company of $2,-174.70.

Reports for the past year from the Secretary-Treasurer and the Superintendent will be placed before you.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. H. MOORE,
President.

THE SPORTING WORLD

THE FINANCES MUST BE INCREASED IF PETERBORO IS TO RETAIN FRANCHISE

At a fairly well attended meeting last night to discuss the Canadian League proposition in Peterborough for this season, it was decided that it was not advisable to proceed with preliminary operations in the interests of a team, before the subscription list was considerably boosted.

New subscribers will be sought within the next few days, and if the financial outlook warrants a definite announcement the same will be made at the next meeting, the date for which will be announced this week.

While a large number of fans subscribed last season, certain gentlemen bore the brunt of the initiation into professional baseball and they are still in the game.

It was felt at the meeting that there were many enthusiasts of the baseball game, who would be willing to assist in placing the club on a good financial foundation if the proposition was explained to them. Much depends on the outcome and it is hoped that the amount necessary will be subscribed by the date of the next meeting. A negative answer means that the franchise will be offered for sale, and that is the last thing that should happen in a city that has occupied the high position in sportdom as has Peterborough.

TOMMY BURNS WOULD ONCE MORE A CHAMPION BE

Calgary, Alta, Jan. 21—There is a strong probability that Luke McCarty and Tommy Burns will meet in Calgary about Easter to battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Local men are promoting the bout and the negotiations have reached a stage where little remains to be arranged but the minor details.

McCarty it is said started his pugilistic career as the result of a few words of advice from the Canadian champion and the meeting of pupil and teacher for the world's honors will have a peculiar interest.

Tommy Burns has commenced training, and while he is in good shape right now he does not propose taking any chances.

"My own desire," he said the other day, 'is to be champion again. What I mean is this: I lost the championship to a black man and I would like to win it back again as a white man, and when I lose it again it will be to a white man.

"I wish the public to know that I am sincere in this matter and I will meet McCarty if he will meet me no matter what happens."

ALERT PLAYERS TURNED BACK

The picker for the Hamilton Alerts doesn't seem to have been an expert. The Tecumsehs couldn't get one good man for four of them and some cash, and yesterday turned them out to shift for themselves. They couldn't even be given away, yet boobs were found in Hamilton to keep them in idleness since the first of last August, and even give advance money for the season that never came. —Toronto Globe.

LOCALS AND OSHAWA SEVEN

Hard Fought Contest May be Expected To-night

The weatherman has seen fit to call another freeze-up and the junior O.H.A. engagement by the locals and Oshawa will be called at the rink to-night at 8.15. Manager Craig will line up the same boys who threw the fright into Whitby and Port Hope, and with the visitors having their strongest team, the result will be a grand game.

Icemaker Jack Thirnbeck has an excellent sheet of ice.

PRESENTATION TO BOB ISBISTER

Hamilton, Jan. 21.—Bob Isbister, of the Hamilton Tigers, was presented with a grandfather's clock by W. H. Wardrobe on behalf of the club. The recipient responded briefly. Mr. Wardrobe stated that Mr. Isbister had started to play football in 1903, and had never missed a scheduled game since he first donned a uniform. In that time ninety-three games had been played, and he had been ruled off but once, this being when the University of Toronto played here for the Canadian championship in 1910, and then he was sent to the bench for four minutes because he disputed a decision of the referee.

BONSPIEL AT CURLING RINK

Weatherman is Kind and Play Starts To-Morrow

The curlers are happy once again as a result in the change of the weather, which has made curling possible. The open bonspiel will proceed at the curling rink to-morrow as announced.

About 25 clubs will compete. The Toronto curlers are sending down several well known clubs, while Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon Oshawa and several other clubs of the broom and granite will be present.

ST. PAUL 'SPIEL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Jan. 21— At the St. Paul bonspiel, Ament of Seaforth defeated Blackburn of Winnipeg 9 to 8 in the Jobbers competition. In the five o'clock draw, Tovell of Seaforth defeated Hurdon of Duluth by twelve to nothing; Huntsman of St. Paul defeated Hodder of Port Arthur fourteen to nine and Covell, Minneapolis defeated Sime of Port Arthur eight to seven.

A Challenge

The King Edward school hockey team challenges the South End Scramblers to a game as soon as the Sacred Heart rink can be secured.

Pride.

G. A. Jones, who looks after a portion of the Swenson interests, was bothered by thefts of wood from the Spur range. He sent out Al Sullivan, a cowboy, to catch the thieves. Within a few days Al brought one in—an old nester, dirty and ragged, with his toes out of his shoes and a tuft of hair showing through the crown of his hat.

"I don't feel like sending you to jail," said Jones, "but you've got to be punished. So we'll take a photograph of you for the rogues' gallery."

The human scarecrow promised complete reform, and they stood him up and took his picture.

About a week later, still in his rags, he stood beside the rancher's desk.

"What can I do for you?" Jones asked, looking up.

"If you please, Mr. Jones," said the object, "kin you spare one of them pictures to send to my kinfolks?"—Popular Magazine.

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

The Naval Court Was Polite With the Pushing Boston Attorney.

Courts martial are not infrequently held on battleships in the Charlestown navy yard. Sometimes a sailor will send for a Boston attorney to defend him, although this tendency is discouraged by the officers. Most attorneys know they have no absolute right to practice in a naval court and can do so only by permission of the court, but occasionally a lawyer goes aboard who does not realize this fact.

A sailor who was charged with gambling had retained an attorney to get him off. This attorney, who had never had such a case before, went briskly into the officers' wardrobe, where the court was sitting and without waiting on ceremony began to address the court in a blustering manner.

"Just a minute," interrupted the presiding officer. "Who are you?"

"I am Mr. Rudolph Smithers," the attorney replied, "and I am a member of the Massachusetts bar."

"Oh, you are Mr. Smithers, are you?" continued the officer. "Then you are the man whom the orderly wants to see." He called the orderly.

"What does the orderly want of me?" asked the attorney in a superior tone.

"Nothing very much," replied the chief justice. "He merely wants to show you off the ship."—New York Herald.

The Womanly Touch.

Adam was showing Eve through the cave.

"This is the living room," he said. "It is furnished as luxuriously as possible in these prehistoric days. I have spared no expense on it, and yet it lacks something or other, some final touch that I cannot name."

Eve took a swift look around. Then she pulled the magazine table out a little from the wall, gave the morris chair a twist, laid a book on the window sill and kicked the tiger skin rug back a foot from the door.

"Wonderful!" cried Adam and gazed open mouthed at the magical transformation.

The cave was more than a cave now. It was a home.

There's no place like home.—Newark News.

BRAILE'S BIG WELL.

It Would Have Worked Wonders Only It Was Never Dug.

Perhaps the most idiotic of all the many idiotic schemes with which Britons have been enamored in days gone by was that which was known at the time as Braile's big well. M. Braile was a Belgian engineer, residing temporarily in England, who, in 1848, approached the then prime minister (Lord John Russell) with a scheme for sinking a huge shaft, a mile in diameter and twenty miles in depth, that should tap the earth's internal heat and thereby render England independent of her coal supply when this gave out.

Lord Russell, always rather attracted by visionary projects, attentively considered the scheme and caused plans and estimates to be drawn up. The first difficulty was the inrush of water, which would have been certain to occur sooner or later. This it was proposed to keep under by pumping, caissons being used for the purpose of further excavation, while the finished portion of the shaft was to be rendered watertight by a "jacket" of granite set in Portland cement.

Mad as the scheme was, it found plenty of advocates, and a provisional bill had been, it was said, actually drafted, when the overthrow of the government on the franchise question was announced, and the whole business was thenceforth consigned to a well merited oblivion.—Pearson's Weekly.

Your False Hair or Switch.

If it has lost its luster and looks dry and dull wash it just as you would your own hair, rinsing well and afterward hanging it up so that it dries thoroughly.

After it is quite dry put a little vaseline on the palms of your hands and rub this into the switch, rubbing with a downward motion, so that the vaseline gets into the hair well. Do not, however, have the hands too greasy. When you have rubbed the vaseline in take a good brush and use it vigorously with even, steady strokes.

You will find this will make the hair glossy and bright again.

Germany's Sun Bath Fad.

The sun bath is said to be so popular at present in Germany that in several cities one can buy a ticket for a sun bath just as in America one buys a ticket for a bath in the surf. The sun bath ticket entitles the holder to a room for disrobing, a bathing suit and a "place in the sun."

The Dogs of War and the Bone.

Every one knows that the ultimate possession of Constantinople will be the bone over which the dogs will growl the most fiercely. The ownership of the present Turkish capital is supposed to be the keystone of Russian diplomacy, and Russia has the reputation for biding her time. When Napoleon was negotiating the treaty of Tilsit with Czar Alexander the Russian monarch was willing to make vast concessions in return for Constantinople, but he was dealing with an unsurpassed judge of values. Napoleon examined the map for a few minutes and then replied decisively: "Impossible! The mastery of the world goes with the possession of Constantinople."—Argonaut.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE WAS GRANTED HIM

Accused Had Previous Good Character and Friends to Help Him

After changing his plea to guilty this morning, William Killoran, of East City charged with forgery and theft was given suspended sentence with the stipulation that he must report to Chief of Police Thompson on the first Monday of each month.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in the prisoner's interests and on behalf of his client withdrew the not guilty plea first put in.

The prisoner forged the name of Mr. Archibald Weir, of the firm of Weir and McCarthy, at a time when he was under the influence of liquor. His previous good record and in view of the fact that it was a first offence, largely influenced the Magistrate in agreeing with Mr Gordon's request that sentence be suspended. Mr. Weir also gave the young man a good name as a hard worker, and said that he would be loath to lose his services.

Magistrate Dumble in suspending sentence said that he preferred to err, if he did err at all, on the side of mercy, and rather than deprive the young man of his self respect he would agree to allow him his freedom. Along petition recommending leniency, was presented to the Magistrate in court.

Killoran's friends paid the costs of the case $10.50 in all.

FAIR DIRECTORS HOLD ANNUAL MEETINC TO-DAY

At the annual meeting of the Peterboro Fair Directors held this afternoon in the City Council chamber there were present, J. H. Garbutt, F. J. A. Hall, W. E. Conway, R. Denne, J. J. Turner, sr., C. E. Moore, John Brown and J. Storey, G. A. Gillespie, Robert Cox and R. M. Glover.

The most successful year in regard to finances was the manner in which President Garbutt referred to the exhibition of 1912. He warmly thanked the directors for their efficient efforts and assistance. The fair, he said, had become one of the best in Ontario. It was necessary however, that some action be taken in regard to new buildings.

NO SPRING SHOW

Commenting on the annual stallion and horse show, President Garbutt, said that the small number of exhibits at the show last spring, did not, in his opinion, warrant the competition being contrived.

The directors discussed several aspects of the show.

"They all say we're behind the times if we do not have it," remarked Mr. Denne.

"It doesn't cost us anything," added the secretary.

"It looks to me as if the horsemen do not want it," said President Garbutt.

It was moved and carried that the show be withheld this spring.

It was decided to hold the field crop competition again this year. There were 12 entrants last year.

The Society will ask for departmental judges for the same classes as in 1912.

Woman's Auxiliary Social

The Woman's Auxiliary of the George street church will hold a social on Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. James Kendrey, 754 Water street. Good musical program and refreshments. Admission fifteen cents. 54

OBITUARY

The Late Jos. B. Comstock

There departed from this life on Sunday morning, Jan. 12th, Joseph B. Comstock, of the township of Asphodel. Mr. Comstock had not been well for some time, yet his death came quite suddenly after a very few days of serious illness.

In Mr. Comstock's death this township has lost one of its best residents. Of a quiet disposition he never sought special honors, nevertheless on all questions of public interest he took a well considered attitude. He was a Liberal in politics, but even here he insisted upon the right of personal judgment. He was a devoted and loyal member of the Methodist Church, to whose service he willingly gave his musical and other talents. He was Sunday School Superintendent, Class and Choir Leader for many years, and a member of the Official Board from the formation of the circuit.

Mr. Comstock leaves to mourn his loss his wife, who has been his companion for over forty years, and nine children, Richard J., Francis N., Joseph M., Frederick W., Albert E., all of Alberta, and Louis W., Margarete E., Agnes J., and Ruby, at home.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. H. A. Frost, a former pastor, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. J. Richards, assisted by Rev. Mr. Thompson, the Presbyterian minister of Hastings. He was buried in the Westwood Cemetery on Jan. 16. The large number of friends present at the funeral service, and the beautiful floral gifts by the Methodist Church bore ample testimony of the community's respect, and their sympathy for the relatives in this hour of trouble.

Parents Bereaved

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kennedy, of Smith Township, passed away yesterday afternoon. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The Late Mrs. McKinnon

The many friends of Mrs. (Dr.) McKinnon, of Toronto, and formerly of this city, will regret to learn of her death. The late Mrs. McKinnon lived on Water street while residing here, and was highly respected and esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and three children. The funeral will take place at Toronto.

CASE STILL BEFORE THE HIGH COURT

Several Witnesses Yet to Be Heard in Action For Damages

The outlook for the High Court proceedings no win progress, are that they will last the whole week at the very least. There are still several witnesses to be heard in the Cardwell vs. Breckenridge action. Five or six witnesses were examined this morning and the court adjourned until two-thirty this afternoon.

The succeeding action will be that of Fairweather vs, the Canadian General Electric Company, in which the widow of the late Henry Evan Fairweather asks for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Addison of Toronto, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hall, London street.

Miss Pearl Steinhoff of Toronto is visiting her sister, Miss Steinhoff of Water street.

Mrs. S. H. Best, 469 Stewart st., will not receive on Wednesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John McBain, formerly of this city, have returned home after a two weeks visit with their son, Mr. John McBain, Rubidge st.

Miss Gladys Crane gave a bridge party last night in honor of her guest, Miss Wallis, of Toronto.

Miss Nina Haskill of Chicago is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Miles, Weller street.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

At a meeting of No. 6 Company, 57th Regiment, last evening, it was decided to hold their annual dance this year on the evening of Monday, Feb 3rd.

Chief Howard received a letter this morning from the Mayor of Bracebridge regarding specifications for a new fire station for that town. The Mayor is a cousin of Chief Howard.

Owing to the rush of shipping on the G.T.R. line between Mimico and Belleville, five double headers were ordered to that point from Lindsay on Sunday morning.

The second lecture before St. George's Church Literary society, on "How We Get Our Carpets," by Mr. Ivor Brock announced in these columns for next Wednesday evening is inevitably postponed till February 5th. The rector, the Rev. J. Price will speak next Wednesday, his subject being "The means of greatness." Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., will take the chair at 8 p.m. The public is cordially invited. No admission.

St. George's Choral Society will meet to-night in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute at 8 p.m. All will be made welcome.

Students Rehearsing

Students of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute are rehearsing for a presentation of "The Merchant of Venice."

THEATRICAL

The audience at the Grand Opera House last night was delighted with the presentation of "Little Women." Although laid in four acts with two scenes, the whole production is a series of home pictures—a dramatic illustration of the book.

The production of the play is most timely as few modern books have exceeded the popularity of "Little Women," and it still has a prominent place in all book stores.

The costumes were in the fashion of the early '60's, and the production reflects the closest fidelity to the spirit and period of Miss Alcott's story.

Meg, Jo, Beth, Amy, Laurie, the professor, Mr. and Mrs. March, and all the other characters in the charming story are faithfully reproduced.

"THE GAMBLERS"

Charles Klein's gripping drama, "The Gamblers," will be the attraction at The Grand next Saturday, Jan. 25th, Matinee and Evening, being presented by the Authors' Producing Company, of which John Cort is President. The play was conceded the most successful among the serious dramas produced in New York last season. It remained at Maxine Elliott's Theatre for over 200 consecutive performances.

Wall Street is the locale for Mr. Klein's story and the instinct for gambling is this theme. John Emerson, a financier of the old school, is content to count his profits by thousands. He has a son who has the "greed spirit" in a highly developed state. The son's ambition finally involves his father and partners in a clash with Washington. Federal authorities having been sent out to put a stop to the money-making methods of the young man. These officers take charge of the banks. The son has recovered all of the notes that are an evidence of guilt and all the bank officers are relieved of guilt but one. By a deal of the cards it is decided who shall be the scapegoat. The old President draws the fatal card, but the son makes it a misdeal and takes his father's place. Then looms up his bitterest enemy as the prosecutor for the Federal Government. The wife of the lawyer then enters the story with a written confession from one of the bank directors who has left the notes at the prosecutor's home, having been frightened into betraying his associates for immunity. She is put through a scene of cross-examination by her lawyer husband, who unjustly accuses her of indiscretions. That settles her determination to save the compromised bank manipulator and reconstruct her own matrimonial edifice. 54

SHIPBUILDERS ASK FOR AID

Something Must be Done to Help the Canadian Industry.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Unless the Dominion Government takes immediate and effective measures for the protection and encouragement of the shipbuilding industry of the Dominion, by according it greater protection from the competition of British, United States and foreign competition, it will quickly go out of existence.

This in brief was the substance of a somewhat lengthy and comprehensive memorial placed before Premier Borden yesterday afternoon by a big deputation representing shipbuilding firms from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The protection and preserving of the industry by granting a protection of 20 per cent. in the way of tariff legislation, or by subsidy, was strongly urged by the deputation. Under existing conditions of competition with Great Britain this step they considered as absolutely necessary to prevent the quick disappearance of Canadian shipbuilding.

It was pointed out that Canadian firms are compelled to pay duty on much of the material for building purposes, as well as upon a great deal of equipment, and with this handicap had to compete with the great shipbuilding organizations of Britain, where wages and the cost of every kind of material were more than 20 per cent. cheaper.

Premier Borden listened with great interest to the points made by the various spokesmen of the deputation, and in his reply he promised to give the most earnest consideration to their request. He suggested that the Government might well adopt a policy of having all Government vessels built in Canada, even should the cost be greater than it would be if the orders were placed in Britain.

The deputation was introduced by Major Currie of Simcoe and consisted of the following gentlemen: Captain McDougall and Sandford Lindsay, president and secretary respectively of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co.; John B. Miller, president of the Polson Co., Toronto; Black and Cowie, representing the Pictou & Black Co. of Halifax; H. Bullen of the Esquimault Marine & Dry Dock Co.; G. D. Davie of Levis, S. Dymena and W. J. Fair of the Kingston Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co.

TUNISIAN HAD ROUGH VOYAGE

Liner Encountered Fierce Gales and Heavy Seas.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 22.—The Allan liner Tunisian arrived in the harbor yesterday morning over three days late from Liverpool.

Like all the recent arrivals she reports hurricanes and heavy seas on the Atlantic. So fierce were the gales in mid-ocean that at times she could only steam five knots an hour. Last Tuesday the run was but 96 miles.

Owing to the heavy seas the saloon portholes on the port side were smashed.

SUGGESTIONS BY LABOR LEADERS

Provincial Control of Telegraph and Telephone Systems Urged.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Twenty-one resolutions, suggesting changes to laws now in force, were presented to Sir James Whitney by a deputation of representatives of organized labor, led by Allan Studholme, M.P.P., East Hamilton, on Tuesday. It was the Premier's annual reception of a small army of wage-earners, and the conference occupied one hour and a half. Most of the resolutions were passed at the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, held in Guelph a few months ago.

One of the most important steps that the Government was asked to take was suggested by James Simpson, who urged provincial control and operation of all telephone and telegraph systems in Ontario, under the local Government's jurisdiction.

Mr. Simpson also came out in favor of tax reform. He advocated a system of local option of taxation. Sir James Whitney made no comment on the resolution touching this question.

T. G. Mills of the Cobalt Miners' Union presented a resolution urging an eight-hour-day for miners and sanitary conditions for camps.

WOMEN SEE THE PREMIER

Ask Whitney For Change in Laws Regarding Their Sex.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—A large and influential delegation of the women of the different local councils of Ontario waited upon the Government at the Parliament Buildings at noon yesterday. Supporting the Premier were Dr. Pyne, Dr. Reaume and Messrs. Hearst and Duff. Among the requests were one for a Provincial Housing Commission with women on it. Another that a law should be made constituting mothers equal guardians of their children with the fathers; that men in the jail should be given work to do by which they might earn money to be used for the support of their families; and that an examination for the mental and physical fitness of the contracting parties should be required before a marriage license should be issued.

Sir James said that he held the National Council of Women in the highest respect, and that he would always be glad to hear their requests and to give them careful consideration.

Entered Yards Too Fast.

PRESCOTT, Jan. 22.—Finding that the westbound train entered the yards too fast and that Brakeman Roberts, Montreal, on the eastbound did not properly protect the train, the jury empanelled by Coroner C. F. McPherson yesterday concluded their investigation into the wreck on Jan. 12th, when Fireman Archibald McGillivray and Engineer Milne, both of Brockville, were killed.

WEDDING OF MISS HELEN GOULD THE GREATEST SOCIAL EVENT IN YEARS

LYNDHURST, THE HOME OF MISS HELEN MILLER GOULD

THE REV. MALCOLM JAMES MACLEOD.

One of the greatest social events in recent years was the marriage of Miss Helen M. Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, to Mr. Finley Shepard, at the country home of Miss Gould, at Tarrytown, N. Y. Because a simple wedding was desired only relatives of the two families and very close friends attended the ceremony. The two small daughters of Mr. Frank J. Gould, the Misses Helen Margaret and Dorothy Gould, were flower girls. The Rev. Malcolm J. MacLeod, of the Collegiate Church of New York, officiated.

DR. ADMITS PINK TEAS WERE HELD AT HOSPITAL

But They Would Not Increase the Expenditures by More Than a Few Dollars He Says — Bills for Groceries Averaged $22.13 Per Week — M. H. O. Says Misunderstanding Occured Through Not Viewing the Matter in All It's Aspects.

BOARD WILL VISIT HOSPITAL.

At a special meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon the expenditures of the Queen Mary Hospital during the year were partially investigated, with a view to ascertaining whether any mismanagement or extravagance had taken place. Ald. Gordon requested Ald. Anderson top resent the charges first. Owing to the short notice given him he had been unable to go into the hospital accounts in detail.

GROCERIES EXPENDITURE.

The items for groceries and provisions amounting to $1,150.82 for the year, he considered were extravagantly high. The cost of groceries per week averaged $22.13 and for drugs $1.90 per week. "There may have been quite a number of sick children in the hospital," he said, "during the year, but it is also evident that there were quite a number of healthy adults." The amount for provisions he did not think had been used by the sick children, as they would not likely be supplied with the many dainties itemized in the various accounts.

"I venture to say," said Ald. Anderson, "there is not a family in Peterborough who run their homes on such a scale as that. Another feature I object to is the hand to mouth manner in which the supplies have been bought, and the dates of the bills show that groceries have been purchased nearly every day with the exception of Sundays."

Ald. Anderson enumerated a long list of articles such as celery, bananas, oranges and lettuce which comprised the items in a majority of the accounts. He submitted that the manner in which the supplies had been purchased was very unbusinesslike. The cost of fuel for the institution alone was $576 for the year.

"FREE MEALS."

"I am also informed," he said, "that persons not employed at the hospital have been in the habit of going up there for free meals, and that outsiders had often spent Sundays at the institution during the summer. The only charge I make therefore is one of general extravagance, and mismanagement."

GROSS EXTRAVAGANCE.

In addressing the Board, Ald. Gordon said that his criticisms in Council with reference to the operations at the hospital had been reported accurately by the newspapers and that he still supported his assertions that there had been gross extravagance at the institution.

The way accounts were paid, without the number of pounds of each purchase being indicated, was considered by Ald. Gordon to be an extremely loose method.

Ald. Gordon said he had investigated the accounts for butter which amounted to $190, showing an average of six and a half pounds used a week. He thought too much pastry had been purchased when there was a cook at the hospital. The grocery bill of $22.13 per week was excessive, and he believed one-third of the expense could be reduced, by conducting a requisition method of buying. He advocated a vegetable garden being conducted which would do away largely with

ADRIANOPLE SURRENDERED TO BULGARIANS

Canadian Press Despatch

Vienna, Jan. 22.—A semi-official telegram from Constantinople says Turkey has decided to surrender Adrianople to the Bulgarians.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Turkey, before presenting her reply to the joint note of the powers, wishes to obtain explanations concerning certain passages in the note. Instructions to this effect have been sent to the Turkish ambassadors accredited to the powers. Rechad Pasha, head of the Turkish peace plenipotentiaries, and Tewfik Pasha, ambassador to Great Britain, have been particularly enjoined to seek elucidation, as they are in London, where the note was prepared.

Explanations are to be requested on the following points: The joint note says that in case of the prolongation of the war, the fate of Constantinople might be put in question. Does the note mean that the allies might be allowed to attack, conquer and remain in Constantinope, or does it mean that the powers themselves might control the Government in the Ottoman capital?

The note speaks of the "moral, material and benevolent support of the powers." What must Turkey understand by that? How is this support to be extended—under what form; to what extent; what guarantee is there of fulfilment of this promise?

Similarly, what assurance do the powers offer for the settlement of the question of the Aegean Islands in such a manner as to exclude further menaces to the security of Turkey.

It is stated that the Turkish delegates, in endeavoring to obtain satisfactory answers to these questions, have made reference to what they describe as "Europe's broken faith." in failing to live up to the promise made four months ago that the status quo would not be changed whatever the result of the war.

DEATH MAY DECIDE VOTE

Unionists and Home Rulers on Tenter Hooks in Derry.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable) —Polling in the Londonderry bye-election is expected on Thursday week, Jan. 30. The parties are so evenly balanced that a single death on either side may turn the balance.

So closely watched is the mortality that everybody in town is aware, since the contest began, that three Nationalists have died, and to-day the chances are seriously discussed of the effect on the election of the accident to the Nationalist, by name Slater who fell from a roof.

FREE MEAT MAY BE INCLUDED

Democratic Tariff Program Indicates Sweeping Cut.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—"Free Meat," proposed by the House Democrats at the last session, but blocked by a Presidential veto, was indicated as part of the extra session of Congress tariff revision program, at the hearing before the House committee on ways and means yesterday.

Members of the committee emphasized the majority sentiment in favor of free meats and a strong trend towards free cattle, in accord with the general policy of the Democrats last year to transfer the necessities of life to the free list, including free sugar and free lumber.

Protests against putting cattle and meats on the free list was voiced by H. S. Cowan of Fort Worth, Texas, as spokesman for the cattle industry west of the Mississippi River. Mr. Cowan said that such a plan, if adopted, would mean a flood of cheaper meats from the South American ranges, and pictured a ruin of the industry in Texas. He urged the committee to maintain a fair preferential in the American markets, and said that any importations of foreign cattle would come from Mexico, Canada and the Argentine.

CANADIAN MONEY IN JAMAICA

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In order to cope with the new demands which have been created by the opening of the Panama Canal, the Colonial Secretary, the Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt, stated in the House of Commons last night that the Government of Jamaica were negotiating with a Canadian syndicate for the provision of better facilities for coaling docking, and a repairing site has been secured abutting Kingston harbor.

PILGRIMS DROWNED

Three Hundred and Fifty Caught By Flood

Canadian Press Despatch.

Suakim, Egypt, Jan. 22. — Three hundred and fifty Mohammedan pilgrims from India to Mecca were drowned to-day by a flood which overwhelmed the entire caravan at its encampment midway between Medina and Yembo on the Red Sea.

The sudden avalanch accompanied by torrents of water swept down a mountain side in the neighbourhood of the pilgrims' camp carrying away people, animals and tents. Only fifty of the four hundred were saved.

HOUSE WRECKED BY ENGINE

Children and Railway Employes Were Injured

Canadian Press Despatch.

Pittsburg, Jan. 22.—An unusual accident occurred last night when a light freight engine left the tracks of the Union Railroad, broke through a concrete wall and dropping twenty feet split a house in two, seriously injuring four sleeping children and six railway employes.

NO RECORD OF CANCELLATION OF AGREEMENT

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—Special.—The official answers to the questions put on the order paper by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., handed down to-day, show that there is absolutely no record of any kind in the Department of Railways and Canals, referring to the cancellation of the Buckhorn Bridge agreement.

The whole matter will be brought up in debate in a day or two.

Speedy Justice.

GULFPORT, Miss., Jan. 22.—Within seven hours after he had shot and killed Chief of Police Charles Dickey yesterday, Percy Newkirk, a negro, who had been trapped by the officer while in the act of robbing a store and indicted by the county grand jury, tried on a charge of murder, convicted and sentenced to be hanged one month from yesterday.

The Partition of Turkey.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Ambassadorial conference will begin to-day the discussion of limits for the future Albania. The Servian memorandum to the ambassadors lays claim to Scutari and Ipek for Montenegro, and Prisrend and Prilep for Servia. Austria is expected to offer strong opposition to these claims.

COLLISION BUT NO INJURIES

Canadian Press Despatch.

Buffalo, Jan. 22.—Wabash passenger train No. 3 collided with a Michigan Central freight at Black Rock this morning. Nobody was seriously injured, and passengers all continued on their way.

PROUD TO DIE

On Soil That Gives Equal Rights to All.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A man sprinted along the footpath near the New York city terminus of the Manhattan Bridge yesterday, swerved suddenly, scaled the railing, and plunged downward. A moment later his body was flattened out on the sidewalk of a little park below, in sight of 2,000 striking garment workers.

Two letters, signed Solomon Bergman, were found in his clothing. "Hope, courage, belief are everything," read one. "I lost all, therefore I cannot live. I am proud to die on the soil which gives equal rights to all men."

SUCCESSOR TO ALFRED DEAKIN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 22.—Joseph Cook, a pronounced free trader, has been elected leader of the Liberal party to succeed Alfred Deakin, resigned.

The appointment was made at a special conference of the Opposition, when it was stipulated that the present Commonwealth tariff should be maintained.

FIRE SWEEPS FRONTIER TOWN

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, Jan. 22.—Fire, which started early yesterday morning, did damage to the extent of $125,000 before it was under control. The fire was discovered in the basement of the Queen's Hotel, and at one time looked as though it would wipe out the whole town, but was confined to the business section.

Traveler's Downfall.

BRANDON, Man., Jan. 22.—Arthur [illegible], 25 years of age, a well-connected motor supplies traveler from Montreal, was sentenced here yesterday to six months' imprisonment on four charges of forgery, a check for $15 being involved in each case. He pleaded guilty and made restitution.

REGISTERED MAIL STOLEN

Canadian Press Despatch.

Kingston, Jan. 22.—Between one and two o'clock this morning a mail bag containing registered letters disappeared at the Kingston outer section of the Grand Trunk. The bag was brought out from the city by the clerk, and, as usual, handed over to railway mail clerks, but it disappeared before taken from the truck. The only clew is a report from the conductor of a Grand Trunk train at Napanee, who says he saw tramps burning letters beside the tracks.

PORT NELSON NOT CHOSEN

No Decision Yet Regarding Hudson Bay Terminus.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Notwithstanding numerous published statements to the effect that Hon. Frank Cochrane had decided upon Port Nelson as the terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway, it was definitely given out at the Department of Railways and Canals yesterday that no decision in the matter has yet been reached.

Nothing final will be decided upon until Mr. Hazen, the chief engineer of the Department, who has been in the north country since last July, investigating the respective merits of Port Nelson and Port Churchill and who is now on his return to Ottawa, places his report in the Minister of Railways' hands.

MAJ. SAM SHARPE

His Remarks Rouse the Ire of U. S. Officers.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—(Can. Press.) —A Washington despatch to the Gazette says: Great indignation has been created in Washington by the speech of Major Sam Sharpe, in the House of Commons at Ottawa, to the effect that "few native Americans sign for the navy" and that those who are "desperate, no good socially, morally or otherwise," and finally, that the navy becomes a home "for destitutes and moral degenerates, deserters from foreign ships."

The speech of Major Sharpe was the topic of conversation in the Army and Navy Club, where the members were vigorous in characterizing Major Sharpe as uninformed or else malicious.

PROTESTANT IS PARDONED

MADRID, Jan. 22.—The Government has cancelled the punishment inflicted on a Protestant soldier for refusing to kneel during a mass at Ferrol, and will shortly publish a regulation drawn up in such manner that repetition of the incident will be impossible in future. The soldier had been condemned by the highest military court to six months' imprisonment.

Railways Are Begging.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 22.—The "hard coal roads" affected by the Supreme Court's recent decision have petitioned for a modification of the decree to permit them to continue the so-called 65 per cent. contracts with coal companies which have leased coal lands of them.

The court held the contracts were in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

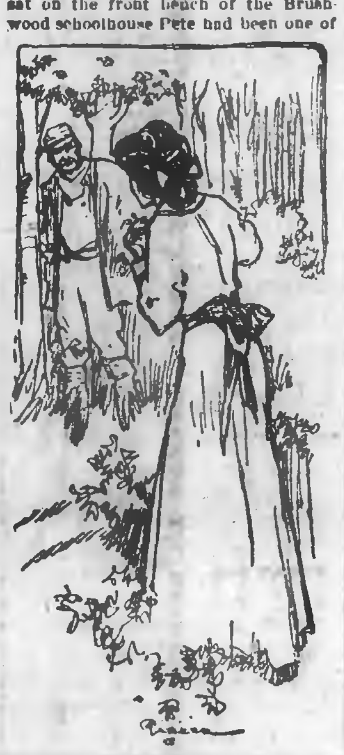
That ended her difficulty. She had known him since childhood. When she sat on the front bench of the Brushwood schoolhouse Pete had been one of the big boys at the back of the room. He had been rough and wild, but she never had been afraid of him, and often he had given her pretty things from the swamp.



Came Out Almost Facing Pete Corson.

"What luck!" she cried. "I promised mother I would not go inside the swamp alone, and will you look at the cocoons I've found! There are more just screaming for me to come get them, because the leaves will fall with the first frost, and then the jays and crows will begin to tear them open. I haven't much time, since I'm going to school. You will go with me, Pete! Please say yes! Just a little way!"

"What are those things?" asked the man, his keen black eyes fast upon her.

"They are the cases these big caterpillars spin for winter, and in the spring they come out great night moths, and I can sell them. Oh, Pete, I can sell them for enough to take me through high school and dress me so like the rest that I don't look different, and if I have very good luck I can save some for college. Pete, please go with me?"

"Why don't you go like you always have?"

"Well, the truth is, I had a little scare," said Elnora. "I never did mean to go alone. Sometimes I sort of wandered inside farther than I intended, chasing things. You know Duncan gave me Freckles' books, and I have been gathering moths like he did. Lately I found I could sell them. If I can make a complete collection I can get $300 for it. Three such collections would take me almost through college and I've four years in the high school yet. That's a long time. I might get them."

"Can every kind there is be found here?"

"No; not all of them, but when I get more than I need of one kind I can trade them with collectors farther north and west so I can complete sets. It's the only way I see to earn the money. Look what I have already. Big gray cecropias come from this kind, brown polyphemus from that and green lunas from these. You aren't working on Sunday. Go with me just an hour, Pete!"

The man looked at her narrowly. She was young, wholesome and beautiful. She was innocent, intensely in earnest and she needed the money—he knew that.

"You didn't tell me what scared you," he said.

"Oh, I thought I did! Why, you know, I had Freckles' box packed full of moths and specimens, and one evening I sold some to the Bird Woman. Next morning I found a note telling me it wasn't safe to go inside the swamp. That sort of scared me. I think I'll go alone rather than miss the chance, but I'd be so happy if you would take care of me. Then I could go anywhere I chose, because if I mired you could pull me out. You will take care of me, Pete?"

That was the finishing stroke.

"Yes, I'll take care of you," promised Pete Corson.

"Goody!" said Elnora. "Let's start quick! And Pete, you look at these closely, and when you are hunting or going along the road if one dangles under your nose you cut off the little twig and save it for me, will you?"

"Yes, I'll save you all I see," promised Pete. He pushed back his hat and followed Elnora. She plunged fearlessly through bushes, over underbrush and across dead logs. One minute she was crying wildly that here was a big one, the next she was reaching for a limb above her head or on her knees overturning dead leaves under a hickory or oak tree or pushing aside black muck with her bare hands as she searched for buried pupae cases. For the first hour Pete bent back bushes and followed, carrying what Elnora discovered. Then he found one.

"Is this the kind of thing you are looking for?" he asked bashfully as he presented a wild cherry twig.

"Oh, Pete, that's a promethea! I didn't even hope to find one."

"What's the bird like?" asked Pete.

"Almost black wings," said Elnora, "with clay colored edges and the most wonderful wine colored flush over the under side if it's a male and stronger wine above and below if it's a female. Oh, aren't I happy!"

"How would it do to make what you have into a bunch that we could leave here and come back for them?"

"That would be all right."

Relieved of his load, Pete began work. First he narrowly examined the cocoons Elnora had found. He questioned her as to what other kinds would be like. He began to use the eyes of a trained woodman and hunter in her behalf. He saw several so easily and moved through the forest so softly that Elnora forgot the moths in watching him. Presently she was carrying the specimens and he was making the trips of investigation to see which was a cocoon and which a curled leaf, or he was down on his knees digging around stumps. As he worked he kept asking questions. What kind of logs were best to look beside, what trees were pupae cases most likely to be under, on what bushes did caterpillars spin most frequently? Time passed, as it always does when one's occupation is absorbing.

When the Sintons had taken Mrs. Comstock home they stopped to see if Elnora was safe. She was not at home, and they had not seen her along the way. Mrs. Comstock called about the edge of her woods and received no reply. Then Sinton turned and drove back to the Limberlost. He left Margaret and Mrs. Comstock holding the team and entertaining Billy and entered the swamp.

Elnora and Pete had left a wide trail behind them. Before Sinton had thought of calling he heard voices and approached with some caution. Soon he saw Elnora, her flushed face beaming as she bent with an armload of twigs and branches and talked to a kneeling man.

"Now go cautiously," she was saying. "I am just sure we will find an imperialis here. It's their very kind of a place. There! What did I tell you! Isn't that splendid? Oh, I am so glad you came with me!"

Sinton stood and stared in speechless astonishment, for the man had risen, brushed the dirt from his hands and held out to Elnora a small shining dark pupa case. As his face swung into view Sinton almost cried out, for he was the man of all others Wesley knew with whom he most feared for Elnora's safety. She had him on his knees digging pupae cases for her from the loose swamp loam.

"Elnora!" called Sinton. "Elnora!"

"Oh, Uncle Wesley," cried the girl, "see what luck we've had! I know we have a dozen and a half cocoons, and we have three pupae cases. It's much harder to get the cases because you have to dig for them, and you can't see where to look. But Pete is fine at it. He's found three, and he says he will keep watch along the roads and through the woods as he hunts. Isn't that splendid of him? Uncle Wesley, there is a college over there on the western edge of the swamp. Look closely and you can see the great dome up among the clouds."

"I should say you have had luck," said Sinton, striving to make his voice natural. "But I thought you were not coming to the swamp?"

"Well, I wasn't," said Elnora, "but I couldn't find many anywhere else, honest I couldn't, and just as soon as I came to the edge I began to see them here. I kept my promise. I didn't come in alone. Pete came with me. He's so strong. He isn't afraid of anything, and he's perfectly splendid to locate cocoons. He's found half of these. Come on, Pete. It's getting dark now, and we must go."

They started for the trail, Pete carrying the cocoons. He left them at the case, while Elnora and Sinton went on to the carriage together.

"Elnora Comstock, what does this mean?" demanded her mother.

"It's all right. One of the neighbors was with her, and she got several dollars' worth of stuff," interposed Sinton.

CHAPTER XII.

Wherein Elnora Discovers a Violin and Billy Disciplines Margaret.

ELNORA missed the little figure at the bridge the next morning. She slowly walked up the street and turned in at the wide entrance to the school grounds. She scarcely could comprehend that only a week ago she had gone there friendless, alone, and so sick at heart that she was physically ill. Today she had decent clothing, books, friends and her mind was at ease to work on her studies.

As she approached home that night the girl paused in amazement. Her mother had company, and she was laughing. Elnora entered the kitchen softly and peeped into the sitting room. Mrs. Comstock sat in her chair holding a book and every few seconds a soft chuckle broke into a real laugh. Mark Twain was doing his work while Mrs. Comstock was not lacking in a sense of humor. Elnora entered the room before her mother saw her. Mrs. Comstock looked up with flushed face.

"Where did you get this?" she demanded.

"I bought it," said Elnora.

"Bought it! With all the taxes due!"

"I paid for it out of my Indian money, mother," said Elnora. "I couldn't bear to spend so much on myself and nothing at all on you. I was afraid to buy the dress I should have liked to, and I thought the book would be company while I was gone. I haven't read it, but I do hope it's good."

"Good! It's the biggest piece of foolishness I have read in all my life. I've laughed all day ever since I found it. I had a notion to go out and read some of it to the cows and see if they wouldn't laugh."

"If it made you laugh, it's a wise book," said Elnora.

"Wise!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "You can stake your life it's a wise book. It takes the smartest man there is to do this kind of fooling." And she began laughing again.

Elnora, highly satisfied with her purchase, went to her room and put on her working clothes. Thereafter she made a point of getting a book that she thought would interest her mother from the library every week and leaving it on the sitting room table. Every night she carried home at least two schoolbooks and studied until she had mastered the points of each lesson. She did her share of the work faithfully, and every available minute she was in the fields searching for cocoons, for the moths promised to become her best source of income.

The Bass That Bit, Laying the Lion, Help From Hercules, the Dog in the Manger, the Boy and the Wolf, Foolish Bear and Hare and Goose.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

A FAT Bass was swimming around with her plump young daughter one day when a hook, temptingly baited, was dropped before their noses.

"There's a good dinner for us," whispered Miss Bass as she started for the bait.

"Hold on, my child," cautioned the mother. "The bait is tempting, but beware of the hook which it conceals."

"Oh, I'll risk that."

"It will be death to you. Take a mother's advice and hunt for frogs."

But the giddy young thing could not be convinced, and, taking advantage of the first opportunity, she rushed forward and grabbed the bait and—

Laying the Lion.

A Rabbit who was taking his evening ramble through a great Forest encountered a Lion under a Tree and at once called out:

"Hi, there! Stand out of my path or I will demolish you!"

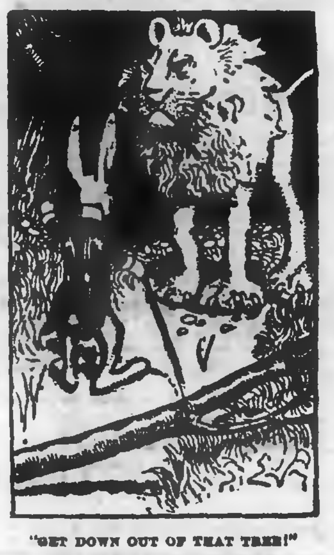
"But I am not in the path," meekly replied the old Beast.

"Then get down out of that Tree!"

"Yes, but I am not up the Tree."

"Who said you were? I tell you to get out of my sunshine or I will break every bone in your body!"

"Would it be impudence on my part to call your attention to the fact that the sun has been down for two hours?" replied the terror stricken Lion.



"GET DOWN OUT OF THAT TREE!"

"Yes, it would, and impudence must be punished!" roared the Rabbit, and he sailed in and pounded the King of Beasts until the Forest was filled with lamentations.

Didn't Care For the Gods.

A Peasant who was driving a cart along a country road had the misfortune to get "stalled" in a mudhole. In this emergency he slammed down his hat, cracked his heels together and loudly called for Hercules to aid him. Old Herc leisurely appeared from the nearest cornfield, and when he saw what the row was he bit off a piece of plug and observed:

"Put your shoulder to the wheel and boost her out. The gods help those who help themselves."

"I'll see you in South America first!" replied the Peasant, and he sat down to wait for the mud to dry up. While waiting for this event he made $7 on a dog trade, put up three lightning rods, sold a washing machine for $6 and got his board for nothing. At the end of four days his old mule walked off with the cart without any boosting, and the Peasant figured that he was about $16 ahead of that community.

The Dog in the Manger.

A Dog lay in the manger when the Ox came to eat his supper. The canine snarled and snapped and tried to rush him out.

"Are you going to eat that hay?" asked the Ox.

"No!"

"And you won't let me eat it?"

"No!"

"Bet my last dollar I do," exclaimed the Ox, and he gave the Dog a horn which sent him up among the rafters.

The Boy and the Wolf.

A Shepherd Boy who tended a flock of sheep near a village cried "Wolf!" one day, and all the old mossbacks rushed out with pitchforks and pokers to find the dreaded beast that was all in the Boy's eye. For three or four successive times the lad played this trick on the villagers, and they finally came

Milady's Mirror

How to Get Thin.

"I have often thought," says Mme. Jeanne la Place in a recent number of Woman's World, "that the world is divided into but two classes of people—those that want to get fat and those that want to get thin. Honest, did you ever meet a person who seemed perfectly satisfied with his weight?

"Of the overfat and overthin women, perhaps the overfat are the more to be pitied. At least they seem to think they are. It is always possible for the thin person to pad herself out to appear plumper, but it is extremely difficult for the fleshy person to disguise her infirmity. A good corset, a preference for dark and quiet colors in dress and a strict avoidance of horizontal stripes will do much to improve the appearance of her figure, but even these are of little avail if she once crosses the line between plumpness and fleshiness.

"Like other beauty ills, tendency to superfluous flesh must be taken in time. So many women will go on placidly and steadily gaining in flesh from month to month and from year to year until some day they wake up to the terrible realization that they are fat. Then a frightful wail goes up, and the victim begins to scramble around wildly for something to 'reduce flesh' and to answer 'anti-fat' advertisements and write pathetic letters to beauty editors.

"While it is possible for a really fat person to reduce her weight, it can usually only be done by immense self denial and excessive and often painful exertion, whereas a very moderate amount of self denial and exertion begun in time might have kept her from ever becoming an unsightly mass of flesh.

"In the vast majority of cases—in every case, I believe, in which fat is not due to actual disease—excessive flesh is caused by too much food and too little exercise. This may seem harsh doctrine to the fleshy sister, but if she wishes to improve her condition she might as well begin by looking facts in the face.

"Therefore the woman that finds that she is putting on flesh at an alarming rate should start out to regulate her diet. She is almost sure to find that she is eating more than she needs, taking into consideration the amount of physical labor she performs. Brain workers need less food than manual laborers, and people whose occupations keep them indoors should not eat as much as people who are in the open air most of the time.

"So the fleshy woman will either have to cut down her diet or take increased exercise, or, more likely, because it may cost some effort to get back to a normal condition she will have to do both at least for a time.

"The woman that wants to lose flesh should never eat more than once a day and then should confine herself to lean meats, fish and poultry. She should avoid starchy foods and go very lightly on potatoes, bread and sweets. The bulk of her diet should consist of fruit and green vegetables. This may sound like Lenten fare, but I am talking now to the woman who is determined not to be fat.

"Then, again, the fleshy woman should not sleep more than seven hours out of the twenty-four. She should never lie in bed late in the morning nor indulge in the rocking chair habit. On the other hand, she should get all the physical exercise she can possibly manage, preferably in the open air. The best all around general exercise and one within the reach of all is walking. Most women, whether they be fat or thin, walk far too little. The woman who tends to be fleshy should walk for at least an hour every day and do it regularly and systematically. As she gets accustomed to the exercise she should increase the number of miles she walks a day until she is doing five miles."

Reeves and Toole.

Sims Reeves told this story in his "Reminiscences":

"I was playing the part of Tom Tug in company with my excellent friend J. L. Toole, who was also a member of the cast. In 'The Waterman' a word or two of gag is held to be permissible, and, partly to amuse the audience, partly to astonish my excellent fellow actor, I said to him in a certain scene in reply to his question:

" 'What's the meaning of all this?'

" 'The meaning of it is that you've been made a tool of, and I'm a happy fellow.'

"Johnnie looked very much surprised, and, as a popular comedian does not if he can help it allow himself to be [illegible], after a moment's reflection; during which he must have suffered the keenest agony, replied:

" 'So it sims.' "

THE SURPRISE IN HER ROOM.

A Peep Into the Boudoir of a Lady of Fashion in New York.

The ingenious fancies which produced the disappearing dinner table of King Ludwig of Bavaria and the elaborate clocks and secret panels of the French empire are by no means completely diverted in these days by the rigid demand for the practical.

A certain New York woman has a boudoir in her uptown house which affords a surprise for friends who are lucky enough to see it. The decorations of this room are worked out on a general color scheme of dull gold and green. The walls are covered with pale yellow silk, and the furniture and hangings are in various shades of gold or green.

At one end of the apartment is what looks to the uninitiated like a small alcove. A long French mirror hangs upon its wall. Yellow roses rise from a great vase in one corner. Two or three gilded chairs occupy the space, and the little compartment seems part and parcel of the room.

It is, however, an automatic elevator, and many a friend while conversing with the hostess has been amazed to see what is apparently one end of the apartment suddenly sink through the floor. The arrangement is such that when the elevator is signaled from below a carved leather panel slides across, closing the entrance to the room.—New York Tribune.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause. Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it siezes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute.

A FORTUNE HUNTER

And His Entry Upon the American Field

By EVELYN BLOCKE

Lord Barnickel had come to America for a rich wife. Most of the scions of nobility make no pretense of love for the woman they marry, though it goes without saying that they are enamored of her fortune. It is understood that a duke or an earl who marries an American heiress matches his title and the social advantages that go with it against her estate, and the marriage is a purely business transaction. The wife is expected to put up with the attentions of her husband to other women and his neglect of her. In the highest circles, where the husband introduces his wife to royalty, divorce is not admitted without a loss of standing, but the husband may be known for a libertine and still maintain his and his wife's prestige with the sovereign.

Barnickel, being simply a younger son of a duke and with no fortune, was not entitled to the privileges accruing to the duke, his eldest brother. He therefore considered it incumbent upon him to win and woo the woman he should marry. He was good looking, a captain in the Coldstream guards and a favorite in British aristocratic society. His elder brother, who had recently come into the family title, had been honored by an acceptance of an invitation to Brandoubane castle by the king. This was all very well so far as it went, but it was not a dukedom or even an earldom. Barnickel was intent upon marrying a woman with a fortune in her own right, and most wealthy American girls are rich in prospect only, and their fathers, having made their fortunes by hard knocks, have a repugnance to settlements.

After looking the field over Barnickel reduced the girls he would try to win to two. The parent of one was worth anywhere from twenty to fifty million dollars; but, being a hard headed American business man, he would not be likely to make a liberal settlement. The other was an orphan, worth in her own right some seven or eight hundred thousand dollars. His lordship wished money to spend at once, so he laid siege to the last named lady, Miss Marjorie Sanderson.

When a man is an adept at personating a lover it must be difficult for the girl he courts to discover whether he is really in love or shamming. Barnickel, who would have made his fortune on the stage acting lovers' parts, concentrated all his powers on Miss Sanderson. He told her with tears in his eyes that were she a beggar his life would be a blank without her and that to work for her would be for him the acme of happiness.

One day Miss Sanderson sent for Mr. Clarence Whittemore, a young attorney who had the care of her property, and said to him:

"Clarence, you are aware that the fortune left me by my mother, had her elder brother lived, would have been much smaller. All but a life interest in $100,000 would have gone to him and would now have been in the possession of my cousin, Mabel Stuart. Indeed, I consider Mabel entitled to the property the same as if her father had lived to inherit it. My conscience has been troubling me ever since I came into possession of it. I have been fighting the devil and have conquered him. I wish you to draw up papers for my signature turning over to her all this property except a life interest in $100,000."

Clarence Whittemore looked at his client in astonishment. He had heard of the attentions of Lord Barnickel, and when Miss Sanderson appeared in his office had surmised that she visited him to instruct him to draw up a marriage settlement. They had been friends from childhood, and Whittemore would have gladly welcomed a change from friendship to love had he not considered that her fortune stood between them. Having the care of her estate, he knew its value and believed that should he make love to her his motives would be impugned.

"Marjorie," he said, "are you crazy?"

"No; I am simply obedient to conscience. But I don't wish to discuss this matter with you, Clarence, or with any one else. I wish you to consider yourself simply my attorney and do as I say. When will you have the papers ready for me to sign?"

"Will tomorrow do?"

"Yes."

"Well, make it tomorrow. Better call here. We have everything here we need."

A few days later, when Lord Barnickel called for a final answer to his proposition of marriage that had been promised him, Miss Sanderson said to him:

"Before accepting your proposal, Lord Barnickel, I desire to communicate to you a matter of importance." And she told him what she had done and that she had done it as a matter of justice.

Now, the wily Englishman was not to be deceived by so palpable an attempt to test whether his offer came from her or from love of her fortune. He swore that he was delighted that he had an opportunity to prove to her that he loved her for herself alone.

"Very well," she said. "If in a month, when you have had an opportunity to learn that I have told you the truth, you choose to renew your proposal it will be accepted. You have met my cousin, I believe. I shall consider it perfectly proper for you to learn from her or my attorney, Clarence Whittemore, or any one else that this is not an attempt to deceive you. Au revoir. Come to see me, if you like, a month from today."

"I will come, as sure as I am alive and that the sun shines in the heavens."

Lord Barnickel departed, feeling sure that he had won the prize. But there was too much at stake to warrant his not assuring himself of the truth. Miss Sanderson's property was invested in a business building in the heart of the city, which paid an enormous and sure rental. It was a very simple matter for Barnickel to go to the court of records and see there a deed recorded transferring to Mabel Stuart, "for and in consideration of one dollar, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged," the business block that constituted nineteen-twentieths of Miss Sanderson's property. He was thunderstruck. Still he would not believe the transfer had really been made until he heard the story repeated time and again and saw that Miss Stuart had materially altered her mode of living.

Miss Stuart was a very different kind of woman from Miss Sanderson. She said that the property having gone to her cousin was an outrage and its being turned over to her a mere act of common honesty. Lord Barnickel, who would not have scrupled to desert the woman who had resigned the property for the one who had accepted it, did not dream of making the former a proposition, supposing that under the circumstances she would consider it an insult. But Miss Stuart, who considered that the alliance with a ducal house went with the property, on meeting his lordship indicated by an extreme graciousness that she wouldn't mind going back to England with him in her cousin's place.

The British aristocracy—or other persons of high degree, for that matter—don't mind such transfers at all, and among them they are not considered out of place. Barnickel as soon as he discovered that the property had really been given Miss Stuart wrote a note to Miss Sanderson informing her that he had heard his brother, the duke, was very ill and he expected before the expiration of the month allotted him before receiving his reply to return to England. He intended this as a polite way of withdrawing his proposition and straightway entered into a negotiation with Miss Stuart proposing marriage and a settlement of half her property upon himself. The lady, who was as anxious for social preferment as his lordship was for the wherewithal to keep up his position, assented at once and employed an attorney to draw the settlement papers.

One morning Miss Sanderson received a note from Clarence Whittemore informing her that her cousin's attorney had called upon him for information as to the title to the business block she had recently transferred, the lawyer having been employed to draw marriage settlement documents between Miss Stuart and Lord Barnickel. Miss Sanderson lost no time in seeing Mr. Whittemore in his office.

"What is this matter you have written me about, Clarence?" she asked with indignation.

Whittemore handed her a note which gave the facts in the case. It stated that there was a clerical error in the deed recently given Miss Stuart by Miss Sanderson. In the deed the property was described as situated on a part of a grant of land made in 1789, the boundary line running west from a certain point, while in the abstract of title to the property the line was laid down as running east. Would Mr. Whittemore kindly furnish a new deed correcting the error?

"What does the error signify?" asked Miss Sanderson.

"That the deed you gave your cousin does not describe the property intended to be conveyed and is worthless."

Miss Sanderson's face lighted up. "Can Mabel compel me to correct the error?"

"No."

"Who made it?"

"I."

"You?"

"Yes. I wrote the deed myself and made the mistake purposely."

The two sat looking at each other intently for some time, when Miss Sanderson asked:

"Why did you do it, Clarence?"

"Because I believed you were making a mistake and wished to save you from the consequences."

Again there was a silence, which Miss Sanderson broke:

"Had you any other reason?"

Perhaps it was the tone in which the question was asked, perhaps the look that accompanied it. At any rate, Whittemore's eyes fell like a girl's. But for the fortune that still stood between them he would have replied "Because I love you." As it was he made no answer. Nevertheless she understood.

Miss Sanderson sent for Lord Barnickel, and when he appeared she said to him:

"I understand that an error was made in the deed to the property I intended to transfer to my cousin. I have sent for you to give you my word that I relied on my attorney to make the legal transfer. But he, foreseeing that I might regret my act, made the error purposely and thus rendered void the transfer. I have had cause to regret my act and shall not give a valid deed to the property. I have nothing further to communicate and bid you good day."

His lordship went back to England without a wife or a fortune. He says those blasted Americans are a pack of sharpers and it doesn't do for gentlemen to have anything to do with them.

"Children," said the teacher, instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy; simply be yourselves and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice one bright lad turned in the following: "We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in us. In me there is my stommick, lungs, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of lemon candy and my dinner."—Newark Star.

"Father O'Flynn."

Lecturing at the University College of North Wales on "Songs of Old Ireland," Mr. A. Perceval Graves, the author of "Father O'Flynn," gave an interesting account of the origin of the song, with which, he said, his name was already too much identified.

When a clerk at the Home Office, said Mr. Graves, he happened to be strolling across one of the London parks when the words of the song came to his head, and, writing them out, he sent them to The Spectator, where they were published.

Ten years afterwards they were set to music, and Sir Charles Santley made the song a success. "I have been worried by the song ever since," added Mr. Graves, "and I believe they call me 'Father O'Flynn' as though I knew nothing else."

The Limit.

"Stop!" cried the man in the road. "You are exceeding the speed limit."

"That's all nonsense!" retorted Binks, bringing his car to a standstill.

"That's what they all say," said the man in the road, climbing into the car. "You can tell your story to the magistrate at Kinktown, just seven miles up the road. Start along, please."

They drove on in silence to Kinktown, where, as the car drew up in front of the courthouse, the man got out.

"Much obliged for the ride," said he. "You can settle that matter of speed with the magistrate if you want to. As a stranger in these parts I don't think my word would go for much."—Harper's Weekly.

Cookery Points

Boiled Cracker Pudding.

One quart of milk, one pint of pounded crackers, three eggs, one-fourth cupful of molasses, one cupful of seeded raisins, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves, one tablespoonful of melted butter. Add cracker crumbs to milk. Beat eggs until light, add salt and spices and combine with the crackers and milk mixture. Add molasses, raisins and melted butter and stir until thoroughly blended. Tie the mixture carefully in a heavy floured pudding bag. Place on a rack in a kettle of boiling water, cover and boil two and one-quarter hours. Serve with hot pudding sauce.

Spinach In Eggs.

Boil the spinach in a very little water (save the water) and drain the spinach dry. Chop very fine and mix with a tablespoonful of cream. Salt and pepper to taste. Have three eggs boiled hard; cut them in two lengthwise; take out the yolks; fill the whites with the spinach. Make a sauce with one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of flour; stir until smooth, then add half a cupful of the spinach water and boil for five minutes, stirring all the time. Put the whites of eggs on rounds of buttered toast, pour the sauce around and sprinkle the yolks of eggs (put through a sieve) over the top.

Peanut Cookies.

Beat to a cream four tablespoonfuls of butter and half a cupful of sugar, add two well beaten eggs, four tablespoonfuls of milk, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of essence of lemon or vanilla and one cupful of finely chopped peanuts. Drop from the point of a teaspoon on to buttered paper, leaving a good margin around each to prevent running together. Stick a split peanut on top of each cookie and bake in a medium oven.

Peanut Soup.

One pint of shelled and blanched peanuts, two tablespoonfuls of onion, two tablespoonfuls of celery, one pint of white stock, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one pint of milk, salt, red pepper and paprika. Chop the peanuts in a meat chopper; cook the chopped nuts, the onion and the celery in the white stock for twenty minutes. Melt the butter, add the flour, the milk and the seasoning; cook for five minutes. Combine the mixtures, strain and serve.

Baked Caramel Custard.

Melt one-half cupful of sugar in a clean frying pan, add one-half cupful of water gradually and cook until thick. Beat four eggs until light, add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one saltspoonful of salt, one pint of rich milk and the caramel. Butter an earthen baking dish, sprinkle with granulated sugar, pour in the custard, stand the dish in a pan of hot water and bake until firm.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Caused Palpitation, and Prevented Sleep—When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of "Nerviline."

"My last wish will be," writes Harry Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveler of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would waken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the traveling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS

W. F. Maclean, M.P., the well known Conservative Radical, has done splendid work in his own peculiar way in the House of Commons. His speeches are always listened to with interest, for Maclean is original, and a thinker, and he is a trifle uncertain. His speech on the desirability of limiting appeals from the Canadian Supreme Court to the Imperial Privy Council was worth hearing, and he made a considerable impression with it. On constitutional matters, it is necessary that there should be an extra Canadian judicial body; because while the Canadian Supreme Court would be able to interpret the law, there may be interprovincial disputes which were better referred to an imperial body. But in the case of corporation disputes with municipalities, the decision of the Canadian Supreme Court ought to be good enough to stand. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is much too strict in its interpretation of corporate rights to suit most Canadians. The conception of law, and property rights in England is much different to the Canadian. It is quite time that the law in a certain case would be the same in Canada as when considered in England, and there ought to be equal consideration of corporate privileges by a Canadian Court as an English Court if real justice is to be administered. But it is a sign of our greater disregard for corporations that we should complain about a decision that gives them a victory over the public, no matter what the law may be. In America the public will, for the public benefit, become a confiscator of corporate rights, as in the case of the Hydro-Electric negotiations. It is not justice, but it is what the people want. The theory that any British subject shall have the right of appeal to the throne should not hold good in the case of public utility corporation disputes, because the Canadian Supreme Court in such cases is quite as well qualified to render decisions as any other Court.

ENTERPRISE AND PLUCK

Well may the Winnipeg Free Press say: "The citizens of Winnipeg have reason in full measure, running over, for satisfaction in the business success of their civic light and power undertaking. With the actual cash revenue now beyond $35,000 per month, which is the revenue required to place the enterprise on a solid business basis, with provision for sinking fund, depreciation and all operating and departmental expenses, there is the certainty of a steady increase in the revenue. The plant has been in operation only a little longer than a year, but the record thus far proves to a demonstration that the most sanguine expectations which were entertained when this great civic enterprise was launched were amply justified."

The story of how Winnipeg freed itself from the grip of the electrical ring supplies one of the brightest examples of pluck and civic enterprise, says the Hamilton Herald. All the electric services in Winnipeg were supplied virtually by the one corporation, controlled by Mackenzie and Mann. The usual effects of monopoly prevailed; prices were high and service not satisfactory. The city government, backed by the people, decided to go into the electric business itself—for there was no provincial Hydro-Electric scheme to help it out. The city undertook to emancipate itself. A power-development plant was installed at a water-power thirty or forty miles from the city. A transmission line was constructed from that point to the city, and the local system for the distribution of the current was meanwhile under way. There were prophets of ruin aplenty. The city would be bankrupted, they predicted. It would be impossible to sell power and lighting in competition with the long-established company.

The whole system — development plant, transmission line and local distribution system—was completed, and it has been in operation about a year. The actual cash receipts for the year 1912 amounted to $303,619. In January the power load carried was only 2,000 horse-power, but in December it had increased to 14,000 horse-power, and with applications for new services pouring in faster than they could be promptly attended to. The official estimate of the revenue for 1913 is $600,000, and this estimate is said to be a conservative one. Less than three years ago the people of Winnipeg were paying 10 cents per kilowatt hour for electric current for house lighting. The promoters of the civic enterprise promised that this figure would be cut down to 3 cents. They were ridiculed by the enemy and by the doubters; but the promise has been kept.

The price for house lighting in Winnipeg is 3 cents per kilowatt hour; and the city's electric department has forced the company to lower its rate to that figure. A year ago even some good friends and warm supporters of the enterprise, in view of the fact that the city system had cost somewhat more than the estimate, thought it imprudent to begin the supply of current at so low a rate as 3 cents; but it was decided that the best policy was to keep the promise that had been made, and the result has justified that decision, for the 3-cent rate has proved sufficient to finance the department.

PROMPTNESS

Promptness in getting out repair work is a specialty with us. Having our own Lens Grinding Plant enables us to replace almost any kind of lenses in from one to three hours.

It doesn't make any difference where you bought your glasses, if you save the pieces we can duplicate the lenses. We have a special instrument for neutralizing lenses which gives a positive accurate correction. We will make a record of your lenses and then it will not be necessary for you to save the pieces in future. If you bought your glasses from us, we have your correction on record and all you will have to do is to phone us which lense is broken, and we can have one ground for you when you call.

We can duplicate any kind of lense, including Toric, Flat, Kryptok, Semi-Invisible and all kinds of Bifocals. The next time you have an accident give us a call and investigate the facilities which we place at your service.

During the first seven days of the operation of the system, six million packages were handled. "Without question," says the postmaster-general, "postmasters are enthusiastic for the parcel post service, and many of them have submitted with their reports personal letters describing the reception of the system in their communities, and offering suggestions for the betterment of the service."

The price of bread has been raised in Toronto, due to the increased cost of making, selling and delivery The consumers will probably grumble and pay. The art of domestic bread-baking has been largely lost, which may, in part, be what enables the commercial bakers to charge so much for their work. The housewives of Peterborough might head off a raise here by taking bread-baking lessons at the Y. W. C. A.

The members of the St. Andrew's society of Washington, D.C., had to choose between the presence of women and of Scotch whiskey at their annual Burns banquet on January 25, and they decided in favor of the whiskey. Probably they argued that women are not an essential feature of a Burns memorial banquet.

The society reporter of the local "sassiety" paper has evidently been overlooked by those in charge of the functions at the Isolation Hospital.

Carnegie's Pun.

In response to a compliment upon the high literary quality of the contents of the various Carnegie libraries Andrew Carnegie condescended to make a pun. "Why, yes," he said, "these libraries are literary through and through. One of them burned down the other day, and even the smoke issued in volumes."

HAPPENINGS AT OMEMEE

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Jan. 20.—Mr. H. Murray has returned from Norwood, where he was hastily summoned to the bedside of a sick sister.

Mr. Harold Fee, of Lindsay, was home over the week-end.

The Methodists have arranged for special song services at the regular church meetings for some Sundays to come. One will be featured by male voices alone, another by female voices alone, and still another by exclusive congregational singing. Everybody made welcome.

A student conducted the service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

Rev. W. F. Chapman returned home Saturday evening from Bowmanville, where he attended the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Brittain.

Mr. John J. Magee, of Orange Corners, was in town on Monday.

From 3.30 to 5 p.m. on Thursday Misses Morden and Davidson, teachers of the High School, were the hostesses of a charming skating party on the ice of the town rink. The pupils were their guests and enjoyed the function to the full. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of a much appreciated social outing.

Dr. George Earle has been appointed Medical Health Officer of Omemee for the current year.

Sinister.

A nonconformist clergyman in Manchester is chuckling over a letter he recently received from the vicar of a certain parish church. He had written to the vicar asking for permission to conduct a funeral in the churchyard.

"He immediately sent me a most courteous note," the nonconformist clergyman said, "but I could not help noticing that it would be possible to give to his words a sinister meaning. The note ran: 'You will, both tomorrow and at any other time, be most welcome in our churchyard.'"—London Answers.

ANNUAL REPORT TO DAIRY MEN BY THE INSTRUCTOR

The following is the report of Instructor Ward, regarding the Dairying Industry in Peterborough section, as read at the district dairy meeting:

Gentlemen—It is with your pleasure I now make my report of dairying operations in your section for season just closed. In making this report I shall try to be frank and note our failures as well as our successes, trusting it will be an incentive for us all to try and make greater improvements for another season.

I am pleased to be able to state on my first visit of the season, I found the factories mostly in good shape for beginning the season's work, and these conditions have been fairly well maintained throughout the six months. There have been a few exceptions due largely to lack of sufficient skilled labor. The first two months, May and June, the make was short in quantity, due largely to the cows coming from winter quarters in poor condition and the weather being cold and backward. But the weather was ideal for keeping milk, manufacturing and keeping the cheese after they were made, the result being that they were very fine in quality. The balance of the season has been marked by frequent rains and some warm spells, along with abundance of feed, with a result that shortage was pretty well made up by the end of August and the season has closed with a good supply of milk and the quantity of cheese was in excess of that of last season. The quality of cheese on the whole has been better than last year but due largely to more favorable climatic conditions for having the milk reach the factories in cool, good condition, and keeping the cheese after being made.

These results are very noticeable every season that the quality of cheese is very largely governed by conditions of weather. Buyers, take note of this and know pretty well what to look for before starting out to inspect. The last half of October, did not, as a whole, iron as well as they should have done. A good many were a little sticky, inclined to paste. This, I think, could be remedied by stirring the curd dryer at removal of whey, and keeping some fire in the curing rooms.

I have been pleased to note a general effort being made to make dairying more profitable. The most noteworthy of those efforts have been the larger number of silos being built and the large increased acreage of corn and alfalfa that has been grown. The water supply of factories has been commanding attention and I believe requires still more attention. I think it would be a safe statement to make, that 75 per cent. of our wells throughout the country are more or less contaminated, and I believe that 90 per cent., if not more, of that 75 per cent. become contaminated from the mouths of wells not being properly protected. You will please note that this is something that can be easily remedied by having the mouth of the well elevated above the surrounding surface and made perfectly tight with a sloping platform.

To close, we will note a few of the most essential things necessary for the improvement of dairying, namely, a clean cool milk supply under all conditions of weather, a curing room that can be maintained at an even temperature of 60 degrees under all conditions of weather, perfect sanitary conditions at farms and in and about factories and this should include the exclusion of flies and a pure water supply.

Trusting that everyone will now begin to think and prepare for next season's operations and if this is done, then general co-operation all along the line we may expect to see more and better results in 1913 than in any one previous year in the history of dairying in this country.

I thank patrons, officers, owners and makers for the kind assistance and courtesy that has been extended to me in carrying out my work, that has been done with the one object in view, that of making this business more profitable, and trying to help place it in the proud position where it rightfully belongs on account of its importance, in the agricultural industry of this country.

REPLY IS DESPATCHED

Taft Has Approved U.S. Note on Panama Tolls

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—President Taft has approved the note prepared at the State Department in reply to the communication from Sir Edward Greyfl the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, protesting against the exemption of American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls in the Panama Canal.

As a matter of official courtesy information is withheld as to the exact status of the note until it has been received by the British Government in London through the American embassy there.

It is believed that the American note was despatched by mail immediately upon its approval by the President and that it should be in London within a week. The British Government, however, will not be obliged to wait that length of time to become acquainted with its contents, as the amenities of diplomacy require that simultaneously with the mailing of a despatch of this character a copy be supplied to the resident ambassador or Minister of the power to whom it is addressed. Ambassador Bryce, it is pointed out, need not hesitate to make free use of the cable to supply the British Foreign Office with at least an outline of the American note.

Following precedents established in the publication of the Grey note, it has been arranged that Secretary Knox's reply shall be given for publication simultaneously in Washington and in London. It is believed here that after attempting to eliminate a number of propositions contained in the British note regarded as not germane to the real issue, Mr. Knox has devoted himself principally to the effort to show that "all nations" in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty does not necessarily include the United States and that it is entirely competent for this Government to treat its own shipping differently from that of other maritime nations so far as the canal is concerned.

Denounces Tactics.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—"Shall we inform the world that the United States is false to the agreements, false to its pledged word? Shall we have it made known the world over that you must lookout for the United States or it will get the advantage of you? That it is astute, cunning, slippery?"

With this vigorous denunciation of the attitude of this country in the Panama Canal controversy with Great Britain, Senator Elihu Root closed a two-hour speech in the Senate yesterday with an appeal for the submission of the Panama question to arbitration, or to the repeal of that section of the canal law that would give free passage to American coastwise ships.

Speaking from the experience of a member of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, when the Panama Canal zone was purchased, and when over 25 arbitration treaties were made with foreign nations, Senator Root delivered the most vigorous attack on the attitude of the United States that has been heard since the Panama controversy with Great Britain arose.

It became known following the Senator's address than Senator Brandegee, chairman of the inter-oceanic canals committee, will call a meeting within a few days to take up Senator Root's amendment for the repeal of the free toll provision. Led by Senators Root and Brandegee, both of whom opposed the original passage of this provision, a determined effort will be made at this session of Congress to change the law before it goes into effect at the canal, so that the cause of dispute with Great Britain will be removed.

SAVED BY CLEAN HANDS.

Thrilling Incident of the Days of the Paris Commune.

Frederick Villiers' "Peaceful Personalities and Warriors Bold," contains a striking and somewhat bloody tale of the terrible days of the Paris commune. An unnamed Englishman tells the story of himself and Archibald Forbes, the great war correspondent: "There was a good deal of fighting in the streets at the time, for the Versailles troops were pressing hard upon the communists. One afternoon, in the street not far from where we were sitting, I was rounded up by a party of rebels and made to work erecting a barricade, when I found another Englishman pressed for the same business. It was Forbes, the war correspondent. We chummed together at our distasteful work, which we were compelled to do or risk being shot for spies.

"Presently the barricade was attacked by the Versaillists, and the communists, after a sharp fight, were driven helter skelter down the street. Forbes and I ran with them. Presently he shouted, 'Dive into that wineshop on the left!' I immediately did so, and Forbes, catching hold of me, pushed me through a shop to a back yard, where we found a pump. 'Now,' said he, 'wash your hands quickly and let me have a turn.' After our ablutions he hurried me back into the street. That simple incident of washing my hands saved my life, and I always remember it with gratitude.

"We had hardly gained the street before we were roughly arrested by the victorious troops, who would not listen to my explanation, and were hurried along with many other prisoners till we came to a blank wall, where a halt was made. About a dozen of us were made to stand in a line with our backs to the wall. 'Hands up!' cried the officer in charge.

"The poor devils who had soiled hands were told to remain. Forbes and I were the only men who were allowed to fall out, for our hands showed no sign of barricade work or soil of powder upon them. Before we realized what had happened the rest were riddled with bullets. It was a ghastly sight.

DR. ADMITS PINK TEAS WERE HELD AT HOSPITAL

the five and ten cent buying which had prevailed. The purchasing to him seemed to have been going on in a most extravagant scale.

Mayor Bradburn—"Do you think it advisable to have the Board buy the supplies for the Hospital in quantities?"

Ald. Gordon—"I believe that there should be a place under lock and key for perishable articles, and that tenders be asked from grocery stores for supplying provisions."

In replying to Ald. Gordon, Medical Health Officer McPherson said:

"Both you and Ald. Anderson have said the Council did not make any reflections on the Board. The mismanagement referred to by you I believe is wholly a matter of finances and false economy."

Ald. Anderson—"My statement is this; that there has been extravagance in the purchasing of supplies."

Dr. McPherson—"As superintendent therefore I feel responsible for the management there, and I know Miss Mowry is anxious to correct any wrong impressions. I suppose you all know that there have been many reports stirred up over the matter created by the reports in the newspapers. There has been reports that I have been getting meals up there. I want to tell you that I have only had three meals up there since the hospital opened. Neither do I feel that there should be any reflections made on the habits of the two girls who are more or less isolated up there."

Dr. McPherson also said that a garden had been managed which had provided much of the hospital vegetable supplies.

"The most of the pastry referred to in bills was purchased at the time Mr. and Mrs. English were in charge, shortly before they were discharged. In regard to the weighing of supplies he recommended that scales be purchased and the articles checked off. With reference to the butter bill he was not in a position to speak, not having had an opportunity to check up the amount.

A little argument occurred between Alderman Anderson and the Medical Health Offcier as to whether a child ate as much as an adult or a woman patient as much as a male.

Alderman Gordon refuted a statement that he had said a big portion of food went into the garbage pail.

The suggestion of Alderman Gordon for a stores department was taken up by the M. H. O. He contended that Alderman Gordon did not perhaps understand the hospital and that it was liable to be temporarily closed at times.

Mayor Bradburn — "It appears gentlemen that this is simply a question of whether there has been waste at the hospital.

Ald. Anderson— "I want to know how it happens that it cost $22.13 per week to run the hospital.

I claim it is extravagance and that no house in Peterborough is run on such an extensive scale."

Dr. McPherson said that there were many articles in the accounts besides eatables, which would total up $100 or more. He thought there were few people who could run the Hospital more economically than Miss Mowry. She and her assistants looked after all the rooms, and many other household duties. Considering all the facts there should be no slur cast on the management which Miss Mowry has exerted.

Alderman Anderson still mantained, however, that allowing for the various articles outside of the eatables, the expenses of the Hospital would not be materially reduced. Alderman Gordon still believed that making allowance for everything, the sum of $22.13 was excessive. Alderman Gordon said that he understood Miss Mowry had full control of most of the buying.

LESS EXPENSE THIS YEAR

Dr McPherson admitted that he thought it possible to conduct the hospital on a more inexpensive system in the ensuing year.

Replying to a question by Alderman Duncan, Dr. McPherson said he knew there had been pink teas up there from time to time but nothing out of the way, and nothing that would increase the expenditures of the Hospital more than a few dollars.

Alderman Anderson said there had been murmurings from the Council all around, in connection with running the Hospital.

Dr. McPherson— "The whole misunderstanding to my mind has occurred through not viewing the matter in all its aspects."

Alderman Duncan asked the M. H. O. if he remembered the time he had given the members of the Board to understand that any recommendations for discipline at the Hospital should come through him and not from the Board.

Alderman Duncan moved that the Board of Health visit the Queen Mary Hospital next Tuesday with a view to making improvements to the building.

Dr Young gave Miss Mowry, the matron, a very good recommendation. He had seen her go through her course of training in Nicholls Hospital and felt that she was careful and well qualified and in no ways wasteful.

Finally it was decided to allow the question to stand over until next Tuesday after the visit to the Hospital.

Ald. Gordon submitted a number of recommendations which he thought could be utilized to advantage at the Hospital.

Cromwell and Foolscap.

The triumph of Cromwell! What is foolscap? Everybody the world over means a standard measurement of means a standard measurement of thirteen inches by sixteen, yet how few can give the reason why. In England the paper mark was originally a crown, and when the commonwealth was set up, Cromwell was approached as to what mark should be used in the future. He, with characteristic contempt for crowns, replied, "A fool's cap," and so it became and remained, for at the restoration the matter was overlooked until too late to act upon the ultimate discovery. — London Chronicle.

New Elections to Board of Directors—Membership is 496, a Gain of 134 Since May.

At the annual Membership meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association held last night in the Association building, the following men were elected to the Board of Directors.

H. B. Cowan, F. J. Might, G. A. Ferguson, Ivor E. Brook, J. T. C. Lang, G. N. Baker.

The following is the complete Board of Directors and the year when each retires from office:

1913—G. A. Gillespie, Dr. W. D. Scott, J. J. Hartley, J. J. Howden.

1914—J. H. Connal, F. J. Might, Ivor E. Brock, J. T. C. Laing.

1915—H. B. Cowan, A. McFarlane, G. N. Baker, G. A. Ferguson.

The financial statement showed a balance of $113.02. The report of the secretary gave the pleasing information that the membership was 496, which is a gain of 134 since May.

LAWYER'S LETTER HAD NO TERRORS FOR SIMMONS

The word "bloody" does not appeal to His Worship Magistrate Dumble. In Police Court this morning William Simmons was accused by Caroline Caladine of using grossly insulting and abusive language towards her, and the epithet "bloody" was one of the terms used in the verbal controversy. The racket occurred on Charlotte street on Monday morning last. Mrs. Caladine stopped Mr. Simmons on the street and requested him to apologize for certain scandals she charged him with circulating about her, and threatened him with a lawyer's letter if he refused. Simmons was said to have replied in a very uncomplimentary, but descriptive manner, of the disposition he would make of "any lawyer's bloody letter."

Defendant went into the witness box and said that Mrs. Caladine first accused a companion of his of saying things to he (Simmons) about her.

His Worship censured Mrs. Caladine for her indiscreet action in starting the argument on the public street. He discharged the case and advised both parties to be careful in future of their conduct in public, no matter how they were accustomed to act in their own homes.

Lord Eldon's Tip.

An ingenious method of avoiding the tip was once practiced by Lord Eldon. When young men at the bar, he and Lord Stowell celebrated a stroke of professional luck by dining at a tavern. When Stowell drew out his purse to pay he dropped a guinea and after some search was giving it up as lost. Eldon called the waitress. "Betty," said he, "we have dropped two guineas; see if you can find them." Betty went down on her knees and quickly found the coin. "You are a good girl, Betty," said Eldon. "When you find the other guinea, you can keep it for yourself."—London Chronicle.

METEORITES

It was not until the eighteenth century that science was convinced that stones and metals fall from outer space. The British museum has now a collection of more than 550 meteors, the fall of more than half of which was observed by authentic witnesses. Meteorites are composed of various minerals—an aerolite is of stone formation. The minerals most frequently found are iron, nickel, magnesium, calcium, silicon, aluminium and phosphorus. There are also copper, cobalt, antimony, chromium, manganese, tin, sodium and vanadium. Occasionally there are traces of gold, silver, platinum and lead. No element unknown to our earth has been discovered.

John Milton's Cottage.

One of the best preserved historic country houses in all England is John Milton's cottage at Chalfont St. Giles, to which the blind and aging poet fled when the great plague swooped down on London. That was in July, 1665, and Milton had just finished "Paradise Lost" and received a five-pound note for it, with a promise of three more five pound notes if the poem sold four editions of 1,300 copies each. The cottage stands at the top of the village, and it is in practically the same condition as when Milton left it. Here the poet received his distinguished guests during the latter part of his life.

BANK ACT IS DEBATED

Hon. W. T. White Believes Government Inspection to be Impracticable

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Finance Minister White's bill, providing for the decennial revision of the Bank Act, was under heavy fire yesterday by Mr. Duncan Ross, the Liberal member for Middlesex.

Mr. White, in moving the second reading of his bill, eulogized the Bank Act as it now stands, and frankly indicated that it stood in little need of any amendment. He was unalterably opposed to the public inspection of banks, or to any increase in the money of the country by the issue of Dominion notes against a gold reserve of less than 100 per cent. He was followed by Mr. A. K. MacLean, the Liberal member for Halifax, who has assumed the role of financial critic for the Opposition, but who merely echoed what Mr. White had said, and was no less eulogistic of the chartered banks and the present Bank Act.

Messrs. Demers and Carvell, both Liberals, arraigned the Finance Minister's proposals. Mr. Carvell asked that a royal commission be appointed to investigate the whole question before the bill passed.

Mr. White said there was a considerable demand throughout the country, he admitted, for the public inspection of chartered banks. He was opposed to such public inspection as illusory and calculated to mislead the public and lull shareholders and depositors into a false sense of security.

Moreover, the business of banking was the lending of money upon personal security. Trust companies, loan companies and the like make loans on real estate and buildings, but the banks loaned to a man upon his standing, character and reputation. The local manager might pass upon these, but an inspector who was a stranger in the locality would be incompetent to judge of them. For this reason the bill required the shareholders to elect auditors at their annual meeting who would report to them upon the condition of the bank and who would be independent of the board of directors.

The Minister denounced as impracticable, unfair and unsound the suggestion made by Duncan Ross, Liberal member for Middlesex, that the banks should be required to deposit with the Government five percentum of the deposits they received from the public, as a redemption fund for the protection of depositors in case of failure. To carry out this suggestion, Mr. White said, would require locking up five per cent. of the total deposits, or $50,000,000. The idea was vicious in principle, he said, because it required the strong, well-managed banks to become responsible for the losses of mismanaged and weak banks.

Turning to the question of Dominion notes and national currency, Mr. White said he did not believe in issuing Dominion notes against a gold reserve of 25 per cent. or 50 per cent. but only against a gold reserve of 100 per cent. The present one and two-dollar bills, he said, did not count. They would probably never be presented for redemption.

A. K. MacLean, Liberal member for Halifax, followed. He did not believe that the outside inspection of banks should be confined to auditors to be chosen by the shareholders. As a matter of fact, he said, shareholders can never be assembled together, and the general manager and one or two directors would attend to electing the auditor, as they did to everything else.

Mr. White's remedy against the bank mergers, Mr. MacLean deemed to be absurd, but personally he was not disposed to regard bank amalgamation as objectionable. The inspection of banks, he contended, should be made either by the Government or by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

He did not see what possible good could come from the provision in the bill for bank merging or amalgamation. So far as he could ascertain, the provision was that the Minister's consent was required. Amalgamation was occurring in other countries. It was not necessarily a bad thing. It was always desirable that a weak bank should be absorbed by a stronger one. He trusted that when the bill went before the committee the Minister would give a full explanation of the proposal for a central gold reserve.

Mr. W. F. Maclean (South York) followed. He declared that the two preceding speeches had been most conservative. He was afflicted with the heresy of believing in a larger issue of Dominion notes. He believed in the public inspection of banks. "If you have a policeman on the street as security, public officials in the bank will also furnish a safeguard," he declared.

Sir Edmund Osler spoke briefly at the conclusion of the deliverance of the South York man. He pointed out that the banks had to look to Canada for their support. British investors did not like the double liability which devolved upon shareholders, and the English banks paid larger dividends. Sir Edmund stated that no Canadian bank was making 4 per cent. on its free money, but in response to questions by Mr. F. F. Pardee (West Lambton) and Mr. Maclean, added that the bank in which he was interested had paid 18 per cent. last year upon its capital.

In the course of his vigorous argument in favor of advanced action for the protection of the depositors of banks, Mr. Ross instanced the case of the Farmers Bank failure, with its tremendous loss to the Ontario people. There were, he said, some $1,100,000 of deposits with the bank. The liquidators had secured only some $21,000 through the double liability of the shareholders, and, "in my opinion," Mr. Duncan C. Ross (W. Middlesex) went on, "not a depositor will get one cent of the amount which he has placed with the bank." As a matter of fact, no less than six hundred families had been made destitute.

Major Sharpe (North Ontario) declared that the bill fell far short of what the public wanted, and was practically little improvement on the old bill. The Minister of Finance, he thought, had not had "his ear to the ground." He intimated that said ear had been given solely to the Bankers' Association, and that the bill represented the minimum of their demands. He believed changes much more radical than those proposed should be incorporated, and that in respect to the vital point of external inspection the bill was no improvement on the present law.

Mr. E. W. Nesbitt (North Oxford) moved the adjournment of the debate.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

Completely Cured by GIN PILLS

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, Ont., one of the best known and most highly respected commercial travellers in Canada, was a cripple from Rheumatism and suffered terribly. GIN PILLS cured him. Mr. Reid writes as follows:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Diseases."

Gin Pills is sold with a positive guarantee to cure or money promptly refunded. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 142

ARE YOUR HANDS CHAPPED?

Read How Zam-Buk Heals

For badly chapped hands, cold cracks, frost bite, etc., Zam-Buk is the best known healer. Wash the hands or part affected in water as hot as can be borne. Dry with a soft towel and then smear the Zam-Buk well over the part. If it is the hands, wear a pair of old gloves over night. By morning the pain will be gone. Then use Zam-Buk a few more times and the cracks will be healed. Mrs. A. F. Phillips, of Ayers Cliff, Que., says: "I suffered terribly from chapped hands. At times my hands were so sore that I could almost have cried with the pain. I thought I would try Zam-Buk and see what that wonderful healing balm would do for me. I obtained a supply, and in a very short time my hands were cured."

Mrs. W. M. Baillient, of Port Hawkesbury, N.S., writes: "Some time ago my hands were badly chapped. Ordinary ointments did not heal them, and I was advised to try Zam-Buk. To my great delight, it healed my hands in a remarkably short time."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co. on receipt of price.

HYGIENE OF VIOLINS.

The Proper Kind of Case For These Sensitive Instruments.

The violin and violoncello are most sensitive to atmospheric conditions and suffer from atmospheric variations quite as much as the tender vocal cords of the singer. Those who have attempted to make the violin an ornament by hanging it upon the wall have had reason to repent taking such a liberty. The violin loses its varnish and gradually its pitch and timbre. The artificial heat of rooms in winter makes its tone raucous when it does not obliterate it entirely. Metal cases, morocco covered, are equally unfit for it. A strong, well varnished wooden case, even though it be not especially attractive to the eye, suits the susceptibilities of the violin much better.

Certain qualities, sometimes unsuspected, in the wood play an important part in the falsification of notes, causing progressive deterioration. There was a time when manufacturers applied to their product several coats of "paint"—i. e., a concentrated solution of bichromate of sodium potash in boiling water. The wood soon acquired a yellow tone, and under the action of light after drying the color darkened and took on the aspect of very old paint.

For commercial purposes this was all very well, but what happened to the purchaser was that as soon as he began to use his instrument exposed to the light the bichromate worked on the gelatin, which the manufacturers employed to color the wood and prevent the penetrating of the varnish, while some element in the bichromate of soda was converted into stone. The violin suffered petrifaction, which impeded its tone and rendered it useless.—Harper's Weekly.

THE DAILY MARKET REPORTS

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Corn advanced a cent and led the grain markets upward today. Provisions declined 2½c.

Wheat opened higher because Liverpool failed to reflect the local weakness of yesterday. A decline ensued on flatness in the spot market, and then a recovery on reports of export business. Then there was another slump when it was stated that the latter traffic was in old Manitoba. In the end a report from New York that 40 loads had been sold abroad, and the pronounced strength of corn caused another upturn. The market had hardly started downward again when the close of the trading day came. Business was active in the last hour.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d lower on wheat, and ½d higher on corn.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—There was more enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba wheat, but as prices were unchanged to 3d lower no business of importance was done. The local grain in coarse grains was dull, buyers being well supplied. A little business was done in low grade flour for export, but there is no demand for patents. A fair local trade is passing. Demand for millfeed is quiet. The feeling in butter is steady, but the movement is small. Cheese firmer under a better demand from over the cable. Eggs steady, except new-laid, which have declined 2c to 5c.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 63½c to 64c.

SMITH TOWNSHIP

Council Hold First Meeting of the Year

The Smith Township Council at its first meeting of the year was addressed by Mr. James Stubbs on behalf of the Cottagers of Stoney Lake, who own property in the vicinity of the 15th concession, and asked that this line be made passable for vehicles and automobiles from the Burleigh Road to the lake. He pointed out that the Council derives considerable revenue each year from the cottage holders by way of statute labor returned undone, and thought it nothing but right that this money should be expended so as to benefit them all. In reply the Reeve promised that the Council would visit the road during the annual inspection of highways in the spring.

The letter and plans of A. G. Fawcett, Superintending Engineer of the City Water Commissioners, concerning the proposed new ditch on the River Road opposite the city pumping station, were received and dealt with. On account of the proximity of an open ditch to the travelled highway, it was moved by Mr. Telford and Mr. Davis, that the Council do not approve of the further information.—Carried.

Mr. Peter Nichols, of Bridgenorth, was appointed Truant Officer.

The Treasurer was instructed to pay the following accounts:

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

468 VISITS MADE BY NURSE

Miss Sparkhall Reports to Supervision Committee

The monthly meeting of the Nurses Supervision Committee, was held yesterday in the Board room of the Public Library. A very satisfactory report of the past months work was given by the District Nurse, Miss Sparkhall.

Miss Sparkhall reported having made 468 visits during the past three months, provided 83 dozen eggs, and 204 quarts of milk, for those in need of such things, beside giving several beds, stoves, chairs, etc., where they were needed, also bedding where the amount in the home was not sufficient for warmth.

The Association feel gratified that a good start has been made, but are looking forward to more, and better things in the future.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HAS $300 SURPLUS

The annual meeting of the Lakefield Agricultural Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Lakefield town hall. A large number of the members were present. It was found that the Society had a surplus of about $300.

Mr. T. Braden was elected President by acclamation. Mr. J. M. Bygott was elected 1st Vice-President, and Mr. F. J. Galvin 2nd. Vice-President.

The new board decided to hold the annual Fall fair on September 16 and 17.

CURLERS WIN FITZGERALD-BOTTUM SHIELD--OPEN BONSPIEL ON

PETES FAILED TO HOLD LEAD OF FOUR GOALS AGAINST OSHAWA

Locals Had Game Well in Hand While Ice Was Good But Visitors Were Better on the Soft Ice--Score 6-4.

The O. H. A. Cubs failed to hold a four goal lead in their engagement with the Oshawa seven last night, so it's a case of blame the weatherman and hope for revenge next season.

The score at half time was 4—3 for the locals and 6—4 in favor of the visitors when the sixty minutes had expired. The loss practically puts the homesters out of the district running, but six of the seven youngsters who saw service last night can go into the same series next winter.

It was a great game of hockey. In the early stages, Capt. Kenneally's septette looked like easy winners. They had the visitors on the run and after fifteen minutes of play had beaten Wilson four times. On the other hand Flowers had little to do. But a change came about. Both teams tired as the ice softened and the surface became broken. The locals were just a little careless and the first thing they knew, Oshawa scored their first goal. That saved them. Encouraged, they pressed the Petes and tallied again. They displayed a reversal of form and appeared to be at home as the ice became stickier. Once again they scored and with the figures standing at 4—3, the teams left the ice for the rest of ten minutes.

The locals came back with a rush and attacked the Oshawa citadel relentlessly but without success. The teams were going at top speed and something had to go. Unfortunately fate decreed that it should be the locals. The visitors tied the score after seven minutes and for the next sixteen minutes, try as they would, not one of the players could get the rubber past the posts. The disc was rushed from one net to the other by individual and combined rushes but was either lost near the nets in a hole or the goal tenders blocked. Finally, Oshawa secured the puck after it had been overskated and got it past Flowers for their first lead of the contest. Another one came in thirty seconds and the Petes were beaten.

Oshawa can tender a vote of thanks to Wilson for his work between the nets. The Petes had the greater number of shots on goal, but Wilson barred the way. Rierdon, too, was a big factor in the win. He was not effective on the good ice but once conditions changed he was right at home and made things uncomfortable for the locals. The line didn't look to be a championship one by any means.

Dame Fortune smiled but faintly upon the Brock street lads. On the play more goals should have come their way, but they just wouldn't. Long, short, high or low, they were all alike to Wilson. Grover Halpin gave him some of the hardest work of the game. The little rover handled himself like a veteran and some of his individual rushes to the goal were a real treat. Kenneally had a busy night and was always in the battle, sometimes doing a little more than his share, as he sought by back checking to prevent an opposing player getting too near the nets. Long and Rose were also in front with the goods. With the forwards having had a continuance of the hard ice, the visitors would have been badly beaten. Morrow and Cavanah, and Flowers in goal were all good.

The teams were:

Blood Temperature of Athletes.

There have been made at the London College hospital some curious observations on the blood temperature of athletes. The normal blood temperature of a man is about 98.11 degrees F. A young man after a run of 200 yards showed a temperature of 100.76 degrees, another a temperature of 100.94 degrees and a third a temperature of 102.2 degrees after a run of half a mile. A mile run produced an internal temperature of 102.8 degrees with one athlete and 103.6 degrees with another. After a three mile run one young man had a temperature of 105 degrees, but this runner's normal blood temperature was 101 degrees in perfect health.

Looked Into the Wall.

A rather peculiar case of absentmindedness was that related of Peter Burrowes, an Irish lawyer. A friend who called on Burrowes at an early hour one morning found him shaving with his face held close to an empty wall. "What on earth are you assuming that attitude for?" he asked.

"To look in the glass," was the reply.

"But there's no glass there," laughed the acquaintance.

"Bless you! I didn't notice that before," said Burrowes, and then, calling his servant, he asked him what had become of the mirror.

"Why, sir," said the man, "it was broken six weeks ago."

VICTORIA WON AT VANCOUVER

Deciding Goal Was Scored One Minute Before Finish

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 22. — Dunderdale scored the deciding goal for Victoria last night with less than a minute of the end of the most exciting game ever seen on the coast. The score was five to four.

TURKISH NAMES.

Origin and Meaning of Some of the "Hard Ones."

The confusion which has arisen in regard to understanding the whereabouts and pronouncing the names of the places which figure in the accounts of the Balkan War is quite excusable, for they are perplexing to a degree. One reason for the confusion which exists concerning the locality of various towns and villages is that in numerous cases they have three names —Turkish, Greek, and Slav—while a few of them have even a fourth—Frank, or European—name as well.

For instance, Edirneh and Uskub are merely Turkish corruptions of the Greek Adrianople and the Greek Skopia, the latter of which in the Slav languages becomes Skopliye. Others, again, are translations from one language into another. Bielopolye (Servian), in the Sanjak of Novibazar, being the same place as Akova (Turkish). Kirk Kilisse, according to the current interpretation, means in Turkish "Forty Churches," from "kirk," meaning forty, and "kilisse," meaning church.

Some high authorities on Turkish philology assert that the first word of the name should not be "Kirk," but "Kirik," meaning broken, tumble-down, and that the name was given to the town from the ruins of an old church which was a prominent landmark when the Turks occupied it. However that may be, whether the name means "Ruined Church" or "Forty Churches," the Slav name Lozengrad, the city of Vineyards (Kirk Kilisse is famous for its wines), is altogether distinct.

Occasionally on the same map, "c," "ch," "tch," "tsch," will stand for one and the same thing, says The Times and the same vowel sounds will be represented in half-a-dozen different ways—e.g., "kupru" "keupreu," are the same Turkish words meaning bridge.

The number of small Albanian colonies scattered over European Turkey sufficiently explains the number of places called Arnautkeui to anyone who remembers that an Arnaut is an Albanian and keui a village. Among the most common words that occur in place names may be mentioned shehr, tower; hissar, castle; kale or kaleh, fort; khan, or han, inn; liman, harbour; burun, cape; cheemen, spring; chiftlik, farm; kum, sand; agatch, tree; kavak, poplar; bagh, park; baghcheh, garden; dere, or dereh, valley; su, water, or river; irmak, or yirmak, river; tepe, or tepeh, hill.

Among names of frequent occurrence it is interesting to note that Chatalja, or Tchataldja, from "chatal" a fork, probably means the place at the forked roads. Deli Yunus, at the north of the Tchataldja lines, which was at one time reported to have been captured by the Bulgarians, simply means the Prophet Jonas, from "deli," mad, or inspired, and Yunus, the Turkish form of the name Jonas. The name perpetuates a local tradition.

YOU SIMPLY COULDN'T STARVE.

Governments of World Won't Stand For Any Desert Island Tragedies.

The pathetic story of the shipwrecked sailor disconsolately dining off a stew composed of his own boots has become a thing of the past. Nowadays it would be almost impossible for anyone, however, romantically inclined, to starve to death on any of the famed "desert isles" of the world. On the great majority of the isolated islands under the dominion of the various governments caches or depots of food and clothing have been established. Take, for example, the Crozet group of islands, down southeast of the Cape of Good Hope, where vessels sailing from Cape Town to Tasmania have often been wrecked. It is a dangerous place, and lies within the limit of the floating ice of the antarctic ice fields. On Hog Island, the largest of the group, the French war vessel La Meurthe has built a hut and left in it a ton of preserved beef, half a hundredweight of sardines in oil, 20 blankets, 15 pairs of shoes and trousers, all carefully packed, together with two spears, two hatchets and some cooking utensils.

Further along in the Indian ocean are the islands of Amsterdam, St. Paul and Kerguelen, all dangerous spots for vessels in a storm. On each of these the French warship Eure has established depots containing necessaries of all kinds for castaways no matter what their nationality may be. At Amsterdam Island, in a large cavern on a hillside, there are supplies of beef, biscuits, underclothes, blankets and some matches enclosed in a hermetically sealed box.

This leaving of food and clothing for wrecked sailors has become a perfect mania with the various governments of the world. At Possession Island the British Admiralty has had huts built in which have been deposited by the British man-of-war Comus provisions to last 50 people 50 days, together with stockings, shoes and jerseys.

Nearer New Zealand they have made other deposits for castaways on several of the islands. At Kermadec Islands there are two, each in a small iron shed fitted with spouting and tank to catch fresh water, as there is no drinking water to be found there. Food, medicine, tools and clothing are plentifully present. At Snares Islands and the Antipodes Islands the depots are in huts and provide all the necessaries of life.

Only the "landlubber" castaway would worry as to what would become of him when in the course of time the provisions gave out. That thought would never enter the mariner's head for he would know the date on which the rescue ship of the government to which the island belonged would arrive and take him back to civilization.

A HARD JOB.

Colored Man's Literary Efforts Brought on Exhaustion.

IN Atlanta they tell about an aged negro who asked his "boss," Colonel Yerger, to write a letter for him to his sweetheart.

"All right, Sam; I'll do it," agreed the colonel.

"Has yer got de paper and de ink and de pen ready, sir?"

"Yes, Sam; go ahead."

"Write Thompson street, New York."

"All right."

"Has yer got hit right?"

"Yes."

"All of hit?"

"Certainly."

"What has yer got writ? Read it to me, boss."

"Thompson street, New York."

"Dat's right. Now write May de fourteenf."

"Yes."

"Has yer got hit down, boss, already?"

"Yes."

"G'way, boss; yer jokin'! Read it to me."

"May 14th."

"Mah goodness, yo' has got hit down all right! Now, boss, read hit all over from de berry beginnin'."

"Thompson street, New York, May 14th."

"Dat's right. Whew! Say, boss, let's res' awhile; I's tired. My head aches like hit was gwinter split."—Atlanta Constitution.

As Mark Twain Introduced Himself.

"Ladies and Gentlemen—By the request of the chairman of the committee I beg leave to introduce to you the reader of the evening, a gentleman whose great learning, whose historical accuracy, whose devotion to science and whose veneration for the truth are only equaled by his high moral character and his majestic presence. I allude, in these vague and general terms, to myself. I am a little opposed to the custom of ceremoniously introducing a reader to the audience, because it seems unnecessary where the man has been properly advertised. But, as it is the custom, I prefer to make it myself—in my own case—and then I can rely on getting in all the facts. I never had but one introduction that seemed to me just the thing, and the gentleman was not acquainted with me, and there was no nonsense. He said: 'Ladies and Gentlemen—I shall waste no time in this introduction. I know of only two facts about this man: First, he never has been in state prison, and, second, I can't imagine why!'"—Kansas City Star.

Gunboat Is Sent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Alarmed for the safety of Americans, whose lives are in jeopardy because of wide spread lawlessness of Mexican rebels in Vera Cruz State, and throughout Southern Mexico, the State Department again has called upon the navy to protect American interests in the republic.

JEWELS MADE OF ROSES.

How the Dainty Petals Are Turned Into Fragrant Trinkets.

There could scarcely be a lovelier gift than a string of tiny beads, an amulet or a trinket to slip among your kerchiefs and laces to keep them sweet, made of roses and of the love and taste and patience that must go into the fashioning of such a gift.

The making of rose trinkets is an ancient custom revived, and rosaries made hundreds of years ago are fragrant today.

Gather the rose petals when the dew is on them and screen them clear of every foreign substance. Put the clean, dewy petals through a food chopper—the finer they are ground the better—and all the house will smell of roses. Spread the pulp on a china platter and set it in the sun for three days, stirring in a few drops of spring water now and again to keep it moist. When the pulp "works" in the sun and reaches the consistency of a light foamy dough that can be pressed smooth without crumbling it is ready to mold.

Before they are quite dry run a good sized hatpin straight through the middle of the beads or amulets into a board and set the board in the sun for ten days, and they will grow hard and fragrant. Thread the beads on a strand of silk, the amulets on fine ribbon, and the older they grow the sweeter they will smell. — Christian Herald.

IMPROVE ROADBED ON DENNISTOUN AVENUE

Is the Request of Resident of That Locality — Park Commissioners Would Pay Attention to Inverlea They Say — Consideration is Promised.

A deputation from the north end of the city waited upon the Board of Works last evening, asking for assistance from the Council in proposed plans for the beautifying of the locality around Dennistown Ave. They desired to have the street widened and paved or gravelled. The Park Commissioners have announced that they would devote more attention to Inverlea Park, provided a road was made there.

The members of the deputation were Messrs. Dickson Hall, A. G. Johnston and W. J. Stubbs.

Alderman Buller, on behalf of the Board, promised the deputation that their request would receive careful attention.

WANTS POSITION AS SEWER FOREMAN

Mr. Martin Neary applied by letter for a position as foreman of sewer construction work. His application was received.

On motion of Ald. Anderson, a resolution was put through authorising an advertisement being inserted in the local papers four times giving notice that petitions for sewers and local improvements must be presented by March 1st, 1913.

OPEN THE CULVERTS

The C.P.R. authorities will be notified to open up culverts off their siding, where it crosses Sherbrooke street, to let the water into the river, and that they will be held occur through failure to comply.

NO FOOT-BRIDGE ON C. P. R. PROPERTY

Mayor Bradburn has received word from the superintendent of the eastern division of the C.P.R. stating that it was contrary to their regulations to allow a foot-bridge to be constructed at the C.P.R. bridge. Alderman Johnston said he thought it would be a good idea to have a watchman placed on the bridge and the city pay half his salary instead of having the duty performed by a police officer.

PERSONAL

Mr. A. G. Gay, of Oshawa, is in the city on business.

Mrs. W. J. Meyers, of Toronto, is visiting friends here.

Messrs. Fred Milburn and Bruce Robertson left yesterday for the West.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dover of Buffalo, N.Y. are, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cadigan, East city.

Wm. Haslam, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., has gone to New York to attend the superintendents' convention.

Mr. G. W. Powers, physical director of the Belleville Y.M.C.A., who was a visitor at the local institution yesterday, left this morning for Toronto.

Speakers Long Lived.

Although the Speaker's office is an exhausting one, all its holders of recent years have lived to a hale old age. Lord Selby, Lord Ossington, and Lord Hampden were well over seventy when they died, and Lord Peel lived to be eighty-three. Lord Eversley, who filled the Chair for thirteen years, attained the age of ninety-four, and was so keen on outdoor pursuits to the last that he bought a new pair of guns when he was ninety-one.

ISMAY'S SUCCESSOR VISITS AMERICA

HAROLD A. SANDERSON

Harold A. Sanderson, president of the International Mercantile Marine, who succeeded J. Bruce Ismay, was one of those to visit New York city when the Megantic, of the White Star line, stopped there on its cruise to Panama. Mr. Sanderson is anxious to see the canal before the water is turned in. His daughter is travelling with him.

STIRRING SCENES BROUGHT OUT IN "THE GAMBLERS"

One of the most stirring scenes in "The Gamblers," Charles Klein's latest great play, which comes to "The Grand" next Saturday, January 25, shows five of the gamblers playing a poker game, which is only a sham for the stacking of the cards in their bigger financial game. They hold an emergency meeting at a director's residence on the night of a ball. Secret service men are on the watch. It won't do to darken a single room by lowering the window shades while all the rest of the house is illuminated. So the five culprits seat themselves around a card table in plain view from outside, and can go through the motions of poker, while really discussing their bank dilemma. The device fools the spies, but it doesn't mislead the financial gamblers into any illusion of safety. It's a great play, interpreted by a clever company with the entire scenic equipment complete. 58

CLAIM FOR $10,000 BEING HEARD BEFORE HIGH COURT

A damage action for $10,000 is now going on at the High Court sittings before Justice Hodgins, the plaintiff being Mrs. Henry Ivan Fairweather, and the defendants, the Canadian General Electric Company, of this city. The action commenced yesterday afternoon after the conclusion of the Cardwell vs. Breckenridge case, which was adjourned for argument at Osgoode Hall, in Toronto.

The plaintiff is the widow of the late Henry Ivan Fairweather, who was drowned at the Nassau Power House last winter, while in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company. It will be remembered that he was engaged in clearing away anchor ice at the sluice way and fell in and was drowned.

Counsels for the plaintiff, Messrs. E. G. Porter and Carnew, of Belleville, are basing their claim on the fact that the victim of the accident was not provided with a rope while doing the work, while Messrs. G. H. Watson, K.C. and L. M. Hayes, K.C., for the defendants, contend that death was due to his own negligence in not using the rope supplied by the Company for such purposes.

There are quite a number of witnesses to be heard.

Mr. J. A. Delisle was placed in the witness box and questioned in connection with the accident. He stated that he was in charge of the power house at the time Mr. Fairweather met his death. He himself had often gone out on the sluiceway to chop away the anchor ice, but never without having a rope around him. He had never, as far as he remembered, asked Mr. Fairweather to go out and chop away the accumulation of ice.

Models of the sluice-way and buildings at the power house were produced in court to illustrate how the catastrophe happened.

Superintendent E. G. Patterson, of the local works of the Canadian General Electric Company, was present.

Mrs. Fairweather gave evidence at a session of the Court last night.

RUNAWAY HORSE TAKES TO RIVER AND ENJOYS SWIM

A spectacular runaway and rescue occurred this morning, when a horse owned by Mr. Harry Rogers of East City, left his owner stranded in the yards of the Calcutt Brewery Co. and galloping away northward by way of the Riverside Park entrance took to the roadway leading to Wand's planing mill and proceede as far as the Rogers Dam, minus the cutter. There, the frightened animal took to the river and went through the ice. But the water was fine, and the equine swimmer took a southerly course. His owner, with the assistance of Mr. James Ellis, proprietor of the Peterborough Mattress Company, pursued in a punt and succeeded in landing the animal on the western bank, about 2000 yards north of the C.P.R. bridge.

The struggle of the animal to gain freedom from the harness and shafts were witnessed by a large crowd. Rescue work seems to be a practice of Mr. Elllis. It will be remembered that some time ago he saved a young lad from drowning.

MR. GARBUTT PRESIDENT

Was Re-Elected by Peterborough Fair Directors

The Fari Directors' at the annual meeting yesterday, re-elected Mr. J. H. Garbutt as President; Mr. G. A. Gillespie was re-elected Vice-President, and Mr. R. Denne, 2nd Vice-President. Mr. F. J. A. Hall was re-elected Secretary and Mr. J. J. Turner, sr., Treasurer.

The following were elected Directors for 1913: J. J. Turner, sr. W. E. Conway, T. O. Gibbs, J. A. Storey, T. Cruickshanks, R. M. Glover, C. E. Moore, S. F. Milburn, R. Neill, S. Deyell, J. Baptie, John Brown, W. J. Cox, Frank Wise and Wm. Duffus.

SAD CONDITIONS IN THE CONGO

Interesting Convention Meetings at Bethany Tabernacle

Yesterday at 2.45 p.m. Rev. Mr. Wickware spoke about "The Congo" telling of its natural beauty and fruitfulness, but of the sad condition of the native people because of the cruel oppressions of the Belgians. In the great greed for the gain that comes through the production of rubber and cocoa, the Belgians compel the natives to work, without sufficient remuneration, on the plantations, and in transportation of food stuffs and the rubber and cocoa. Mr. Wickware said that while at the coast there has been a great deal done to relieve the conditions of oppression and atrocious cruelties of cutting off the hands or feet, and the breasts of the women if sufficient work was not done, yet it is likely that these conditions still prevail in the interior, where others than the government employes are not permitted to go.

At 3.30 p.m., Rev. Mr. Chandler spoke on "The Blood" in scripture, and where it is seen. At 7.45, Mr. Wickware spoke again about the effect of the Gospel in the lives of the natives of Africa and of how eager many are to hear the Gospel message. At 8.30, Mr. Chandler spoke, on "The Three Appearings of Christ"

This evening Mr. Wickware will speak again, and this will be his last address as he must leave to-morrow for Ottawa. Mr. Chandler will speak at 8.30 and to-morrow at 2.45 and 7.45 Mr. Chandler and Dr. Glover will address the meetings.

"He must have money."

"What makes you think so?"

"He's so quick to suggest going home in a taxicab."

DAIRY COMPANY HELD BANQUET

A successful supper, followed by an entertainment, was held last evening in the hall on the 4th Line of Smith, by the Central Smith Dairy Company. A very large number of the patrons and friends were on hand and everybody had a good time.

The program was greatly enjoyed, while the good things in the way of eatables were unusually tempting. Reports of the work at the Cheese Factory were presented, showing net proceeds of $22,200.

AGNES KNOX BLACK CONCERT WAS A TREAT

Large Audience Heard Her at Conservatory of Music Hall

A literary treat of the highest order was heartily enjoyed last evening by all those who heard Agnes Knox Black, the talented elocutionist at the Conservatory of Music. Her work exceeded the most delightful anticipations of those went expecting to hear an exceptionally pleasing concert. Her ability is unmistakably marked, and is only augmented by comparison with other well known artists now before the public. She possesses the wonderful faculty of making her audiences almost see the characters of those persons of whom she treats, and imparts a higher appreciation of their literary attainments.

She recited passages from the works of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Shakespeare, Rudyard Kipling and other leading writers and poets. Her rendition of a portion from "Hamlet" was particularly fine. At every appearance she was rapturously greeted.

The concert was also featured by three selections by the Conservatory of Music Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. R. Gliddon. It was given under the joint auspices of the Conservatory of Music Orchestra and All Saints' Church. The attendance was very large.

DOMINION GRANGE PLANS IMMIGRATION CAMPAIGN

Farmers in Convention at Toronto Decide to Maintain an Organizer Who Will Make an Effort to Get the Right Class of Farmer From Britain.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Because the shortage of labor continues to be one of the greatest setbacks on Ontario farms, the Dominion Grange, at their meeting in Victoria Hall last night decided to work in co-operation with the Government and other immigration agencies in bringing out skilled farmers from the old country. J. J. Morrison of Arthur, Ont., who has been secretary of the Grange, at their number of years, was offered the position of permanent organizer. He has not yet accepted. It is the intention of the Grange to organize in all parts of the country, and it will be one of the duties of the new organizer to put forth every effort to get the right class of men from the old country. It is also likely that the Grange will appoint a man to work in England to select properly-qualified farm hands.

According to one of the speakers last night, thousand of dollars were lost last year because farmers could not employ men to help reap the harvests. This loss was especially heavy in connection with the apple crops. Thousands of bushels of apples were left on the trees because men of any sort were unobtainable. In order to overcome this serious difficulty the Grange has decided not to rely on the Salvation Army and the Government immigration agencies, but to take a hand in the business of bringing out farm hands themselves.

The naval question caused considerable discussion. The attitude of the Grange was decidedly against a donation of any sort to Great Britain, it being the belief that a large contribution or the establishment of a navy was unnecessary, and threw additional burdens upon the shoulders of the farmer, who had sufficient trouble in meeting taxes. It was decided to draw up a petition to the Government, asking that the question be put to the people and let their decision be final.

The Grange's attitude on the naval question is expressed in the resolution which follows and which was unanimously carried by a standing vote:—"Prior to the last general election we were told by Mr. Borden that we should [illegible] to pronounce upon the [illegible] of the navy, if he and his party were returned to power. The public generally understood his promise to be clear and definite and they accepted it in good faith. Now they are confronted with the prospect of handing over $35,000,000 to the British Admiralty without any constitutional means of protesting against the same."

Mr. Glendenning delivered his annual address to the Grange during the morning session. Every phrase of farming was dealt with in a forceful manner by the master. He again declared the necessity of reciprocity with the United States of natural products and an increase of British preference. Some of the things he favored were: Parcels post system, local option in assessment reform and a referendum on the naval question. He denounced militarism in schools. He declared that farmers in general were suffering heavy taxation to assist favored interests, "which tried to pay dividends on stock, much of which is watered."

"Shortage of labor on the farm continues to be one of the greatest hindrances to successful farming. Electricity has been put forward as a solution of this vexed problem. There is no doubt but electrical power would assist in many ways in reducing manual labor on the farms, but the prices quoted for power by the Hydro-Electric Commission put electrical power out of the question with the average farmer."

"It has been proposed by the Federal Government to expend a large sum of money in building leading roads through the country for the benefit of farmers. There are very few roads in the country that can be called leading roads. Towns, villages and railway stations are plentiful, and all roads leading to these places which are only a few miles in length are the leading roads so far as farmers are concerned. Few farmers take long drives other from choice or necessity in these days. The agitation for this good roads scheme, for the benefit of the farmers, has come from men in cities, towns and villages, who are interested in automobiles, either as manufacturers, salesmen or owners. We are opposed to any expenditure on roads by the Federal Government. We believe that roads should be built by the provinces and municipalities."

In the afternoon an abundance of resolutions touching on various subjects were passed and will be sent to the Provincial and Federal Governments. The Grange went on record against militarism in public schools. A resolution in favor of local option in taxation pointed out that municipal and county councils should have the right to exempt improvements if they saw fit to do so. In the resolution on the naval policy, the grange pointed out that it was against a contribution or a Canadian navy and that the people, and not politicians, should have the final say. They desired that a referendum containing three questions should be submitted to the people, these to be: 1. A contribution of Dreadnoughts; 2, a Canadian navy, and, 3, to remain as we are. Resolutions favoring reciprocity of natural products with the United States and wider preference were also passed.

PRINCE ALBERT LOSES BY FIRE

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 23.—Early yesterday morning a blaze in the business section of the city did $50,000 damage.

The mercury stood at 32 below zero. Melville's grocery store, the Conservative Club rooms and the Crown Cafe were gutted, while the Royal Bank and Agnew's, Limited, escaped with little damage. There is some insurance.

ANOTHER SKYSCRAPER FOR TORONTO

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Six months from now the Empire's tallest building will be commenced at King and Yonge street, Toronto. On the northeast corner the Royal Bank building will loom twenty storeys high. Plans were yesterday passed by the Board of Control, with a recommendation that council approve.

This twenty-storey structure puts Toronto right into the front row on this continent. Few American cities can boast of twenty-storey buildings, nor of such a costly and attractive lot as Toronto will own when those buildings now projected are finished. This will be a record year in building permits.

A BANKER RELEASED

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23.—Despite the request from the Federal Government of the United States, that C. A. Bonds, the late managing director of the Night and Day Bank of Memphis, Tenn., be deported, the immigration department at Ottawa yesterday morning wired instructions that Bonds be released, as there was absolutely no valid reason why he should be detained.

The U. S. consul-general here, on hearing the decision, entered a protest against Bonds' release, on the ground that he was a felon in the United States and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for using the mails to defraud.

SHIPBUILDERS TO LOCATE IN CANADA

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—The great English shipbuilding firm of Swan, Hunter, and Wigham Richardson, are now considering entering the Canadian shipbuilding trade, according to the statement of Mr. Clarence I. De Sota, Canadian director of the firm, yesterday.

For some time, said Mr. De Sota, this firm has been considering the matter, and it has now been definitely decided that if a Canadian navy is to be constructed in Canada, the great Wallsend-on-Tyne firm will tender. Already, in fact, it is understood land has been purchased by the firm in Montreal, Quebec, and Halifax, with the object of providing for shipyards. All classes of ships would be built, including battleships and merchantmen.

POLICE BAN TIGHTS ; MANAGERS PANIC STRICKEN

Blow by Authorities is Particularly Directed Against Burlesque Houses.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—Police officials announced yesterday afternoon that orders would shortly be issued to all theatres in town that no performers shall in future be allowed to appear on the stage in tights.

The result is that panic reigns among the theatre managers. The blow is directed by the police against burlesque houses in particular, but it will also effect the high-class theatres.

"We cannot play Shakespeare or grand opera without tights," declared Mr. H. Quintus Brooks, manager of His Majesty's Theatre yesterday afternoon. "Fancy playing comic opera in pants and then fancy Rosalind appearing in 'As You Like It' in anything but tights.

"How are we going to produce Faust in grand opera if we are denied tights. We couldn't even play Hamlet without tights.

"How the order will work out remains to be seen, but if it is enforced to the letter, there will be a revolution in stage costumes."

STEAMSHIPS, BATTERED BY GALES, HAVE THRILLING VOYAGES.

THE PRESIDENT GRANT BATTLING WITH HURRICANE IN MID OCEAN

Almost every steamship arriving at United States ports during the last week brought thrilling tales of having encountered severe storms which have been raging on the North Atlantic. Fortunately, no lives were lost, but the experiences told by some of the passengers agree that their voyage was most hazardous. An idea of what a real hurricane in midocean looks like may be gathered from the accompanying photograph of the President Grant, of the Hamburg-American line, which arrived at the Port of New York four days overdue.

SECRET GIVEN

Discoverer of Tuberculosis Cure Indignant at Fake Remedies

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Dr. Friedmann—indignant over the fact of certain physicians declaring they are in possession of his tuberculosis serum, whereas he declares what they have is ineffective or positively harmful—will place his remedy at the disposal of the Minister of the Interior today.

One prominent Berlin physician attempted to get Friedmann bacilli from the body of a man who had been inoculated by Friedmann, and asserts he succeeded.

Others secured cultures from the bacteriologist with whom Friedmann conducted some experiments twelve years ago, and who has been claiming he preserved the original culture. Friedmann had not planned to disclose the remedy so soon, but declares he is unwilling to have his name associated with serums being employed by his rivals, many of whom, moreover, have been attacking him bitterly. Friedmann has been deluged with offers to visit America and personally introduce his serum, and has about decided to do so.

Steamer Breaks in Two.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 23.—The British steamer Ulstermore, from Baltimore, Jan. 9 for Liverpool, is a wreck in the River Mersey. She ran aground yesterday and refused assistance from a lifeboat. A heavy gale blew up, and in the high seas the vessel bumped badly. The captain ordered the crew to jettison the cargo, and while this was in progress the steamer broke in two and heeled over with the decks awash. The crew scrambled on the bridge, from which perilous position they were rescued by a steam pilot cutter in a blinding snowstorm.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Among the private bills to be introduced in the Legislature this session is one to incorporate the Evangelical Lutheran Seminary of Waterloo. It will be introduced by C. H. Mills, M.P.P. for North Waterloo.

CHILD IS SCALDED TO DEATH

CHATHAM, Jan. 23.—James, the four-year-old son of Reeve James Wellwood of Raleigh, was scalded to death on his father's farm. Mr. Wellwood was killing hogs and had a barrel of hot water used in the process of dressing the cascases in the farmyard. The little fellow climbed up on a wagon and fell into the barrel, remaining there some time before he was noticed. Surgical aid was immediately summoned, but the child died three hours later.

Bachracks Are Sentenced.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Judge Denton sentenced Julius Bachrack to eighteen months in the Central Prison and his brother Manuel, to three months for conspiracy to have an illegal operation performed.

MAY FORCE GREY OUT

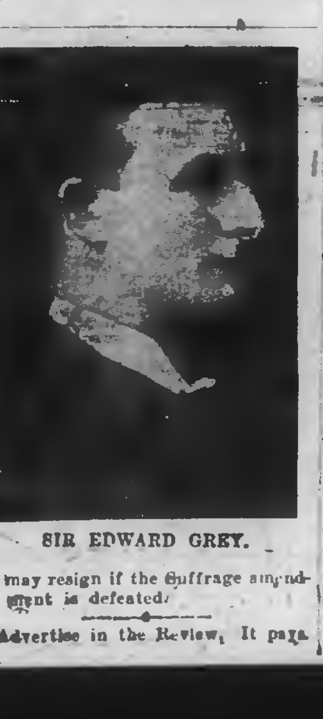
If Suffrage Amendment is Killed, He Will Resign.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A cable to The Tribune from London says:

The woman suffrage agitation has developed an exceedingly grave aspect, the following statement was made on high authority last night:

"If the suffrage amendments is defeated and Sir Edward Grey feels that the decision has not been arrived at on the pure merits of the case and without consideration of any possible danger to the Government, he will feel compelled to vote against the franchise bill on third reading and resign.

"It was on this understanding that no consideration except that of suffrage should be allowed to enter into the division that Sir Edward Grey agreed to the course adopted by the Cabinet on this question, and Mr. Asquith will probably make it plain this week that that is the attitude adopted by the Cabinet."



SIR EDWARD GREY.

He may resign if the Suffrage amendment is defeated.

GIRLS LEFT BOARDING HOUSE IN NIGHT ATTIRE

Canadian Press Despatch

Montreal, Jan 23— Before five o'clock this morning, fire in a boarding school on Guy street, drove twenty daughters of prominent families on to the street in night gowns, dressing gowns or kimonas. The fire started on the top floor and fire drill was perfectly carried out. Some of the girls lived in the city and a police patrol wagon was called to deliver them to their homes.

ONE JURYMAN WAS DRUNK

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Jan 23— The investigation of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad Company is proceeding under difficulties. A second Grand Jury had to be empanelled because the first one contained a resident of another State. To-day the foreman announced to the court that one juryman was drunk and his conduct making it impossible for Mr. Fitzhugh to continue his testimony. He was dismissed and the jury will continue the investigation one man short.

HYDRO RADIAL

York and Ontario Municipalities Unite on Scheme.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Plans for the construction of a hydro-electric railway through the townships of Scarboro, Markham, Uxbridge and Whitby, with terminal at Toronto and Port Perry, took definite shape yesterday, when a convention of rural municipalities was held under the guidance of Controller McCarthy at the city hall.

Sixty reeves, deputy reeves, councillors and farmers were present, and many of them voiced the opinions of comparatively large communities in favor of the project.

A special committee was appointed for the purpose of formulating some definite scheme to be laid before the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

CONTRABAND GEMS ARE SOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Cut diamonds, weighing 40 7-8 carats, smuggled across the Canadian border and confiscated by the Government, were sold at auction here yesterday, by a U. S. marshal, for 25 per cent. more than valuation placed upon them by the Government. The Government appraisers thought the gems were worth $2,004, they brought $2,513.

TWELVE OF CREW GO DOWN WITH THE SHIP

Canadian Press Despatch.

Great Grimsby, Eng., Jan. 23.—Twelve members of the crew of the Norwegian bark "Agda" were drowned when the ship sank off Spurn Head. The remainder were picked up by a trawler.

Remanded For Trial.

WINDSOR, Jan. 23.—George Lauson of Essex, charged with shooting with intent to kill John Garrow, whom, he claimed, he shot at when he found him "peeping" in his window, was remanded for trial at Sandwich yesterday morning. Lauson was released on bail of $2,000. He will be tried on Feb. 12.

WHITE SLAVE LAW TO BE IMPROVED

Ottawa, Jan. 23— Legislation aimed at the suppression of the white slave traffic will be introduced by the Government this session by way of amendment to the Criminal Code.

The clause has not yet been finally drafted, but it will be designed to make easier the conviction of those engaged in the business, and will in some degree remove from the prosecution certain difficulties heretofore encountered in establishing proof.

The amendment will be along lines suggested by the Moral Reform League. It will probably prevent the miscarriage of justice by appeals from convictions, pending which bail is accepted and forfeited, the party thus escaping actual imprisonment.

PEACE NOW ASSURED IN BALKAN CONFLICT

Elder Statesmen of the Ottoman Empire Yield to Demand Sent by the Powers and Now Only Details of Completing Treaty Remain to be Considered.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Eng., Jan. 23.— The immediate result of the Turkish decision to conclude peace with the allies will be a suspension of hostilities between Turkey and Greece and the surrender of Adrianople, Janina and Scutari to the allies. All fears of resumption of war is being removed. The allies are now preparing to withdraw the larger part of their forces from the field but it will probably be a month before the peace treaty is signed as there are many details to arrange.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The plenipotentiaries of the Balkan kingdoms are immensely pleased over the decision of the Grand Council at Constantinople to accept the advice of the powers. While it had become increasingly certain in the past 48 hours that the Turkish elder statesmen were prepared to face the bitter fate that ends the Empire's history as an European nation, it was hardly expected that they would register their decision so quickly and so definitely.

This is so unlike the customary Turkish tactics that some suspicion is entertained, without supporting proof, that Turkey might still have cards up her sleeve.

The Porte's reply to the joint note of the powers will be handed to the ambassadors to-day, however, and the remainder of the negotiations leading to the signing of the peace treaty are expected to be an anti-climax.

One crucial point of difference remains to be settled in the question of indemnity. The allies propose to levy a heavy payment upon the defeated nation. They speak of $200,000,000 as an adequate sum. Their minimum is an amount equal to the Turkish debts attached to the territories which they will annex under the treaty.

The Turks are likely to contest the indemnity strongly, and the bankrupt condition of their country furnishes them with a potent argument for an appeal to the powers. The negotiations over the settlement of minor questions and for the taking over of the conquered province will occupy a considerable time, and it will be some weeks before the treaty is signed.

M. Novakovitch, the ex-Premier of Servia, said last night:

"The Turks seem finally to have recovered the faculty of reasoning, but why to-day instead of six weeks ago, as they must pay what our four armies have been costing us all this time. We have not yet set down figures for the indemnity, but we have practically decided on what basis it is to be calculated and how it is to be divided among the allies.

"Each Balkan state will take as a basis the number of soldiers it put in the field, averaging the cost of each soldier during the time the country has been on a war footing.

"The sooner Turkey concludes peace the less he will have to pay. The powers must help us in this question also, as the indemnity will be employed to pay the share of the Ottoman debt falling upon us proportionately to the territories we acquire."

GROCER GIVEN WORTHLESS CHEQUE BY APPLE BUYER

Charles D. Fisher, an apple buyer who stays at 558 Harvey street was summoned to appear in Police Court this morning, in connection with a charge of passing a worthless cheque for $16 on the Dominion Bank.

The information was laid yesterday afternoon by Mr. E. P. Jackson who conducts a grocery business at the corner of Aylmer and McDonnel Streets. It appears that Fisher made out the cheque in favor of Mr. Jackson with full knowledge that he had no funds on hand with which it could be honored. Mr. Jackson, on presenting the cheque was informed that it was no good and he immediately had the information made out.

Fisher, it is alleged, has been in the habit of issuing worthless cheques on the banks, and has been warned frequently by one bank manager that unless he desisted, he would find himself in trouble, sooner or later. He is also a bookkeeper by occupation and is well versed in business dealings.

Fisher paid the cost of the action amounting to $2 and also agreed to make full compensation to Mr. Jackson.

PAPERS ON THE SCHOOL QUESTION ARE ASKED FOR

Case May be Re-opened.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—In the Senate yesterday Senator David moved for correspondence exchanged between the Catholics of Manitoba and the Government of Canada since the beginning of last session with deference to the school system of that province, or asking for legislation on that subject.

Senator David said when the boundary measure was before Parliament last year it was stated the laws of the province would be amended so as to satisfy the Roman Catholics of Manitoba and Keewatin.

Senator Lariverie said his views as to rights of Roman Catholics' educational facilities had not changed. However, he understood that there were now negotiations going on befor the Roman Catholic Church and the public school authorities of Manitoba which might lead to a satisfactory conclusion. While these negotiations were on he would not like to see anything done which might interfere with their success.

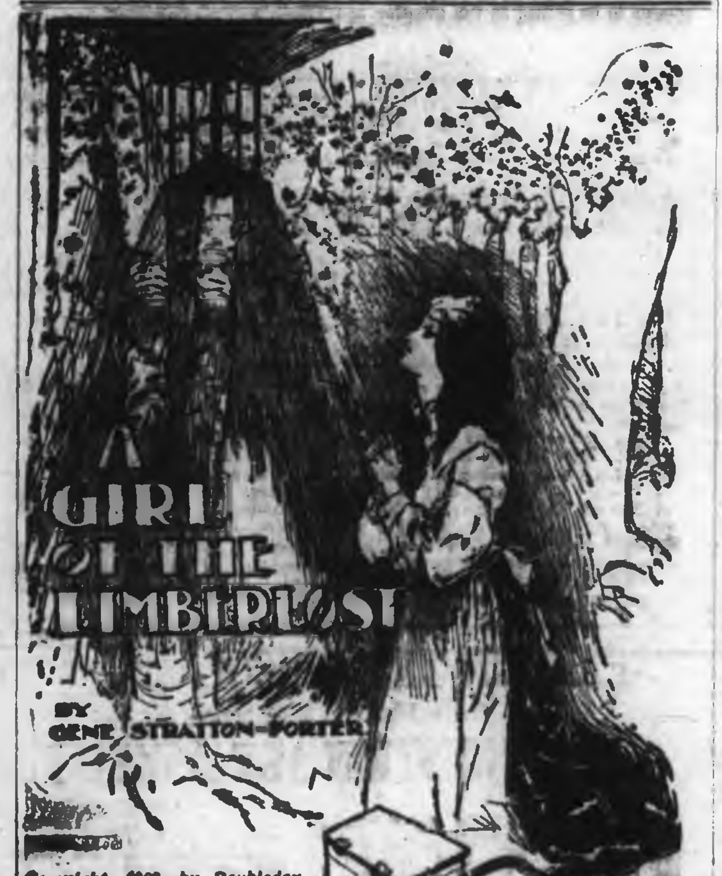
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.



Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

She gathered large baskets of nests, flowers, mosses, insects and all sorts of natural history specimens and sold them to the grade teachers. At first she tried to tell these instructors what to teach their pupils about the specimens, but, recognizing how much more she knew than they, one after another begged her to study at home and use her spare hours in school to exhibit and explain nature subjects to their pupils. Elnora loved the work, and she needed the money, for every few days some matter of expense arose that she had not expected.

When the music swelled from the school orchestra Elnora's heart almost broke with throbbing joy, for music always had affected her strangely, and, since she had been comfortable enough in her surroundings to notice things, she had listened to every note to find what it was that literally hurt her heart, and at last she knew. It was the talking of the violins. They were human voices, and they spoke a language Elnora understood. It seemed to her that she must climb up on the stage, take the instruments from the fingers of the players and make them speak what was in her heart. She fairly prayed to get hold of one, if only for a second.

That night she said to her mother: "I am perfectly crazy for a violin. I am sure I could play one; sure as I live. Did any one"— Elnora never completed that sentence.

"Hush!" thundered Mrs. Comstock. "Be quiet. Never mention those things before me again—never as long as you live. I loathe them. They are a snare of the very devil himself. They were made to lure men and women from their homes and their honor. If ever I see you with one in your fingers I will smash it in pieces."

Naturally Elnora hushed, but she thought of nothing else after she had done justice to her lessons. At last there came a day when for some reason the leader of the orchestra left his violin on the grand piano. That morning Elnora made her first mistake in algebra. At noon, as soon as the great building was empty, she slipped into the auditorium, found the side door which led to the stage, and, going through the musicians' entrance, she took the violin. She carried it back into the little side room where the orchestra assembled, closed all the doors, opened the case and lifted out the instrument.

She laid it on her breast, dropped her chin on it and drew the bow softly across the strings. One after another she tested the open notes. They reminded her of things. Gradually her stroke ceased to tremble and she drew the bow firmly. Then her fingers began to fall, and softly, slowly she searched up and down those strings for sounds she knew. Standing in the middle of the floor, she tried over and over. It seemed scarcely a minute before the hall was filled with the sound of hurrying feet, and she was forced to put away the violin and go to her classes. Of food she never thought until she noticed how heavy her lunch box was on the way home, so she sat on the log by the swamp and remedied that. The next day she prayed that the violin would be left again, but her petition was not answered.

That night when she returned from the school she made an excuse to go down to see Billy. He was engaged in hulling walnuts by driving them through holes in a board. His hands were protected by a pair of Margaret's old gloves, but he had speckled his face generously. He looked well and greeted Elnora hilariously.

"Me an' the squirrels are laying up our winter stores!" he shouted. "'Cos the cold is coming, an' the snow, an' if we have any nuts we have to fix 'em now. But I'm ahead, 'cos Uncle Wesley made me this board, and I can hull a big pile while the old squirrel does only 1st one with his teeth."

Elnora picked him up and kissed him. "Billy, are you happy?" she asked.

"Yes, and so's Snap," answered Billy. "You ought to see him make the dirt fly when he gets after a chipmunk."

He espied Wesley and ran to show him a walnut too big to go through the holes, and Elnora and Margaret went into the house.

They talked of many things for a time, and then Elnora said suddenly, "Aunt Margaret, I like music."

"I've noticed that in you all your life," answered Margaret.

"I can make a violin talk," announced Elnora, and then in amazement watched the face of Margaret Sinton grow pale.

"A violin!" she wavered. "Where did you get a violin?"

"They fairly seemed to speak to me in the orchestra. One day the conductor left his in the auditorium, and I took it, and Aunt Margaret I can make it do the wind in the swamp, the birds and the animals. I can make any sound I ever heard on it. If I had a chance to practice a little I could make it do the orchestra music too. I don't know how I know, but I do."

"Did—did you ever mention it to your mother?" faltered Margaret.

"Yes, and she seems prejudiced against them; but, oh, Aunt Margaret, I never felt so about anything, not even going to school. I just feel as if I'd die if I didn't have one. I could keep it at school and practice at noon a whole hour. Soon they'd ask me to play in the orchestra. I could keep it in the case and practice in the woods in summer. You'd let me play here over Sunday. Oh, Aunt Margaret, what does one cost? Would it be wicked for me to take of my own money and buy a very cheap one? I could play on the least expensive one made."

"Oh, no, you couldn't. A cheap machine makes cheap music. You got to have a fine fiddle to make it sing. But there's no sense in your buying one. There isn't a decent reason on earth why you shouldn't have your fa"—

"My father's!" cried Elnora. She caught Margaret Sinton by the arm. "My father had a violin! He played it? That's why I can! Where is it? Is it in our house? Is it in mother's room?"

"Elnora!" panted Margaret. "Your mother will kill me! She always hated it!"

"Mother dearly loves music," said Elnora.

"Not when it took the man she loved away from her to make it."

"Where is my father's violin?"

"Elnora!"

"I've never seen a picture of my father. I've never heard his name mentioned. I've never had a scrap that belonged to him. Was he my father or am I a charity child like Billy, and so she hates me?"

"She's got good pictures of him. Seems she just can't bear to hear him talked about. Of course, he was your father. They lived right there when you were born. She don't dislike you. She just tries to make herself think she does. There's no sense in the world in you not having his violin. I've a great notion"—

"Has she got it?"

(To be Continued.)

Pretty Cool.

"Was it cool where you spent your vacation?"

"Cool! I should say it was. I was obliged to go to town for a few days and returned unexpectedly. I met the old farmer coming down the road wearing one of my shirts and using my cane to drive home the cows. One of his sons had gone to the village with my best suit of clothes on, and the oldest daughter was straining jelly through my white flannel coat.

"When they saw me they seemed a bit surprised, but all they said was:

"'We hain't been expectin' yer hum so soon.' It was certainly the coolest family I ever struck."

Mozart's Quick Work.

On one occasion Mozart was making merry with his friends at midnight when not a single note was written of the overture to 'Don Giovanni,' which was to be produced on the following morning. Awaking refreshed, he set to work on the overture, dashing off sheet after sheet with incredible rapidity and dispatching them to the copyists. The opera was to begin at 7 in the evening, and a few minutes after that hour Mozart was in his place as conductor, baton in hand, while the parts with the ink still wet on some of them were being handed to the orchestra [illegible]

WEDDING RING LORE.

Interesting Facts About This Golden Circlet of Sentiment.

In the Isle of Man the wedding ring was formerly used as an instrument of torture. Cyril Davenport in his book on "Jewelry" remarks that there once existed a custom in that island according to which an unmarried girl who had been offended by a man could bring him to trial, and if he were found guilty she would be presented with a sword, a rope and a ring.

With the sword she might cut off his head, with the rope she might hang him or with the ring she might marry him. It is said that the latter punishment was invariably inflicted.

The wedding ring was anathema to the early Puritans, who regarded personal adornment as one of the many snares of Satan. In the old English marriage service it was the custom for the bridegroom to put the ring on the thumb of the bride, saying, "In the name of the Father," then on the next finger, saying, "and of the Son," and then on the second finger, saying, "and of the Holy Ghost," finally on the third finger, with the word "amen."

The ring was left there, because, as the Sarum rubric says, "a vein proceeds thence to the heart." In the modern marriage service the ring is placed at once upon the third finger, the invocation to the Trinity being understood.

HOW GIRLS MAY AVOID PERIODIC PAINS

The Experience of Two Girls Here Related For The Benefit of Others.

Rochester, N. Y.—"I have a daughter 13 years old who has always been very healthy until recently when she complained of dizziness and cramps every month, so bad that I would have to keep her home from school and put her to bed to get relief.

"After giving her only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she is now enjoying the best of health. I cannot praise your Compound too highly. I want every good mother to read what your medicine has done for my child."—Mrs. RICHARD N. DUNHAM, 311 Exchange St., Rochester, N.Y.

Stoutsville, Ohio.—"I suffered from headaches, backache and was very irregular. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of two bottles I found relief. I am only sixteen years old, but I have better health than for two or three years. I cannot express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had taken other medicines but did not find relief."—Miss CORA B. FOSNAUGH, Stoutsville, Ohio, R.F.D., No. 1.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for their daughters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Breaking Him In

He Had Good Grit

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Three men of the Circle O ranch met the newcomer at the railroad station and solemnly escorted him down the platform where half a dozen horses were tied to the hitching posts. Secretly they were laughing at the small, undersized chap who had actually secured a job with the Circle O outfit through the medium of a letter. If ever an individual merited the title "tenderfoot" it was the slender, pale faced newcomer, who wore a derby hat, tan shoes and a faded blue serge business suit. His manner was diffident, and his name was Irving Pinney, and he was under twenty.

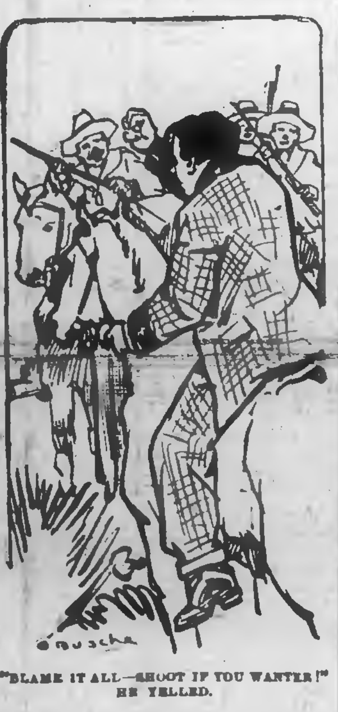
"Of course you can ride," suggested Long Jenks as he tossed a careless hand in the direction of a white horse.

"Not very well," returned the other, with alarm in his voice. "I hope he isn't wild."

The white horse was meek enough and carried his timid rider without event to their early camp for the night. Long Jenks informed the newcomer that the ranch lay thirty miles beyond and they would sleep before resuming the journey. Pinney said little to his companions. He seemed merged in despondency and after eating a light supper wrapped himself in his blanket, placed his feet to the fire and went to sleep.

Something roused him in the darkest hour, and he became conscious that a whispered conversation was taking place among his companions. Long Jenks was speaking earnestly:

"Oh, pshaw! You needn't tell me I can't pick out one of that kind. Didn't I wake up half an hour ago and see this Pinney come sneaking into camp on that blue mustang of Witherbee's? He must o' heard me stirring, because he didn't stop to unsaddle. He just slipped off and laid down and pertended to be asleep. He's as mean a cattle thief as ever I see, and if I have my way he'll hang to the highest cottonwood hereabouts!" Long Jenks spoke fiercely.



"BLAME IT ALL—SHOOT IF YOU WANTER!" HE YELLED.

"What made him come back here? Why didn't he run the critter off?" demanded Saleeby's voice.

"That's an easy one. He was going to pinch one or two more and run the lot off together and leave us—us here without a hide to git back to Circle C. Got any loading?" Pinney heard the click of revolvers and muttered remarks as the men exchanged cartridges. Then they rolled over and apparently went to sleep, for long and noisy outward demonstrations bore witness to their slumbers.

What unfortunate complication of circumstances had combined to place suspicion on him? On his very first day, too, when he was homesick and weary.

All night long he shivered in his blanket under the brooding, sultry sky. Then just as a faint grayness tinged the murky black he wriggled his way toward the spot where the ponies were staked.

There was a low whinny as his hand met a velvet nose, and his fingers trembled as they touched the dangling bit and slipped it between unwilling jaws. In another instant he had left the group of restless ponies and was speeding away through the darkness, the soft thud of hoofs leaving a trail which he felt would be followed to the death. Long Jenks had said so.

He bent his lean body to the rough mane of the horse and pounded with fists and spurless heels on the vibrating flesh. He felt the onward rush of the beast, the pumping of blood through swollen veins, as he clung to the bridle rein. Somehow the saddle became loosened and at last slid away in the darkness, almost unseating him and driving the horse almost frantic with fear. He tried to entwine his legs beneath the pony's belly. There was a numbing blow from flying hoofs and one foot hung useless. Once he turned, and the glitter of steel and a ger was right. He should be allowed to go for a weapon, after which, if he would rather fight than set up the drinks, he could begin shooting as soon as he liked.

"I couldn't hit a barn door with a gun," said Bill, "but I wouldn't mind a fight with fists. That wouldn't do either. There isn't any of you here who would be a match for me."

The loiterers held a conference, and one of them, thinking he could tackle the stranger, offered to do so. Bill shook his head. "It wouldn't be a fair match," he said. "I'm too heavy for you." Then, after a moment's pause, he added: "There's a young man traveling with me who I think would about do for you. If you don't mind referring the dispute to him I don't mind either."

"Trot him out," was the reply to this.

Bill asked the man he had invited to drink to go for his friend, and Johnny soon came into the saloon. His appearance at once excited a guffaw, the object of which stood looking somewhat puzzled. Bill explained the situation to him and, turning to the crowd, said:

"He's a better man than he looks, but if any of you gentlemen wants to bet you can knock him out I wouldn't object to going you for a small amount on it."

There was another conference, which resulted in the scraping together of $12, all there was among the westerners, and they nominated a man they called Biff Hunker to stand up against the little fellow and win a similar amount to be put up by Bill. The stage driver was called in for stakeholder, and a ring was formed on the level ground before the saloon. Johnny took off his coat and vest, retaining his shirt. Had he doffed this also some surprise might have been created at the muscle lying under the soft white skin of his arm. As it was, Johnny didn't show for much more than when his coat was on him.

His antagonist stood six feet one in his stockings and was a powerful man. The only thing against him was the use of too much liquor, and he could not be expected to last very long against one of equal strength. Realizing this element of weakness, he went at Johnny like a bull, intending to crush him out at once. But Johnny pirouetted like a dancing master and before his enemy could recover dealt him a smart blow on the nose that drew first blood.

This first episode caused those who had calculated to win a little money to doubt the ease with which it could be obtained. Johnny didn't seem in a hurry to tackle his enemy, keeping on the defensive. But it soon became apparent to the bystanders that there was a cat and a mouse game going on, only the mouse was playing with the cat to the cat's discomfiture. The big man struck out with blows heavy enough to break every bone in his antagonist's body, but the body was never in the place at which he aimed. Johnny sidestepped and ducked and fell back, his enemy vainly trying to find him with his big fist.

The westerner soon lost his wind and from that time staggered about like the bulk of a derelict tossed by the waves.

"I don't want to hurt him," Johnny replied, still dancing about in a circle.

Presently the big man gathered his forces for a final effort. Johnny dived between his legs, rose and landed his enemy on his back.

The fallen man lay quiet for a few moments, when he was helped to his feet by one of his friends. But he was breathing hard and positively declined to renew the encounter.

"Gentlemen," said Bill, "step inside and join me in a tipple. Mr. Stakeholder, give the gentlemen back their stake. Come in, all. I've been interrupted in my refreshment long enough and am very chilly."

All flocked into the saloon except the victor, who remained outside.

"Say, stranger," called one of the party as he saw Johnny walking away to the coach, "where y' goin'?"

Johnny made no reply, and the other followed the crowd into the saloon.

"What's the matter with the kid?" he asked of Bill. "Don't he drink?"

"Not just now. You see, he's a featherweight boxer on his way to Frisco to a match made with the Sacramento bantam. I'm his trainer. I don't let him drink."

So many and so varied were the ejaculations to this startling announcement that they could not be separated one from another.

"Now, gentlemen," continued the speaker, "I see that the coach is ready to move on. I'm much obliged to you for affording me amusement during the stop, and if any of you would like to go to see the match I'd be happy to furnish you with free admission tickets. Good morning."

The crowd went with him to the coach, where they found Johnny—the exclusive object of curiosity—sitting on top looking down on them benignly.

"What a kitten!"

"Playful like, isn't he?"

"Say, little one, do you play checkers on that coat o' your'n?"

These were a few of the remarks made, but Johnny deigned no reply. Bill got inside, and when all was ready the coach rolled away, one man in the crowd left behind calling out:

"Say, Mr. Trainer, much obleeged for not takin' yer winnin's along!"

After that the gang of loiterers in the saloon were very chary in permitting those they tackled to use their own weapons, insisting in every case upon the revolver. But the iron horse brought progress, and where that gin mill stood now stands a church surrounded by business and dwelling houses all furnished with electric lights and such other modern conveniences.

The King's Keys.

King George is not bothered with the [illegible] of most men, a pocket bunch of keys. The only key which His Majesty carries about is one which opens the private writing desk in the library of each of the Royal residences, the several desks being all fitted with an identical lock. The key in question is quite a tiny one, and is attached to the end of the King's watch-chain, and worn in the waistcoat pocket.

His Majesty's private keys are kept in the writing desk in the King's own room wherever he may be staying. There are only eight in the bunch.

One locks or unlocks the bureau in the writing-room at Buckingham Palace, containing a number of the late King Edward's private papers; another gives access to a safe in which are kept books and documents relating to the most important private affairs of the Royal family; whilst a third opens the fireproof case containing the King's unique collection of postage stamps, the finest in the world.

No one ever handles these keys except his Majesty himself or his trusty private secretaries, Lord Knollys and Lord Stamfordham.

LITERARY TREASURES.

Many Famous Book Collections In American Libraries.

One of the world's best collections of books on Turkey and the Balkan states is in an American library. It is the famous Riant collection now in Harvard university library, and is interestingly described in a bulletin issued by the United States bureau of education. It was acquired by Harvard in 1899 and has since been added to, until today the section on the Ottoman empire comprises about 4,000 volumes.

American libraries have a very large number of valuable special collections. What is probably the most important Dante collection in existence is at Cornell, and the same institution has a collection on the French revolution that experts say can hardly be surpassed even in France. The most remarkable set of Bibles in the world, comprising a large number of first editions and unique copies, is in the library of the General Theological seminary in New York. New York city also has one of the most nearly complete collections of books on Hebrew subjects, that in the Jewish Theological seminary, consisting of 33,000 volumes.

One of the finest libraries of Japanese material to be found anywhere is at Yale university. In works on mystic subjects it would be difficult to duplicate in Europe the great collection in the Masonic library at Cedar Rapids, Ia., or the similar collection of books and manuscripts on ritual and ceremonial in the Massachusetts grand lodge of Masons at Boston.

For a great collection of works on German socialism the expert need not look to Germany. He can find it in the United States. At the Wisconsin state historical library, at Madison, is the Schlueter collection, containing many works not found even in the archives of the German social democracy in Berlin.

In music the Newberry public library of Chicago has a conspicuous collection, especially rich in works on the history and theory of music by Italian authors.

On the side of science, the Carnegie library of Pittsburgh contains about 40,000 volumes on the natural sciences and useful arts, and the Missouri Botanical Garden library at St. Louis is especially rich in monographs and floras.

These are but a few of the many collections of worldwide significance that are in American libraries.

"Man and Superman"—The hockey player and the fan.

Shipwrecked

A Story For Labor Day.

By EMERY G. TUCKER

Carl and Gretchen were sweethearts in Germany before Carl was ten years old.

It was very pretty to see them playing together on one or the other of the patches of ground belonging to their respective parents. Carl was a trifle darker than Gretchen, but that was because Gretchen's hair was like a cloud streak, with the faintest tint of yellow sunlight on it, and her eyes were blue as the heavens against which the cloud rests. Both were light complexioned, as most north Germans are, both had chubby red cheeks and white teeth.

When Carl came to be eighteen years old and Gretchen sixteen he was full of ambition to make a home for himself and his sweetheart. The little farm was too small even for his father and mother and the younger children, and he had no hope of making a home for himself in a land where persons always remain the same. So he resolved to go to America.

He had never spoken of love to his little playmate, not even when she had grown old enough to think of marriage. He did not speak of it when he told her he was going to America. He did not need to speak of it or to ask for a reply in words. When he announced his purpose Gretchen looked at him with her big blue eyes, and they filled with tears. He took her in his arms and told her he was going away to make a nest for them both, and when he had made enough he would send her the passage money to follow him. But when she asked how long that would take he said he would have to learn a trade before he could begin to lay up money for the home, which would require several years, her heart sank.

For at her age even one year seemed interminable.

Carl reached the new world in safety and, being a bright young fellow, succeeded in getting a carpenter to take him as an apprentice and teach him the trade. He mastered it readily, though he was obliged to serve out the time of his apprenticeship before he could begin to work for himself and earn money. And when that term was finished he was obliged to buy tools before he could be regularly employed. So it was three years before he could go to work as a member of the union, and even then he was put on merely as a helper.

But the time came at last when he earned enough money to send for Gretchen, and he didn't wait to earn enough to buy the home. He had got his trade and could lay up money, and he felt that with Gretchen to comfort him he would get on just as well pecuniarily as if separated from her. So he sent her the passage money, and when she received his letter containing the draft her heart bounded for joy. There was the regret at leaving her poor old father and mother, but it is the nature of the young to leave the parent nest to make one of their own.

It was springtime when Gretchen sailed from Bremen in the steerage of a liner for New York. Carl had written her that he would meet her at the immigrant station, where they would be married, so that she would not be sent back lest she be a charge on the nation.

Carl didn't think it necessary to tell her where to come to him in case he should miss her, for she could not get through unless he married her.

One morning a few days before the ship bearing his sweetheart was due Carl took up a newspaper and saw in large headlines an announcement that the vessel had fouled in a fog with another vessel. The passengers had all been removed to the colliding ship, which had carried them to Halifax.

Carl's joy in learning that his Gretchen had been saved was dashed at remembering that she would not enter New York as he had expected, and, having only funds sufficient to bring her across the ocean, she might not be able to come to New York at all. Even if she could how would she find him in so large a city?

Carl spent what money he had in a trip to Halifax to find her, but could find no trace of her. He and Gretchen were irrevocably separated, and there was no hope of finding each other except by accident.

Five years passed. Carl had become a master carpenter and was making money. When Labor day approached that year he was chosen to lead his fellow workmen in the parade and was made one of the floor managers at the ball in the evening. He was making up a set for a dance and, there being only three couples available, looked about for a partner for himself. Seeing a young woman with hair almost white sitting alone, he approached her and asked her to dance. He was surprised to hear a cry, a sob:

"Carl!"

Then he knew Gretchen. They had found each other. Though it was in a ballroom with hundreds of persons looking on, they flew into each other's arms, conscious of none except each other.

Gretchen on arriving at Halifax had started to go to New York, stopping by the way to earn money enough to pay her way on the trains. It took her three months to reach the metropolis, and when she arrived Carl had left the place where he had last written her. Then she began to earn her living, ever hoping that among the countless throngs she might meet him.

HOW TO HUNT FOSSIL TUSKS

Dogs Employed by Natives to Transport Ivory.

It is not generally known that Siberia furnishes a large quantity of ivory to the markets of the world, but the production of it belongs to another age and to a species of animals that does not now exist.

The ivory is cut from the tusks of mammoths whose skeletons are found frozen in masses of ice or buried in mud of Arctic rivers and swamps.

Even to wild animals these bogs are forbidden ground. The nimble reindeer can sometimes cross them safely in the sumemr, but most other large animals would be engulfed. With the summer thaw that penetrates more deeply than usual into the ground some of these antediluvian monsters are always exposed.

It is to recover these valuable fossil tusks, also to hunt and trap the fur bearing animals and transport the pelts of the sable, ermine and sea otter back to civilization that forms a chief occupation of many of the Siberian natives. According to The Railroad Man's Magazine, they make the most perilous freighting journeys in the world, beset by all sorts of hardships.

The people are divided into two classes, the reindeer breeding and the dog breeding tribes. The former live entirely on the products of their reindeer herds. Some of the reindeer tribes use their animals for riding and sledge driving only and not for food purposes. The Yaquts, one of the largest and most progressive tribes, use their deer entirely for transportation purposes.

Two large animals are always used to a freight sledge. These carry merchandise, mail, and furs all over the northern part of the province of Yakutsk. Their reindeer are of great size, larger than those possessed by the other reindeer people.

If well pastured and not overworked a trained pair of harnessed reindeer can make fifty to seventy-five miles a day, provided that the snow is thin and hard on the tundra. When tired the deer must be immediately rested. If compelled to travel further they become exhausted and often drop dead.

The team dogs serve till ten or twelve years old. After the sixth or seventh year they begin to decline. The dogs are harnessed in pairs to a strong seal thong which serves the place of a whiffletree. A full team consists of six or seven pairs.

The course is directed by special call words. These are understood by the leading dog, which is trained especially for that purpose. The harness consists of a breast piece and two or three bands across the back. The dogs pull on the traces somewhat obliquely, so as to leave sufficient room between them to avoid jostling. Even when a young or badly trained dog is matched to an old one the elder will actually prevent its companion from causing trouble, biting it severely every time it tries to leap across the strap.

Shy or disobedient dogs are placed nearer to the sledge, where they can be reached by the whip. At the rear more exertion is required, since the sledge, on every undulation of the ground pulls backward. Strong animals somewhat slow from age or from lack of mettle are usually placed at the rear, and those that are more brisk in front.

With a light sledge and good dogs 150 miles can be traveled in twenty-three hours. Two hundred miles have been made in two days. The dogs are fed once a day, usually in the evening. A piece of blubber about two inches square and some shreds of walrus meat, dried or frozen fish, form the daily ration of every dog.

The First Armored Ship.

According to the best authorities on curiosities of the navy and warfare in general, the first armored vessel was launched in 1530. It was one of the fleet manned by the Knights of St. John and was entirely covered with sheets of lead. The accounts of the times leave us in darkness as to the thickness of this lead armor, but they are very positive in the statement that they were of sufficient strength to "successfully resist all the shots of that day." At the siege of Gibraltal in 1782 the French and Spaniards used war vessels which were armored with "light iron boom proofing over their decks and to the water's edge." The very first practical use of wrought iron plates as a defence for the sides of vessels was by the French in the Crimean war in 1853.

Bismarck's Stratagem.

While Bismarck was living at Frankfort, early in his career, he was one day at a public table with a friend, when two young ladies who sat opposite began talking to each other in the Lettish language. From their manner it was evident to Bismarck that they were talking about him. It happened that he had once made a visit to Courland, one of the Baltic provinces, and had picked up a few Lettish phrases. When the ladies had talked and laughed for some time he whispered to his companion:

"The moment I say something to you in an unintelligible tongue take a key from your pocket and hand it to me."

The young ladies kept on, and suddenly Bismarck said in an unconcerned tone to his friend:

"Dohd man to azlek."

The second man at once produced a key. The young ladies from Courland looked at their opposite neighbors, then at each other and, blushing violently, rose and left the room.

How White China Was Discovered.

Of many incidences in which an accidental discovery revolutionized a whole industry there is none more striking than that which enabled Samuel Astbury, in 1720, to impart to pottery that white glaze which is its chief beauty. Chancing, while journeying to London, to halt at Banbury, he noticed that one of his horse's eyes was badly inflamed. He consulted the hostler, who flung a redhot flint into a basin of water, thereby easily reducing it to a powder, which he applied to the injured eye. Astbury, who had watched the process, guessed that at length he had solved the problem which had so long perplexed him. He procured a cartload of flints, had them fired and pulverized and, mixing the powder with pipe clay and water, applied it to his ware, which, after the final baking, became white and shining. This invention, which he improved upon by introducing calcined flint into the body of the ware, was soon universally adopted.—Exchange.

Catarrhozone

Cures Permanently
BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CATARRH

Throw medicine to the dogs. At best they are unpleasant, often useless. You are suffering from some disease of the throat, nose, or lungs. Doctors call it Bronchitis, Asthma, or Catarrh, or it is a slight or severe cold. Germs cause these diseases—they have a common root.

Catarrhozone destroys disease germs, but it does more, it heals disease tissue.

CATARRHOZONE is little drops of healing carried by air to the exact place where Catarrh exists. Observe, Catarrhozone not only destroys the cause, but immediately repairs the result of diseased condition.

Catarrhozone means little drops of healing carried by air and placed over the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by doctors, druggists, and by thousands of Canadian people who have used it.

Catarrhozone

Yes, Sir, it is taken in air.

"Little drops of healing" carried by air to weak places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Three sizes: 25c, 50c, and $1.00, at druggists, or by mail postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Ont.

Forty years in use, 20 years the standard, prescribed and recommended by physicians. For Woman's Ailments, Dr. Martel's Female Pills, at your druggist.

THE NEW IMPERIALISM

Earl Grey's well known Imperialistic ideals have not prevented severe criticism of his defence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the negotiating of the reciprocity pact. We do not think Earl Grey should be sharply condemned for his chivalrous attempt to shield Laurier for there are few real Canadians who think that a man who for 15 years was Premier of Canada should be regarded as an enemy to the Imperial interests. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude on Imperialism is not that of active enmity, but rather, passive resistance. He does not believe, apparently, in the making of any real attempt to cement together the various parts of the Empire. He has never been a warm advocate and supporter of the Imperial Conference. In fact, his last visit, after the reciprocity gauge had been thrown down, was made most unwillingly. He was content, like most Liberals, to let Canada grow and flourish without relation to the other parts of the Empire. His was a Canadianism without an Imperialism. Mr. Borden is a Canadian, but he has a large Imperial vision. It looks as if he will be the chief moving figure in the great work so soon to be set seriously under way, of cementing the Empire into a solid entity, governed in matters of common concern by an Imperial body. The problem is a delicate one, and Sir Wilfrid had little faith in its possibility, and in the lack of effect on Canadian self-government. Mr. Borden's great attempt at welding the Empire together is yet in embryo but if he goes ahead with the shaping of a permanent naval policy based upon giving Canada a real voice in the foreign affairs of the Empire, the next ten years will be prolific of great changes.

THE CANTEEN

The army canteen is now somewhat of an issue in the United States, and the advocates of its restoration include many officers and others with a practical knowledge of conditions before the canteen was abolished and after. Secretary of War Stimson; Major-General Leonard Wood, ranking officer of the army and chief of staff; medical officers, wives and daughters of officers of the service, the other day appeared before the House Committee on military affairs at Washington and spoke in favor of the Bartholdt bill, which provides for the restoration of the canteen and grants the soldier the right to buy beer and light wines on military reservations. The witnesses in support of their plea for the canteen asserted that as conditions are now when the soldiers want a drink they proceed to the dives that have sprung up in the neighborhood of the military posts, and there purchase the cheapest and vilest of drinks and pay a high price for them. The claim of the canteen advocates is that the soldier can buy a glass of beer in barracks, where he has the company of his fellows he will not seek it elsewhere.

Commenting on the matter, the Montreal Gazette says:

The advocates of the restoration of the canteen are responsible men who should know their subject; but in the past the legislators have paid little attention to what they said on the question. Perhaps they will do so this time. Certainly the plea is being made for as mild an alcoholic beverage as exists. It would be a weak soldier who became intoxicated by drinking American beer. As for light wine, not many privates would indulge in that. It is to be remembered also that it is the regular soldiers who are interested in the question at issue—men who are physically strong, have much active service, and whose business is soldiering. Their home is in the barracks. Their case differs altogether from that of the volunteers who go into camp but once a year, and that for only a week or two. Flighty youths among these citizen soldiers are in all probability better without even a beer canteen, for they look on the camp as a sort of lark. Even the sober volunteers regard it in the light of a holiday. The regular has needs that they have not, as he is a different type of man.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon Frank Cochrane's assurance that the wire-stringing companies will be put under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Railway board and that municipalities will be granted control over their own streets, is the cheeriest bit of news that has come from Ottawa in some weeks.

A Chicago policeman weighing 225 pounds in unform, against whom a charge of drinking beer while on duty was made, has been condemned by the Civil Service Commission to keep sober and reduce his weight by 25 pounds. The latter part of the punishment seems severe.

Possibly Turkey's stubbornness may result in the annihilation of its power in Europe. But it will not happen before it induces a number of its opponents to accompany it on its trip to the pit of Tophet.

In complaining that the Toronto News has failed to denounce some alleged bribery and corruption in a western riding, the Examiner shows the nerve of an "entire" horse. The Examiner in the past, has steered clear of "that stuff" in its home city.

PEACE AT LAST.

Where Famous Treaties Have Been Signed.

The French capital has been the scene of several peace pacts, some of which have had a mighty influence on the destiny of the British Empire. This remark applies with force to the agreement which brought the Seven Years' War to a close in 1763. In the course of this war, in which the English and the French were the chief combatants, we acquired Canada, and by Clive's victory at Plassey established our position in India. Twenty years later we signed a further treaty in Paris whereby we acknowledged the independence of the United States. At the same time we made peace with France, Holland, and Spain, with each of whom, in turn, we had become involved in war through our futile attempt to conquer the American Colonies. Paris was also the scene of the treaty which, in 1856, marked the conclusion of the Crimean War.

At a period when The Hague has become the synonym of peace it is interesting to remember that at Ryswick, a village two miles from the Dutch capital, was drawn up the treaty which ended the eight years' war between William III. of England and Louis XIV. of France. In the course of this war we achieved one of our greatest naval victories—off Cape La Hogue, in 1692. Holland was destined to be the scene, a few years later, of another treaty much more important in its bearing upon British history. Utrecht, now known as a university town, was the place at which England reaped the fruits of Marlborough's great victories over the generals of Louis XIV. Here, in 1713, there passed into British possession Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Hudson Bay Territory and Gibraltar.

Aix-la-Chapelle, the German city chosen as his capital by Charlemagne, is intimately associated with the close of more than one great conflict. Beautifully situated near the frontiers of Holland and Belgium, its waters attract thousands of visitors every year from many parts of Europe. A notable treaty signed here in 1748 was that which concluded the war of the Austrian Succession. In this war England successfully took the part of Maria Theresa, who, on succeeding to the dominions of her father, the Emperor of Austria, was attacked by France, Prussia, and Bavaria.

More famous in the history of Aix-la-Chapelle is the congress of 1818. This congress met to arrange the withdrawal from France of the Allies' army of occupation, which had entered that country on the downfall of Napoleon. The congress was a brilliant assembly of sovereigns and statesmen. The Emperor Alexander I. of Russia, the Emperor Francis I. of Austria, and King Frederick William of Prussia attended in person. The Duke of Wellington and Lord Castlereagh represented Great Britain.

A Suggestion.

"I really don't know, my dear," said Slithers. "Why don't you have them embroidered?"—Judge.

WHAT ROWELL WOULD DO

KINGSTON, Jan. 23.—To an audience that filled the city hall, N. W. Rowell, K.C., last night spoke on tax reform, working man's compensation, and abolishing the bar. Lt.-Col. R. E. Kent, president of the Liberal Association, was in the chair. Before Mr. Rowell was called upon speeches were delivered by Dr. A. W. Richardson, Ald. T. F. Harrison, and Elmer Davis, while J. C. Elliott, M.P.P., West Middlesex, followed.

Mr. Rowell spoke for an hour, his remarks on three subjects were punctuated with applause, and at the close he was tendered an enthusiastic reception by his followers.

He first took up the workingmen's compensation act, and said it was absolutely necessary that in Ontario we should have a Department of Labor and public health to work out problems which had to do with workingmen. "And I promise you that if the Liberals are returned to power such a department will be opened, with a Minister of the Crown at the head, whose business it will be to look after the interest of the workingmen," he said. He scored the present Government for not providing proper legislation for the welfare of the workingman, and charged that the Government had the matter up for six years, yet had not acted.

"Sir James Whitney does not like to be termed unprogressive," he added, "and claims to have been misrepresented in his stand on the matter. If Sir James describes his attitude as not one of hostility, but as one who desires to consider all suggestions offered, what would his attitude become on a measure he really did oppose?"

Punished by Marriage.

Marriage has at one time been recognized as a form of punishment. Mr. Cyril Davenport, in his book on jewelry, says that "there was an old custom in the Isle of Man, according to which an unmarried girl, who had been deceived by a man, could bring him to trial, and if he were found guilty she would be presented with a sword, a rope, and a ring. With the sword she might cut off his head; with the rope she might hang him, or with the ring she might marry him. It is said that the latter punishment was that invariably inflicted."

Lord Hawke's Youthful Sprouts.

In view of the fact that a campaign is now being waged on behalf of whiskers it is amusing to recall that Lord Hawke, the famous Yorkshire cricketer, established a claim to fame in his school days. An Old Etonian in his reminiscences of the famous school asserts that Lord Hawke was personally distinguished in a unique manner. "He is the only lower boy that I ever heard of who could grow quite respectable side whiskers and moustache. Certainly, when he played in the eleven, Hawke looked older than many an Eton master. For a boy to grow an incipient moustache in his last year or so was not uncommon, but a beard and side whiskers were very rare."

The Dozen.

In all the civilized countries of the world thirteen is referred to as being somebody's "dozen." In Canada, Australia, Great Britain (present day) and several other lands that number is said to be a "baker's dozen." In Italy it is referred to as the "cobbler's dozen," there being a tradition that there was formerly a law which compelled cobblers to put twelve tacks or nails around the edge of a boot heel. Finally, when the nails became cheap, a centre nail was driven for luck.

Why He Was Cool.

Average Man—There's a run on another bank. Just look at those depositors crowding in. The fools! That's what makes money tight. The whole crowd should be carried off to a lunatic asylum.

Friend—You are allowing your deposit to remain, I presume?

Average Man—Um—er—I haven't any funds in that bank.

He Will See Them.

"A prominent oculist says he never saw a pair of perfect eyes," said the woman who reads the newspapers.

"That," replied Miss Cayenne, "merely proves that the prominent oculist was never in love."

Hardly a Compliment.

Maid—A gentleman to see you, madam. Mistress—Is it, by chance, my cousin the professor? Maid—No; he doesn't look as clever as that. He looks more as though he might propose to you.

We Will Show You How!

If you have ideas—if you can THINK—we will show you the secrets of this fascinating new profession. Positively no experience or literary excellence necessary. No "flowery language" is wanted.

The demand for photoplays is practically unlimited. The big film manufacturers are "moving heaven and earth" in their attempts to get enough good plots to supply the ever increasing demand. They are offering $100 and more, for single scenarios, or written ideas.

Nearly all the big film companies, the buyers of photoplays, are located in or near NEW YORK CITY. Being right on the spot, and knowing at all times just what sort of plots are wanted by the producers, our SALE DEPARTMENT has a tremendous advantage over agencies situated in distant cities.

We have received many letters from the big film manufacturers, such as VITAGRAPH, EDISON, ESSANAY, LUBIN SOLAX, IMP, REX, RELIANCE, CHAMPION, COMET, MELIES, ETC., urging us to send photoplays to them. We want more writers and we'll gladly teach you the secrets of success.

We are selling photoplays written by people who "never before wrote a line for publication."

Perhaps we can do the same for you. If you can think of only one good idea every week, and will write it out as directed by us, and it sells for only $25., a low figure.

You Will Earn $100 Monthly For Spare Time Work.

PERLEY G. KEYS LAYS DOWN DUTIES OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Veteran Secretary of the Department of the Interior Has Retired After a Busy Life Work at Ottawa—Has Been an Ardent Horticulturalist and Holds Medals For Fruit and Flowers.

The recent retirement of Perley G. Keyes, secretary of the Department of the Interior, was marked by a demonstration of the respect and esteem of his associates in the Department, with which he had been connected more than 34 years. His associates felt that they could not allow the occasion to pass without giving him some token of their regard and appreciation—something which would link the future with the past and serve to remind him of the friends from whom he has separated. He was waited upon by a large number of the old-timers of his Department and presented with an illuminated address, accompanied by a beautiful gold watch, suitably inscribed. The address was signed on behalf of the Department by Deputy Minister Cory and others. General regret is expressed among the officials over the retirement of so efficient and popular an officer.

Mr. Keyes was born at Palmyra, Ont., Feb. 15, 1853, a son of Corlis G. Keyes, who with his father, Perley Keyes, migrated to Canada from Watertown, N.Y., in 1837, and settled in the County of Kent. He received his education in the public and high schools of his native province and later attended a business college, graduating in 1873. Returning to the farm, he engaged extensively in the breeding of thoroughbred cattle and sheep, and soon acquired more than a local reputation for the excellence of his stock. In 1878, owing to failing health, he was obliged to seek a change of climate. About this time he was offered a position in the service of the Government of Canada at Ottawa, which he accepted in the hope that his health might improve. In this he was not disappointed and with returning strength entered into his new vocation with all the energy of which he was capable. A few years found him at the head of the ordnance and admiralty lands, which had been handed over to Canada by the Imperial military authorities previous to Confederation. Jan. 1, 1900, he became secretary of the Department of the Interior. It was during his incumbency that the Department made the greatest growth in its history, and to-day its correspondence far exceeds that of any other Department of the Government.

Like many good citizens Mr. Keyes has a hobby. He has found time during an exceedingly active official life to cultivate his garden, and has always been a big winner at the central Canada fairs. He is the proud owner of three gold medals and many other prizes, won on fruit and flowers. The love of animals and flowers is his predominant characteristic. He is a frequent contributor to various horticultural publications. He is not a reader of sporting columns of the daily papers, but reads the Country Gentleman as he did 40 years ago. He was the chief organizer of the Eastern Ontario Poultry and Pet Stock Association which has become the second largest association of its kind in Canada. He served as president, secretary or director of this association for many years, and to-day carries in his vest pocket a token of the esteem in which he was held by its members. He is also a charter member of the Ottawa Horticultural Society, was its first secretary and for two terms successfully filled the president's chair.

THE WEDDING OF MISS GOULD

Only Seventy-five Guests Witnessed the Ceremony

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—In the presence of seventy-five relatives and friends gathered in the spacious and flower-bedecked parlor of Lyndhurst at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, Miss Helen Miller Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, admired or beloved by thousands of persons whom she has befriended, became yesterday the bride of Finley J. Shepard, eastern representative of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, whom she met in the exciting moments of a railroad wreck.

Simplicity was the dominant note of the wedding ceremony, and the great house, which might have been crowded with friends who would have been glad to have honored the bride, gave admission only to a limited number of relatives and most intimate friends.

Numerous and beautiful as were the wedding presents seen at Lyndhurst yesterday, they were but a part of the many tokens of love bestowed upon the bride not only by her immediate friends and relatives but by the officers and men of the United States navy, by whom she is held in high esteem for her work in behalf of the naval branch of the Young Men's Christian Association and by many other organizations to which she has given aid.

DEFINING A NEWSPAPER.

It Once Put the English Government In a Ludicrous Position.

For legal purposes a newspaper is described as a sheet of paper printed at short, regular intervals, for conveying intelligence of passing events. When the Crimean war broke out, however, newspapers in England were a luxury for the well to do. The stamp duty on newspapers was still in force. It had risen from a halfpenny, imposed in 1712, to fourpence a hundred years later, bringing up the price of newspapers to sevenpence each — a condition of things which lasted till 1836, when the duty was reduced from fourpence to a penny, to be finally abolished in 1855, as a result of the historic campaign.

It happened in this wise. During the Crimean war, poor people in this country were naturally anxious to know how their relatives were faring at the front, and the only means by which they could gather such news was through the newspapers, which the majority of them could not afford to buy. The consequence was that the agitation which had been going on for some time to repeal the stamp duty was renewed with great vigor in the House of Commons. The Government was asked to state definitely what actually constituted a newspaper, and why news should be taxed.

At first the Government was somewhat nonplussed. Then the solicitor for the board of inland revenue suggested that if they could not define exactly what a newspaper was, they could at any rate say what it was not. And thus it came about that a statement was made in the Commons to the effect that a "newspaper is not a publication treating only of one subject."

As at that time there was only one subject in which the majority of the people were interested — namely, the war—the consequence was that directly this definition was officially pronounced out came a host of unstamped publications giving full details from the seat of war, but taking care to "treat of one subject only." There were Holt's Army and Navy Dispatch, Strange's Army and Navy Dispatch, the War Times, the War Telegraph, the War Fly Sheet, and so on—selling merrily and contributing not a farthing to the revenue.

The position was a somewhat ridiculous one, for the Government by its definition of a newspaper had really given permission for the publication of various "newspapers," which were printed and sold at a great profit, and actually protected them against other papers which were contributing largely to the revenue, simply because the latter contained other news besides that concerning the war. And it was this untenable position of the Government which led to the abolition of the stamp duty.—Pearson's Weekly.

Potted the Prince.

Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein had a rather exciting few minutes the other day when playing on the Stoke Poges golf links with James Sherlock, the professional golfer. Some sportsmen were shooting in a neighboring wood and accidentally "peppered" his royal highness.

It was at Stoke Poges, it will be remembered, that Gray wrote his "Elegy," and somebody has amusingly parodied the well known poem:

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
And merry sportsmen on their homeward way,
Enjoy pot shots at Sherlock and at me.—London Answers.

A Painter's Odd Ways.

Alfred Hunt was at the same time both a slow and a fastidiously punctilious sketcher from nature, a combination which is said to have hastened his end, for he had a book for every hour of the day and every condition of weather, and, overladen with these, he would often trudge a lengthy distance to his work. He would then start, say, on an incomplete morning effect in sunshine, to be cast aside for a similar subject in shadow if the scene clouded over or for a noonday one directly that hour was reached. It is said that he consequently sometimes carried as many as a dozen varieties of the same view.—St. James' Gazette.

A "Jumbie Bird.

In the West Indies is found a bird called the sunset bird, because half an hour before sunset and half an hour before sunrise it utters its peculiar cry of "Soliel coucher!" The natives call it a "jumbie bird" (a bird possessed of the devil) and say that to kill it would bring death to its slayer. Another bird found in the same region is the "Soufriere bird," which makes its home near the volcano of Soufriere, and among the natives there is a strong belief that the first individual to see this bird will die, while the most horrible torture by evil spirits awaits the man who kills it.

A Migratory Town.

For three months of the year the town of Gartok in Tibet is situated at the place where it is designated on the map. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about forty miles farther south, at a much lower latitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up, and driving the herds of yaks, sheep and goats, moves up to the higher altitude, and the traders from India at once begin to drift in.

Dr. Parr's Sarcasm.

"Dr. Parr," said a young student to the celebrated linguist, "let's you and I write a book." "Very well," replied the doctor. "Put in it all that I know and all that you don't know and we'll make a big one."

Once to a voluble and vain young man who said in his presence, "I make it a point to believe nothing I cannot understand," Dr. Parr said. "Then young man, your creed will be the shortest of any man's I know."

The ladies of the Baptist church were given the use of the hall on the second day of the Lakefield Fair at the usual rent.

AN ENTERTAINMENT

The annual St. John's Sunday school entertainment and Christmas tree, which was held in the town hall on Friday evening, January 17, was a very great success. A varied program was rendered in which every member of the school participated. A principal feature of the evening, was the celebrated Mrs. Fifer's picture album. Another delightful event for the children was the presence of Santa Claus, who distributed gifts to all the Sunday school scholars.

The regular meeting of the Anglican Young People's Association was held in the Sunday school on Monday evening, Jan. 20th. The program for the evening was an evening with Dickens. The evening went off in a very pleasant manner.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Society was held in the school room, on Monday, Jan. 20th. when the members and their friends were treated to an evening with Burns. An essay on the life and works of Burns was given by Mr. S. P. Anderson. Songs and readings by Burns were also rendered and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Miss Mabel McGrath of Peterborough is visiting friends in the village.

Mrs. S. Ridpath has returned to her home in Toronto, after spending a few weeks in the village.

The Annual Bachelors' Ball, given by the young men of the village, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 15th, was a most gratifying success. The hall was artistically decorated with flags and other material suitable for the occasion. About one hundred and fifty guests were present and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The excellent music supplied by Tucker's orchestra of Peterborough was very much appreciated by all the guests.

Gift For Early Birds.

For many years past it has been the custom at Baldock, Hertfordshire, Eng., to give Christmas gifts to early risers. All working men in the parish earning less than $5 per week are eligible to participate in the gift, but in order to obtain it they have to assemble at 5 a.m. When the church clock has struck the hour the door is closed. All those present at that hour receive a shilling, a new shirt, and a gallon of beer.

ALASKA'S "SILENT CITY."

Wonderful Mirage That Is Said to Have Been Photographed.

One of the best stories regarding a mirage is that told in Alaska concerning the appearance of a city in the sky. This "silent city" is said to have actually been photographed, and, though there are skeptics, enough people claim to have seen it to make the story interesting.

The first account of this "city of silence" was told by a prospector named Willoughby. He was a miner in California and went to Alaska, where he settled in the vicinity of Muir glacier. In fact, it was Willoughby who piloted Professor Muir when he ascended the immense ice field which now bears the scientist's name. Willoughby always told the story of this city which appeared in the sky with much earnestness, and he carried a photograph which he said he took after several visits to the spot whence the vision could be seen.

When Willoughby first went to Alaska natives told him that at certain times of the year when the days were longest and the atmospheric conditions right they saw suspended in the heavens a town with streets, houses and many different kinds of buildings. So impressed was he that he engaged the Indians to take him to the place where the city could be seen, and in their canoes traveled to the spot.

After several attempts Willoughby at length saw this "silent city," as the natives called it. He said that the atmosphere was so clear that mountains many miles away seemed near and that as he gazed the outlines of a city gradually assumed shape, and building after building came to view. He distinctly saw tall office buildings, churches and spires, houses and every indication that the city was inhabited; but, though he saw it several times, he could never detect a human being. A halo of light seemed to cover all. As he gazed the vision faded and gradually receded. So convinced was he that he was looking at the mirage of an actual city that he made records to show that he had been on the exact spot whence the picture in the sky could be seen.

Willoughby's photograph was crude, but enough could be discerned to lead persons to assert that it was a view of Bristol, England, many thousand miles away. Willoughby told his story in 1888 or thereabouts. Since then several persons have said that they saw the mirage. In every instance the mirage was surrounded by a halo of light which poured a soft glow on roof and walls.—New York Sun.

Jenny Lind Hated Us.

Jenny Lind hated the Americans. She abhorred the very name of Barnum, who, she said, "exhibited me just as he did the big giant or any other of his monstrosities."

"But," said I, "you must not forget how you were idolized and appreciated in America. Even as a child I can remember how they worshiped Jenny Lind."

"Worshiped or not," she answered sharply, "I was nothing more than a show in a showman's hands. I can never forget that."—From "The Courts of Memory," by Mme. Lindenerone.

Wholesale Favors.

The young man entered the president's office and stood first on one foot and then on the other. He dropped his hat, handkerchief and umbrella. Altogether he was in a highly developed state of nervousness.

"Well, well!" said the employer. "Out with it!"

"I have come, sir," said the young man, and then began to stammer.

"Well, speak up! Have you come to ask for the hand of my daughter or a raise in salary?"

"If you please, sir," stammered the young man, "it's both."—Exchange.

Dead or Alive.

Two Irishmen were working on the roof of a building one day when one made a misstep and fell to the ground. The other leaned over and called, "Are yez dead or alive, Mike?"

"Oi'm alive," said Mike feebly.

"Sure you're such a liar Oi don't know whether to belave yez or not."

"Well, then, Oi must be dead," said Mike, "for yez would never dare to call me a liar if Oi wor aloive."—Exchange.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Business in wheat over the cable was very quiet. The demand from foreign buyers was poor and prices bid were 1½d to 3d lower. There was some demand for Manitoba barley and sales of a few loads were made, while the bids for oats were 2c per bushel out of line. The demand from local buyers for coarse grains showed no improvement and the market is dull. Export trade in flour quiet, but the domestic demand is fair. Millfeed slow and easy. Butter quiet. Demand for cheese increasing. New-laid eggs weak and lower on liberal supplies. Dressed hogs declined 25c.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 63½c to 64c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 41½c to 42c; No. 3, 40½c to 41c; extra No. 1, feed, 41c to 41½c; No. 2 local white, 38c; No. 3 local white, 37c, No. 4 local white, 36c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 56c to 58c; malting, 76c to 78c.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 55c to 56c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.35; seconds, $4.90; strong bakers, $4.70; winter patents, choice, $5.35; straight rollers, $4.95 to $5; do., bags, $2.30 to $2.35.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $4.50; bags, 90 lbs., $2.12½.

Millfeed—Bran, $20; shorts, $22; middlings, $27; mouillie, $30 to $35.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22.—On the wheat market today trading was quiet and prices lower. Opening figures were ⅛c to ⅜c lower, but later firmed up in sympathy with corn and oats. During the later hours the market was dull, and the announcement that peace was actually concluded had no apparent effect on prices.

Cash demand was quiet and offerings heavy, while export trade was inactive quotations being out of line. On contract grades there was a decline of ⅛c to ⅜c. Tough grades were ¼c lower for all but No. 3, which advanced ½c, and No. 6 which advanced ¼c.

Oats opened unchanged, closing unchanged to ⅛c lower on the options, while cash oats were unchanged at ⅛c to ¼c higher.

Flax was in better demand and prices firmer. Options closed ⅛c to ⅛c up, and flax ½c higher for Nos. 1 and 2, while No. 3 closed unchanged. Deliveries thru the clearing house were 5000 bushels wheat.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 22.—Close—Wheat—May, 88⅞c; July, 89⅛c; No. 1 hard, 88⅝c; No. 1 northern, 86⅝c to 87⅝c; No. 2 do., 84⅝c to 85⅝c.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 42⅝c to 44c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 31⅛c to 31⅜c.

Rye—No. 2, 57c to 59c.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market, the receipts for the week ended Jan. 18 were 1400 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1295 hogs and 375 calves. Offerings on the market today were 1600 cattle, 500 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 300 calves.

A weak feeling prevailed in the market for cattle and prices generally ruled lower, owing to the fact that the supply was far in excess of the requirements of the trade and especially so as the bulk of the offerings consisted of common and medium stock for which there is only limited demand at this period of the year, and particularly so for the former. At the reduction in prices the trade was slow thruout the day and a number were left over unsold. A few of the best steers brought as high as $6.25 to $6.50, but the bulk of the trading was done at $6, while cows sold at from $3 to $5, and bulls at from $3 to $4.50 per cwt. as to quality.

There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep or lambs, prices being firm on account of the small supplies available and the continued good demand for the same. Sales of choice ewe sheep were made at $5.25 to $5.50 and bucks and culls at $4 to $4.50, while lambs brought $7 to $7.25 and $7.50 per cwt., as to quality. The demand for calves was fair at prices ranging from $3 to $10 each.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for hogs in sympathy with Toronto. Sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $9.25 per cwt. weighed on cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 22.—Cattle—Receipts 50 head, steady.

Veals—Receipts, 75; active and steady at $4 to $12.

Hogs—Receipts, 3000; fairly active; heavy, 5c lower; light, strong; heavy, $7.75 to $7.90; mixed, $7.90 to $8, yorkers and pigs, $8 to $8.10; roughs, $7 to $7.10; stags, $5.50 to $6.50, dairies, $7.50 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2000 sheep, slow and steady, lambs, active, lambs and yearlings, 20c to 25c higher. lambs, $6 to $9.60, yearlings, $5 to $8.50, wethers, $6.25 to $6.50; ewes, $3.50 to $5.65, sheep, mixed, $4.50 to $6.15.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. — Cattle — Receipts, 14,000; market steady to 10c higher. Beeves, $6 to $9.25; Texas steers $4.70 to $5.70; stockers and feeders, $4.30 to $7.65; cows and heifers, $2.70 to $7.35, calves, $7 to $10.85.

Hogs—Receipts, 44,000; market weak, 5c to 10c lower; light, $7.20 to $7.50, mixed, $7.25 to $7.52½; heavy, $7.05 to $7.52½; rough, $7.05 to $7.20; pigs, $6 to $7.35; bulk of sales, $7.40 to $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 28,000, market closed weak; 10c to 15c lower, native, $4.90 to $6.35; western, $5 to $6.35, yearlings, $6.60 to $8.25; lambs, native, $7 to $9.25.

GLASGOW LIVE STOCK.

GLASGOW, Jan. 22.—Messrs. Watson and Batchelor, cattle importers, report all classes of cattle in good demand this week. Scotch steers 16½c to 17¼c, Irish 16c to 16c, according to quality.

MINISTER OF LABOR HAS SKIRMISH WITH OPPOSITION

Lemieux Asks For Papers in C.P.R. Strike Case and Various Liberal Members Take Occasion to Assail Minister—Intercolonial Extension Again.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—The House was lethargic yesterday afternoon after the debate on the Bank Act which became rather exciting at times at Tuesday's session.

It was Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, who was on the firing line yesterday, the recent C.P.R. strike being under discussion. The matter came up upon the motion for the production of papers made by Hon. Mr. Lemieux, but a number of Liberal members took occasion to criticize the Labor Department.

It was admitted that the brotherhood had applied for a conciliation board last summer and that the application had been refused by the Minister. Subsequently a board was granted to enquire into the grievances of the strikers in Eastern Canada, and the report of the board was in their favor.

Mr. Crothers, in his own defence, objected that the brotherhood included employes in many departments of the service scattered all over the country, and their grievances numbered no less than twenty-nine causes of complaint. The Opposition insisted that the conciliation board should have been granted, and that the number of grevances alleged and the number of employes involved constituted no defence for turning down the application.

The discussion was somewhat hampered by the fact that the correspondence and papers relating to the case were not before the House.

Hon G. P Graham complained of the criticism to which he had been subjected on account of the Grand Trunk strike of a year or two ago, and contrasted Mr. Crothers' vigorous treatment of the Grand Trunk with his inaction in respect to the C.P.R. Co.

Mr. Buchanan, the Liberal member for Lethbridge, said the impression had gone abroad that the Canadian Pacific was too close to the present Government, and laboring men were distrustful of the administration of the Lemieux Act.

Some of the members of the Maritime Provinces spoke in favor of a resolution requesting the Government to build additional railways in eastern Nova Scotia. In this connection Hon. H. R. Emmerson urged the double tracking of the Intercolonial. Hon. Frank Cochrane restated his position taken at the last session, namely, that the Government railway system would not be extended unless it could be done so with a reasonable expectation of commercial advantage. As to the Intercolonial, he said the first and most urgent need was the improvement of the roadbed between Truro and Sydney. He believed the hauling capacity of the motive power of the road should be increased fifty per cent. by improvements in this part of the system.

Hon. Frank Oliver, rising to a question of privilege, denounced as maliciously untrue the recent charges made against him by Sir R. P. Roblin, which involved some incidents in the Macdonald bye-election and the attitude of Mr. Oliver when Minister of the Interior in respect to the swamp lands of Manitoba.

Mr. Aikins of Brandon introduced a bill forbidding the alienation by way of sale or homesteading of water powers and lands contiguous thereto and of lands containing desposits of coal, oil and gas.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR L.O.L. IN DISTRICT OF NORWOOD

The annual District meeting of Loyal Orange District of Norwood, No. 1, East Peterborough, was held in the Orange Hall, South Dummer, on Tuesday, Jan. 14. The meeting was well attended, each primary lodge being well represented. The District comprises five flourishing lodges, which by their report proved to be in good standing financially and in membership. District Master Wm. Dunsford occupied the chair and after the business of the year was wound up, the election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Dis. Mas.—W. J. Bullock, L.O.L. 284.

Dis. D. M.—J. M. Hewie, L.O.L. 2062.

Dis. Chap.—J. R. Kidd, L.O.L. 284

Dis. Rec. Sec.—G. A. L. Humphries, L.O.L. 2062

Dis. Fin. Sec.—T. B. McMaster, L. O. L. 522.

Dis. Treas.—R. Tedford, L.O.L. 284

Dis. D. of C.—Wm. Montgomery, L. O. L. 34.

Dis. Lect's—Albert Batten and Andy Batten, L.O.L. 281.

The next district meeting will be held in Warsaw L.O.L. 284 Hall, January 13th, 1914.

NEW C.P.R. STATION FOR EDMONTON

One of the smaller works of construction which the C.P.R. is carrying out in the west is a new station at Edmonton, which is compulsory, owing to the rapid growth of the city. The new station will have entrance both on Jasper avenue and Ninth street, but the main entrance will be on the latter thoroughfare, where a large carriage space has been provided. The tracks are elevated over Jasper avenue, and here a stairway entrance, which leads to the concourse, has been provided. At this point there is a turnstile exit from the tracks. The main entrance is imposing and ample space has been provided for standing vehicles with a sidewalk for foot passengers fourteen feet wide. The entrance from Ninth street into the main building opens directly into the general waiting room, which if fifty feet square, and on one side have been conveniently placed the elaborate ticket offices, leading from the main waiting room is a corridor thirty-four feet long, at the end of which is arranged the baggage room with large counter space conveniently located, and adjoining is the parcel room. On either side of the corridor a waiting room for women and a smoking room for the men has been provided, each fitted up with complete toilet service. Immigrant quarters have been arranged and the main building entrance is made through a suitable corridor from the tracks northwards. This accommodation contains every convenience and is artificially ventilated. The remainder of the huge basement is occupied by the boiler and coal room and the baggage department. The whole of the north wing is occupied by the baggage department, with the exception of an allotment made to the Dominion Express for the carrying on of their extensive business.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Eccentric John Underwood.

John Underwood, who died at Whittlesea, England, in 1733, left some odd instructions for his burial. His fortune of £6,000 went to his sister, provided that no bell was tolled at his grave, no relative followed his coffin and various other arrangements were carried out. Six men only were invited and requested not to come in "black," who received 10 guineas each for their services. Service over, an arch was raised over the green painted coffin, with "Non Omnis Morior, 1733," inscribed on white marble. The six men sang the last stanza of the twentieth ode of the second book of Horace. The deceased who had been coffined fully dressed, had under his head "Sanadow's "Horace," at his feet Bentley's "Milton," in his right hand a Greek Testament and in his left hand a small "Horace." The six on repairing to his house to a cold repast had to sing the thirty-first ode and drink a cheerful glass before retiring at 8 p. m. This done, directed the will, "Think no more of John Underwood."

Books In Ancient Rome.

It has been pointed out that in old Rome books were actually produced and sold more easily and quickly than they are in modern times. With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, it is contended, an ancient Roman publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates and at most a moment's notice. There was, of course, no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no costly extras in the form of printer's corrections. The manuscript came from the author; the publisher handed it to his slaves, and if the book were of ordinary dimensions the complete edition could, it is said, be ready if necessary within twenty-four hours. The old Roman libraries were immense as well as splendid. Plutarch says that the library of Lucullus, who expended much of his money on books, "had walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors." It was proposed by Julius Caesar to open this library to the public.—Harper's.

How a Woman Saved Nice.

It happened in August, 1543, and is recalled by Mrs. Walter Tibbits in "Cities Seen In East and West." Nice (then under the dukes of Savoy) was being besieged by Francis I. and Barbarossa:

Catherine Segurine was a washerwoman whose creed was laborare est orare. She carried food to the defenders on the ramparts still left. The Turks had put up a scaling ladder. The captain led his party, and they were actually on the parapet. She rushed at the Turkish officer, wrenched the flag he was carrying from him, beat him back with the butt end and threw down the ladder on top of all. Then, rallying the soldiers, they threw open a postern, made a sortie and drove the Turks to the shore.

LOCAL BIRDS WON SILVER CUP AT LINDSAY

Mr Frank Head of Wallace Point Otonabee, is meeting with great success at the various Poultry exhibitions. At the Lindsay Poultry show which closes to-night, he captured first, second and third prizes in the Barred Plymouth Rock class and first, second and third cockerels in the same class. By these wins, Mr. Head takes the silver cup offered to the winner in this class, holding it for good.

The Lindsay Poultry show was a big success, about six hundred birds being shown.

PORT HOPE LADY WAS DROWNED

Wandered From Home While Temporarily Insane

Port Hope, Jan. 22.—The body of Mrs Walter Curtis, a well known resident of Port Hope, who disappeared from her home here yesterday was found late to-day on the lake shore near here by a search party. It is belived she wandered from home while in a state of temporary insanity, fell into the lake and was drowned.

Mount Olympus at Present.

It was a beautiful day in February that we last entered the harbor of Salonika, the city whose name even has been less changed with the lapse of the centuries than have the names of most of the cities in Macedonia.

We had just steamed by glorious Mount Olympus, the most famous mountain of all antiquity, that rises 10,000 feet sheer from the blue waters of the Aegean.

There it stands today, majestic in its isolation, cloud capped and mysterious as ever. One cannot wonder that it was peopled with divinities, demons and spirits of all kinds, good and bad, by the simple folk of the older time.—Christian Herald.

HOCKEY | LOCAL INTERMEDIATES WON AT TRENTON BY SCORE OF 8-4

CANADA HAS ONE OF THE FINEST HOCKEY TEAMS THIS SEASON THAT THE "FANS" HAVE EVER SEEN

THE WANDERERS OF CANADA

The Wanderers of Canada can well afford to boast of one of the finest hockey teams on this side of the Atlantic. Each player is a star, and individual expertness has in many cases been responsible for the victories. As a team their playing, too, has been most remarkable.

Cadotte, who is a "find" picked up by the Wanderers from a team in the Montreal City League, is one of the best players they have. The two Cleghorn brothers were recently mixed up in a fight with one of the Canadian teams during their first game at Toronto, Ontario, which may result in the suspension of both players.

INTERMEDIATES WERE GOING GOOD AT TRENTON

Ahead by 5 goals at half time and 4 to the good at the finish was the result of the intermediates' visit to Trenton last night. To pile up such a score is highly creditable to the locals and their work will no doubt receive more attention during the remainder of the season.

The first two goals of the game were gathered by the visiting seven, and Trenton took the third. The next three went to Peterborough and the seventh to Trenton. After the half and with only Wilson, Weatherston and Ross on the ice, Trenton scored three. The twelfth and last goal went to the Petes. Ross was very much in the limelight, scoring four goals. Giroux took two and Hall and Weatherston one each.

Lawson Whitehead refereed.

The local line-up was—Goal, Wilson; point, Weatherston; cover, Bond; rover, Giroux; centre, Hall; right, Griffiths; left, Ross.

ST. MIKE'S PLAY HERE ON MONDAY

The Intermediates Go to Cobourg To-morrow Night.

St Mike's will play the local seniors here on Monday night. Manager Morgan was in Toronto yesterday and arranged this date with manager Disette.

The O.H.A. has called the postponed intermediate game between Cobourg and Peterborough to be played at the latter town to-morrow night.

Her parents sent her to Europe in the hope that she would get over her infatuation for young Flubdub."

"An easier way would be for them to let her marry him."

SPORT TALK

Two games in the Mercantile Hockey League will be played to-night.

Heffernan, of Toronto R. and A.A., is as fast as any player seen at the Arena this winter. He starts quick and goes up the ice with a rush. Heffernan is also a remarkably clear player for his size.—Toronto News.

Fred Doherty, the Norwood boy who is captaining the Moncton Professionals in the Maritime Province league this year, has got his team off to a good start, having now defeated the two Halifax teams, one by a score of 8 to 0 on Moncton ice, the other by a score of 8 to 7 on Halifax ice. Fred is one of the most talked of players in the league.

The South End Scramblers accept the challenge of the King Edwards, the game to be played on the Sacred Heart rink, the challengers to make the arrangements.

When Albert S. Clauss, a left-hand-pitcher, not yet 20 years of age, is given a tryout this spring by the Detroit Tigers he will at least be among the first Canadian League pitchers to be given some consideration by a big league club. Clauss, whose home is in New Haven, Conn., was a member of the champion Berlin Canadian League Club for about three weeks early in June, during the 1911 campaign, being sent there by Kittridge, of the Saginaw Club, but Manager Deneau could not afford to carry him.

President James P. Fitzgerald, of the Canadian Baseball League, has sent out notices asking for a mail vote on fixing the salary limit of the league at $1,400 a month, exclusive of manager. Formerly it was $1,500, including manager. Ottawa is strongly in favor of increasing the limit. The National Association permits a Class C. League carrying a $1,900 limit, exclusive of manager.

G. MATTHEWS IS CAPTAIN

P.C.I. Seven Will Play Port Hope and Lindsay Teams

The P. C. I. Hockey team had a good work out yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6, at the Brock street rink, in preparation for their games with T.C.S. of Port Hope and Lindsay P.C.I., which will be played as soon as arrangements can be made.

Gordon Matthews was elected captain.

Britain's Heaviest Man.

It may be that in some corner of the country there is a heavier subject of King George, but so far as we can gather the present day Daniel Lambert is Mr. George Lovatt, who for the past twenty years has resided at Brierly Hill, near Wolverhampton. Mr. Lovatt, who is forty-four years of age, weighs 34 stones, and since his birth has been of abnormal size. His weight increased year by year until three years ago, since when it has remained stationary.

In a certain sense Mr. Lovatt's weight and size (he stands over 6ft. in height) are hereditary, for though his father was only of average weight, his mother turned the scale at 20 stones, while his uncle, reputed to be the biggest anchorsmith of his time, was 6ft. 4in. and weighed 24 stones. Mr. Lovatt himself, up to ten years ago, worked as an anchorsmith, but is now in business as a hay and straw dealer.

Like many other men of abnormal weight, Mr. Lovatt is by no means a big eater. In fact, he often misses a meal. Neither is he a heavy sleeper. Six hours a day is quite sufficient for him. Indeed, he is fairly active for a man of his weight and size.

His great hobby is pigeons, and he has about fifty birds which have brought him many prizes. This year he has obtained three prizes and a special, and he prides himself on the fact that he can compete successfully with the best fanciers in England.

Modern Wonders.

When the First Lord of the Admiralty recently visited Sheffield on the occasion of the Cutlers' Feast, he was conducted over the works of Messrs. Firth & Sons and Messrs. John Brown & Co. In the two hours at his disposal he was shown many of the engineering wonders of the Norfolk and the Atlas works. The sights witnessed included the operation of a 6,000-ton forging press and of another of 10,000 tons at work on a big armor-plate ingot; while in the hollow rolling mill a large turbine drum was being rolled. The dipping of an armor-plate in its oil bath in the Krupp shop was of special interest, and in the shell shops the visitor saw, among other operations, the forging, turning, and boring of large projectiles. The boiler-flue shop, the planing shops, and the East machine shops were also visited.

Quite a Linguist.

An old but sturdy Irishman who had made a reputation as a gang boss was given a job with a railroad construction company at Port au Prince, Haiti. One day when the sun was hotter than usual his gang of black Haitians began to shirk, and as the chief engineer rode up on his horse the Irishman was heard to shout:

"Allez—you sons of guns—allez!" Then, turning to the engineer, he said, "I curse the day I iver learned their language."

He Is 116 Years Old.

Claiming to be 116 years of age, Michael Smith has died in Dunshauglin Workhouse, County Meath, Ireland. He was neither a teetotaller nor a non-smoker, and had slept in the open even during old age in all kinds of weather. Seventy years elapsed between his first and second marriage.

A silver lining—and there is where a cloud has the everlasting bulge on the average married man's pocket book.

CURLING | FLAVELLE AND McWILLIAMS IN FINALS FOR PRIMARY HONORS

EXTRA END NECESSARY TO DECIDE SEMI-FINAL

Skip Flavelle Was 9 Up Against Skip McFadden, But Skips McWilliams and Empringham Were Tied at the Twelfth End.

With two ends of the Primary final played at 3.30 o'clock, Flavelle led McWilliams by 5—0.

Lindsay and Keene representatives are playing this afternoon for first honors in the Primary of the bonspiel. The final was called for three o'clock.

McFadden, of Lindsay, after defeating Little in the morning game, was drawn against Flavelle, whose rink finished 9 up.

Empringham had a lead of 5 in his game with McWilliams at the eighth end, but the Keene rink turned the tide by some good curling and led at the 11th end by one shot. The Aberdeens evened up in the 10th, but in the extra end McWilliams got 2.

The scores:—

McFadden	000100000021— 1
Flavelle	11013131101—15
Empringham	2013100010010— 9
McWilliams	0100011202202—11

REACH SEMI-FINALS

Skips Empringham of Toronto and Hamilton of Fenelon Falls, this morning, had one of the warmest arguments of the bonspiel. Eight rinks fought for entrance into the semi-finals of the primary, and the Toronto quartet gained admission by one shot only.

Skip Little of Lindsay fell by the way before his fellow townsman, skip McFadden.

Skip Flavelle had an easy win from McDermid, the Lindsay veteran taking 5 in the eighth end and coming back with 3 more in the ninth.

Omerod of Toronto came from behind in the seventh and had a lead of 1 shot, but Dr. McWilliams' rink were always ahead after the eighth.

The scores were—

Flavelle	203001053120—17
McDermid	010210300002— 9
Empringham	201120001300—10
Hamilton	030001210011— 9
McWilliams	020110011230—11
Omerod	101001300001— 7
McFadden	102102330100—13
Little	010030002022—10

At the close of the play last night seven rinks had fought their way to the third round of the primary. Three of these were Lindsay quartets. Skip Thomas the fourth Lindsay skip had been eliminated from the first competition by McDermid. One of the prominent incidents of the night was the win of skip Little over skip Giroux by 8 shots. The Lindsayites lead all the way. It was the first defeat in three years for Giroux.

The rinks and scores in the games and place in the third round were:

EASY TO GUESS IT.

What Do You Think Is the Answer to This Puzzle Question?

With the rent six weeks in arrears Scribbler sat trembling lest the landlady should hear the beating of his heart and call for a reckoning. Presently there reached his ears the sound of fierce words, as of two striving together in deadly argument. Scribbler became aware that Mr. and Mrs. Slumpkins were engaged in unraveling one of their domestic tangles.

At length there came a light tap on the door.

Scribbler looked toward the window as a possible avenue of escape. However, before he could make up his mind to try the rainspout route the door opened cautiously, and first Slumpkins' bald head appeared and then the rest of him crept slowly in.

In a whisper he advised Scribbler not to pay Mrs. Slumpkins, insomuch as she was not the head of the house.

Scribbler acquiesced and Slumpkins disappeared.

A little later another rap on the door, this time more insistent, caused Scribbler to look up. It was Mrs. Slumpkins.

"Say, don't pay my old man any money, Mr. Scribbler. He won't do nothing but drink it up. This morning I had to let him know who runs this house. We ain't speaking to each other now."

Again Scribbler acquiesced.

That was six months ago. They haven't spoken to each other yet, and Scribbler goes on his way rejoicing.

Puzzle question: What will be the first question they ask when they start speaking again?—Satire.

Preaching and Practice.

"Isn't it horrid," remarked Miss Swyftly to her friend—"isn't it horrid that men will put these nasty old pipes into their mouths?"

"Yes," said her friend emphatically as she stooped and tenderly kissed the black face of her pet pug—"yes, indeed it is."—Pearson's.

Eating in the Fifth Act of Life.

The advice which Sydney Smith gave to Lord Murray on the subject of diet was probably sound. "If you wish for anything like happiness in the fifth act of life," he wrote, "eat and drink one-half of what you could eat and drink. Did I ever tell you my calculations about eating and drinking? Having ascertained the weight of what I could live upon so as to preserve health and strength, and what I did live upon, I found that between ten and seventy years of age I had eaten and drunk forty-four horse wagon loads of meat and drink more than would have preserved me in life and health. The value of this mass of nourishment I considered to be worth £7,000. It occurred to me that I must, by my voracity, have starved to death fully 100 persons. This is a frightful calculation, but irresistibly true."

The Japanese Language.

The Japanese language has some features which puzzle beginners in its use. In English when one has learned the name for rice that ends it. Not so in Japan. Begin with cooked rice, meshi. When eaten by a child it is called mama. In speaking to another person of eating rice you call it gozen. As a merchant sells it, uncooked, it is kome, and as it grows in the field it is ine. So a carpenter's foot, or shaku, is about twelve inches, but a tailor's is fifteen. A kin or pound of beef is fourteen ounces, of flour twenty-one, of sugar over thirty. The ri, or mile, varies in different provinces, and on the Fusiyama ascent half a ri is maked a ri because it's so much harder work going uphill.

1913 To Be a Year of Blood.

A Paris cable says: It was Mme. de Thebes who last November predicted war in the Balkans, an epidemic and other strange things. Many have come true. Mme. de Thebes, referring to 1912, called it a black year.

Now her visions help her to predict that 1913 will be what she terms an Aurora year, or a year which will be a prelude to noble awakenings, but a year also of grave peril, which only those of superhuman courage can pass through successfully, for 1913 will be a year of blood.

Madame sees a new King in Italy and a new Pope. Germany will stake her all, and she fears war.

Fuller's Earth.

The cleansing properties of fuller's earth are not as well known as they should be. When grease has been spilt on the carpet make a paste with boiling water and equal part of fuller's earth and magnesia, apply to the stain while hot and allow to dry. It will take out the grease entirely. To remove grease from the floor make a paste as above and cover the spots with it; when dry remove and renew if necessary. Two or three applications will destroy all traces of ugly spots.

Curious Fishing.

Very curious is the method of fishing followed by the Chinese in the strait of Malacca. The fisherman lets down from the side of the boat a screen of white canvas stretched on wood. The shoal of fish mistake this for some floating obstruction and try to leap over it, with the result that the fish jump into the boat and are thus captured. This method is employed by Malays in their waters.

A Prison Paper.

The first number of the Compendium, a newspaper for prisoners, has appeared at Sydney. The paper, which is under the supervision of the Comptroller-General of Prisons, will circulate in all the jails of New South Wales.

The Post of Being a Man.

Even though you be hard pressed and violently attacked by the enemy, still it is base to give way. Hold the post assigned to you by nature. You ask what this post is? It is that of being a man.—Seneca.

Generous Soul.

"Now, Jim," said the old lady to her son, who was about to leave the countryside to try his luck in London, "there's plenty of money in that big city, for the streets are said to be even paved with gold."

Jim "had his doots," but these were quickly removed, for he had barely got out of Euston station when, to his surprise, he espied slyly reposing on the kerb a bright, glittering sovereign. Eagerly he picked it up and walked a little farther on, when he came across a blind man who was begging.

At once his sympathetic heart went out to the unfortunate man, and as he put the sovereign into his hand he said:

"Take this, my friend. I can see 'em, tha' can't!"—London Globe.

Scared Both of Them.

When Justice Maule was on the bench a bullying counsel was one day browbeating an elderly female witness in a case before him. Having badgered her into a state of utter speechlessness, the lawyer appealed to the judge to make her answer his questions. "Why do you not answer, madam?" asked the judge. "Because, my lord, he scares me so," replied the trembling woman. "So does he me, ma'am," said the judge. —Law Notes.

Like the Mythical Dragon.

In the Malay archipelago is a reptile much like the mythical dragon. It has false ribs that extend the loose skin and form its wings. There is also a frog with spreading feet that makes a parachute which enables it to flit from tree to tree, and a flying lemur that can spread out its whole body like an umbrella and leap and fly a hundred feet at a time, from the top of one tree to another.

KNOX CHURCH PROPERTY NOW VALUED AT $40,000

The annual meeting of Knox Church was held last night in the lecture hall. Rev. Mr. Keith occupied the chair in the absence of Dr. McCulloch ,who was unable to attend the meeting through illness. The meeting was opened with the singing of the usual devotional exercises, after which the minutes of the last year's meeting was read and approved. The various reports were read and all showed very satisfactory and encouraging results, especially the managers' report. The chairman stated that the church property was now valued at $40,000. It was decided to place the building fund and the interest fund under the management of one secretary-treasurer; also they decided to increase the choir grant from $250 to $400.

The matter of installation of a pipe organ was brought up, but was left over to a future meeting. The members of the session for this year are,—Messrs. Morrison, Chiles, Clifford, Sanderson, Ego, Kennedy, Laing, Feir and Penrose.

After the business transactions were concluded the ladies served refreshments and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

EVIDENCE TO BE CONTINUED AT TORONTO

The High Court sittings were adjourned rather suddenly yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Justice Hodgins decided to have the remainder of the Fairweather versus Canadian General Electric Company action heard at Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

All the evidence for the plaintiff is in, and only two or three witnesses for the defence have now to be examined. Their evidence and the argument will be heard in Toronto on February 1st.

His One Meal a Day.

The eccentric Dr. Fordyce, a well known professor of chemistry of the eighteenth century, believed that man required only one meal a day, and for twenty years he practiced what he preached. At 4 he would present himself at Dolly's chophouse in Paternoster row, and immediately upon his arrival the cook would place a pound and a half of rump steak upon the gridiron. While it was cooking the doctor would amuse himself with some such trifle as half a broiled capon or a plate of fish and a glass or two of brandy. Then came the steak, with a full accompaniment of bread and potatoes, and a quart tankard of strong ale. This was followed by a bottle of old port, after which he would stroll to his rooms in Essex street, where he met his class and gave lectures on chemistry.—London Chronicle.

A Big Fan.

A good deal of royal significance has been given to fans. They were symbols of authority in Mexico before the conquest. Queen Mary of England received on New Year's day in 1556 "7 fannes to keep the hete of the fyre." Queen Elizabeth favored the custom that a fan was the only present a sovereign could receive from a subject. Fans have not always been dainty trifles. Jean de Balzac, a French writer of the seventeenth century, wrote from Italy during the reign of Louis XIV. of the enormous fans in use there, suspended from the ceiling and worked by four servants. He says, "I have a fan that makes wind enough in my chamber to wreck a ship."

WEDDING BELLS

PHILLIPS—DUNFORD.

A very pleasant event took place recently in St. Mark's Anglican Church, at Outlook, Sask., when the Rev. Mr. Bucklie of Outlook, united in marriage Miss Ida Dunford, daughter of Mr. Joseph Dunford, of Burleigh Falls, to Mr. George Phillips, of Outlook. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Kasserman. The bride was attired in a gown of cream nun's veiling, trimmed with pale blue silk and chiffon and wore the customary veil arranged in mob cap style. The was attended by Miss Gertrude Kasserman, of Conquest, Sask., who wore a white dress trimmed with pale green, the groom was attended by Mr. Henry Borden of Winnipeg.

After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of a friend where refreshments were served. After which the happy couple left for their home.

The bride's travelling suit was of Copenhagen blue trimmed with ball trimmings with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have the best wishes of a host of friends.

SPENCELY—CLARKE.

Miss Emma Evelyn Clarke and Mr. Albert Walter Spencely were united in marriage at Knox Church Manse, last evening by Rev. H. J. Keith. The ceremony took place at 5.30 o'clock and was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Spencely Mr. and Mrs. Spencely will reside in Peterborough.

BAND MASTER WAS WATCHED

Presentations at Annual Meeting of S.A. Temple Band

At the annual meeting of the Salvation Army Band, Tuesday night, Bandmaster Leryer was presented with a gold watch; Deputy Bandmaster Ford received a set of brushes and Secretary E. Hensley a fountain pen. Bandsman Layton was chairman, and he read the address, while Mr. J. Richardson made the presentations.

It was announced that the proceeds from the annual Christmas and New Year's serenading were $507. This money is being used for improvements to the band hall.

S.O.E. OFFICERS' INSTALLATION

The installation of the officers elected for Lansdowne Lodge, S.O.E. took place on Monday, January 20, in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street.

Past Supreme President Bro. Boxall, of Lindsay, and Supreme Vice-President Bro. Randall, of Toronto were present and assisted the District Supreme Lodge Officer, Bro. Johnson, of Lindsay, to intall the officers.

The reports for the past year were of a very encouraging nature. The financial report in particular, showed the strength of the lodge, the total balance in the bank after all liabilities had been met, being over $3000.

After the installation the members sat down to an enjoyable supper prepared by Bro. "Daddy" Taylor.

The following were the officers installed:—

DEPUTATIONAL SECRETARY

Will Give Address at Bethany Tabernacle To-night

The convention in Bethany Tabernacle continued yesterday and the missionary addresses by Mr. Wickware were full of interest and pathos. In closing last evening, an earnest appeal was made to all to do their utmost to send the Gospel to dark Africa.

In the afternoon Mr. Chandler spoke on "Four Great Things," in the third chapter of Philippians.

In the evening Mr. Chandler spoke from John 8: 29, the words of Jesus "I do always those things that please Him."

This evening Rev. Dr. Glover who has been a missionary in China, and is now Deputational Secretary for the Christian and Missionary Alliance will give a missionary address, and the Rev. Mr. Chandler will give his last message.

To-morrow at 2.45 and 7.45 p.m., Dr. Glover will address the meetings. All who are interested in missions should hear Dr. Glover, as his messages have been an inspiration and blessing to many all over the continent.

The average man has a lot more to say about what he is going to do than about what he has done.

COUNTY COUNCIL

The County Council for 1913 will hold its inaugural meeting on Tuesday of next week. The names of Reeve Breault, of Norwood and Reeve Garbutt, of Smith, are mentioned as aspirants for the Warden's chair, with the chances of success in favor of the former. There are only three changes in the personnel of the County Council this year, Mr. Tanner, of Lakefield, who resigned, is succeeded by Reeve Fitzgerald; Mr. W. J. Porter, of Otonabee, who resigned, is succeeded by Reeve Anderson, and Mr. S. S Joyce of Havelock, by Reeve Kindred.

TO PUNISH THE HOTELMEN?

The following letter appeared in a local contemporary to-day:

Sir,—I read in your paper on Saturday a letter giving the writer's opinion that local option was defeated in this city because the Liberals voted against it, for partisan motives, to assist Mr. Rowell's impending "abolish the bar" legislation. As a Liberal, I must protest against that charge. I voted for the by-law myself. In fact, without prejudice to my party, I believe there is some foundation to rumors I have heard, that one of the most prominent Liberals of Peterborough subscibed heavily to the local option fund to punish the local hotelmen, for personal and political reasons.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Committee Appointed to Formulate a Plan of Campaign

A meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held in the Labor Hall last evening with President D. Moore in the chair. There was a good attendance of delegates, and several interesting discussions took place.

The secretary read the platform of the Hamilton Trades and Labor Council, and a committee was appointed to formulate a plan of campaign for the local Council.

A letter which appeared in the local press a few days ago, with reference to merchants, etc., getting their printing done out of town was also referred to, and the writers received the approval of the Council.

The advisability of forming a committee to make arrangements for the Labor Day celebration and parade was also discussed, and a committee will also be appointed at the next meeting, Feb. 12th.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

BELMONT CLUB ANNUAL DANCE

The Belmont Club gave their fifth annual dance last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall. The floor was in perfect condition smooth as glass, and the music was all that could be desired. Inspiring two steps and dreamy waltzes are specialty offerings of Fralick's orchestra, and they excelled themselves last evening. About two hundred couples enjoyed the event which will go down in the records of the Club as the most sucessful in its history.

The decorations were most elaborate and artistic.

The patronesses were Mrs. E. V. Frederick, Mrs. H. Dunsford, Mrs. J. R Stratton, Mrs. Jas. Hamilton, Mrs. W. H. Bradburn, and Mrs. R. R. Hall. H. F. Hall is honorary secretary of the Club

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

During the past six years the congregation of this church has contributed over $65,000 for the various departments.

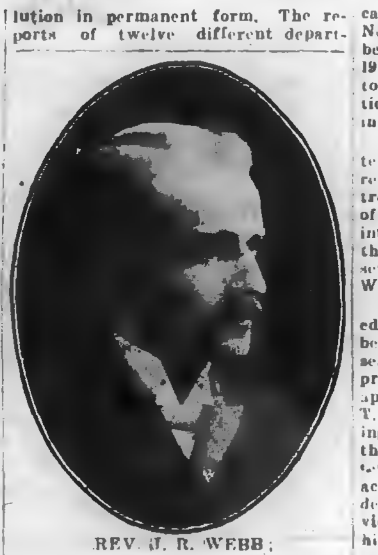
MURRAY ST. CHURCH CLOSES YEAR WITH ALL OBLIGATIONS MET; BALANCE IN EACH TREASURY

Two Hundred and Twenty-one New Members Since Rev. J. R. Webb Became Pastor.

Resolution of Appreciation for Services Rendered by Mr. T. F. Matthews as Treasurer.

A remarkable gathering convened at Murray Street Church last night in spite of the most unfavorable weather, the occasion being the annual meeting of the church.

The pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, occupied the chair and read his annual letter to the church. During the six years of his pastorate, two hundred and twenty-one have been added to the church, and over sixty-five thousand dollars have been contributed for various purposes. A resolution was unanimously and enthusiastically passed, expressing the confidence and gratitude of the church to its minister. A committee was appointed to put this resolution in permanent form. The reports of twelve different departments of the church were presented by their representatives and in every case real progress was manifest. Nearly seven thousand dollars had been contributed during the year 1912 besides large subscriptions paid to the building fund. All obligations are paid, and a balance is left in the treasury.



REV. J. R. WEBB;
He has been very successful during his six years' pastorate at Murray street Baptist Church.

Mr. T. F. Matthews who has for ten years been the church treasurer retires this year from the general treasurership, but retains the office of treasurer of the church debt and interest fund. In this connection the following resolution was presented by Mr. R. Harding and Dr. W. D. Scott.

Moved by Mr. R. Harding, seconded by Dr Scott, that we, the members of Murray Street church, assembled in our annual meeting, express by this resolution, our hearty appreciation of the services of Mr. T. F. Matthews, who is now retiring from the office of treasurer of the general fund of our church. For ten years our brother Matthews has acted in this capacity and has rendered conspicuous and unselfish service for which the Lord has endowed him with unusual gifts. That we rejoice that Mr. Matthews has consented to continue his work as treasurer of the church debt and interest fund, and that we pledge ourselves as much as in us lies to

TURKISH PEOPLE SAY THEY WILL NOT GIVE UP ADRIANOPLE

Kiamil Pasha and His Ministry Resign as Result of Clamor in Constantinople and Young Turk Leader, Sheiket Pasha, is Now Grand Vizier.

NAZIM PASHA KILLED ON STREET

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, Jan. 24.—It is believed here that the new developments in Constantinople indicate it will be very doubtful to prevent a resumption of hostilities, but it is expected that the powers will still maintain perfect unity and concentrate on their efforts to confine the war to the original theatre.

FIGHTING AT THE CAPITAL.

Constantinople, Jan. 24.—A fight has occurred [illegible] persons have been wounded and many arrests made. Great public excitement has followed the killing of Nazim Pasha.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 24.—A crisis in Turkish affairs came yesterday with dramatic suddenness. The grand vizier, Kiamil Pasha, and the Ottoman Cabinet, resigned, and Mahmoud Shefket Pasha, formerly Minister of War and commander of the constitutional army which enthroned Mehmed V. as Sultan, was appointed grand vizier.

Nazin Pasha, the former War Minister and commander of the Turkish army, was shot dead during demonstrations here last night which preceded the resignation of the Cabinet. Enver Bey and Talaat Bey had given explicit orders that no blood should be shed, but Nazim Pasha's aide-de-camp fired from a window of the Porte at Enver Bey and his companion, and they returned the fire. Their bullets killed Nazim Pasha himself. In spite of this tragedy there was no disturbance of order elsewhere.

Wednesday the grand council, representing the intellect and wealth of the nation, pronounced in favor of peace almost at any price. Yesterday a vast crowd, drawn from all classes of the proletariat, declared for war rather than peace without Adrianople. And because the crowd was backed by the general public [illegible] Government surrendered and relinquished office, making way for the same men whom the popular movement brought to the top after the revolution of 1908 and 1909.

The resignation of the Cabinet, in which Kiamil Pasha was grand vizier, was announced in the following official statement:

"The decision of Kiamil Pasha's Cabinet, taken in response to the note handed to the Turkish Government by the European powers, to abandon the fortress of Adrianople and part of the islands in the Aegean Sea and the convocation of an extraordinary assembly of the grand council of the Ottoman Empire, to which the Cabinet's decision was submitted—a course contrary to the prescriptions of the constitutional charter and violating the sacred rights of the people—roused the indignation of the Turkish nation, with the result that the people made a demonstration before the Sublime Porte and brought about the resignation of the Government."

The crowd which had assembled outside the offices of the Sublime Porte had not dispersed last evening.

The Council of Ministers met shortly before noon to give final shape to the note accepting the proposals of the powers. About 3 o'clock people from all quarters began to gather in front of the gate to the grand vizierate. Enver Bey, one of the leaders of the Young Turks, who was identified with the campaign in Tripoli, and Nadje Bey, a prominent Unionist, arrived about this time and were deputed to inform the Cabinet that it must retire.

Enver Bey soon issued from the vizierate and announced that he held the resignation of Kiamil Pasha, which he was taking to the palace. This was greeted with tremendous cheering, which was frantically renewed an hour and a half later, when he returned with an irade appointing Mahmoud Shefket Pasha grand vizier.

In the meantime Talaat Bey assumed provisionally the portfolio of the Ministry of the Interior, and Izzet Pasha that of war. In an interview Talaat Bey said that the movement had not been planned, but was the outcome of popular feeling owing to the attitude of the Government with regard to Adrianople. If Adrianople were abandoned, he said, disturbances would break out over the length and breadth of the empire. With regard to money, the whole nation would make a sacrifice.

Kiamil Pasha and the other members of his Cabinet remain in their residences under guard.

Working on Mail Bag Mystery.

KINGSTON, Jan. 24.—Two Government detectives arrived yesterday and are working on the mail robbery case. Authorities state there are no new developments. All sorts of rumors are abroad about two men having been arrested at Belleville, but there is no truth in them.

Called to the West.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 24.—The congregation of Christ Church (Anglican) has extended an invitation to Archdeacon McKim of Kenora, Ont., and it is understood he will accept.

HAVE NO USE FOR TITLES

Dominion Grangers Express Unanimous Disapproval.

Principles Involved in Mr. J. H. Burnham's Bill Commended.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—With unanimity that expressed itself in almost dead silence, the member of the Dominion Grange adopted a resolution yesterday, declaring that the association believed that titles were unnecessary for and even detrimental to Canada's welfare. This declaration of democracy, says Mr. Henry Glendenning, ex-president of the Grange, is a new plank in the Grange's "Code of Laws," but, according to him, it will remain in the constitution, no matter if farmers by the hundreds are knighted—which to him, by the way, seemed unlikely.

The cause is as follows:

"We desire to commend the principle involved in the bill introduced recently in the Dominion Parliament by J. H. Burnham, M.P., advocating the abolition in Canada of the practice of the bestowing of titles, believing that it tends to create man-made distinctions between man and man."

In a resolution introduced by Mr. Downey of Orangeville, and passed unanimously, the Grange asks for an investigation of Canadian banks before the renewal of any charters. The resolution is as follows:

"That a royal commission should be appointed to make a thorough investigation of the whole banking system before the charters of any banks be renewed for any period of years; and that these results be made public in an official blue book."

MINISTERS WAR ON TIGHTS

Police Chief Relents, But Clergymen Insist on the Ban.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—Are tights going to be banished from the Montreal theatrical stage?

Inspector O'Keefe of the Morality squad went to the trouble of warning all theatre managers that no performers in tights must in future appear on Montreal stages.

Such an outcry was raised that Chief of Police Campeau relented, and has acknowledged the right of tights to appear on the stage, but Rev. Dr. Sparling, of St. James Methodist Church, and several other clergymen, insist that tights should be banished whether Shakespearean repertoire can be produced or not.

ST. CATHARINES PIONEER DEAD

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 24.—William McIntosh, a carpenter and builder, who had resided in St. Catharines for over 60 years, died here yesterday, aged 77 years. He was one of the oldest Masons in the city. He was born in Dundee, Scotland. A widow, four sons and two daughters survive.

Public Plant Shows Surplus.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 24.—The local gas manufacturing plant recently acquired by the ciy showed a surplus of $164.91 on the December business under civic ownership. As a privately owned concern for the same period in 1911 a deficit of $500 was shown.

Anglican Mission Conference.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—All the bishops of the Anglican Church in Canada, together with about fifty of the most prominent rectors of the Dominion, all members of the board of management of the Missionary Society of the church, will meet in Ottawa on April 3rd to discuss plans for the society.

TWO TRAINMEN HURT IN ACCIDENT AT MADOC JCT.

Fireman Was Scalded About the Face, Neck and Arms by Steam.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 24.—An accident occurred yesterday afternoon to an engine on the Midland division of the G.T.R. at Madoc Junction, and as a result Fireman Gordon Jamieson and Brakeman Bokes Randell were injured. Jamieson was severely scalded about the face, arms and neck by steam, and Randell was jolted off the train, sustaining severe bruises about the body.

They were brought to the hospital here for treatment.

Charged With Theft.

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 24.—Chas. Borsofski appeared in the police court yesterday charged with the theft of three horses from three hotel sheds in Berlin and Waterloo on Tuesday evening. He was allowed his freedom on parole.

OPPOSED TO WAR.

Alberta Farmers Vote 588 to 12 Against Any Navy.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 24.—The United Farmers of Alberta are for universal peace, opposed to war and very much against the Canadian navy policies of both the great political parties. They would have Canada lead the world in a great disarmament movement. So declared an anti-naval resolution adopted by an overwhelming vote just before adjournment.

In 600 delegates only 12 voted against the resolution. The discussion of the resolution provided the first real fireworks of the convention and brought out impassioned oratory. Other important features of the proceedings were the adoption of an unanimous vote for an out-and-out free trade resolution, and the adoption of a resolution which would practically exempt from taxation lands which may be situated within the limits of the municipalities.

LATE BISHOP O'CONNOR
Aged Prelate of the Peterborough Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church passed away last evening.

COTTON DUTY IS TO DROP

Another Cut Likely in United States Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The attack of mill interests on the proposed Democratic revision of the tariff on textile manufactures has resulted so far in a virtual conclusion of the ways and means committee majority to strike a lower rate readjustment even than planned in the previous Democratic cotton revision bills.

There will be substantial reductions from the tentative cotton schedule basis, running down as low as five per cent. on the cheaper goods that the working classes depend upon.

The compromise revision schedule proposed Wednesday by Lewis W. Parker of Greenville, S.C., former head of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, assumed more importance yesterday as a basis for Democratic general reduction plans. It was frequently referred to during the examination of witnesses and it will have a considerable bearing in the committee's figuring on the low rates.

MR. GRAHAM WILL APPEAL

That the Dickson Co. of Peterborough, owners of the Oriental Hotel, is entitled to recover possession of the hotel premises from the tenant George N. Graham, is the effect of a judgment given by Mr. Justice Hodgins at Toronto, yesterday.

Mr. Graham will appeal.

Mr. Graham held the property under a lease made in 1906, and alleged that a new lease for one year had been made on May 1st, 1912. Mr. Justice Hodgins holds that there was no lease, the agreement not having been adopted by the company's board

Mr. Graham is directed to give up possession and to pay the plaintiffs rent at the rate of $3,024 from the termination of the last lease till possession is given. He is enjoined from dealing with the license or business, but is to be allowed proportionately for the unexpired term of the license which has been paid by him.

Rochester Garment Workers Strike.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Jan. 24.—Following the vote Wednesday night to go on strike, over 6,000 clothing operatives yesterday morning refused to go to work, and only one of the large factories in this city is in operation. That will be closed before night, the workers say.

DEATH'S CALL REMOVES HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP O'CONNOR

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor is dead.

The end which came at St. Joseph's Hospital, last evening, shortly after eight o'clock, was not unexpected. It had been seen that the patient was gradually growing weaker and it was known that his life would come to a close within a short time.

He had been confined to the hospital for the past two weeks, a sufferer from neuralgia of the stomach and complications. He was informed that his condition was serious and that he might not recover. But he did not give up hope. His Lordship wanted to regain his health and continue his work, in the diocese where he had labored so long. But it was not to be.

In August of 1911, His Lordship celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination. On that occasion, priest and parishioner evidenced their love for him and Peterborough citizens of other denominations joined with genuine sincerity in the celebrations.

Simplicity was one of the outstanding characteristics of the Bishop's life. He lived in simple fashion at the Bishop's Palace, where he met his visitors as man and man. The results of his labors in the diocese of Peterborough are conspicuous, and need no elaboration.

The body of the dead prelate will remain in the chapel at the hospital till to-morrow afternoon, when it will be conveyed to the Bishop's Palace. At 3 o'clock on Sunday it will be removed to the Cathedral when the general public will have an opportunity to view the remains. The body will be in state from Sunday afternoon till Tuesday morning at 9.30, when the funeral will take place.

Right Reverend Alphonsus O'Connor, D.D., who was the spiritual head of the Diocese of Peterborough, was born in Kerry County, Ireland, in the year 1838, and was 75 years of age. His Lordship came to this country when only two years old, and spent nearly all his life in Canada. Although born in Ireland, Bishop O'Connor was devotedly Canadian in patriotism and feeling. His Lordship was ordained in the priesthood in 1861.

His education he received at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and later at the Grand Seminary, Montreal. In the Diocese of Toronto he spent the years from 1861 until May, 1889, and served in various places until consecrated in Peterborough Cathedral by Archbishop Clery, of Kingston, on May 1, 1889. In Barrie, where he was dean before coming to Peterborough, he is especially remembered, a portion of his life having been spent in the northern part of his first diocese before it was broken up with Sault Ste. Marie as the new jurisdiction. During the years of his office in Peterborough he faithfully fulfilled the duties of his position, and won the devotion and esteem of his associates and brother clergy. In August of 1910 His Lordship celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

BRITAIN INTERESTED IN SUFFRAGE FIGHT NOW ON

ROWELL AT BERLIN.

Liberal Leader Expounds Doctrines to Audience of 800.

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 24.—N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, invaded a hostile constituency last night, and over 800 turned out to hear him expound his doctrines.

Sir James Whitney and the Government, more particularly the Premier, were scored on several points. Mr. Rowell tackled the workmen's compensation act, and criticized the Government for its dilatory methods in handling such an important question. He touched upon tax reform and wound up with a peroration on the abolition of the bar, on the conclusion of which he was liberally applauded.

SMALLPOX IN WATERLOO

Waterloo, Jan. 24.—A special meeting of the town council was held here yesterday morning at which the health authorities reported the existence of smallpox in the corporation and advised that a general vaccination of the residents be ordered. The council adopted the recommendation of Dr. Baumann, M.H.O., and authorized Mayor Fischer to issue a proclamation ordering the vaccination and re-vaccination of all persons resident in Waterloo who have not been vaccinated within seven years.

Young Italian Deported.

KINGSTON, Jan. 24. Antonio Ditorio, an Italian, aged 21, was deported yesterday. Ditorio served three years in the penitentiary for shooting with intent to kill at Cobourg.

Anything May Happen Owing to Perplexities in the Situation.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Jan. 24.—This afternoon immediately after question time in the House of Commons, Alfred Lyttleton introduced Sir Edward Grey's amendment to the Franchise Act, striking out the word "Male" thus opening the way for the franchise to women.

Lewis Harcourt whose house Suffragettes attempted to burn down some months ago, made a bitter attack on the supporters of female suffrage, especially Sir Edward Grey and Lloyd George.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(C.A.P. Cable.) There was vastly more interest here yesterday over the chances of woman's suffrage in the Commons' debates, starting to-day, than there was over the Unionist food differences.

Considering that every section of the Commons, from the Cabinet downwards, is perplexingly divided, absolutely anything may happen.

Blood will first flow from over Sir Edward Grey's proposal to delete the word "male" from the opening clause of the bill.

"Every male person shall be entitled to be registered as a Parliamentary elector."

Premier Asquith is totally against votes for women. It is said he is feeling resentment against Grey and Lloyd-George for having, by their support of woman's suffrage, led the Ministerialists into the present difficulties.

"No. I've never heard her mention it. It was not at home when he—when he died."

"Do you know where it is?"

"Yes. I'm the only person on earth who does, except the one who has it."

"Who is that?"

"I can't tell you, but I will see if they have it yet and get it if I can. But if your mother finds it out she will never forgive me."

"My father's!" cried Elnora. She caught Margaret by the arm.

"I can't help it," said Elnora. "I want that violin. I want it now."

"I'll go tomorrow and get it if it has not been destroyed."

"Destroyed! Oh, Aunt Margaret, would any one dare?"

"I hardly think so. It was a good instrument. He played it like a master."

"Tell me," breathed Elnora.

"His hair was red and curled more than yours, and his eyes were blue. He was tall, slim and the very imp of mischief. He joked and teased all day until he picked up that violin. Then his head bent over it and his eyes got big and earnest. He seemed to listen as if he first heard the notes and then copied them. Sometimes he drew the bow trembly, like he wasn't sure it was right and he might have to try again. He could almost drive you crazy when he wanted to, and no man that ever lived could make you dance as he could. He made it all up as he went. He seemed to listen for his dancing music, too. It appeared to come to him. He'd begin to play and you had to keep time or die. You couldn't be still."

The tears were rolling down Elnora's cheeks. "Oh, Aunt Margaret," she sobbed. "Why haven't you told me about him sooner? I feel as if you had given my father to me living so that I could touch him. I can see him too! Why didn't you ever tell me before? Go on, go on! Tell me more about my father."

"Wait until I see if I can get the violin."

So Elnora went home in suspense, and that night she added to her prayers, "Dear Lord, be merciful to my father and, oh, do help Aunt Margaret to get his violin."

Wesley and Billy came in to supper tired and hungry. Billy ate heartily, but his eyes often rested on a plate of tempting cookies, and when Wesley offered them to the boy he reached for one. Margaret was compelled to explain that cookies were forbidden that night because Billy had used a bad word that day.

"What!" said Wesley. "Wrong words been coming again? Oh, Billy, I do wish you could remember! I can't sit and eat cookies before a little boy who has none. I'll have to put mine back too." And Margaret did the same.

Then Billy slid from his chair, ran to the couch, buried his face in the pillow and cried heart brokenly. Wesley hurried to the barn and Margaret to the kitchen. When the dishes were almost washed Billy slipped from the back door.

Wesley, piling hay into the mangers, heard a sound behind him and inquired, "That you, Billy?"

"Yes," answered Billy, "and it's all so dark you can't see me now, isn't it?"

"Well, mighty near," answered Wesley.

"Then you stoop down and open your mouth."

Wesley bent over the small figure and received an installment of cooky that almost choked him.

"Now you can eat it," shouted Billy in delight. "It's all dark. I can't see what you're doing 't all."

Wesley picked up the small figure and set the boy on the back of a horse to bring his face level so that they could talk as men.

"Now, what a dandy scheme!" he commented. "Did you and Aunt Margaret fix it up?"

"No. She ain't had hers yet. But I got one for her. Ist as soon as you eat yours I am going to take hers and feed her first time I find her in the dark."

"But, Billy, where did you get the cookies? You know Aunt Margaret said you were not to have any."

"I ist took them," said Billy. "I didn't take them for me. I ist took them for you and her. Did—did—I steal?"

Wesley's big hands closed until he almost hurt the boy.

"No!" he said vehemently. "That is too big a word. You just made a mistake. If you had told Aunt Margaret what you wanted to do and asked her for the cookies she would have given them to you."

"Must I take it back?"

"You think hard, and decide yourself," suggested Wesley.

"Lift me down," said Billy, after a silence. "I got to put this in the jar and tell her."

Wesley set the boy on the floor, but as he did so he paused one second and strained him close to his breast.

Margaret sat in her chair sewing. Billy slipped in and crept up beside her. The little face was lined with tragedy.

"Why, Billy, whatever is the matter?" she cried as she dropped her sewing and held out her arms. Billy stood back. He gripped his little fists tight and squared his shoulders. "I got to be shut up in the closet," he said.

"Oh, Billy! What an unlucky day! What have you done now?"

"I stold!" gulped Billy. "He said it was ist a mistake, but it was worser an' that. I took something you told me I wasn't to have."

"Stole!" Margaret was in despair. "What, Billy?"

"Cookies!" answered Billy in equal trouble. And he told her, "So I got to go in the closet."

Margaret gazed at him helplessly.

"Will you hold me tight a little bit first? He did."

Margaret opened her arms and Billy rushed in and clung to her a few seconds with all the force of his being, then he slipped to the floor and marched to the closet. Margaret opened the door. Billy gave one glance at the light, clinched his fists and, walking inside, climbed on a box. Margaret shut her eyes and closed the door.

Then she sat and listened. Was the air pure enough? Possibly he might smother. She had read something. She could bear it no longer. She arose hurriedly and opened the door. Billy was drawn up on the box in a little heap, and he lifted a disapproving face to her.

"Shut that door!" he said. "I ain't been in here near long enough yet!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Wherein Elnora Has More Financial Troubles, and Her Mother Again Refuses to Help Her.

THE next night Elnora hurried to Sinton's. She threw open the back door and searched Margaret's face with anxious eyes.

"You got it!" panted Elnora. "You got it! I can see by your face that you did. Oh, give it to me!"

"Yes, I got it, honey—I got it, all right, but don't be so fast. You can't have it before Saturday. It had been kept in such a damp place it needed gluing. It had to have strings, and a key was gone. I knew how much you wanted it, so I sent Wesley right to town with it. They said they could fix it good as new, but it should be varnished and that it would take several days for the glue to set. You can have it Saturday."

"Saturday morning?"

"He just said Saturday. But, Elnora, you've got to promise me that you will leave it here, or in town, and not let your mother get a hint of it. I don't know what she'd do."

"Uncle Wesley can bring it here until Monday. Then I will take it to school so that I can practice at noon. Oh, I don't know how to thank you."

Elnora lived by the minute until Saturday, when, contrary to his usual custom, Sinton went to town in the forenoon, taking her along to buy some groceries. Sinton drove straight to the music store and asked for the violin he had left to be mended.

In its new coat of varnish, with new keys and strings, it looked greatly like any other violin to Sinton, but to Elnora it was the most beautiful instrument ever made and a priceless treasure. She held it in her arms, touched the strings softly and then she drew the bow across them in whispering measure. She had no time to think what a remarkably good bow it was for sixteen years' disuse. The tan leather case might have impressed her as being in fine condition also had she been in a state to question anything.

She Drew the Bow Across Them In Whispering Measure.

She did remember to ask for the bill and she was gravely presented with a slip calling for four strings, one key and a coat of varnish, total $1.50.

As soon as her work was done she ran down to Sinton's and began to play, and on Monday the violin went to school with her. She made arrangements with the superintendent to leave it in his office and scarcely took time for her food at noon, she was so eager to practice. Her skill was so great that the leader of the orchestra offered to give her lessons if she would play to pay for them, so her progress was rapid in technical work. But from the first day the instrument became hers, with perfect faith that she could play as her father did, she spent half her practice time in imitating the sounds of all outdoors and improvising the songs her happy heart sang.

The richest woman in Europe, next to Frau Krupp von Bohlen, owes her fortune to the beet sugar industry. Mme. Lebaudy, mother of Jacques, emperor of Sahara, is worth at least $40,000,000. She holds her wealth in horror and lives under an assumed name in order to avoid publicity. Her residence all the year round is a small flat in Versailles, where the domestic staff consists of one servant, who is assisted in the work by her mistress. Mme. Lebaudy gives away pretty nearly the whole of her income.

TINY ELECTRIC IONS.

Science Says They Are the Smallest Units In the World.

We used to think that about the smallest thing in the world was an atom of hydrogen. In fact, it was taken as the unit by which the atomic weight of all metals was expressed. For instance, the smallest possible division of the metal lead was found to be 206 times that of hydrogen, gold 196 times, etc.

Hand in hand, however, with the modern conception of the nature of the electric current, has come a new conception of infinitude in small things. Now, they say, the smallest thing in the world divisable by the hand of man is the electric ion. This is the individual unit of electricity, the moving part of a current when it passes through a wire. It is so small that it can run through a copper bar at a speed of 186,000 miles a second without turning corners. Electric ions trickle through a copper wire in much the same way as grains of sand through a sieve.

Scientists, armed with instruments considerably finer than grocery store scales, have isolated and measured them and found that their relation to that lightest of all gases, hydrogen, is as one to the seventeenth power of ten, or, in other words, the fraction representing their relation to an atom of hydrogen is expressed by a millionmillion-millionth.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Kaiser's Title.

The general council of Edinburgh university has made the usual error in nomenclature by referring to the kaiser, apropos of the honor recently conferred on the principal of the university by his imperial majesty, as the "emperor of Germany." This title was expressly denied at the time the empire was established in 1871. The proper form is "German emperor" ("Deutscher kaiser"), the only appellation officially used in Germany.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE THIBETAN TEA.

It Forms an Almost Indispensable Part of His Daily Fare.

Father Huc, the missionary and explorer of Thibet a century or more ago, depicts in his delightful book "avalanches" of laden yaks pouring down the mountain sides. The early critics of this book pronounced this very amusing, but to be taken merely as a picturesque relief to what the worthy priest feared would be a dull narrative. Nevertheless, it is now known to be quite true. Yaks still make the glissade on the icy passes when carrying tea over the mountains from China to the interior of Thibet. The Thibetan must have his tea. It is his mainstay—his life. The nomads of these lofty plains have absolutely no crops. They have no pigs nor fowls. Their herds of yaks and their flocks of goats and sheep furnish them with meat, which they eat fairly often, and with milk, cream, and especially butter, which they consume in astonishing quantities. The national dish, indeed, is a sort of gruel made by boiling parched barley meal and mixing into it as it cooks a goodly proportion of buttered tea.

All the tea and most of the barley used in Thibet comes from China, and nearly all by a single road which leads across the rough mountains of Sze-Chuan. It is the best road in western China because most traveled and cared for; yet on the mountain passes—one ten thousand feet high—the tea-carriers in winter must wear climbing-irons, and pack horses descend mostly by falling on the glairy trail and rolling and gliding, load and all, until they bring up gently in loose snow and bushes at the bottom. The Thibetan yaks know better. They sit down on their haunches, as Huc tells us, and skilfully slide.

This precarious road is traversed by an endless stream of porters carrying bales of tea west and bales of skins, etc., eastward—bales which frequently weigh three hundred pounds. They form a guild very jealous of their caste, and will not allow any horses to be bred or used on the fertile plain of the Min River, near the border, for fear of encroachment on their monopoly—a trade-union centuries old. In addition to the usual traffic via Tatsien-lu, a great caravan of tea goes twice a year from Song-panting to cross Thibet as far as the great lake Kokonoor. All the nomads know of its coming, and at each halting place families assemble from far and near to buy a half-year's supply of tea in exchange for goatskins, yak hair, etc. These traveling merchants (Chinese) are in no danger from the tribes through which they regularly pass, to whose chiefs tribute is paid, but are as likely as any other caravan to be robbed by outsiders, so that military precautions must surround every movement, since nowhere on earth is society composed so wholly of Ishmaelites as that of eastern Thibet.

IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS!

Mothers should know just why Zam-Buk is so effective in cases of rashes, scalp sores, pimples and eruptions on babies and young children.

Most ordinary salves contain animal oil and fat. Every housewife knows that if animal oil or fat be left exposed to air for any length of time putrefactive changes must occur. These changes occur none the less even if they are hidden by scent.

Now, any salve which sinks into the pores enters the blood. You would not feed your child impure food. Why put into its blood rancid animal fats?

Zam-Buk contains no trace of animal fat or oil, or any mineral poison. It is compounded of healing herbal juices and essences.

Applied to cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries, it allays pain, kills disease germs and heals. Sold everywhere at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

REVENGE

Her Better Nature Conquered

By CLARISSA MACKIE

After it was all over and he was home again Willoughby Jones-Derrick stretched himself comfortably before his own hearthstone and agreed that it had turned out very well indeed—exactly as he had planned.

Mrs. Silvester had worn the yellow roses he had sent. He had reckoned on her looking especially well at the Ponsonby dance, but she had been actually beautiful—her charming little figure gowned in pompadour silk, and above her soft black eyes gleamed that crown of silvery white hair which distinguished her among the other women of her set—and uncertain age.

At just the right moment—when she was slightly bored with the commonplaces of the ballroom, when the first flavor of the dancing had departed—he had rescued her from the idiotic attentions of a worshiping youth and carried her off to a secluded nook in the conservatory which he had previously marked for the purpose.

Here, amid the tinkle of fountains and the plash of goldfish in the marble basins, with now and then a lulling murmur of music from the distant ballroom, amid the heavy scent of exotic flowers and the pure fragrance of countless roses, Willoughby solemnly and somewhat heavily, as became a Jones-Derrick, asked Lucia Silvester to marry him.

The result of this was that when they parted a few hours later Lucia was wearing beneath her little white glove the engraved emerald which was the traditional engagement ring of the Jones-Derricks and Willoughby had her promise that in the approaching Indian summer they would be married.

All this had been the result of careful planning and almost painful forethought on the part of Willoughby Jones-Derrick. He had lived forty-nine years of his life in the firm determination to die a bachelor. He loved too well the luxury of living for himself alone to share his liberal income with a wife who at best might shine brilliantly at costly entertainments and deplete a fortune which was ample for a prudent bachelor.

And in his fiftieth year his business agent reported that those sources whence came his inherited income were in danger of total elimination, even now were divided by one-half, and there was no escape from the impending doom of poverty except a good marriage. The impending doom was a secret between Willoughby and his agent. The idea of the good marriage was Willoughby's own. Quietly he had gone about it, and the result was most gratifying. There would be no cause for wonderment that the rich clubman should marry one of the richest widows in town.

So the last of the Jones-Derricks dreamily consumed several gold tipped cigarettes while he pondered the advantages of the new life that would open when he assumed the responsibility of becoming Lucia Silvester's second husband. It was a very pleasant outlook, for he admired Lucia as much as it was within his power to admire any one save his own punctilious self.

He frowned as he remembered the existence of the child, Annabel Silvester, and smiled when he recollected that little Annabel was safely ensconced in a French convent from which she would not emerge for some time.

Then he dismissed all disagreeable thoughts with a flirt of his cigarette into the grate.

It was quite two weeks afterward that Willoughby Jones-Derrick dropped into Mrs. Silvester's for a cup of tea. The drawing room was empty, but bore evidence of recent occupation.

"The ladies will be down immediate, sir," said the obese butler.

Jones-Derrick's brows were elevated for a brief instant and then crumpled into a frown. He had a beastly headache and did not feel like talking to a lot of chattering women; he needed Lucia's low, thrilling voice and quiet presence to charm away his indisposition.

"It's only Miss Annabel, sir," explained Martin discreetly. "She just arrove an hour ago, sir."

Willoughby stared haughtily at the presumptuous menial, and when the broad back had disappeared with undignified haste he transferred his gaze to his hat.

He felt that this unexpected intrusion of little Annabel would prove an obstruction to his present happiness. He would impress it upon Lucia that the child should be returned at—

The door closed gently, and he lifted his cold gray eyes and looked straight into the great brown orbs of—Anne Lange; Anne Lange, grown beautiful, her red hair softened to a less objectionable shade than when he had last seen her in a paint stained holland apron. Her creamy skin was guiltless of its powdering of golden freckles and her perfect features rendered more exquisite by the simplicity of her coiffure and the delicate beauty of her gown; the same Anne Lange he had known in Paris, only not the same. The innocent confidence had gone from the eyes, and only hard scorn remained—for him. That contemptuous curl of the lip was for him too. Who would have expected to meet poor little Anne Lange in Mrs. Silvester's drawing room? Certainly not Willoughby Jones-Derrick.

He slowly rose to his feet and grasped his hat and cane with the desperate clutch of one who holds fast to some firm support. He met the satirical gleam of her eyes with wavering fear in his own.

"Anne—Miss Lange!" he gasped confusedly.

She bowed coldly.

A light came to him with startling suddenness.

"You are governess to the little girl, Annabel. That explains your presence here, I suppose?" he said, regaining his self possession with a masterful effort.

She smiled unpleasantly. He had not dreamed that Anne could have looked so vindictively at any one—romantic little Anne! She must have cared for him, indeed, and a thrill of regret stirred him that she could not be for him after all.

"And suppose I am the governess?" she inquired at last, and her beautiful contralto voice caused another thrill within his chill, well ordered interior.

"You know I am engaged to Mrs. Silvester?"

She nodded carelessly.

"Mrs. Silvester is very particular—very particular indeed," he began assuredly. "I am sure she would not care for a governess who"— He floundered under her scornful glance.

"Who had once been engaged to you, who once wore the historic emerald on her plebeian, paint stained hand," she finished mockingly. She lifted one slim white hand and contemplated it thoughtfully.

"I was going to say more than that," he said, vindictive in his turn, and his eyes betrayed the length to which he would go.

"If you said more than that you would lie." She spoke with a calm dignity that set oddly on one so young. "I knew you were here and came down to prepare you for my appearance. Mrs. Silvester shall not know I have ever seen you before unless you force me to tell her. I am not proud of that little episode in my life. I was only sixteen, but I believed in you. Two years is a long time, and now I am a woman. You— Ah, here is mother now."

"Annabel!" Mrs. Silvester's astonishment was blended with laughter and well simulated confusion as she gave her hand to Willoughby.

"Annabel?" squeaked that gentleman pitifully.

Annabel courtesied mockingly. "Annabel Lange Silvester, who tired of convent life and spent a year in Paris studying art, who tired of art and went back to the convent and who has come home and surprised her dear mamma by being so grown up!"

"Darling, you positively shocked me," murmured Lucia Silvester, caressing the ruddy hair with one plump white hand. "I did not realize you were growing up. I have always thought of you as my little girl. Now I shall keep you hidden till after my wedding," she concluded, with an arch smile, at the disturbed face of her betrothed.

Willoughby Jones-Derrick was adjusting his slow moving faculties to this latest order of things.

First, it had been Anne Lange, a ghost out of his respectable past that might rattle its bones unpleasantly to the sound of wedding bells or hush those bells altogether, and this wedding meant his bread and butter—and cigarettes.

Now, it was Annabel, the stepdaughter, who confronted him; Annabel, his prospective stepdaughter, who turned out to have been his fiancee for several delicious weeks and whom he had heartlessly jilted when her youthful charms palled upon him. Even with her promise to forget the past warmth on her lips he wondered whether he could live with her and look on her each day as a slumbering volcano which might burst forth any moment and overwhelm him with the lava of truth. Women were treacherous, and had not a great poet said that "hell holds no fury like a woman scorned?"

"I have been making the acquaintance of Mr. Jones-Derrick," said Annabel, with a suddenly sweet smile. "He thinks I remind him of an old friend, and we squabbled over the matter. Now we shall bury the hatchet, shall we not?" She extended her cool hand.

Willoughby grasped it eagerly, and tears of relief almost forced themselves to his fine eyes. "Yes," he said, with the stiff heartiness that was his nearest approach to friendliness.

"I thought mother was all alone, and so I came home to take care of her—girls have such funny ideas." Annabel's voice was honey sweet.

"I have given that right to Mr. Jones-Derrick," smiled Mrs. Silvester over the teapot.

"I will take care of you both," said Willoughby ponderously.

Annabel curled her lips scornfully, and they trembled with the quick words that would unmask the man before her and reveal his utter faithlessness to her mother. But, she thought, perhaps he was not to blame for tiring of her, a mere schoolgirl. Her beautiful mother was nearer his age and taste. Standing there, pale and cold, Annabel saw the lovelight shining in her mother's eyes, noticed the gray threads in Willoughby's thick hair, saw him wince—he was afraid of her.

Something that had choked her heart two years ago was suddenly swept away in a warm flood, and this warmth filled her beautiful eyes. She stepped forward and laid her hand on the clasped fingers of her mother and the man.

"Yes, mother, dear, your husband will take care of us—both. Let us all be happy," she said, throwing away all revenge and scorn.

Something hot and glistening fell on Annabel's hand, but her mother's eyes were dry and shining. She did not dare look at Willoughby Jones-Derrick.

The Pitt Diamond.

A historical diamond is the Regent or Pitt diamond. In weight it is 136¾ carats, and in clearness it is unrivaled. Its form is nearly perfect, its diameter and depth being almost equal. It was found in India and brought to England by Mr. Pitt, grandfather of the famous Earl of Chatham, and sold by him to the Duc d'Orleans for £180,000. It afterward decorated the royal crown of France, and Napoleon used it to ornament the hilt of his sword.

It is easier for some men to control their temper than it is to pay the bill that losing incurs.

A Candid King.

That it is not always wise to flatter the great is proved by a story of candid King George of England. The king is very proud of his skill as a shot; but like the rest of the world, he is sometimes "off color." On one occasion a man approached him and said, "I have been picking up your birds, your majesty." "That's all right," said the king. "How many have you?" "Thirteen," said the man. "You're a liar!" said the king, with disgust. "I've hit only eight."—New York Sun.

A Fish Tale.

A gentleman was strolling across a large estate when he came upon a man fishing.

"What sort of fish do you catch here?" he asked.

"Mostly trout," replied the man.

"How many have you caught?"

"About ten or twelve, sir."

"What is about the heaviest you have caught?" continued the gentleman.

"Well, I don't know the weight, but the water sunk two or three feet when I pulled it out."—New York Globe.

AND PUT THEM TO GOOD USE.

The Foolish Bear.

A Bear who had long concealed himself in a dense Jungle and rendered his presence a terror to the neighborhood by raiding the sheepfolds and calf pens one day entered the house of a Peasant and said:

"Base caitiff, I have come to complain of your inhumanity. The wool of your sheep sticks in my teeth, and you don't know how much bother I have with the bones of your calves."

"But what can I do?" protested the Peasant.

"Dress the meat for me," commanded the Bear.

The Peasant meekly agreed, and when the gory old Bear sallied out that night he found a shoulder of mutton hanging against the sheepfold. He carried it to his lair and made his meal, but he was hardly finished when he found his hind legs trying to tie a knot around his neck. He fell down and got up and keeled over, and as he realized the situation he gasped out:

"Alas, the Peasant not only dressed my mutton, but he will dress my hide as well! What a fool I was to complain when I got both the meat and the wool! Farewell, my countrymen—I'm a goner!"

Don't stand a creditor off till tomorrow when you can pay him today. Tell him to call next week.

The Goose and the Hare.

A Hare which was running away from pursuit came to a stream and was hesitating about making the plunge when a Goose alighted near him and inquired, "Pray, what is the matter, to put you in such a tremble?"

"I am pursued by the dogs."

"Oh, that's it. Well, the dogs won't touch me."

"But they will soon devour my meat unless I cross the stream. Please give me a lift on your back."

"You should have been born with less legs and more wings," chuckled the Goose, and she flew away and left the Hare to get across as best he could.

A few days subsequently the Hare was crossing a meadow when the Goose came running and fluttering and cried out:

"For mercy's sake, aid me to escape!"

"What's the trouble with you?"

"I am pursued by a man who seeks my quills and feathers, and unless you help me away I am doomed."

"Oh, that's it? Well, I have no quills nor feathers to lose."

"But you will help me to get away?"

"You should have been born with less wings and more legs," replied the Hare, and off he galloped.

It's a long lane which has no turn.

He Was Discharged.

"The prisoner is discharged."

"What's that, judge?"

"You are discharged, I say."

"But, judge, I pleaded guilty."

"I can't help that. Go on away."

"I pleaded guilty, your honor, and guilty I was, and I think I ought to go to jail."

"Will you keep still? The court is done with your case."

"The indictment charged me with using poisonous flavors in soda water, judge, and I certainly did. Now I want to pay the penalty."

"Once and for all, my man, I order you to quit bothering this court. You were charged with adulterating soda water. The evidence showed that you labeled your bottles 'sody water.' That lets you out. There is no law against putting impurities in sody water. The law refers only to soda water, s-o-d-a, soda."

"I had no intention of evading the law, judge. I spelt it s-o-d-y through ignorance. Can't you send me up for a month or so?"

"No, sir, not for a minute. The law is the law, and I am here to defend it from violation. Officer, throw this persistent person into the street."—Newark News.

Had His Nerve.

This story is being told of a well known London doctor. A friend came to consult him professionally, and after the consultation was finished the doctor wrote out a prescription.

"You had better have this made up at the chemists," he said. "It will probably cost you half a crown."

"Half a crown!" the patient exclaimed. "All right, I'll get it made up." Then, as he turned to go, he added, "I say, could you lend me half a crown to pay it with?"

The doctor gasped. He recovered in a second, however, and asked for the prescription. The patient handed it back, and after the doctor had scratched out one item in it he returned it again, together with a sixpence.

"You can get what is left made up for sixpence," he remarked dryly. "What I scratched out was for your nerves."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SINGULAR PLURALS.

We'll begin with a box and the plural is boxes,
But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.
Then one fowl is goose, but two are called geese,
Yet the plural of moose should never be meese.
You may find a lone mouse or a whole lot of mice,
But the plural of house is houses, not hice.
If the plural of man is always called men
Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?
The cow in plural may be cows or kine,
But a bow if repeated is never called bine,
And the plural of vow is vows, not vine.
And if I speak of a foot and you show me your feet
And I give you a boot would a pair be called beet?
If one is a tooth and the whole set are teeth
Why shouldn't the plural of both be called beeth?
If the singular is this and the plural is these Should the plural of kiss be nicknamed keese?
Then one may be that and three would be those,
Yet hat in the plural would never be hose,
And the plural of rat is rats, not rose.
We speak of a brother and also of brethren;
But, though we say mother, we never say methren.
Then masculine pronouns are he, his and him,
But imagine the feminine she, shis and shim!
So the English, I think you all will agree,
Is the most wonderful language you ever did see.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

How Careless!

A circus man tells a story illustrating how soft hearted and sympathetic some of the ringmasters are when the acrobats get hurt. The heroine of the story was a girl who did the four horse act, the six horse act, the trapeze and the flying bar, for all of which she received the princely remuneration of $40 a week.

One day she fell forty feet from the trapeze and, landing precipitately and ill advised on her left wrist, broke the bone near the elbow. The ringmaster ran up and sympathized as follows, with certain profane remarks which are here excluded:

"What in thunder do you mean by falling out of that trapeze? I'm a son of a gun if some of you ginks don't try to put a crimp into this show every time we lift the tent!"—Popular Magazine.

Slightly Mixed.

General Adam Badeau told a good story of a visit he once made in London with two friends. They had been invited to a swell reception in the west end, and when they arrived they were met by a flunkey of gigantic stature, with nose high in the air.

"Names, please," he said. And the spokesman replied modestly, "General Badeau, Colonel Grant and Colonel Cook."

With imposing stride the flunkey advanced to the doors, threw them wide open and announced, "General Banjo, Colonel Drunk and the colonel's cook!"

RURAL CONVENIENCES

The President of the Dominion Grange has a very curious idea about the progress of the farmer. He says that the introduction of the telephone and the daily mail delivery is lessening the real worth of rural life. The old-time intimacy of the farmers is passing, and the new city conveniences are encouraging the migration of the country boys and girls to the city. The daily mail brings the big city paper, and it replaces the local weekly, with the local gossip. The telephone means that the social chat, and personal companionship disappears. The urbanising of country life is destroying many of the old-fashioned virtues.

All this may be more or less true, but what would Mr. Glendinning have? Would he have the farmers denied the opportunity to improve business, to keep better informed, to have the advantages of city life, so far as they can be given? Would he have the rural population stagnate in the tracks of their great grand fathers, lest the progress of business facilities, of modern pleasure, should give them real benefits?

It must be manifest that the Master of the Grange is talking through his hat. He cuts a most absurd figure when he deprecates the introduction of urban utilities into rural life. Good roads, the telephone, rural mail, are the greatest advantages of farm life to-day. They mean contact with the living world, not isolation and seclusion. They mean cheaper produce to the consumer, greater familiarity with the market chances by the farmer. In fact, to talk as if the telephone and daily mail were a detriment to rural life, and a promoter of discontent, is to talk something that cannot be classed as anything else but vapid twaddle.

CONTROL OF THE STREETS

The announcement that the new Railway Act will bring under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission the federally incorporated companies using city streets for power or pole line purposes, which received their charters before the Railway Commission Act, will be splendid news for the municipalities. It means that the municipalities will be able to get redress of their grievances against such companies the Bell Telephone, some of the power and light companies, through the Railway Commission. It has been a crying shame that the municipalities that wanted to do away with poles on their streets, or which vainly fought against new impositions on their good nature in this respect, should have had no redress. The municipalities ought to have control of their streets in every case, and the priority of chartering should not take it away.

The law courts having upheld the companies in their legal contentions, it remains for the Government to have Parliament enact such legislation as will upset the present terms of the law. To put such companies under the Railway Commission will add to the multifarious duties of that body, which has now so much to do that it should be enlarged. But it is a valuable advance, and as such the Borden Government is entitled to the warm thanks of the cities and towns, and the people in them.

PROMPTNESS

Promptness in getting out repair work is a specialty with us. Having our own Lens Grinding Plant enables us to replace almost any kind of lenses in from one to three hours.

It doesn't make any difference where you bought your glasses, if you save the pieces we can duplicate the lenses. We have a special instrument for neutralizing lenses which gives a positive accurate correction. We will make a record of your lenses and then it will not be necessary for you to save the pieces in future. If you bought your glasses from us, we have your correction on record and all you will have to do is to phone us which lense is broken, and we can have one ground for you when you call.

We can duplicate any kind of lense, including Toric, Flat, Kryptok, Semi-Invisible and all kinds of Bifocals. The next time you have an accident give us a call and investigate the facilities which we place at your service.

PASSING OF THE PRELATE

In the death of Bishop O'Connor, Peterborough loses a noble citizen and the church a devoted and kind administrator, and the Review extends its sympathy to the hundreds who mourn to-day at the passing away of the aged prelate.

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

The intimation by Hon. Frank Cochrane that the Government has no intention of leasing the intercolonial or making any other such disposition of the railway was only what was expected. The Intercolonial has in many respects lost the usefulness to the Maritime provinces that it had shortly after construction. It has been supplemented by so many other transportation media that it is no longer an essential link between the lower provinces and the Western part of the Dominion But it is still part of the Confederation Pact, part of the arrangement under which Nova Scotia and New Brunswick consented to join in the Dominion. As such the Dominion should feel in honor bound to maintain it as a Government road until the people of the lower provinces are clearly willing to surrender it. As a matter of fact, the intercolonial is now beginning to be worth something to the country. For years and years it was productive mainly of deficits, but the tide has turned with the increasing prosperity of the Dominion, and it is succeeding financially.

It is no coincidence that Mackenzie and Mann, the arch railway grabbers of the Dominion, should want to lay their claws on the Intercolonial, to complete their Transcontinental system. If they could, they would like to get the Intercolonial on easy terms. Sir William Mackenzie has made no bones about announcing his wish to acquire it. But the Dominion should have other uses for it. It is said on good authority that at one time the Laurier Government contemplated leasing it. Instead of making such a mistake the Government should extend it. The paralleling of the road with the National Transcontinental was a grievous mistake, but the Laurier administration abounded in these. The lower provinces have not got the benefit out of Confederation that they should have got. They have received the hard end of the stick If the Intercolonial can be made to give them an increased benefit, as coming from the Dominion, they should promptly receive all that can be given.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The curlers are getting almost as much rain as the baseball team did early last summer.

In bringing the Sheehan Opera Company to Peterborough the owners of the Grand are showing a good deal of enterprise and are taking a big risk, no doubt, in view of the poor attendance at some other big musical attractions earlier in the season. Music lovers of this city should turn out in large numbers to encourage Messrs. Turner & Sons in the good work.

LIBERALS APPROVE OF BILL BUT CONTINUE OBSTRUCTION

Charging That British Unionists Are in Alliance With Borden Government, A. K. Maclean Assails Hon. Mr. Foster for Speech in London — Minister Refuses to Be Drawn into Discussion of Preference.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—A bill confirming the reciprocity arrangement between Canada and the British West Indies occupied the attention of the House during the entire session yesterday. The Liberal members protested that they had no objection to the treaty, but none the less persistently obstructed the passage of the bill. During the afternoon, Opposition strove unsuccessfully to get up a discussion upon tariff reform in England, upon Imperial preference generally, and even, as a last resource, upon reciprocity. Hon. George E. Foster, who has charge of the bill, good-naturedly parried these attempts to distract the attention of the House, and in a short time secured a second reading and advanced the bill to the committee stage. There, however, it was obstructed by the Liberals until adjournment, and will probably be held up again to-day with a view to delaying the naval debate.

Hon. George E. Foster, in moving the second reading of his bill to bring into effect the reciprocity treaty between Canada and the British West Indies, said that he would not detain the House with any statement. The bill had been fully explained on the first reading, and the provisions of the treaty were well known to the public.

A. K. Maclean, Liberal member for Halifax, complained of the statement made by Mr. Foster in London last summer to the effect that no reciprocity agreement would have been made with the British West Indies had the Liberals won the last Dominion election.

He was becoming weary, he said, of the oft-repeated charge that reciprocity with the United States meant disloyalty to the Empire. This charge was being made by members of the Unionist party in Britain and by missionaries they sent out to Canada. He said the speeches made by Rt. Hon. Walter Long in this country constituted a gratuitous insult to the people of Canada, and were on a par with the "muddling and vacuous utterances" constantly proceeding from the English tariff reformers.

These remarks created a stir, as it so happened that Captain Long, A.D.C., of Government House, brother of Rt. Hon. Walter Long, and the young son of the latter were in the Speaker's gallery at the time.

Mr. Maclean described Mr. Foster's declarations to the British Unionists as "absolutely untrue, absolutely unfounded, and absolutely unworthy of himself," when Mr. Speaker Sproule stopped him and asked him to retract.

"I will not take time to debate the point of order now," replied Mr. Maclean, "so I will substitute the statement that his words were a cause of the greatest astonishment and surprise to his well-wishers."

Dr. Clark of Red Deer thought that Mr. Foster was a poor commercial agent for Canada. The Minister was circumnavigating the globe for the sake of getting better trade relations with Australia and New Zealand and the British West Indies, but was ignoring the United States. Our total trade with the British countries above-named was $60,000,000 and our trade with the United States $460,000,000.

Hon. T. White said it was useless to discuss reciprocity, because it was a dead issue in this country. The people had decided against it and there was now no popular demand for it except in a few districts. If another election were held to-morrow and reciprocity was the issue, the Liberals would be beaten twice as badly as they had been in 1911.

Mr. E. M. MacDonald, Liberal member for Pictou, N.S., and Hon. William Pugsley at the evening session endeavored to secure a declaration of policy from the Government upon the subject of Imperial preference. It was freely stated by the Unionist party in England, said Mr. Pugsley, that Canada would withdraw the preference unless a food tax was imposed by the United Kingdom. He desired to know what the understanding was between the Government and Mr. Bonar Law.

Mr. Foster replied good-humoredly that he did not propose to be drawn. He would at the proper time discuss Imperial preference, but just now he was anxious to have the bill before the House adopted. He added that the Government had no present intention of decreasing the British preference.

SECRETARY KNOX'S NOTE HOLDS OUT ARBITRATION PROPOSAL

U. S. Official Assures Sir Edward Grey That American Coastwise Trade Will Not Be Allowed to Compete In Foreign Commerce and That Other Nations Will Not Be Heavily Taxed To Make Up Rebate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Secretary Knox's reply to the British protest against the exemption of American coastwise shipping from Panama Canal tolls assures the British Government that domestic coastwise trade will not be permitted to extend operation into foreign competitive fields, and that increased tolls will not be laid on foreign shipping, to balance the remission to American ships. If Great Britain is not satisfied on these points the U. S. proposes a special commission of adjustment.

The communication is devoted to the point and number of the issues upon which the two Governments failed to agree, and as to these—only two—it is contended that they are entirely susceptible of adjustment by diplomatic means, and without recourse to arbitration.

If this course should not prove satisfactory to the British Government it is suggested that the whole controversy be referred to a special commission of enquiry, provision for which was made in the unratified Knox-Bryce general arbitration treaty. That convention was approved by the Senate, with an amendment which curtailed the power of the special commission of enquiry to mere investigation and report, and refused to permit the commission to bind either country to a course of arbitration in its findings. Because of this amendment President Taft has so far declined to consummate the treaty by exchange of ratifications with the British Government.

To meet the needs of this present issue Secretary Knox now offers to give life to the treaty by an immediate exchange of ratifications, which would ensure the existence of a general arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain after the lapse of the existing Hay-Pauncefote treaty, June 4 next. As an alternative, the Secretary is willing that a commission be created for the special purpose of ascertaining the facts in regard to the effect upon British shipping of the Panama Canal Tolls Act and the President's proclamation fixing the tolls.

Much of the secretary's argument rests upon his contention that Sir Edward Grey's protest, being made in advance of the issue of the President's proclamation fixing the tolls, is entirely inapplicable to the controversy in its present state, and that, as a matter of fact, the British contention rests upon apprehension of things that may happen in the future to the injury of British shipping, which in all probability will never occur.

Summarizing the British objections, and commenting upon them, Secretary Knox does not deny that Congress has the power, through the President, to violate the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in its aspect as a rule of municipal law. That, he says, would only become a just ground for complaint in the event that the power was used against British shipping. "It is the improper exercise of this power and not its possession which alone can give rise to an international cause of action," remarks the Secretary.

Only when complaint is made by Great Britain that British vessels actually have been subjected to unequal treatment or inequitable tolls, Secretary Knox asserts, can the question be raised whether the U. S. is bound by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to collect tolls from American vessels and whether vessels are entitled to equal treatment.

Photographic Power of Wood.

Experiments recently made at Washington have shown that a section of a tree trunk or of a branch cut across the grain possesses the power to impress upon a photographic plate in the dark a distinct image of itself, plainly showing the rings of growth. There is a great difference in the intensity of this power among different kinds of wood. The conifers (pines and firs) possess it in high degree. The wood is placed either in contact with the plate or at a short distance from it, and the exposure varies from half an hour to eighteen hours. Boards long exposed to the air, an oak box a hundred years old, rotten wood from a stump and even bogwood have been found still photographically active.—Washington Star.

The Viking's Bread.

A fellow of the University of Stockholm (Schitzten) has discovered a loaf of bread dating from the time of the vikings. Microscopic examination shows that the bread was made of the bark of the pine tree and the flour of peas. This discovery shows that peas were cultivated in Sweden 900 years after Christ. Few archaeological discoveries of bread have been made and very little bread dating from antiquity has been found. In 1906 a cooked loaf of wheaten flour (a find dating from the fourth century after Christ) was dug out of the ruins of an ancient castle in Boberg.—Harper's.

Mining In Schools.

Instruction in elementary mining is recommended by the British board of education for schools in mining districts. It is suggested that such instruction can be most effectively given not in separate and detached lessons, but in connection with the regular school subjects.

The Admiral and the Rudder.

The Turkish navy is better officered nowadays than in the time of the Crimean war. Henry Greville notes in his diary on June 6, 1854, meeting "Lord Carlisle, who is just returned from the east and told us a droll story of the admiral of the Turkish fleet. He was very seasick and ill and obliged to go to bed, when, hearing a noise which disturbed him, he inquired whence it proceeded, and on being told it was the rudder of the ship, he desired it might be immediately taken off."

A ruling of the Speaker in regard to the suffrage bill threatens to destroy all prospects of carrying the woman suffrage amendment in the British Commons.

Mr. E. H. Fitzhugh, former first vice-president of the Grand Trunk Railway, resigned the presidency of the Central Vermont Railway and Mr. E. J. Chamberlin was elected in his stead.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux has given notice that he will move a resolution in the House of Commons declaring that a state-owned cable between Canada and the United Kingdom is desirable.

A man damaged four pictures in the National Gallery in London yesterday with a two-foot rule. He smashed the glass and damages the canvasses—two by Constable—before he was seized by a policeman.

"Puff" Signaling.

The possibility that in wartime one side will interrupt the wireless signals of the other side has led Mr. James Means of Boston to call attention to the advantages of signals that can be seen. Mr. Means thinks that for aerial scouting "puff signals" would be useful. His plan is to let coloring matter into the exhaust pipe of the flying machine motor in such a manner that the burned gases will come from the pipe in large and small puffs of black smoke, to represent the dots and dashes of the Morse telegraphic code.—Youth's Companion.

TEMPLE BAND HELD ANNUAL

An Increase in Membership of Six —Four New Instruments

The Peterborough Temple Band held its annual meeting on Tuesday evening, and was attended by the bandsmen and their wives, with a good number of their friends. Previous to the meeting supper was provided by the bandsmens' wives, which was enjoyed by all present. Supper over, Bandsman W. Payton was appointed chairman for the evening, the duties of which he ably carried out; Mr. Payton is the oldest member of the band, has held every position of office, and, needless to say, is held in high esteem by the men. The chairman called on Band Sergeant Brown, Deputy Bandmaster Forde, Bandmaster Peryer and Secretary Hensley for speeches. The secretary read the balance sheet for the year, which proved very interesting. The band's income for the year was $857.58. This money is used for the purchasing of instruments, music and the general up-keep of the band. No member of the band at any time receives any payment for his services. During the year the band has purchased two cornets, one trombone, one snare drum, one monster bass, all of which are of first-class manufacture. Improvements are being made in the band hall. The membership during the year has increased from 33 to 39. The band desires to thank the general public for their kind support during the year. The serenading this year was a great success, and the financial results, together with the many kind regards and good wishes sent in, encourages the band to continue in its work. The band highly appreciates the kindness of the City Council, not only in their annual grant, but in the interest they take in the general work of the band; also the city press for the publicity it gives to the band.

During the evening a pleasant surprise was sprung upon Bandmaster Peryer, Deputy Forde and Secretary Hensley. To show their appreciation of the work these men are doing in the band, the men contributed and gave to Bandmaster Peryer a watch; Deputy Forde a set of brushes, and Secretary Hensley, a fountain pen. Needless to say, the recipients were surprised, but none the less appreciative of the kind thought of the men. Addresses were read by W. Payton, while the presentation were made by T. Richardson. Bandsman Gandy, [illegible] Harry Edminson made short speeches. The last speaker was one of the first members of the band and still takes a lively interest in the band.

The meeting was brought to a close by Captain Watkinson giving a very able address of encouragement and band work. The band is looking forward to a more successful year than last, and the membership is stronger and better equipped. There is an application for the band to visit Montreal and Ottawa during the the summer, and the band will go if arrangements can be made.

ADMITS STEALING SUIT OF CLOTHES

Albert Edwards Remanded Till Wednesday for Sentence

Charged with stealing a suit of clothes valued at $7.50, Albert Edwards pleaded guilty this morning at Police Court, and was remanded for sentence until January 29th.

The clothes were the property of William Albright who had deposited them in a trunk in the stables of the Grand Hotel. Suspicion pointed to Edwards and he was arrested last night.

The things that are put off until to-morrow are usually finished just 24 hours late.

WEDDING BELLS

MURPHY—O'SHEA.

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at St. Basil's Church, Toronto, by Rev. Father Kelley, when Miss Mona O'Shea, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. O'Shea, formerly of Peterborough, was married to Mr. Sterndale Joseph Murphy.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, wore a very becoming travelling costume of navy broadcloth, with Oriental trimming, with French hat and muff of swansdown. She wore the groom's gift, a diamond pin. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Olive O'Shea, of Norwood, who is attending Loretta Abbey, in a navy tailored suit, with large white beaver hat. Her present from the groom was a bracelet set with pearls. Mr. Floyd Tranmer supported the groom.

At the offertory of the mass, which followed the ceremony, Mr. Curtis Brown sang Gounod's "Ave Marie," and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left immediately afterwards for a trip to the Mediterranean, and will reside in Toronto after their return in May.

HAS GOOD CHANCE FOR RECOVERY

Samuel Dancy Injured in Accident at Railway Crossing

A report this afternoon stating that Samuel Dancy, was dead, is not correct. The patient has a good chance for recovery.

He was injured yesterday afternoon at the Stewart street crossing of the C.P.R., when a yard engine struck his wagon and team.

He received a bad scalp wound and bruises. One of the horses was killed. The ambulance hurried Mr. Dancy to Nicholls Hospital where Dr. Sutton gave attendance. The injured man resides on Charlotte St.

Park St. Notes

The Men's Social Club of the Park Street Baptist Church meets tonight at 8 o'clock. A bloodless battle of ping-pong and carpet ball will be fought for the benefit of all who attend. Every man is invited. The Helping Hand Bible Class meets every Sunday at 3 p.m. The subjects for Sunday will be as follows: 11 a.m., "The Democracy of Jesus Christ," and in the evening at 7 o'clock, "Religious Turn-Coats."

FAMOUS CELLIST DIES AT END OF HIS LITTLE PLAY

Passed Away Suddenly After Playing "Home Sweet Home."

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Auguste Van Biene, known to theatrical audiences all over the world as the composer and player of "The Broken Melody," died on the stage of the Hippodrome at Brighton last night, aged 63 years. The haunting refrain of "The Broken Melody" had inspired over six thousand theatres audiences before its composer brought its career to an end. "If I had not done so," he once said, "it would have driven me to a lunatic asylum."

"The Master Musician" was its successor, and like "The Broken Melody," it afforded Van Biene opportunities for his wonderful 'cello playing. Three solos were his share of the melody. The last was that of "Home, Sweet Home." At its conclusion the curtain is rung down on the musician, who has collapsed in a chair. Van Biene went through the act at two performances last night. When he fell back in the chair in the second performance nobody in the audience thought it more than the prescribed dramatic finish to the scene. The stage manager, however, noticed an unaccustomed realism, and the curtain was rung down more hurriedly than usual. When the stage manager went to the actor he found he was past human aid. Van Biene was dead.

Hydro for Short.

At one of the meetings held in London in the interests of the new Hydro-Electric scheme, a good story on Hon Adam Beck was told. It was said that Mr. Beck was traveling through the country, and, being thirsty, entered a farm house to get a drink, when he heard the farmer's wife address her young son as "Hydro." Mr. Beck was immediately interested in the name and asked how he came by it. "Oh," said the woman, "he was christened Adam Beck, but we call him 'Hydro' for short."

AFTER ABSENCE OF FIFTY YEARS

Mr. George Wheeler, Sr., Visited His Brother and Sister

Mr. George Wheeler, Sr., of East City, returned yesterday morning after a six weeks' trip to Worcester, Eng., where he visited his brother and sister whom he had not seen for 50 years. Mr. Wheeler reports a great change has taken place where he spent his boyhood days. He had a rough passage on the return trip.

NATIONALIST DIES.

But Another Has Returned to Derry From Canada.

LONDONDERRY, Jan. 24.—Another Nationalist has died, but his death is neutralized by the arrival of one from Canada.

Intensity of feeling on both sides in the Londonderry fight is not to be measured by the speeches of Colonel Pakenham and Mr. Hogg, which in both cases are notable for absence of sectarian or personal bitterness.

Col. Pakenham has expressed his opposition to home rule in calm, reasoned argument, but the extreme attitude of Ulster to the measure found expression in the speech of Deputy Lieutenant Heidman of Tyrone, who said: "If by any mischance home rule is forced on us we in Ulster have another alternative which we mean to use. That is, to protect ourselves we will take the law into our own hands in North Tyrone.

"We have fifteen Unionist clubs, all very much alive, all going through the drudgery of drill, being taught the use of arms, so as to be ready to obey their commanders when the time comes to defend their country to death, should the necessity arise.

"Nationalists taunt us that Ulster's resistance is all brag and bluster; we mean to show them it is stern reality."

MISHAP MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

Mr. Wilt Metheral Missed Fracture of Thigh by Close Margin.

Mr. Wilt Metheral met with a painful accident this morning while working at the Quaker Oats Company. He was assisting another man to carry out a heavy box of castings from the shipping room into a box car beside the platform, each man having an end of the box. Mr. Metheral was proceeding backwards, and when just inside the car he tripped and fell, and the heavy end of the box fell upon his thigh. In an almost miraculous manner the leg escaped being fractured. The injured man was carried into the office, and after the injury had been attended to he was taken home. The limb was very badly and painfully bruised.

A man owes a lot to his wife that he never pays back, especially car fare.

NEW EMPIRE IS NOW OPENED IN NEW ONTARIO "CLAY BELT"

Already Busy Little Towns Are In Existence Along the Great Transcontinental Highway Round About Cochrane and For 180 Miles East—The Scenery Is Not Much But the Land Is Reel Wheat Soil.

With Government-operated trains on the completed sections of the National Transcontinental Railway east and west of Cochrane, a big slice of the hinterland of Ontario and Quebec will come within the ken of the people of the rest of Canada. The scene-shifters, or in this case the railroad-builders, have long been busy preparing the stage, and now the curtain is about to rise on a new setting in the national drama. On hearing the announcement of a through train from Winnipeg to Cochrane one is impelled to ask: What of this country beyond the height of land? What of the scenery, the resources, the possibilities of this new empire of the north?

Roughly speaking, the steel is down for one hundred and eighty miles east of Cochrane, while to the west it is completed to Winnipeg. To the eastward there is still a considerable gap to be completed before a through connection can be made to Quebec.

From the scenic standpoint the new road can scarcely be said to add much to the sum-total of Canada's picturesque rail routes. The country traversed is almost uniformly level, save where the rivers have gouged out deep valleys in their course northward. It is in effect a great forest-clad plain, intersected by numerous watercourses. Occasionally a rock-cut is encountered; sometimes a lake is sighted, but, generally speaking, the railway is carried straight along mile after mile through a wide avenue cut out of the forest.

The rivers provide the principal variety in the scene. They are fine bodies of water—some, like the Abitibi, flowing deep and slow; others like the Nagagami, being shallow and swift. From the Bell River on the east to the Kenogami on the west, at least thirty streams of goodly size are crossed—all tributary either directly or indirectly to James Bay. Splendid steel bridges span the majority of them, though beyond the Missanabie to the west permanent steel structures have not yet replaced the temporary wooden trestles. Viewed from the bridges, the river valleys furnish vistas of much attractiveness, which are a decided relief to the wall of forest that otherwise limits the view.

The Abitibi Lakes, lying in the district between forty-five and eighty-five miles east of Cochrane, and to the south of the railway, are the largest bodies of water encountered. There are two of them, known respectively as the Upper and Lower lakes. Both are comparatively shallow, with pretty tree-clad shores and numerous islands. Makamik Lake and Robertson Lake, further east, are the only other lakes lying in that direction, while to the west there is practically none at all in the immediate neighborhood of the road.

With some slight variations, the character of the soil is uniform both east and west, with perhaps a slight superiority one hundred miles west of Cochrane and beyond. Competent authorities pronounce it to be equal to the best soil in old Ontario, and experiments tried at the camps of the engineers all along the line demonstrate its capacity for growing all kinds of root crops with surprising results. At the same time it would be misleading to claim that grain can be grown successfully in this country under present conditions. The danger from early frosts is not to be ignored, and until wide stretches are cleared and drained the presence of so much shade and moisture will continue to be a menace. In growing hay and root crops the early settlers are finding sufficient scope for their activities.

Naturally settlement is sparse, but a beginning has been made. In the neighborhood of Cochrane, the Ontario Government has been actively engaged this year in road-building, and already some hundred thousand acres have been settled. At Harricana River, on the Quebec side of the interprovincial boundary, the Quebec Government has also been doing colonization work. About fifteen miles of road has been constructed along the river north and south, and three hundred farm lots have been sold to French-Canadian settlers. A little village has sprung into being on the east side of the river, with one or two stores, a laundry and a bakery. As an indication of the "boom" that attended the establishment of the place, it might be mentioned that the sale of town lots brought from $80 to $330 apiece.

At Robertson Lake, and again at the Okikodosik River, on the boundary, several lots have been sold, but owing to the lack of roads there has been very little settlement. The former point marks the first division east of Cochrane, and here the town of O'Brien has been laid out. It will eventually become a place of some importance, owing to its location on the railway, but none of the town lots has been sold as yet. There are odd settlements here and there elsewhere east of Cochrane, but very little land has been cleared.

West of Cochrane almost the same situation exists, and one does not need to travel many miles before the last vestiges of civilization are passed. Then after an interval of one hundred miles or more the little outpost town of Hearst is reached. Hearst is the first divisional point west of Cochrane, and it already boasts quite a population. All round lies an excellent farming district. Beyond Hearst there is no sign of human habitation save the construction camps and the various engineers' residences.—W. A. Craick in The Globe.

The Onion.

Alexander found the onion in Egypt, where the Hebrews had learned to like it. He had it cultivated in Greece and given as food to his troops in the belief that it excited martial ardor. Whosoever wishes to preserve his health, says an ancient saw, should eat every morning before breakfast young onions and honey. But this does not sound like a very tempting preservative.

FANTASTIC WALL PAPER.

Weird Story of the Creation of One Parisian Design.

The post impressionist wall paper has made its appearance.

A member of one of the largest manufacturing concerns in England has just returned from Paris, where he has been to buy designs. He was unable to make more than a very limited selection, fearing that the British taste would never respond to the weird French patterns.

But the craze for these post impressionist wall papers is spreading rapidly, and it is only a question of time before these astonishing productions are seen in London.

The true story related by a celebrated French designer of how he hit upon a post impressionist design goes far to explain the kind of wall paper now in vogue. This artist in decoration found he could not draw badly enough to procure that effect of rude naivete and childish ignorance which distinguishes the new art. In despair he turned to his domestic servant and insisted that she should abandon dustpan and broom and go into the studio and design a wall paper. Protesting to tears that she did not even know how to begin, she was nevertheless provided with colors and brushes and compelled to make a pattern. That design is one of the best from a selling point of view to be seen in Parisian shops.—London Cor. New York Sun.

DOOM OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

The City Is Sinking Into the Depths of the Earth.

According to Herr Hedemeyer, the Austrian seismologist, Constantinople is a city doomed to destruction. There is a seething crater under the city and its environs, and the land is subsiding. This unequal sinking of the land has caused the defects recently discovered in the mosque of Santa Sophia and in other famous buildings in the region roundabout.

Earthquakes are shaking it, landslides are undermining it, and some day when the last northern invaders ascend the rose clad Rhodopes and look for the city of Justinian and Solyman the Magnificent they will find it no more. Its cloud capped towers and its gorgeous kiosks, minarets, serais and cypress shadowed tombs will have perished and left not a wrack behind. So say the geologists.

It is only a question of time. If an earthquake does not destroy the city, then subsidence will. It may take a thousand years; it may take a day. But it is certain that a thousand years hence all the present lower levels of Constantinople, including the Bosporus palaces, will have sunk beneath the sea.—New York Press.

Sure, but Not Certain.

The Witness—Oh, yes; I can swear to it, but I wouldn't bet on it.—New York Globe.

Huge Stamp Thefts.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Enormous frauds against the Government through the illegal trafficking in stolen postage stamps have been unearthed by postoffice inspectors.

Reports received yesterday by Postmaster Hitchcock show that the frauds have been conducted on so tremendous a scale that they involve at least $2,000,000 annually.

LEGENDS OF ST. SOPHIA.

Quaint Tales of the Beautiful Mosque In Constantinople.

"Famed throughout the world for its beautiful architecture, the mosque of St. Sophia has a legend that acquires sudden interest now," writes a European correspondent of the Chicago News.

"Originally the mosque was a Christian church. The priest was in the act of celebrating mass on that memorable 29th day of May, 1453, when Sultan Mohammed rode his horse into the sacred edifice, followed by his victorious Turks, and began slaughtering the Christians. The priest fled from the altar, passing through a small door behind it, but when the pursuing Turks reached the spot, intending to follow the priest, they found but a blank wall. The door had disappeared, and all traces of the fugitive were gone.

"But the story goes that when once again the mosque of St. Sophia becomes a Christian place of worship the wall will open of its own accord and reveal the secret door, out of which the aged priest will step forth to conclude the celebration of the mass at the altar.

"Another legend, recounted even by the Turks themselves, tells of two monumental candles built into the apse of the mosque. On every high Christian festival these candles are supernaturally set alight. When these candles are quite burned down into their sockets the Turkish domination will be over and the mosque of holy wisdom will be a Christian church once more."

ALUMINIUM GARMENTS.

Their Wearers Look as Though They Had Been Dipped In Silver.

Aluminium, as is well known, is extracted from clay. It was Napoleon who styled it "the silver of clay." Formerly it was the practice to extract it from the clay by means of retorts. More recently the electrical current has been employed for this purpose and with marked success, the cost of production of this valuable and by no means fully utilized metal thus having been very much reduced. In 1850 a pound of aluminium cost about $40; nowadays it costs only about 20 cents.

Above all other metals, aluminium has the greatest specific lightness with the greatest durability and toughness it can be rolled out and drawn exceedingly fine. This has made aluminium valuable and useful in the textile industries.

The fabrics made from aluminium do not require combination with other textile yarns. Of late the most beautiful effects have been obtained by employing aluminium in smooth as well as in twisted threads for the warp and for the weft silk yarn of any desired color. These fabrics are used in the making of evening cloaks and of theatrical costumes. Such a fabric has, it is said, the effect of causing its wearer to look as if she had been "dipped in silver."—Harper's Weekly.

The Great Libraries.

Forty-six miles of books, which represent nearly 4,000,000 volumes, form the largest library in the world, that of the British museum. Oddly enough, although the largest and admittedly the most valuable library in existence, that at the British museum is also the "youngest" of the great libraries of the world. The other most famous ones, such as the Vatican library, the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris and the Royal library at Munich, had whole centuries the start of it, yet now the only one of them that approaches it in size is the Paris library, which is next biggest, with 3,500,000 volumes. Third place is occupied by the Imperial library at St. Petersburg, which contains 1,881,623 books, while the United States claims fourth for the Congressional library in Washington, with 1,793,158.

Old Time Delicacies.

Swans are coming back into favor as a dish for the table. This reversion to the tastes of our forefathers may lead to a demand for other delicacies once held in high esteem. In the thirteenth century the heron, the crane, the crow, the cormorant and the bittern were considered excellent food. But for some undiscovered reason the hare and the partridge were despised, and in the houses of the notables neither was ever seen. Another dish favored by our ancestors was dillegrout. This must have been a special delicacy, for the lord of the manor of Addington held his tenure on the condition of his presenting the king every year with a dish "called dillegrout, and if fat be added then it is called malpigeryum."—London Chronicle.

Culture Pearls.

The British commercial attache at Yokohama reports that considerable export business is done with Europe and America in Japanese "culture" pearls, which, although in appearance and nature the same as the natural oyster pearl, are obtained from oysters by a special process at the Mikimoto pearl culture farm in the bay of Ago, a small bay inside the gulf of Ise. The "culture" pearl has to be cut off from the shell, whereas the natural pearl is found free in the oyster. Consequently in the case of the former one part of the pearl is inferior in appearance, and this accounts for the large difference in value between natural and "culture" pearls.

A Popular Map.

Belgium has issued a military map, which is on sale. Her general staff were amazed when 38,000 copies were bought for the German army. Belgium's neutrality is "guaranteed" by the powers, but as a good route to Paris lies that way the maps might come handy.

CHINA PAST AND PRESENT

Unfriendly Prejudice Has Given Way to Desire for Gospel

Rev. W. H. Chandler and Dr. Glover were the speakers at the Convention in the Bethany Tabernacle yesterday.

In the afternoon Dr. Glover drew some striking contrasts between conditions in China eighteen years ago and at the present time. Then the doors were closed but now they are open everywhere, and the missionaries are welcomed and sought by the Chinese. Unfriendly prejudice has given way to desire for the Gospel and also for western learning. Former conservatism has given way to a progressive spirit. Where a few years ago there were no railroads, steam navigation or postal system and a very limited telegraph communication, now all these facilities are available, making evangelism a much more easy task than formerly.

Mr. Chandler then took up the subject of "Healing," reading from Matthew 8, 1-17. The question was asked "Does Jesus heal to-day?" Taking up the first case of healing in the passage read, vs. 1 to 4, we see Jesus' willingness to heal. In verses 5 to 13 we see that at the word of Jesus and through the faith of the man, the servant was healed. Verses 14-15, at the touch of Jesus, Peter's wife's mother was healed. Verses 16-17, Healing is provided in the atonement of Christ.

In Psalm 103, and Isaiah 53; 4-6, we see healing and forgiveness of sin yoked together. Why then take the one and reject the other. This Divine provision is for God's children and in James 5; we read, Is any among you sick (believers) let him pray."

In the evening Dr. Glover's address was a reply to the oft repeated question as to the influence of the recent Revolution and the new Republican regime in China upon mission work.

Mr. Chandler's address was the closing one of a most helpful series. His text was II Corinthians, 2; 4, and his theme was Victory.

This evening Dr. Glover will give the closing address of the Convention on the subject of Missions. An offering will be taken for missionary work.

EVIDENTLY A FOREIGNER.

The Talkative Barber Couldn't Understand Higher English.

"How will you have your hair cut, sah?" said the talkative barber to the man in the chair.

"Minus conversational prolixity," replied the patient.

"How's dat, sah?"

"With abbreviated or totally eliminated narrations."

"Guess I don't catch on yit, boss."

"With quiescent mandibulars."

"Which?"

"Without effervescent verbosity."

"Sah?"

"Let diminutive colloquy be conspicuous by its absence."

The barber scratched his head thoughtfully a second and then went over to the proprietor of the shop with the whispered remark:

"I dunno whether that man in my chair is crazy or a foreigner, but I kyant find out what he wants, so I kyant."

The proprietor went to the waiting customer and said politely:

"My man doesn't seem to understand you, sir. How would you like your hair cut?"

"In silence."

The proprietor gave a withering look to his journeyman, while the latter began work and felt so utterly crushed that he never asked his patient if he'd buy a bottle of hair tonic.—Fun Magazine.

Why He Wept.

He was a hardened looking ruffian, and, in the opinion of the spectators in the law courts, he didn't stand much of a chance.

His counsel, his voice husky with emotion, was addressing the jury.

"Gentlemen," said he, "my client is a very poor man. He was driven by hunger and want to take the small sum of money. All that he wanted was sufficient money to buy food for his little ones. Evidence of this lies in the fact that he did not take a pocketbook containing £50 in notes that was lying about the room."

The counsel paused for a moment to make his appeal more dramatic, but the silence that ensued was interrupted by the sobs of the prisoner.

"Why do you weep?" asked the judge.

"Because I didn't see the pocketbook there!" replied the prisoner in heartbroken accents.—Answers.

PETERBORO RINKS IN FINALS OF CONSOLATION

Skips McDermid and Neill to Play for First Prize—Lindsay Rink Won the Primary and Grand Challenge Cup

The Grand Challenge Cup emblematic of first honors in the Primary of the Peterborough Curling Club's annual bonspiel, will rest in Lindsay for one year.

In the final game yesterday afternoon, skip Flavelle defeated skip McWilliams by 13 shots, on ice that did not give the curlers the opportunity to play their best game.

The rinks were:—

Lindsay	Keene
[illegible]	R. McCamus
[illegible]	W. Wedlock
O'Connor	J. Moore
Flavelle	Dr. McWilliams
Skip 19	Skip 6

Each of the winning rink won a soft leather club bag. Each of the players on the losing rink received a silver plated casserole.

THE CONSOLATION

The four skips to enter the semi-finals were Little of Lindsay, Allen of Cobourg, and Neill and McDermid of Peterborough. In the finals, McDermid beat Little by one shot and Neill defeated Allen by three shots.

The rinks and scores:

Peterborough	Lindsay
M. McCannon	W. E. Reesor
G. Wilson	M. H. Sisson
A. Moore	A. H. Cuthbert
J. W. McDermid	G. A. Little
Skip 9	Skip 8

Score by ends—

McDermid ... ... 010011220002—9

Little ... ... 100100003120—8

Peterborough	Cobourg
W. P. Adamson	A. J. Gowey
M. Tooley	C. McCallum
H. Evans	E. W. Hargraft
R. Neill	W. L. Allan
Skip 9	Skip

Score by ends—

Neil ... ... 0201201120—9

Allan ... ... 1010010003—6

Skips Neill and McDermid will play the final when ice conditions permit.

The first prize is four coffee percolators; second prize, four carving sets, and third prize, four thermos bottles.

PORT HOPE HERE TO-NIGHT

Junior Game to be Played, But Intermediates Will Rest

The O.H.A. program for to-night is the return game between Port Hope and the local juniors, who should furnish a lively game. The locals won in Port Hope when the southerners were not in the best of condition. They have since had ice and have been practicing, with a view to making a better showing here.

The intermediate game billed for Cobourg to-night is postponed.

TOOLMAKERS AND BRINTONS WON IN MERCANTILE LEAGUE

CGE Seven Were Ahead of the Plumbers by 3-0, and Machinists Failed to Score Against the Carpet Weavers

The Brock street rink was the scene of a lively game of hockey between the Plumbers and Tool Room last night, the contest being the first of the Mercantile League double-header. Both teams opened up with great speed but soon slowed down on account of the soft ice. The Tool Room managed to score 3 goals but the Plumbers failed to register.

The teams were—

Plumbers		Tool Room
Halpin	Goal	Cassidy
Clark	Point	Heith
Grange	Cover	Regan
Burtram	Rover	Kenneally
Anderson	Centre	Hall
Robson	Left Wing	Barrie
Nelson	Right Wing	Primeau

BRINTONS SCORED 7

The second game between the Brinton Carpet Works and Machine shop, was rather a one-sided contest, Brinton's winning by 7-0. Both teams were inclined to rough it too much and the penalty box was always in demand.

The line-up was—

Brintons		Machinists
Rew	Goal	A. Ahearn
Coughlin	Point	Campbell
Close	Cover	Mahoney
O'Dette	Rover	Condon
Rose	Centre	Davidson
Rew	Left Wing	Sanderson
Mahoney	Right Wing	Callahan

Mr. Cole of the Dominion Bank as referee was satisfactory.

OVERTIME IN BANK LEAGUE

Ottawa-Dominion Seven Won Out by One Goal

The Ottawa-Dominion and the Nova Scotia-Toronto sevens clashed at the Brock street rink last night. Both teams were evenly matched, for after playing amid slash and water for some 60 minutes, they were compelled to go at it again to break the tie of 3 all. It took about 20 minutes' overtime before the Ottawa-Dominion shoved in the winning goal. Both tems were inclined to play the man instead of the puck, and the result was lots of rests for offenders in the box. H. W. Fobin was referee.

AROUND THE WORLD BY C.P.R.

Details of the Special Trips on Two Empresses

The details of the specially arranged trip around the world by the two new C.P.R. Empresses, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, which are scheduled to leave Liverpool, Eng., on April 1st and June 18th, respectively, have now been completed, and in connection with this voyage excellent side trips have also been arranged at a little extra cost to the passengers. It is scheduled that the Empress of Russia, which vessel will be ready for the voyage first, will take the Mediterranean route while her sister ship, the Empress of Asia, will, according to present intentions, take the route around the Cape of Good Hope, making calls at some of the principal South African ports. The Empress of Russia is timed to leave Liverpool at 7 p.m. on April 1st, and arrive at Gibraltar the following Friday, leaving the next day for Villefranche. Passengers who wish to travel overland from London and Paris can do so and join the vessel at Villefranche. Time will be allowed for a visit to Monte Carlo and Nice, and on arrival at Port Said provision has been made for sightseeing at Cairo and the Pyramids, and re-embark at Suez. Stops will also be made at Colombo, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagaski, Kobe and Yokohama, and thence to Vancouver, arriving at the latter port on Saturday, June 7th. Those passengers taking the trip from this continent have the choice of any vessel of the Atlantic Steamship lines leaving Montreal, St. John, N. B., Halifax, Boston or New York, in time to catch the Empress, and if desiring to visit Europe can leave as far ahead of the Empress' departure as they may desire. The new Empresses have a number of novel and attractive features. The saloon is very large and airy and the tables are arranged to suit the demands of the passengers. The staterooms on the bridge deck are enclosed in a complete steel deckhouse and the appointments and decorations in the French style of Louis XV. and Louis XVI. are carried out with taste and charm which cannot fail to appeal to the artistic sense.

Women in Tibet.

In Tibet the work of carpenters and masons is done by women. Women transact also a large part of the business and perform much toil and drudgery of various kinds. Two-thirds of the Tibetan men are lamas. Travelers say that as a rule the men are immoral and very lazy.

In early days it was a custom in many households for each child to learn a verse from the Bible each Sunday. In this way the children became familiar with the wonderful book, and to them the experience described in "The Unvarying East," by Rev. E. J. Hardy, could not have happened.

Sir Ernest Shackleton said one morning to a little waiting maid who brought him tea, "What a rainy day, Mary! It is almost like the flood."

"The flood, sir?" responded the little maid, with a puzzled smile.

"Yes, the flood, Noah, you know, the ark, Mount Ararat."

She shook her head and murmured, apologetically, "I ain't had time to read the papers lately, sir."

New York City's Awful Debt.

New York has become a billion dollar city, according to data made public by the Merchants' association. The municipal debt is now over $1,037,000,000. This, according to the association's figures, is several millions more than the national debt.

Father Knickerbocker owes more than five times as much as Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston combined.

In New York city there is a new building every fifty minutes.

There is a new business corporation every forty minutes.

The stork brings a new New Yorker every six minutes.

There are 26,000 manufacturers.

They make $2,000,000,000 of goods a year.

The greater city has 85,000 acres of vacant land.—New York World.

A Warm Tribute.

It was in a little country town in the west of England, says the Bristol Mirror, and Mr. Goodman, excellent citizen and kind hearted man, allowed himself to be chosen mayor for the fourth time. After the event he met Mr. Jones, one of his warmest admirers, who shook him heartily by the hand.

"I'm right sorry, Mr. Mayor," said the worthy man, "they've putten on you the trouble of officiating for another term, with all your many calls and worries of business. A far worse man would have suited us—but that was just the trouble. We couldn't find him—and it's my opinion as he ain't to be found."—Youth's Companion.

What She Meant.

"So you think I smoke too much?" he asked, just to keep up a conversation that seemed to be languishing.

"Not at all," she aswered, not very skillfully concealing a yawn.

"You said you thought so."

"Pardon me. I don't think you are smoking too much."

"Didn't you say that I'd die if I didn't cut it down?"

"Yes; that's what I said."

It took him a long time to get it, and then he was quite angry.—New York Sun.

Why He Didn't.

"Did you suggest to him, as I told you to do, that he had never asked me to sing?"

"Yes."

"And what did he say?"

"He said that if he asked you to sing it would be just his luck to have you do it."—Houston Post.

There Are Others.

Among female Moors birthday celebrations are unknown. A Moorish woman considers it a point of honor to be absolutely ignorant of her age.

Chloroform.

Chloroform, the great anaesthetic, was discovered by Guthrie in 1831 and was first employed in surgical operations in 1847.

Care of Knives.

Nothing ruins ivory handled knives so quickly as putting the handles into water. Indeed, no knife should be put entirely into water. Wash the blades and wipe off the handles. If plunged into water the water is apt to work its way into the handle where the blade is fastened and in time will rust the handle so it cracks.

Spanish Nobles.

Of Spain's population about one-fifteenth are nobles, of whom four-fifths are either paupers or on the verge of poverty.

WHEN PA TOOK A CHANCE.

WE been a-livin' on the farm at gran'pa's house. I have to laugh
Each time I think of pa an' how he went to feed the Holstein calf.
Pa had on a white flannel coat an' what he called his "ice cream pants."
That mornin', too, he said he thought a man was takin' quite a chance
To wear such things outside of town, an' gran'pa said he thought so too.
Then gran'pa said: "Well, I can't stop a-talkin' here. I've work to do."
Pa ast him, "Can't I help you none?" An' gran'pa answered, with a laugh,
"I think I'll mix a mess of stuff an' let you feed the Holstein calf."

An' so he mixed a pail of milk an' bran an' made it kind o' hot,
An' pa went trampin' off with it to take it to the pasture lot
Where the calf's at. An' gran'pa stood an' watched him go, an' I went too.
An' pa let down the middle bar an' took the pail an' scrambled through.
An' here the calf came, tail straight out an' quiverin' with its delight.
It drinked a little, then it give the pail a bunt with all its might.
Well, pa's feet caught, an' he fell back through that hole he left in the fence,
An' I just laughed until I cried, as if I didn't have no sense!

Pa looked so funny! Milk an' bran was on his clothes an' in his eyes,
An' he just gasped an' sat there till he had got over his surprise.
An' then he looked around at me, an' then he looked up at the calf,
An', say, you ought to have been there just to hear my gran'father laugh!
At last pa grinned a little bit, an' then he said: "That was some spill!
I'd make a fortune if I could do such an act in vaudeville!"
An' now his "ice cream pants" is hung out in the shed behind the door.
They'll do for gran'pa's overalls, though pa says they're no good no more.

Inartistic.

"Did Mame turn pale when she heard the distressing news?"

"All but one cheek."

In Good Time.

Some day the human race will fly—
That truth we can vouchsafe—
If any one is left alive
When flying is made safe.

Progress.

"My wife and myself are trying to get up a list of club magazines. By taking three you get a discount."

"How are you making out?"

"Well, we can get one that I don't want and one that she doesn't want and one that neither wants for $2.25."—Washington Herald.

GAINS MADE DURING THE YEAR AT ST. ANDREW'S

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held last evening in the Lecture Room. Rev. James Rollins, the pastor, opened the meeting with devotional exercises, and was subsequently elected to the chair. Mr. John McClelland was appointed secretary.

Reports were received from the Session, Missionary Committee, Session Fund Treasurer, Choir, Sunday School Superintendent, Treasurer and Secretaries, and the Young Ladies' Bible Class, the W. F. M. S., Young Ladies' Mission Band, Willing Workers' Mission Band, Daughters of Erin, Women's Home Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid Society, Y.P.S.C.E., and the treasurer of the congregation, Mr. John McClelland.

A letter was read from an interested member of the congregation making some suggestions about the disposal of several houses owned by St. Andrew's church, and the managers were instructed to take steps to secure legislation which would enable the congregation to dispose of this property if at any time they so desired. The Sunday School report called attention to the unsatisfactory condition of the Lecture Hall for Sunday School work and there was a strong disposition shown to carefully inquire into the changes necessary to secure modern equipment for this important part of the church's work.

There had been an advance of nearly 100 per cent. in the contributions for missionary and other benevolent work. And the Sabbath offerings for current expenses were also considerably in advance of other years, reaching a total of $3,569.06.

The total receipts from all sources after deducting balances carried over from the previous year, was $8,515.62, a gain over the preceding year of $1,637.87.

The contributions for missionary and benevolent purposes amounted to $2,647.94.

Mr. John McClellan was re-elected to represent the congregation on the Charity Board and the Nicholls Hospital Board. Mr. Richard Lees was appointed to the Hall Trust and Mrs. F. L. Robinson to the Board of the Protestant Old People's Home.

Mr. W. J. Chisholm and Mr. W. S. Campbell were elected auditors for the books of the treasurer of the congregation, and Mr. W. H. Waram and Mr. Alex. Weddell for the treasurers' accounts of all other organizations.

Alderman W. Langford, Mr. Jos. Saunders and Mr. E. B. Fowler were elected to the Board of Managers for a period of three years.

The membership now stands at 500 on the active list, and 25 on the appendix.

It was resolved to hold the next annual meeting on the 3rd and 4th Thursdays of January, 1914, and to take up the reports of the various organizations on the first night, and the reports of the treasurer of the congregation, and the report of the Managers and election of officers on the last night, thus giving more time for discussion.

The meeting last night was harmonious and optimistic, and the discussions hearty, indicating that the congregation is looking hopefully to the future and is determined to measure up to its opportunities and responsibilities.

REV. J. MACNEIL TO SPEAK HERE

Famous Preacher to be Heard at Knox Church

COMMISSIONER RUDDICK GUEST OF CANADIAN CLUB

Gave Interesting Address, Dealing Particularly With the Dairying Industry.

"Between the years 1880 and 1910 the amount of milk for home consumption and for export trade in butter and cheese produced in Canada would be equivalent to a lake, if it was water, eight miles long, three miles wide and fifteen feet deep."

The above interesting calculation was supplied to the Canadian Club last evening at their regular semi monthly meeting, by Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner for the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

His address was particularly interesting to those in the dairy business, but his remarks were keenly listened to by all present. In commencing his address he said:

"It was in Peterborough some twenty-eight years ago when I delivered my first address on dairying. While many of you may not be directly interested in dairying, there must nevertheless be amongst you many who are interested in an occupation which produces farmers of the country something like $140,000,000 annually."

The speaker dwelt upon the origin of dairying, which, he said, dated away back to pre-historic ages.

Now every country in the whole civilized world is interested to some xtent in the manufacture of some sort of dairy produce. Next to United States Great Britain is the heaviest producer. Austria possesses a well advanced system of manufacturing. Denmark has a well developed dairy industry, and also Holland.

In United States it is estimated that between six and eight million dollars is netted from the manufacture of dairy products annually. Australia is coming to the front as a butter producing country. A great deal of interest is now being manifested by Canadian dealers in New Zealand produce. In 1912 the latter country shipped 46,000,000 pounds of butter to Great Britain. That country is exceedingly well adapted, and the cows are able to remain out practically the entire year.

Speaking of dairying interests in Canada, the speaker carried the minds of the audience back four hundred years. It was about that time that a French explorer landed some cattle on Sable Island. Nothing further was heard of these cattle until 1598. A number of convicts eventually were marooned on the island, who were later found making use of the products. In 1604 a cargo of cattle of all descriptions was landed at Port Royal, Nova Scotia. The first real introduction of cattle into Canada. His importations of cattle were added to, from time to time, by more cargoes from France. The first cattle were brought into Ontario in the year 1701 and later others brought in by the U.E. Loyalists.

Cattle in the North-West were driven in by Lord Selkirk in 1723.

In 1843 a large number of cattle were brought into British Columbia and by 1846 two large dairying farms were being carried on.

THE FIRST CHEESE FACTORY.

In the early part of the nineteenth century the number of cows were increased, and by Confederation there were about one million cows in Ontario altogether. In 1864 the first cheese factory was started in Oxford County, and before long factories were running all over the Province. Inside of two years it was said that there were two hundred in operation.

Dairying soon became a special industry and was not considered as only a side-line to farming and grain growing as before. Cows were accustomed to be turned out into the bush while the land was being cleared and allowed to feed on whatever they could discover. One effect of the introduction of the cheese factory was to make the exporting of cheese possible. It was greatly handicapped for several years however by the absence of proper cold storage and transportation facilities.

The total exports from Canada for the year were about half a million pounds. This year Canada would likely import six or seven million pounds of butter from New Zealand.

Canada's total exports in 1904, of butter and cheese was valued at $31,000,000, probably the highest yet. Although it had not reached that figure since, it did not signify that there was any decline being experienced.

MILK PRODUCTION

The production of milk in Canada for home consumption had increased more in the last ten years than in any previous same period in its history. The condensed milk business was increasing rapidly in Canada. The speaker did not refeer to that question very deeply, beyond explaining that there were two vareities. Another product now coming into the market was a kind of milk powder. Milk is sprayed into a heated atmosphere and the residue of water drawn off, after which it is put in this. The speaker prophesied that milk powder would solve the problem of getting milk in some places in the winter time, for instances on the prairies and in the larger centres where there was little production.

In closing Mr Ruddick referred to the growth of city creameries. There were certain economical advantages connected with them and inside of ten years he thought there would be little butter made in the country. They are being plentifully commenced all through western Ontario particularly.

CIRCUS PICTURES FOR LAST TIME

There will be shown at the Red Mill to-night only, a picture that is in every sense a triumph of motion photography. It is entitled "Polly of the Circus," and although presented at the Red Mill only lately, it created such a sensation that Manager Clayton received requests from every side to have it put on again. To-day, therefore, will probably be the last opportunity to see this wonderful film, which is 3,000 feet in length. The thrilling adventures of Polly the circus girl, and her encounter with a monster snake, with a lively love theme running through the story, will hold the attention of all. Remember, to-day will be the last chance to see this wonderful picture.

"THE GAMBLERS" A SPLENDID DRAMA

Excellent Company in Charles Kleins Great Play

The following is from the St. Thomas Journal;

"The Gamblers" as presented last evening was an excellent production in every way. The company, headed by Mr. William Marble, a thorough and accomplished actor, was splendidly balanced, and the piece ran as smoothly as the proverbial brook.

In "The Gamblers" Charles Klein who wrote such successes as "The Music Master," "The Lion and the Mouse," and "The Third Degree' has given the public a strikingly clever portrayal of the affairs of the big financial men of the United States. Five New York business men, partners in a big banking business, which has succeeded at an astonishing rate have, in their eagerness to make money, overstepped the legal bounds and committed a technical crime in borrowing more money than the law allows. The larger interests, the men comprising the money trust anxious at all times to stifle competition, have gotten in touch with the powers that be at Washington and demanded that the five be made an example of for their breach of the law.

The moving spirit of the smaller company, Wilber Emerson, portrayed by Mr. Willis Marble, to save his father and his business associates from disgrace and probably a term in prison, declares his willingness to assume the whole responsibility for the firm's undertakings and does so.

In order, however, to clear the rest he finds it necessary to storm into the home of James Darwin, the prosecuting attorney, who has been commissioned by the government to push the case, in order to recover a confession and an affidavit made by one of the members of the firm, George Cowper, who in a moment of weakness yielded to the advnaces of the authorities and agreed to turn state's evidence on the promise that he himself would escape by so doing.

At the house of the lawyer Wilber Emerson is confronted by the former's wife, an old sweetheart of his. He explains the situation and pleads with her to give him the confession and certain notes. Though torn by her emotions, she, true to her duty as a wife, refuses and before he can leave the house, Emerson is taken into custody by secret service men who have been watching the house.

Then comes the return of Attorney Darwin and the cross-examination of Emerson, and Mrs. Darwin, whom the lawyer jealously believes, knowing their early friendships, to be in love with each other. Mrs. Darwin, after being subjected to all manner of cruelties and insults by her husband at last openly defies him and welcomes his threat that he will commence divorce proceedings.

In the last act it is shown how well Emerson's plans work out. His old father, who was in total ignorance of the deals of the banking firm, and his business associates, are saved from prison. He stands alone waiting for the punishment that is sure to come, but knowing that Mrs. Darwin will be freed of the matrimonial shackles to come to him.

The part of Catharine Darwin was excellently done by Miss Mary Cunard, and actress of rare grace and charming stage presence. The other parts were handled in the same finished manner. Charles Burbidge, as Frederick Tooker, one of the five, supplied most of the comedy in a genial, whole-souled way, while Fred. J. Powers was particularly pleasing as John Emerson, the aged father of Wilber Emerson.

BILL TO AID AGRICULTURE PRESENTED IN THE HOUSE

Bill is Designed to Reduce the Cost of Living by Providing Education in Scientific Farming—City Populations Grow While the Country Shows a Decrease.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, presented to the House last night his resolution authorizing the expenditure of $10,000,000 during the next ten years for the purpose of aiding and advancing the farming industry of Canada by instruction in agriculture, including the work carried on by veterinary colleges. The resolution was adopted without dissent, and the bill founded upon the resolution was introduced and read the first time.

In reply to a question Mr. Burrell said that he was unable to say when he would move the second reading of the bill. Indeed, the Government's program for next week is a matter of some speculation. Earlier in the day Sir Wilfrid Laurier enquired of Finance Minister White when the debate upon the bill to revise the Bank Act would be resumed, and received a somewhat indefinite reply. Mr. White did not commit himself beyond saying that some announcement would be made in due time.

Mr. Foster's bill to confirm the reciprocity arrangement between Canada and the British West Indies got through the committee stage.

The keynote of Mr. Burrell's speech in proposing the grant of $10,000,000 was the serious problem presented by the growth of Canadian cities and the increased cost of living. The urban population of Eastern Canada during the past ten years had increased 43 per cent., while the rural population showed a slight decrease. In the west rural population had greatly increased through immigration and homesteading, but not so rapidly as the urban population. It was most important that the lot of the farmer be improved. This could only be done, in the Minister's opinion, by teaching him the true science of agriculture. Aid to the farmers should therefore be extended to him by stimulating educational work.

It was not the intention of the Government to distribute $1,000,000 per year. The grant for the first year would be $700,000 and would increase by $100,000 per year, the purpose being to expend $10,000,000 in ten years. Under this scheme Ontario for the first year would receive $195,733, with an annual increase of $35,147, until the maximum annual grant of $336,319 was reached.

Mr. Burrill said in conclusion that while the autonomy of each province would be scrupulously respected, the Dominion Government would retain and exercise a reasonable supervision over the expenditure of the grants. Meanwhile the work of the Dominion Department of Agriculture would be continued and improved.

Mr. Nesbitt of North Oxford thought the Minister's idea was a good one, but said that the education must be brought to the door of the "ordinary old farmer," like himself. He did not think that the agricultural colleges accomplished much as their graduates seldom returned to the farm. It was true a large number of farmers took an excursion to Guelph once a year, but he doubted if they learned very much.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared that the Minister himself was bringing down, with a view to political effect, a spectacular appropriation of $10,000,000, which in reality meant only for the coming year an expenditure of $700,000.

Moreover, but one phase of the agricultural situation was being faced. Access to larger markets was as important as was the increasing of production. Of the last year's crop in the Prairie Provinces alone, the turning down of the policy of larger markets meant a loss to the farmers there of fully $10,000,000.

A bill incorporating the Rockefeller Foundation, to administer a philanthropic fund of $100,000,000, to be donated by John D. Rockefeller, has been passed by the House by a vote of 152 to 65. The measure now goes to the Senate. It names as the incorporators to administer the fund: John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.; Frederick T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy, Harry Pratt Judson, Simon Flexner, Edwin A. Alderman, Wickliffe Rose and Charles O. Heydt, and such persons "as they may associate with themselves."

The object of the foundation is "to promote the well-being and to advance the civilization of the peoples of the United States and its territories and of foreign lands, in the dissemination of knowledge, in the prevention and relief of suffering and in the promotion of eleemosynary and philanthropic means of any and all of the elements of human progress."

The bill contains a provision prohibiting the foundation adding to the capital fund of $100,000,000, and forcing the expenditure of the entire income from that fund currently.

VOTES FOR WOMEN OPPOSED BY SECRETARY HARCOURT

Makes a Slashing Attack on Lloyd-George and Sir Edward Grey and Says Having the Vote Would Ruin the Country and Women Also—Cecil Suggests That He Has Probably Been "Recently Spanked."

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The critical stage was reached yesterday afternoon in the forty-five years' struggle to obtain votes for women, which was started in the House of Commons by John Stuart Mill, the great economist, in 1867.

Mr. Alfred Lyttelton, immediately after "question time," moved the amendment standing in the name of Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, to eliminate the word "male" from the franchise reform bill, and thus open the way to the extension of the Parliamentary vote to women. The mover's arguments were along familiar lines. He urged that the trend of recent legislation was to require women to be called into the councils of the nation. They had, he said, already been called to assist in numerous departments.

Mr. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, made a bitter assault on his colleagues in the Cabinet, Sir Edward Grey and David Lloyd-George, and on the whole project.

"I am against any form of Parliamentary suffrage for women on the ground that it is bad for the state and bad for the women themselves," he stated.

Mr. Harcourt concluded that he did not believe the majority of women wanted to vote, and if it were given them it would contribute neither to the happiness of their homes nor to the safety of the country.

The comment of Lord Hugh Cecil on the speech of Mr. Lewis Harcourt was as follows:

"His antipathy to the Grey amendment suggests that he has been recently spanked or has never got over the indignity of being born of woman."

Aside from the opening speeches of Messrs. Lyttelton and Harcourt and Lord Hugh Cecil, the debate yesterday was of an uninteresting character. At six o'clock the discussion was adjourned until Monday, when the leaders of both sides are to be heard.

The feeling was general in the lobbies of the House of Commons that the Government would decide to withdraw the franchise bill in view of the ruling the Speaker on Thursday that the character of the measure would be so changed by the amendments that it would become practically a new bill.

The ruling of the Speaker on the Franchise Reform Bill has "finally exploded the Prime Minister's pledge to women," according to a manifesto issued yesterday afternoon by the Women's Social and Political Union.

The union calls upon the Government to withdraw the franchise bill and reintroduce it in a form giving votes to women equally with men. It says that it is essential that Sir Edward Grey and David Lloyd-George should resign, unless their colleagues in the Cabinet agree to make women's suffrage a Government measure.

The manifesto adds that the Government must have known long ago the turn events would take, and can only clear itself from dishonor by accepting the course suggested.

POLICY IS OUTLINED

Bonar Law Plans Preference For Manufacturers of Dominions

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Speaking at a conference of Scottish Unionists at King's Hall, Edinburgh, last night, Bonar Law dealt with the whole story of the recent crisis in the Unionist ranks, detailing step by step how the party had now arrived at complete unanimity.

Alluding to the question of Imperial preference, Law declared, if his party were returned to power, they would immediately impose a moderate tariff on foreign manufactures and give dominions a preference in the British market, the largest preference possible short of the imposition of new duties on food.

"For more than a generation," he continued, "this request has been urged upon us by all the colonies, but it has been repeatedly refused. We shall grant it. That is the vital difference between us and our opponents. The dominions have all desired, and we desire, that in trade each part of the Empire should treat every other part on different terms and give better terms than those we give the rest of the world. We shall, therefore, establish a principal preference, but shall not be satisfied that at the time this controversy was raised there was no indication anywhere of any movement throughout the Empire towards cohesion. Every indication indicated the fulfilment of the prophecy made by Laurier that if we were not drawn closer together we should inevitably be driven apart. Since then there has been a great change. There has been a great growth, not only in Imperial sentiment, but in the practical expression of that sentiment. We shall try to do what Hon. Mr. Borden, in his great speech in Parliament at Ottawa said ought to be done, to try to establish co-operation throughout the Empire in trade, as well as in defence. That will be the Unionist aim. We shall put ourselves into communication with the dominions and work out with them the best scheme for securing that object.

RADIUM AS CANCER CURE

Many Successful Cases Reported By London Institute.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The long-awaited first report of the Radium Institute of London was published yesterday in The British Medical Journal. It indicates that in addition to a long list of minor non-malignant conditions, such as birthmarks, eczema, tubercular glands, radium often cures and almost always improves cancers of a deadly type. The following summary is given of patients treated: Apparently cured 53, cured 28, improved 245, not improved 70, abandoned treatment 88, dead 55. The term "apparent cure," the report explains, when used in relation to cases of cancer, means that all traces of the original disease disappeared. There were no signs of any recurrence, and patients, so far as can be determined, are free from any indications or symptoms of the disease. The "abandoned treatment" group includes those cases in which the patient had to leave London and those who could not afford to travel repeatedly from the country to the institute.

Epitheliomata skin quickly responded to the treatment. Some varieties of cancers, when attacking not the skin, but the tongue or lip or the lining of the mouth, are almost universally disappointing in their ultimate response to radium therapy. Temporary improvement is not infrequently seen, but the treatment practically has no effect in preventing or delaying the appearance of secondary growths in the glands of the neck and elsewhere. In internal cancers, in which an operation cannot be performed with any hope of success the pain is often greatly relieved.

Some slight degree of benefit resulted in the case of cancers in the breast. For the rest the report says that on the whole it was encouraging. Radium, however, should never be used to take the place of an operation when this is possible.

MIDNIGHT FIRE AT TRENTON CAUSES DAMAGE OF $80,000

Canadian Press Despatch

Trenton, Jan. 25.—Fire which started in Sutcliffe's dry goods store soon after midnight did about eighty thousand dollars damage to that firm's stock and building and adjacent buildings.

Other sufferers are J. J. Haines, boots and shoes, who was completely burned out; Hooey's liquor store, and James Sharie's drug store, were damaged chiefly by water.

The fire was pretty well drowned out by two o'clock, and before the Belleville fire department, summoned by telephone and travelling by special train arrived on the scene. The telegraph and telephone wires were interrupted until after eight o'clock this morning. The cause of the fire is not yet known

The fire started in the staircase at the back of the Sutcliffe store, and evidently had been burning for some time, as the entire lower floor was in flames before it was discovered.

Spreading to the adjoining building, occupied by the Haines shoe store, the fire completely gutted both buildings.

Chief Colbourne, of the local brigade, considered the fire so dangerous that he telegraphed to Belleville for assistance, and part of the brigade of that city was despatched by a special train placed at his disposal by the Canadian Northern Railway. The fire, however, was under control before the Belleville brigade arrived.

OUTCOME CANNOT BE FORECASTED

Delegates to Peace Conference in London Are Divided Regarding the Future, But Will Await Reply of New Government to Note of the Powers.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Jan. 25— Reports received by Balkan peace delegates represent Constantinople as being in a state of siege and terror reigning supreme. The young Turks fearing that the reigns of power may slip from their hands, are making arrests right and left searching houses, confiscating documents, thus hoping to break up any organization of their opponents. It is supposed that under these conditions, any excess may be expected to be committed.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Some days must elapse before the situation arising from the revolution in Constantinople becomes clearer. As far as may be judged there is no intention on the part of the new Turkish Government to force matters or to resume hostilities if any reasonable compromise with the Balkan allies is possible.

A despatch received here from Constantinople last night says the Council of Ministers sat yesterday to discuss the reply they will make to the note of the powers and that it is believed the reply, while insisting on the retention of Adrianople by Turkey, will point to Thursday's demonstration as a real manifestation of the national will.

The new Government is finding difficulty in filling the post of Foreign Minister. The portfolio has been offered several of the Turkish ambassadors abroad, and thus far all have declined to enter the Cabinet. Until the Ministry is completed by the appointment of a Sheil-ul-Islam and a Foreign Minister, it is probable that no definite steps will be taken. Developments in the situation are awaited throughout Europe with the greatest concern, in view of the fact that a danger might arise through active intervention by Russia.

The Balkan delegates to the peace convention in London show no desire for precipitate action. They have accepted the advice of the ambassadors of the powers to await the reply of the new Turkish Government to the ambassadors' note before forming any resolution as to their future procedure.

Opinion among the delegates with regard to the situation is much divided. Some of them maintain that it is useless to wait longer in view of what has happened at Constantinople, which is considered eloquent proof of the attitude of the new Ministry intends to take.

Naturally the Young Turks, some of the delegates say, have worked very hard to regain power. Their activity has been especially marked in the army, but it is not believed that the bulk of the army is ready to support them, and these delegates think it not impossible that a counter revolution will undo whatever was achieved by the young Turks Thursday.

As a whole, however, the allies intend, if possible to wait for Turkey's reply to the powers, and if it is unsatisfactory, to present an ultimatum to the Turkish delegates demanding a categorical answer concerning the disposition of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands. Failing to obtain satisfaction, the armistice then will be denounced and hostilities resumed.

CLOSE FIGHT ON IN DERRY

Suffragists Claim To Control Six Votes

LONDONDERRY, Jan. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Two more Unionists have died, but the balance still is in favor of Unionists.

On the evening of the struggle at Westminster over woman's enfranchisement echoes of the controversy were heard here, and Col. Pakenham (Unionist) frankly gives the women no encouragement. Hogg, his Nationalist opponent, says: "I will answer after the election," which not unnaturally aggravates the women more than a direct negative. The suffragists claim to be able to influence six votes.

Everything so far is perfectly calm, but three hundred extra police have been applied for.

Underwood Claims Tariff Cutting Will Not Ruin Trade

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Chairman Underwood of the House committee on ways and means announced emphatically at the tariff hearing yesterday that there was no intention of cutting the rates of duty so low along competitive lines as to ruin the business interests of the country. He took exception to intimations he attributed to Republican members that the Democratic majority of the House purposed to make rates that would disturb business prosperity.

"I deny that there is any such intention," he said, following remarks of Representative Payne, ranking Republican member of the committee.

The committee, which heard the testimony of many manufacturers and importers on the flax, hemp and jute schedules of the tariff, was not disposed to question the competitive character and luxury and classification of many of the laces, embroideries and other articles in the schedule. Mr. Underwood took occasion to agree as to some of them that their competitive status seemed to have been sustained, which is in favor of approximately the same rates on many items.

The entire schedule is one of the most profitable in the whole tariff scheme, and produced last year more than $49,000,000 of revenue, with duties averaging above 45 per cent. ad valorem. Some of these articles will be reduced to stimulate competition and bring revenue.

TWO KILLED AND TWENTY INJURED WHEN CARS MEET

Members of Order of Eagles Were Returning From Entertainment

Canadian Press Despatch.

Buffalo, Jan. 25— Two were killed and twenty injured among Lockport members of the fraternal Order of Eagles early to-day, when a trolley car taking them home from an entertainment at Buffalo, collided with another car.

AIRMEN KILLED

ETAMPS, France, Jan. 25.—Two French airmen were killed near here yesterday while making a flight in a monoplane, Charles Nieuport and his mechanic were flying at a considerable height when their machine doubled up and fell to the earth, killing both of them instantly.

Charles Nieuport received his pilot's certificate on Feb. 19, last year.

Aviator Boland Killed.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 25.—Frank Boland, an American aviator, was killed Thursday evening while flying here.

After accomplishing numerous successful flights in Venezuela, he had arranged to give an exhibition flight here to-day. The weather conditions being perfect Thursday he decided to make a trial flight. He ascended in the evening and flew for some time and was returning to the landing-place when his machine became unmanageable and fell to the earth.

WHY FITZHUGH RESIGNED.

Not In Accord With G.T.P. Policy In New England.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—In a statement appearing yesterday, E. H. Fitzhugh explains his resignation from the presidency of the Central Vermont road on the ground that he was not in accord with the Grand Trunk Railway Co. concerning the Central Vermont and Southern New England companies.

It is expected that the policy to which Mr. Fitzhugh refers will be the principal topic of discussion when the New England governors meet in conference on the problem of transportation to-day

DENIES THE MONEY TRUST

Morgan's Associate Tells Committee There is None.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Accepting, as an argument, a lengthy statement by Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., denying the existence of a money trust and charging the co-operation among the financial interests to the "weak banking law," the House money trust committee yesterday closed for the time being its financial probe.

James J. Hill, railroad pioneer of the Northwest, followed Mr. Davison on the stand. He was examined briefly as to his affiliations with various banks and railroads.

NEW YORK, Jan. [illegible].—A cable to The Tribune from London says:

Board of Trade regulations issued, to become effective on March 1, provide that the British seagoing ships shall carry lifeboats and life-saving appliances for all on board.

Steamships carrying passengers on short excursion between April 1 and Oct. 31 during day light and in fine weather must be supplied with boats for seventy per cent. of the total number of persons they are certified to carry.

RAILWAY MAN IS MOVED UP

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 25.—L. Harold, formerly Grand Trunk freight agent in this city, has been appointed superintendent of transportation for eastern lines, with headquarters at Montreal, according to a circular issued by Vice-President R. G. Kelly.

Mr. Harold has risen rapidly to the top. He came to this city from Brantford and [illegible] as freight agent in this city for some time. Later he moved to Hamilton, where he became trainmaster under W. R. Davidson of this city.

HOW NAZIM PASHA DIED

Was Expostulating With Rioters When Shot Dead.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 25.—Nazim Pasha, the commander of the Turkish army, received his death wound while expostulating with a crowd of demonstrators for having become embroiled in a conflict at the grand vizierate. The official version of the affray, which is termed a "regrettable incident," was issued last night.

When the demonstrators, it says, headed by Enver Bey, one of the leaders of the Young Turk party, penetrated the grand vizierate in an attempt to enter the council chamber, they were stopped by Fafiz Bey, aide-de-camp to the grand vizier, who, drawing his revolver, fired a shot at them. The aide-de-camp of Nazim Pasha also fired at the crowd, his bullet striking Mehmed Nedjif, one of the demonstrators. The demonstrators thereupon replied, and Nazim's aide-de-camp was instantly killed.

Nazim Pasha, who was in the council chamber, heard the shots and rushed outside. Facing the demonstrators he upbraided them, calling them ill-mannered curs. While he was speaking a bullet cut short his remarks and he fell down.

The leading Unionists of Constantinople declare that the shooting of Nazim was unpremeditated and much regretted, but under the circumstances unavoidable.

EXPRESS TRAIN HITS COAL CAR

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The Grand Trunk Express, No. 3, from Montreal, which should have arrived here at 7.40 a.m. yesterday, did not pull into the Union Station until 1.35, nearly six hours late. The delay was caused by the Montreal Express colliding with a standing coal car at Coteau Junction, about 37 miles west of Montreal. The engineer in charge of the Montreal train was injured by a piece of flying steel, but his injuries, though painful, will not prove serious.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

So the first year went, and the second and third were a repetition; but the fourth was different, for that was the close of the course, ending with graduation and all its attendant ceremonies and expenses. To Elnora these appeared mountain high. She had hoarded every cent, thinking twice before she parted with a penny, but teaching natural history in the grades had taken time from her studies in school which must be made up outside. She was a conscientious student, ranking first in most of her classes and standing high in all the branches. Her interest in her violin had grown with the years.

Three years had changed Elnora from the girl of sixteen to the very verge of womanhood. She had grown tall, round and her face had the loveliness of perfect complexion, beautiful eyes and hair and an added touch from within that might have been called comprehension.

She was so absorbed in her classes and her music that she had not been able to gather specimens as usual. When she realized this and hunted assiduously, she soon found that changing natural conditions had affected such work and specimens were scarce.

All the time the expense of books, clothing and incidentals had continued. Elnora added to her bank account whenever she could and drew out when she was compelled, but she omitted the important feature of calling for a balance. So one early spring morning in the last quarter of the fourth year she almost fainted when she learned that all her funds were gone. Commencement, with its extra expense, was coming. She had no money and very few cocoons to open in June, which would be too late. She had one collection for the Bird Woman complete to a pair of Imperialis moths, and that was her only asset. On the day she added these big yellow Emperors she would get a check for $300, but she would not get it until these specimens were secured. She remembered that she never had found an Emperor before June.

Moreover, that sum was for her first year in college. Then she would be of age, and she meant to sell enough of her share of her father's land to finish. She knew her mother would oppose her bitterly in that, for Mrs. Comstock had clung to every acre and tree that belonged to her husband. Her land was almost complete forest where her neighbors owned cleared farms dotted with wells that every hour sucked oil from beneath her holdings, but she was too absorbed in the grief she nursed to know or care. The taxes for the Brushwood road and the redredging of the great Limberlost ditch had been more than she could pay from her income, and she had trembled before the wicket as she asked the banker if she had funds to pay it and wondered why he laughed as he assured her she had, for Mrs. Comstock had spent no time on compounding interest and never added the sums she had been depositing through nearly twenty years. Now she thought her funds were almost gone, and every day she worried over expenses. She could see no reason in going through the forms of graduation when pupils had all in their heads that was required to graduate. Elnora knew she had to have her diploma in order to enter the college she wanted to attend, but she did not dare utter the word until high school was finished, for instead of softening, as she hoped her mother had begun to do, she seemed to remain very much the same.

When the girl reached the swamp she sat on a log and thought bitterly over the absolute expense she was compelled to meet. Every member of her particular set was having an expensive photograph taken to exchange with the others. Elnora loved these girls and boys, and to say she could not have their pictures to keep was more than she could bear. Each one would give to all the others a handsome graduation present. She knew they would prepare gifts for her whether she could make a present in return or not. Then it was the custom for each graduating class to give a great entertainment and use the funds to present the school with a statue for the entrance hall. Elnora had been cast for and was practicing a part in that performance. She was expected to furnish her dress and personal necessities. She had been told that she must have a green dress. And where was it to come from?

Every girl of the class would have three beautiful new frocks for commencement—one for the baccalaureate sermon, another, which could be plainer, for graduation exercises, and a handsome one for the banquet and ball. Elnora faced the past three years and wondered how she could have spent so much money and not kept account of it. She did not realize where it had gone. She did not know what she could do now. She thought over the photographs and at last settled that question to her satisfaction. She studied longer over the gifts, ten handsome ones there must be, and at last decided she could arrange for them. The green dress came first. The lights would be dim in the scene and the setting deep woods. She could manage that. She simply could not have three dresses. She would have to get a very simple one for the sermon and do the best she could for graduation. Whatever she got for that must be made with a guimpe that could be taken out to make it a little more festive for the ball. But where could she get even two pretty dresses?

The only hope she could see was to break into her collection, sell some moths and try to replace them in June. But she knew that never would do. No June ever brought just the things she hoped. If she spent the college money she knew she could not replace it. If she did not the only way was to try for a room in the grades and teach a year. Her work there had been so appreciated that Elnora felt with the recommendation she knew she could get from the superintendent and teachers she could secure a position.

She wanted to start to college when the other girls were going. If she could make the first year alone she could manage the rest. But make that first year herself she must. Instead of selling any of her collection, she must hunt as she never before had hunted and find a yellow Emperor. She had to have it, that was all. Also, she had to have those dresses. She thought of Sinton and dismissed it. She thought of the Bird Woman and knew she could not tell her. She thought of every way in which she ever had hoped to earn money and realized that with the play, committee meetings, practicing and final examinations she scarcely had time to live, much less to do more work than the work required for her pictures and gifts. Again Elnora was in trouble, and this time it seemed the worst of all.

It was dark when she arose and went home.

"Mother," she said, "I have a piece of news that is decidedly not cheerful. My money is all gone."

"Well, did you think it would last forever? It's been a marvel to me that it's held out as well as it has, the way you've dressed and gone."

"I don't think I've spent any that I was not compelled to," said Elnora. "I've dressed on just as little as I possibly could to keep going. I am heartsick. I thought I had over $50 to put me through commencement, but they tell me it's all gone."

"In my opinion you'd best bring home your books and quit right now," said Mrs. Comstock. "You can't be fixed like the rest of them. Don't be so foolish as to run into it. Just stay here and let these last few days go. You can't learn enough more to be of any account."

"I can't!" said Elnora desperately. "I've gone on too long. It would make a break in everything. They wouldn't let me have my diploma!"

"What's the difference? You've got the stuff in your head. I wouldn't give a rap for a scrap of paper. That don't mean anything!"

"But I've worked four years for it and I can't enter—I ought to have it to help me get a school when I want to teach. If I don't have my grades to show people will think I quit because I couldn't pass my examinations. I must have my diploma!"

"Then get it!" said Mrs. Comstock.

LIGHTWARD.

When the dark days seem to borrow
 All the mists that cloud the air,
And the heart surcharged with sorrow
 Floods all life with fretful care;
Then there comes a heartening whisper
 That the sun shines everywhere,
That God's answer is far swifter
 E'en than wing-borne cry of prayer.

And the soul is lifted higher,
 As by might of power Divine;
By that Spirit, wind-of-fire,
 In Whose light the righteous shine;
While the heart with love's desire
 Doth fulfil God's great design;
Serving Christ, Who doth inspire
 With life's pentecostal wine.

Then the light of heaven leadeth,
 Shining from the face of Christ;
He Who promiseth and pleadeth,
 Strengthening with grace unpriced;
Gift of power both full and free,
 Love that ever hath sufficed;
Faith's clear eye at last doth see
 Christ is all and all is Christ.

IF YOUR BABY IS SICK GIVE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

The little ills of babyhood and childhood should be treated promptly, or they may prove serious. An occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets will regulate the stomach and bowels and keep your little ones well. Or they will promptly restore health if sickness comes unexpectedly. Mrs. Lenora M. Thompson, Oil Springs, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little girl as occasion required, and have found them always of the greatest help. No mother, in my opinion, should be without the Tablets." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Popular Bibles.

When Inspector MacDonald, of Calgary, was a plain policeman in the Northwest Mounted Police, and seeking a chance for promotion, he noticed one day on a Canadian Pacific train a traveler appearing to bite a Bible, highly tooled in gold. On closer investigation he discovered that he was mistaken—the man was drinking from it—not words of wisdom, but something of a liquid nature. The drinker, looking up, tried guiltily to hide—not the Truth, but what resembled it. MacDonald's curiosity was not to be denied, and the "book" was produced, as fine an imitation as could be desired and containing a very good brand of imitation whisky, the sale of which in the then Territories was without the pale.

The source of publication was sought and one hundred and fifty bibles were found in the care of the news agent, which MacDonald took out of circulation.

When it became quite safe and legal to sell the real liquor in the Territories, the old-timers longed for the old order of things, when they used to get whisky with some fire to it.

Evolution.

"Of course you believe in evolution?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox. "My own recollections of early days in the west remind me that many a sixty horsepower limousine can trace its financial ancestry back to a 'prairie schooner.'"—Washington Star.

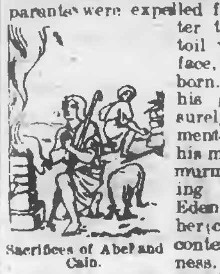
BROOKLYN TABERNACLE
INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDIES

Genesis 4:1-15—Jan. 26.

"Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer."—I John 3:15.

THE first tragedy of Earth was disobedience to God—the eating of the forbidden fruit. The next generation saw murder resulting from jealousy. Since the Bible teaches that our first parents were perfect, the image of their Creator, the question arises, How could such noble parentage bring forth a son of Cain's evil disposition?

Cain was not degenerate in the present acceptance of that word. Undoubtedly he was a great man in many ways. But he was birth-marked, as all are, with selfishness. After his parents were expelled from Eden, after they began to toil with sweat of face, Cain was born. The period of his gestation was surely one of much mental distress to his mother. As she murmured respecting the loss of Eden, she marked her child with discontent and selfishness. By the time Abel was born, doubtless our first parents had become reconciled to their fate.



Sacrifices of Abel and Cain.

We are in this not justifying murder, but taking a sympathetic view of the murderer's case, as God did. He condemned the sinner, and arranged for his punishment; but none of His messages to the murderer indicated hatred.

So parents, correcting their children, should allow no sentiment to control their hearts contrary to the best interests of their children. So the laws of men in dealing with crime should be as severe as seems necessary in the interests of society, but should never be vengeful. They should recognize that mankind were born in sin. The vengeance of the law should be sympathetically enforced, to warn others against evil-doing.

With great satisfaction we note that our prisons are being turned into reformatories. Judges in pronouncing sentence, especially against murderers, are often fatherly and tender. The feeling that terrible responsibility is associated with the taking of human life, even judicially, is right. A certain weakness, however, manifests itself in opposition to capital punishment. This, we believe, results from misunderstanding the Divine Word.

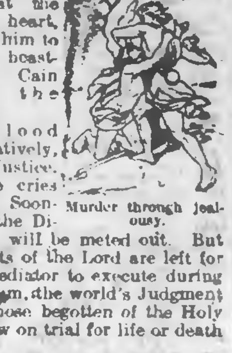
In the case of Cain, God especially prohibited the execution of the criminal. Nevertheless, the Divine Law stands: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." The careful observance of this Law, with a spirit of kindness and sympathy, but with proper ignominy, seems necessary to the preservation of order. Weakness in this respect encourages criminality, and furnishes an excuse for mob law and violence.

General misapprehension of the Divine Plan has led up to the weakness which opposes capital punishment. This wrong view led us to believe that the "murderer" passed at death into endless torture, and we hesitated to plunge a fellow-creature into such misery. Bible students are now learning that this delusion came from the Dark Ages. Our forefathers, imagining God to be worse than themselves, twisted Scripture to support their errors.

The Bible teaches that mankind fall asleep at death, to awake after Messiah establishes His Kingdom. The Bible statement is that all, good and bad, go to one great slumber-house, the tomb—Sheol, Hades. Messiah so loved the world that He gave His life for the redemption of mankind. As soon as He shall have selected His Church, He will establish His glorious Kingdom, open the prison doors, set at liberty the captives of death, and bring all to an accurate knowledge of the Truth.

"Sin Croucheth at the Door."

Cain was jealous because God manifested favor toward Abel's offering, while rejecting his own. Cain should have rejoiced with Abel, and brought a similar offering. God warned him that his spirit of selfishness was sin, crouching at the door of his heart, and advised him to conquer this beastly spirit. Cain heeded not the warning.



Murder through Jealousy.

Abel's blood cried, figuratively, to Divine Justice. All injustice cries out to God. Sooner or later, the Divine penalty will be meted out. But the judgments of the Lord are left for the Great Mediator to execute during the Millennium, the world's Judgment Day. Only those begotten of the Holy Spirit are now on trial for life or death eternal.

Brother-Haters Are Murderers.

The Great Teacher declares that brother-haters are murderers in God's sight. In other words, a spirit of hatred is a spirit of murder. Alas, how many of the professed followers of Jesus harbor a spirit of hatred, and sometimes manifest it in anger and other works of the flesh and the devil!

Christians are to fight against the imperfections of the flesh. They must strive against the fallen nature, and cultivate the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit. If they manifest the murder spirit, they will lose the "prize" of joint-heirship with Christ.

SKIRTS FITTED BY PLEATS AND DRAPERY IN NEW AFTERNOON GOWNS

INTRODUCING pleats and drapery in skirts has changed the manner of their cutting and shaping. It has lessened or obviated the necessity of using shaped breadths, darts and gores, which were used formerly, and the material is shaped to the figure by clever manipulation of drapery, folds or band laid pleats.

Over the white liberty foundation dress in an afternoon costume, shown here in two views, the draped black overdress looks curiously like an apron. There is a drop shoulder seam in the sleeve and the white revers turn backward over the black portion of the bodice. The lower part shows the front softly and simply draped into the lower back part of the dress, that trails off into a rounded train.

Quite startling in its novelty is a gown worn by a Parisian actress known for her beautiful clothes, which is evidently the last cry, not only in clothes but in corsets. All traces of a "straight front" are removed in the latter, and the figure looks corsetless. The gown is made of changeable orange and rose taffeta. The skirt is made of a straight piece of material, fitted in at the waist by unstitched pleats.

Another skirt that shows no fitting or gores is made up in the new Russian green, a peculiar bluish shade of the tone that one sees in the cotton linings of this color. This skirt is made of one width of very wide charmeuse; in front it is pleated flatly into the belt, at the back it is drawn up in draped folds caught in by a satin sash. The blouse of this gown is also surpliced in shape, edged, like the skirt and cuffs, with skunk fur.

The long shoulder seam has become still longer, till it nearly reaches the elbow. The draped skirt is another one of those cut without any regard to classic seams, these being placed simply in relation to the drapery lines. With this is worn a delightful midseason turban cap, the tulle draped over a cap foundation, decorated by strands of beads and an enormous chou posed effectively at the side back.

A hat to go with an afternoon toilet always has certain decorative points. It is made of black velvet, as that seems to be the accepted material of the picture hat for winter, is either of a picturesque quality, has strong contrast of color or is effective in shape. Of those given here one is frankly of the large picture hat type and is rolled up at one side, with the feather a little more toward the front. Black feathers are posed effectively on one; the other has a white aigrettelike plume. A wreath of these plumes is also used on another hat here pictured that is a little smaller in size. Two dog's ears of velvet are tucked in the wreath toward the back.

The little model hat trimmed with plain ermine, with crown of black velvet, is on caplike lines, and the aigrette thrust in front gives it height. Fanciful in both shape and trimming is another, also black, with soft draped crown and with aigrettes posed in new fashion in front, separated by an odd jet ornament.

SATURDAY, JAN. 25, 1913.

THE BANK ACT

Major Sam Sharpe, W. F. Maclean, and other Conservative members of Parliament did a good day's work in speaking plainly their minds about the new Banking Act. If they believe that it is an Act made primarily in the interest of the banks, and tends to create a money trust, an aristocracy of money, they did perfectly right to say so. The trouble is that at Ottawa, as well as in the newspapers of the country, there is much too slavish an adherence to partyism. Men stick their tongues in their cheek when dealing with such measures as the bank act, lest they offend politically or the powers that be. The impression must certainly grow on anyone who studies the financial operations of the Dominion that this country is rapidly getting into the claws of several cliques of high financiers or exploiters. In some respects, Canada is the most reactionary of countries. It would never have taken up the parcels post business unless they got it through in the United States. It goes about remedying recognized grievances against corporations as though they were possessed of some Divine right.

We do not agree with Sharpe and Maclean in some of their conclusions about the Canadian banking system, but we think that there cannot be the slightest doubt that the system is ideally designed to put the money and credit control of the Dominion into the hands of a financial hierarchy. The banks and the big corporations are tied up hand and foot together. They form a business interest so powerful that no Government dare carry out the will of the people in respect of reforms without careful consideration of how its moves affect them. The new Act goes along right paths in some respects, but we think that there ought to be some flat rule as to how far the process of amalgamation and coalescing of banking interests is to go. Canada may eventually have to take in hand the question of creating a state bank to serve some of the purposes now served by the chartered banks. The public provides 90 per cent. of the bank funds to-day, but it has no real disposition or control over their affairs.

THE DEADLY CIGARETTE

For a long time the W.C.T.U. of Canada has been waging war on the cigarette and have been successful in getting legislation to stop the sale of coffin nails to minors. The good ladies have also done much in an educational way for the grown up boys. But now the W.C.T.U. has a powerful ally in the person of the chief of the Ottawa fire department. Chief Graham has put the ban on cigarette-smoking by the men in his department—not because he is a moral reformer, but because after a period of careful observation, he has come to the conclusion that the use of cigarettes lessens the power of endurance and the efficiency of the men under his command. He does not object to the smoking of pipes and cigars; it's the cigarette alone that he objects to.

Commenting on the Chief's attitude, and exchange says;

"But Chief Graham is able to back up his own opinion with that of the surgeon of the Ottawa fire department, who in a letter declares that the smoking of cigarettes "will break the wind and so affect the whole respiratory system," and the doctor accordingly says that cigarettes "are dangerous things to have anything to do with."

"The truth probably is that if the cigaret-smoker smoked no more than does the ordinary pipe-smoker or cigar-smoker, and were to smoke in the same way that they do he would suffer no more injury than they. But the trouble with the cigarette smoker is that the usually smokes much more than the devotee of the pipe or cigar, because the cigarette is so handy, and he inhales the smoke. To keep the lungs filled with the reek of tobacco for hours every day cannot but be injurious to the nervous system as well as to the respiratory organs. And if it is bad for strong men, how much worse it must be for growing boys!"

A MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR

In another column appears the Annual Report of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, which is a local institution, with headquarters in the city.

The net earnings for the year past are considerably advanced over that of any previous year and are nearly 15 per cent. on the paid up capital. Out of these earnings a dividend of 10 per cent. was paid to the shareholders, with a transfer of $40,000.00 to the reserve fund bringing this account up to a total of $800,000.00; leaving about $53,000.00 to the credit of the profit and loss account.

The growth of the City and County, and the advance in values of real estate, and general progress, with the corresponding revenue from properties, account to some extent for the progress made. The Company has large confidence in the future of the city and look for a substantial advance commensurate with the growth of the city.

To the able management of the company's affairs much credit is due to Hon. Geo. A. Cox, President; Mr. W. G. Morrow, Man. Dir., and assisting officers, whose relations with the public do much to advance its interests.

CHANGES IN G.T.R. STAFF

Further announcements particularly affecting the Eastern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with the reorganization scheme of that company's Transportation Department have been made public.

The first circular issued by Mr. C. G. Bowker, the new General Superintendent of Eastern Lines records the appointment of Mr. H. F. Coyle as Superintendent of the Belleville Division (Districts 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10) with headquarters at Belleville. Also of Mr. J. J. Connolly as Superintendent of the Montreal Division (Districts 1, 2, 3 and 4) with headquarters at Montreal, and of Mr. R. W. Scott as Superintendent of Montreal Terminals, with headquarters at Montreal.

The following appointments are contained in a second circular issued by Mr. Bowker: Mr. F. L. C. Bond as Division Engineer of the Eastern Lines with headquarters at Montreal.

A circular issued by Mr. R. W. Scott, Supt. Montreal Terminals, announces the appointment of Mr. R. P. Smallhorn as Freight Agent, Montreal. Mr. H. F. Coyle, Supt. Belleville Division, issues two circulars one appointing Mr. C. S. Ogilvie Assistant Engineer of the Belleville Division with headquarters at Belleville and the other appointing Mr. H. McGain as Trainmaster of Sixth and Seventh Districts with headquarters at Belleville.

These appointments are all approved by Mr. C. G. Bowker. On Western Lines, Mr. Gillen, the New General Superintendent, issues his first circular appointing Mr. J. Caldwell Superintendent of Detroit Division, including Durand Terminals, Districts 27, 28, 29 and P. O. & N. Ry., with headquarters at Detroit, Mich., vice Mr. C. S. Cunningham who has resigned.

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF TALLEYRAND, WITH SON, CROSS ATLANTIC TO ATTEND MISS GOULD'S WEDDING

le Duc de Talleyrand
Duc de Sagan
WRITTEN BY THE DUKE DE TALLEYRAND

The Duke of Tallyrand and the Duchess, who was formerly Miss Anna Gould, with their three-year-old son, Duke Helle de Sagan, are now in New York, where they arrived on board the steamship Mauretania from Liverpool to attend the wedding of Miss Helen Miller Gould, a sister of the Duchess. The young Duke had the time of his life during the voyage and was a great favorite with everybody.

EDELWEIS IN THE ROCKIES A PLACE OF OLD WORLD

Edelweiss, the well-named settlement of six chalets, one mile west of Golden, British Columbia, was for a time as impregnable as a German fortress, says Mrs. Arthur Spragge in The Globe.

Possibly this may have been my own fault. I had a fixed prejudice against intruding into these little homes as a curious tourist, nor did I feel any inclination to walk out to the village in ignorance of which chalet I should visit and whether its mistress understood English or spoke French or German, for these are the residences of the Swiss guides, who during the summer months are employed by the Canadan Pacific Railway Co. at their various mountain resorts.

Formerly these guides at the end of the season returned to Switzerland and spent the winter with their families, coming back to British Columbia in the spring. It has, however, been considered by the railway company better to bring their wives out and establish them on their pretty chalets at Golden, where five of them arrived at the end of June, 1912. It was there I visited them.

The road I took approached the chalets by a long, easy-winding grade to the highest of all, occupied by Frau Eduard Feuz, and then on to the fine water supply and bench above. No more enjoyable spot can be imagined to spend a bright autumn afternoon than the upper verandah of the Feuz chalet, where all the other wives had assembled to meet me. Frau Eduard both spoke and understood English well, but the rest preferred German to French, and were delighted to meet a Canadian who could converse in that language.

They all came from Interlaken or its vicinity, and had been settled only for two months in the chalets; one of them, Frau Christian Hasler, came out to be married at Golden and is the sister of Frau Ammer, another guide's wife. A third is married to Ernest Feuz, the brother of Eduard, so they are all intimate and more or less related. Their chalets are charmingly furnished and well arranged, each one on a different plan. They contain from five to seven rooms, exclusive of a fine, high concrete basement divided into four sections, for furnace, washing and storage of wood, coal and supplies. A brick chimney runs through the centre of each, which has a pretty mantelpiece and brass grate in every living room.

They were all fine, capable, contented women, alone in a new country for the first few months of what had been a most trying summer to every inhabitant of British Columbia. Their only intercourse being with the Presbyterian clergyman, who married Frau Hasler, and his wife, without goats or cows (since milk is at present supplied from an adjacent farm), they seemed to have nothing to interest them, except Frau Eduard Feuz's two little children, one two years old, and the other a baby born since her arrival, at the hospital here. Two of them walk into Golden two or three times a week to make necessary purchases, but they will be a small and isolated community until they acquire English. Not one of them was lonely or homesick, or had a complaint or regret—brave, healthy happy women, who will be the mothers of a fine race of settlers of whom Canada may be duly proud.

I was very sorry to bid them farewell when the motor sent out for me appeared in sight, and we parted with mutual regrets and promises on my part to come again next summer to see them all.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares "Nerviline" Is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

Nerviline CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 50c, trial size 25c, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Not Up on Matrimony.

Dr. Ingram, the Bishop of London, was urged to take a seat upon the royal commission on divorce, but he steadfastly refused, saying with a beaming smile: "How could I, a poor bachelor who knows nothing about the joy and pain and mystery of the holy state of matrimony? But if things had been otherwise!"

Of course the "otherwise" referred to the crushing blow that he sustained when Bishop of Stepney, when he had trimmed his sails for a voyage over the treacherous sea of married life. Seized by a great inspiration, Dr. Ingram sent round a printed circular to his clergy asking them to pray for the Divine blessing upon his forthcoming wedding. His fiancee was so annoyed that she abruptly broke off her engagement. And ever since, like Hezekiah, his lordship has "gone softly in bitterness of spirit" when it comes to questions of "love, courtship and marriage."

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

PALE ANAEMIC GIRLS

Find New Health Through Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of pale, anaemic girls. If your daughter is languid, has a pale, sallow complexion, is short of breath, especially on going upstairs; if she has palpitation of the heart, a poor appetite, or a tendency to faint, she has anaemia—which means poverty of the blood. Any delay in treatment may leave her weak and sickly for the rest of her life—delay may even result in consumption, that most hopeless of diseases. When the blood is poor and watery, there is only one certain cure—that is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food and gentle out-of-door exercise. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, which flowing through the veins stimulate the nerves, increases the appetite, give brightness to the eye, a glow of health to the cheek, and makes weak, despondent girls full of healthy activity. The case of Miss J. H. Lassalle, Sorel Que., is typical of the cures made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I was weak and all run down. My face was pale and covered with pimples. My lips were pale. I suffered from pains in all my limbs, which would at times be swollen. I was hardly ever free from headaches, and I found work about the house a burden, as the least effort left me fatigued and breathless. I had no appetite, and notwithstanding that I was constantly doctoring I seemed to be growing worse all the time. One day mother said that she thought I ought to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. I soon discovered that I had found the right medicine, and after using nine boxes I was once more enjoying the best of health, and I have not been unwell a day since."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LAST MEETING OF CONVENTION

The convention in Bethany Tabernacle closed last evening, and though owing to the weather and the condition of the streets, some were unable to attend, yet the meetings throughout were a great blessing to those who attended. The teaching was rich and deep, and the missionary addresses were excellent.

Yesterday afternoon, Dr. Glover spoke of the utter indifference on the part of many Christians, to Christ's great commission to His Church. It is said that in the United States, one third of the congregations do not give a dollar to missions. Many in the home lands say "This country is good enough for me" but had Jesus Christ acted on that principle, no provision would have been made for the salvation of sinners. Some regard the work of missions a charity, a philanthrophy, not as lying within the sphere of responsibility.

In the evening Dr. Glover based his remarks on the passage read from John 6: 1-14 the vision, the compassion, the consecration, or the disciples standing between the loaves and the multitudes.

WHITE ELEPHANT PARTIES POPULAR

The latest of the social festivities is defined as a "White Elephant Tea." Its object is to get together all the useless and superfluous presents people have received as Christmas and New Year's presents, so that they may be exhibited for the amusement of those invited, and finally sold to any of the party who care to make purchases, or else passed on to hospitals or other charitable institutions, the proceeds of sales also going to the same object. These festivities cause much merriment so ludicrous are some of the "White Elephants" and so absolutely incongruous for use by those to whom they have been presented.

At a party of this kind which took place the other day, Prince Maurice, of Battenberg, the Queen of Spain's brother, produced some amazing gifts. One was a hood to sleep in, the gift of an old servant who knew that the Prince as a child suffered from neuralgia.

A hostess who had issued invitations for a "White Elephant" tea party is offering a prize to the guest who brings the funniest collection.

The Impression He Gave.

The learned English jurist, Judge Willis, was a very democratic and genial sort of a man. On one occasion going home in an omnibus which landed him at an inn known as the Green Man, he as usual passed the time in friendly discourse with the passengers. To one housewife who had been marketing he delivered a well-meant lecture on the purchasing power of money, the tariff, free trade and domestic and political economy. To other passengers he talked freely and dispensed counsel and advice indiscriminately. Arrived at his destination, he intimated to the conductor, "I want to get out at the Green Man." Accordingly the omnibus slowed down, but as he was leaving his seat a lady touched him on the sleeve and earnestly inquired, "My good man, don't you think you've had enough?"

CITY OF BERLIN -- CANADA

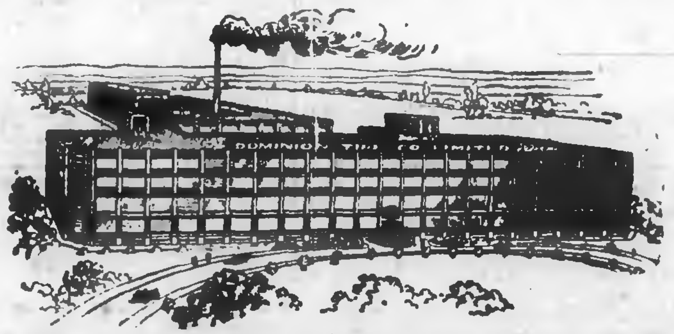
One of the Most Important Manufacturing Centres of Ontario

The Little German Settlement of 1855 Now a Thriving City of 25,000 Inhabitants

In 1855 Berlin was composed of 400 inhabitants, principally Pennsylvania German farmers. In those early days it supported a Lutheran meeting house, a post office, a German newspaper, a physician, a lawyer, three stores, a brewery and two taverns.

In 1912 Berlin became a city, with a community of 25,000. No city of its size on the continent of North America contains so many up-to-date factories, such seething energy and brainy well-equipped men for their government. Its varied manufactures require the best skilled artisans and mechanics. This class of labor is peculiar to this city, and another gratifying condition found in Berlin is that over 70% of its inhabitants own their own homes.

Although Berlin has several large rubber companies, yet another one is rapidly bringing its new factory to completion. The Dominion Tire Company, Limited, with a capital of $1,000,000, will, in a few months, open its doors to skilled workmen for the manufacture of "Dominion" Automobile Tires.



The Factory will be the last word in building, machinery and equipment.

Forty acres of land are necessary for the present and early future requirements of this great undertaking. The main building is of steel and concrete, has dimensions of 432 by 90 feet, 5 storeys including basement, each floor has a depth of 17 feet, the "all-daylight" windows are on every side, and the operatives will be flooded with the light of day.

Niagara Hydro-Electric, and also steam power will be used. Electricity equal to 1,500 horse power will be necessary to start the wheels revolving. Every mill and every calender will be brand new, and of the very latest pattern.

The motors will be supplied by the Canadian General Electric Co., Limited. The Transformers by the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Limited. The boilers by the Babcock and Wilcox Co. Jones Underfeed Stokers and Economizers will also be found in the power house, which will have no equal in Canada.

The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways will each have their sidings, thus ensuring prompt shipment of goods, both inward and outward.

Realising that ideal conditions are conducive to the best work, the Company has instructed Mr. Albert Kahn, the noted architect of Detroit, to harmonize both the external and internal arrangements of the Factory, so that this result may be attained, and that each workman employed will have every incentive to give the best that is in him to the service of the Company. Both the interior and exterior will be finished in a way to delight an artist, and it will certainly be appreciated by the citizens of Berlin.

And why all this expense? Why all this extreme care? For the reason that the Company realises that everything in connection with the putting together of Automobile Tires must be perfect, and unless "Dominion" Tires are as complete in construction and finish as a watch, they will not be put out for sale.

There never was in the history of commerce such a demand made on the manufacturer as that made by the consumer of pneumatic rubber tires. The "best" regardless of price is what the owner of every car demands. A cheap tire is not admissible, and can only bring disaster on both the manufacturer and the consumer.

The Dominion Tire Company's output will find a ready sale. What the price will be is not yet known, but there can be no doubt that the keen competent men who will direct the destinies of this important Company will furnish the public with a tire that is all right and unexcelled in point of appearance and durability.

The Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company, Limited, will be the sole selling agent and distributor for "Dominion" Tires.

The Biter Bitten.

When "Captain" Smith, editor of The Farmers' Sun, came down from Manitoulin Island to join the reportorial staff of The Toronto Telegram there were a few little things he did not know about the newspaper game. He was placed on the City Hall assignment, and it was not long before an official wag named Bell in the City Clerk's office set a trap for the new reporter.

When Smith dropped into the City Clerk's office, Bell casually informed him of a terrible fuss made out in Parkdale by a fierce bear that had escaped from its captors, and attacked people in the streets, or something of that sort. It was a wild and weird tale, but Bell told it without a symptom of suspicion in his tone. Smith sized it up as a great scoop and ran almost breathless into the office with it.

The story surprised the city editor and was called to the attention of John R. Robinson, the editor, who had covered City Hall and knew the ways of the officials. "Who told you this story?" he queried.

"Mr. Bell."

"All right."

And that afternoon The Telegram came out with the great bear story preceded by a line of introduction to this effect—"Mr. Bell, of the City Clerk's office, states the following:"—Canadian Courier.

"Your husband is very fond of exercise." "Yes, if he can get it in any other way than with the snow shovel."

REASON GIVEN FOR THE EXODUS

Farmer Should Treat His Boy as Well as the Hired Man.

It is all very well for Senator Campbell, in Parliament to lament the exodus of our young men from the drudgery of farm life to the so-called gentlemanly occupation of the city and to advocate that the Government should do more to make farming life so attractive to the sons of our agriculturists that they will, in choosing a life occupation, decide to remain on the homestead. The greatest hindrance to keeping young men on farms rests more with their fathers than with any paternal Government. At home, when the lad is spending part of his time at school, it is a pleasant relaxation to him to fill up his spare hours doing chores, and looking after the horses and stock in a boyish fashion; but when the time arrives for him to leave school altogether, and he takes a regular place on the farm as a helper, after the first gloss of novelty has worn off, farm life loses its fascination, and he yearns for some employment that will not only be less laborious, but more remunerative, to himself. He sees the hired man receiving wages, and working only a limited number of hours per day; but he sees himself, save in very exceptional cases, the recipient of a miserable allowance of pocket money, doled out, often unwillingly, at uncertain times, compelled to do all the drudgery which the hired man neglects or refuses to perform. His working hours have no limit, and his recreational periods are spoiled for him, because he is too tired to participate in any enjoyment after he is through with his own work, and has cleared up the arrears left by others. At length he gets disgusted with his lot, throws it up, goes to the city, gets a situation, and adds another to the long array of farm deserters. The remedy must be provided in the home; the son must be put on no lower plane than the hired help; he must be encouraged to like his work; and, so far as possible, the charms of his childhood aspirations must be made a continuous living feature of his every-day life. Then, but not until then, the exodus from the land will be no longer accepted as a necessary evil.—Calgary News-Telegram.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN COMPANY

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at the Head Office of the Company, No. 437 George street, Peterborough, on Friday, the 24th day of January, 1913, at 2 o'clock p.m.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors submit herewith their twenty-eighth annual report showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the balance sheet to the 31st December, 1912.

The gross earnings for the year amounted to $267,501.23, and after the payment of interest on deposits and debentures, and all expenses of management there remained a net profit of $146,811.39. To this amount has been added $46,421.15, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $193,232.54.

This amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(1)	By payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10% for the year, amounting to	$100,000.00
(2)	By addition to the Reserve Fund	40,000.00
(3)	By amount carried forward to profit and loss account	53,232.54

The above addition to the reserve fund increases that account to $800,000.00, making it now 80% of the present paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00.

All payments maturing during the year on the Company's investments have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the Company have also been promptly paid. The books, accounts and securities of the Company have been carefully examined by the Auditors, and their report is attached to the financial statement.

It is with deepest regret that we have to recall the death during the year of one of our directors in the person of Mr. Peter Hamilton, who for fifteen years took a keen interest in the affairs of the Company.

Your Directors elected Mr. E. W. Cox, General Manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, to fill the vacancy on the Board caused by the death of Mr. Hamilton.

The steamer was on the point of leaving, and the passengers lounged on the deck and waited for the start. At length one of them espied a cyclist in the far distance, and it soon became evident that he was doing his level best to catch the boat.

Already the sailors' hands were on the gangways, and the cyclist's chance looked small indeed. Then a sportive passenger wagered a sovereign to a shilling that he would miss it. The offer was taken, and at once the deck became a scene of wild excitement.

"He'll miss it."

"No; he'll just do it."

"Come on!"

"He won't do it."

"Yes, he will. He's done it. Hurrah!"

In the very nick of time the cyclist arrived, sprang off his machine and ran up the one gangway left.

"Cast off!" he cried.

YOUNGSTER HAD NARROW ESCAPE IN RUNAWAY

Hurled Fifteen Feet when Wagon Crashed Against Pole

A young lad named Forsythe has reason to be thankful for his providential escape from serious injury this morning, in a real startling runaway accident.

The Central Liquor Store delivery wagon to which was attached their team, was standing outside of a house near the Canadian General Electric Company's Works, with the youngster holding the reins until the driver returned. Something however, caused the team to take fright and they started off at a pace which the puny strength of Forsyth was unable to check. The runaways headed down Wolfe St., crossed the C.P.R. yard between the station and the Campbell Flour Mills, after dodging in and out between the box cars on the siding in an almost miraculous manner. The diminutive driver clung to the reins however, all the time trying to halt their furious speed. At the corner of George and Dalhousie the sensational part occurred, when the wagon struck a telegraph pole with a mighty crash. The side was caved in and one of the long boards in the wagon broken almost in half. One of the kegs in the wagon was hurled out against a neighboring brick wall and smashed into atoms. The youthful driver was tossed nearly fifteen feet and just landed a foot or so from the wall, escaping, perhaps, death by that margin. The team continued its mad course up George street, taking with them the front part of the wagon. They were halted in front of Nixon's Hotel.

Young Forsythe was unhurt save for some bruises and after he picked himself up, commenced to cry.

Catarrhal Bad Breath

Corrected Quickly by the Use of

Catarrhozone

Catarrh is an inflammation. Where there is inflammation there is always more or less offensive secretion. Inflammation may be of the very active sort, but it is often of the slow kind, and this is the particular form in which the breath is rendered offensive and the presence of the sufferer becomes an offence to every person of delicate sensibility.

Bad breath is in itself sufficient to urge you to correct it, because one dislikes to be unpleasant to their friends, but this form of catarrh is dangerous because it supplies a hotbed for the development of Consumption or of other diseases of the throat and lungs.

Bad breath is an evidence that the microbes have found a good resting place and are carrying on their evil inroads into the health of the body.

Catarrhozone acts at once and destroys these minute organisms, but it does more—it heals the inflamed surfaces in which they found a nesting place and consequently removes both cause and effects of their action.

If we only highly estimated the value of prevention and used Catarrhozone at the beginning of a cold or just before it becomes well seated, the deadly ravages of Consumption would be stayed and the terrible agonies of sufferers of Asthma or Bronchitis completely abolished.

There is no remedy as effective for bad breath, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., as Catarrhozone. Besides being healing and soothing it is germ destroying. Nothing ever offered to the public can compare with it in its promptness, efficiency, and permanency of action, and you can buy it from any dealer in medicine throughout the Dominion of Canada, 25c, 50c, and $1.00 sizes. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

FRED DENISON MAY LAND JOB ON OTTAWA DEFENCE

Ottawa, Jan. 25 — The Ottawas may get a new defence man in Fred. Denison of Peterborough, one of the now famous Hamilton Alert O.H.A. team who received the axe from the O.H.A. Denison is now in town but announces that he isn't particularly anxious to turn out. He [illegible] to turn out with Ottawa College in the Interprovincial. As it stands now, College are satisfied with their defence and are not likely to make any change. If he joined their team he will be used on the forward line.

One of the Ottawa executive men intends to look up Denison and have him turn out with the locals for a try-out. The Peterborough boy is big and has the reputation of being fast and a good stick-handler. Hockey fans who have seen him play say that he is much the same style of defence man as Harold McNamara, the big Tecumseh point player.

PETES WON BY 11-3 COUNT

Lead Port Hopers at Half Time by 5-0 on Soft Ice

The junior seven from Calverwelville did not have much in the line of stiff opposition for the local juniors last night, the result being a win for the homesters by 11—3. The half was 5—0. Had the ice been hard Messrs Halpin, Rose and company would have landed the puck past Clements more frequently. Barrie had a tryout at left wing and made a good impression. The best player on the visitors' line-up was W. Hill, at centre. He is only fifteen years of age and proportionate in weight but he handled himself well. His stick handling at times was cheered loudly by the small crowd.

The teams were:

A. Hills.
Baxter.
Brown.

SPEED BOYS PLAY MIDGETS

Manager Gettas' Boston Speed Boys will meet the Midgets on Brock street rink, Tuesday night, 10 to 11, with the following line-up: Goal, Walker; point, Galfin; cover, Clancy; rover, Bain; centre, Butcher; right, Wolff; left, Rogers.

GAME WITH ST. MIKE'S TO BE PLAYED MONDAY

In deference to the wishes of a number of members of the St. Michaels and Peterborough Clubs an effort was made to-day to have Monday night's senior game postponed on account of the death of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. However when Manager Dissette, of St. Michaels Club took the matter up with the O.H.A., it was found impossible to change the date and the game will be played as announced.

A number of Toronto friends of the late Bishop of Peterborough will take advantage of the trip to Peterborough to attend the funeral of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor.

The troubles of marriage only begin when a man tries to shirk its responsibilities.

STAN WADE PLAYING HOCKEY AT HAMILTON

Says the Hamilton Spectator:—

"One player who is beginning to show the form expected of him is Stan Wade, the former Peterborough player. Wade has been slow rounding into form and is just hitting his gait. He went so good in the practice against the juniors last evening that it is more than likely he will be used to-night. Wade is a chunky youngster, who knows how to use his weight to advantage and in addition is fast and a good stick handler. Lack of condition has worked against him so far.

DECIDE $1400 AS LIMIT OF CANUCK LEAGUE

By mail vote with only one club of the eight dissenting, the Canadian Baseball League yesterday decided to raise the salary limit from $1,200 to $1,400, exclusive of manager. This is the maximum fixed by the National Association.

The Stranger.

A stranger knocked at a man's door and told him of a fortune to be made.

"Um!" said the man. "It appears that considerable effort will be involved."

"Oh, yes," said the stranger; "you will pass many sleepless nights and toilsome days!"

"Um!" said the man. "And who are you?"

"I am called Opportunity."

"Um!" said the man. "You call yourself Opportunity, but you look like hard work to me."

And he slammed the door.—Pittsburgh Post.

MOUNTSTEPHEN'S CAREER.

Canadian Nobleman's Life Has Been Full of Stirring Episodes.

The early career of Lord Mountstephen will interest Canadian readers. What are the odds against a draper's assistant becoming a peer of the realm and a millionaire? Whatever the odds, they have been surmounted by Lord Mountstephen, who has entered upon his eighty-fourth year. The first Colonial Peer, his father was a journeyman carpenter in the little Banffshire town of Dufftown. It was there that the future baron was born, and in the small parish school he was educated. As a lad he herded cattle in his native glen, going after a time to serve an apprenticeship in an Aberdeen draper's shop. From Aberdeen to Glasgow was but a natural step, and from Glasgow farther "Sooth" a still more natural step for the ambitious young Scot. In London he found employment in a big city warehouse which did business with the colonies. One day a customer from Montreal looked in, and the smart young Scot was deputed to wait on him. The purchasing finished, the assistant made out an order, and signed it in the usual way.

The man from Montreal, noticing the signature, became suspicious, and proceeded to ask a few questions. The upshot of it all was that in the salesman from Banffshire the colonial found a cousin. An invitation to Canada followed, and in very few months George Stephen became his cousin's partner in the latter's business. From that moment success followed him. Abundantly gifted with racial gift, he rose in time to be president of the Bank of Montreal and head of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It was in connection with the latter that Lord Mountstephen's best work was done with Canada, and it was for this that he received, first his Baronetcy, and later his Peerage. True to the land that gave him fortune, he took his title from the great mountain named after himself—which looks down upon the railway as it winds its way through the Rockies.

Lord Mountstephen has inherited all the quiet humor of his race. He tells one capital story against himself. He went into the French district surrounding Quebec one day. After he left, two worthies fell to discussing him. "Mountstephen," said one, "is a very fine man." "Yes," assented the other. "Big man?" "Big man in Montreal," said the other. "Oh! Very big man in Montreal—very big man in Montreal?" "Yes." Then came the final question. "What is he—butcher or hotelkeeper?"

LONG HAIRED MEN.

They Caused a Vigorous Protest In Massachusetts In 1649.

The following protest signed by Joseph Endicott, governor; Thomas Dudley, deputy governor; Richard Bellingham, Richard Saltoustall, Increase Nowell, William Hibbins, Thomas Flint, Robert Bridges and Simon Bradstreet was published in Massachusetts in 1649:

"Protest, against wearing long hair of the governor, etc., of Massachusetts:

"Forasmuch as the wearing of long hair, after the manner of Russians and barbarous Indians, has begun to invade New England, contrary to the rule of God's word, which says it is a shame for man to wear long hair, as also the commendable custom generally of all the godly of all our nation until within these few years:

"We, the magistrates, who have signed this paper, for the shewing of our own innocency in this behalf, do declare and manifest our dislike and detestation against the wearing of such long hair, as against a thing uncivil and unmanly, whereby men doe deforme themselves and offend sober and modest men and doe corrupt good manners. We doe therefore earnestly intreat all the elders of this jurisdiction, as often as they shall see cause, to manifest their zeal against it in their public administrations, and to take care that the members of their respective churches be not defiled therewith; that so, such as prove obstinate, and will not reforme themselves, may have God and man to witness against them. The third month 10th day, 1649."

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Wild Bees.

Wild bees will attack blossoms that the tame bees ignore. The bee from the woods does not seem to care for propagated flowers, nor will it enter any hive that has been placed for it, no matter how enticing the food there. It is far more vicious than its cultured brothers.

Awarded Beit Fellowship.

Archibald Bruce Macallum, a son of Prof. A. B. Macallum of the University of Toronto, has just been awarded one of the Beit Memorial Fellowships in Medical Research at London, England. The fellowships have the value of $1,250 per annum and are usually held for two or three years.

Dr. Macullem received his degree of B.A. at the university in 1907, M.B. in 1909, M.D. in 1910, has studied at the University of Toronto, Harvard University and at Munich, under Prof. Frederick Von Muller. During his stay in Germany he has been engaged in research work, and has made several contributions to contemporary medical literature in collaboration with Prof. Folin.

NAVAL GUN TELESCOPES.

Device That Made Possible Accurate Long Range Firing.

It was about the year 1885 that the telescope was first tested in conjunction with the firing of a modern gun. The tremendous concussion broke the ens, however, so that in order to use it at all the telescope had to be detached from the gun before firing, thereby entailing a loss of several seconds in time after aim had been taken.

Later, to obviate this defect, the telescope was adjusted to the axis of the gun by a system of parallel arms moving up and down in unison with the gun, though detached from it. This of course was a great improvement, but there were still grave practical defects.

Well, along in the early nineties Henry C. Mustin, a young midshipman at Annapolis, lean faced and square of jaw, built like a medium sized Hercules, quiet mannered, but a bulldog in the football field, interested himself in the study of optics. Naturally enough, his thoughts were directed to the defective lenses of the gun telescopes. The lenses broke when the guns were fired; therefore it was necessary to invent a nonbreakable lens.

One day years later, while stationed in Washington, Mustin called a few of his brother officers to the window near his desk on the second floor of a building in the navy yards. He showed them a lens with a metal band "shrunk" around its circumference. Then he opened the window and deliberately threw the lens with all his might upon the brick pavement below. The others knew of his pet hobby and thought he had given it up in disgust and had taken this way of telling them so. But he put on his hat, lit a cigarette and bade them follow him. He led them down the stairs amid considerable joking and out to the spot where the lens lay on the pavement. The glass was unbroken. The one great defect of the telescope sight had been overcome, and Mustin had made possible the long range gunnery of the modern navy. The thud of the little glass disk with its metal collar upon the brick pavement was the signal for the nations to begin to build their Dreadnoughts.—American Magazine.

Where He Quit.

"I came, sir, in answer to your advertisement in last night's paper. You said you wanted to employ a man who was a total stranger to fear."

"Are you a brave man?"

"I am, sir. I have given proof of my courage in many parts of the world."

"Yes?"

"I have faced bullets in Mexico and machetes in Cuba."

"Good!"

"I helped defend the missionaries against the Boxers, and I was present at the siege of Port Arthur."

"Fine!"

"I have fought the infuriated walrus of Baffin bay and the maddened bull elephant of central Africa, and I went through the Armenian massacre without losing my nerve."

"You seem to be the man I want. Would you be willing to go out on a field in front of 20,000 fair minded, sport loving Americans and umpire a baseball game honestly, deciding against the home team when necessary?"

"So that's the job, is it?" replied the man of courage as he broke into a cold perspiration and a run for the door simultaneously.—Newark Times.

FEARED HE HAD CONSUMPTION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

HUGH McKENNA, Esq.

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. Jan. 17th. 1911.

"I wish to tell you of the great good "Fruit-a-tives" have done for me. For years, I was a martyr to Chronic Constipation and Stomach Trouble. I was greatly run down and my friends feared I had Consumption. I tried numerous doctors and all kinds of medicines, but received no relief until advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" by Mr. McCready of St. Stephen, and am pleased to say that I now enjoy excellent health. "Fruit-a-tives" are the best medicine made; and I strongly advise my friends to use them".

Lemon Rind.

The "zest" of lemon is the very thinnest possible grating of the yellow outer rind. If any of the white underneath is added the whole will become bitter.

Simply a Bad Actor.

The Lady—How did you come to be thrown out of employment? The Thespian—'Tis a sad but soon told tale, madam. An ape-like audience threw ancient eggs at muh; a mangy and mercenary manger threw muh down a flight of stairs; a dull witted doorman threw muh out into the street, and a twice cursed taxicab threw muh twenty feet. Thus it was, lady.—Judge.

"PAIN COMPLETELY LEFT ME"

So Says Thomas Stephenson after Taking GIN PILLS

To those who have suffered, year in and year out, from the dragging misery of Kidney Disease, anything that will relieve the pain is a blessing indeed. That is just what a well-known resident of Lachute Mills, Que., and his wife both found in GIN PILLS.

Lachute Mills, P. Q.

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Disease, and a friend told me to take GIN PILLS. After taking a few boxes, I was greatly relieved, and after finishing the twelfth box, the pain completely left me.

My wife is now using GIN PILLS and finds that she has been greatly relieved of the pain over her Kidneys.

I can safely recommend anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to give a fair trial to GIN PILLS." THOMAS STEPHENSON.

Would you welcome such a relief? Then take GIN PILLS. They go right to the spot—ease the pain almost at once—neutralize the Uric Acid which is causing all the trouble—strengthen the kidneys so that they will be able to keep the blood pure—and quickly take away that weakness and tenderness of the back which undermine the energy and vigor of manhood and womanhood.

Don't pass GIN PILLS without a trial. Every box is sold on the positive guarantee that if six boxes, used according to directions, do not help you, your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Music and Drama

Miss Olive May, the beautiful Gaiety Theatre girl, who recently married Lord Victor William Paget, took no chances. Before the wedding ceremony she insisted that the family of her finance promise to receive her at any and at all times as their social equals. This the bridegroom's brother, the Marquis of Anlesey, agreed to do, and he also, it is reported, assured his charming sister-in-law that he would arrange a substantial settlement for her. At the celebration of the wedding the veracious chronicler announced that the bride was cool and composed, while Lord Paget was nervous and ill at ease.

"Fashionable people surely do get things mixed up." "In what way?" "What should be a horse show they make a dress parade, and a dress parade they call grand opera."—Baltimore American.

The Buenos Ayres authorities recently issued an order to the theatrical managers that sufficient space must be provided between the rows of seats so that persons entering after the performance has commenced can go to their places without disturbing those already seated, and the theatres have closed in preference to obeying the order.

Everything in the way of music, save the chants of the Church, are denied by the Russian Government to the forlorn inmates of its prisons and mines of Siberia. Yet, for all of this prohibition, relief is secretly sought for the overburdened heart of these sequestered souls, who have thus produced a new and hitherto unknown literature of song. The governors of prisons have also rigidly withheld musical instruments even from political prisoners, yet they have invented a sinister accompaniment to the rhythm of their touching songs in the dreadful music of clanking manacles. In the summer of 1908 a brilliant Russian composer, of Swedish origin, Mr. William Hartfield, succeeded after strenuous efforts in obtaining permission from the Russian Premier, Stolypin, to explore this unknown field.

At the very start, in the fortress of Tobolsk, according to an absorbing article in La Revue (Paris) by Leonie Sienicka, an unexpected difficulty arose. The very deference shown the composer by the governor of the prison roused the suspicions of the convicts he summoned as most likely to aid this quest. They answered with a cynical pretense of ignorance born of the fear that this emissary of Stolypin, inviting them to break the rules, meditated a treacherous betrayal.

They declared they had no songs and knew nothing of music, nor did their brothers. One prisoner when approached said: "We are no songbirds, your excellency, even when at liberty; we are birds of prey." Only the most earnest assurances of immunity from the authorities, and promise of reward from the "barin" finally induced them to reveal their secret treasures. After a few days' rehearsal, a complete choir, under the direction of a leader chosen by the convicts themselves, gave a concert before Mr. Hartfield, comprising the most various songs accompanied by instruments supplied by the authorities, such as bandouras, balalaikas, accordeons, hautboys, etc.

"Thus began the numerous seances, in the course of which the composer selected fragments of so striking an originality, that he had them performed in his concerts—fragments whose prodigious diversity of tonality and rhythms paints with so much fidelity the complex souls of these beings of violent passions."

Besides penetrating the prisons Mr. Hartfield sought out the escaped convicts and the brodiage or vagabonds who haunt the moss-covered marshes known as tundras in the north of Siberia. The 120 melodies and songs of various kinds thus collected he divided into three groups; the songs of prisoners and escaped convicts, those of the unhappy creatures condemned to labor in the mines, and those of the non-Russian subject races, such as the Kirghiz, Ainos, Samoyeds, Bouriats, etc. Of these melodies Mme. Sienicka says:

"Among the most interesting are those which bear traces of Oriental origin. But in these there are demitones which it is almost impossible to register. The distinguished composer could not transcribe them without having recourse to musical compromise. Also their primitive originality suffered in the execution, since it was necessary to replace the instruments employed by the Siberian races (svirielia, kiatongs, daikhes, li, kohiens, etc.), by pianos and harmoniums, in default of players skilled in the use of the former."

In 1909 Hartfield gave a concert in Kieff to make public the result of his researches. The programs bore such unusual titles as "Songs of the Prison," "Siberia," "The March of Irons," "Accompaniment of Combs, Gongs, etc." Mme. Sienicka was present, and declares that the composer succeeded in producing an extraordinary effect on the audience spite of the difficulties with which he had been forced to contend. She continues:

"As for the convicts, all musical instruments being proscribed in the jails, they can accompany their voices only with their irons, and with combs! (The use of the latter was taught them by some of the mutinied marines of the Potemkin, who were sent to the prison of Tobolsk.) From these Mr. Hartfield's performers drew sensational effects.

"'The March of Irons' will linger in my memory forever. Imagine a chorus chanted with closed lips. Sounds thus produced resemble groans. . . . As accompaniment the sharp shrilling of combs, like the wail of the north wind in a bank of reeds. And to mark the rhythm the sinister clanking of the chains shaken by the arms they hold in gyves."

We lack space to quote the more gentle and plaintive examples given, but add the author's comment on the whole collection:

"More than any psychological study they show the complexity of the human soul—that soul which is still an ocean of enigmas in spite of the meditations of centuries. . . . They show also the dreamy and poetic tendency of the Russian heart, and its need—which is that of most peoples—of translating into song the sentiments by which it is obsessed."

Spoiled the Scene.

Many years ago Miss Ellen Terry was playing Naomi in the "Green Bushes" at the Dublin theatre, and toward the end of the play was supposed to commit suicide by jumping into the river. One night, when she reached the usual eminence of rock to jump off, she found to her dismay that no mattress had been placed in the "river" for her to fall on, so down she came on the bare boards with a hard thud. Her confusion was intense, but it was increased tenfold when a voice from the gallery sang out in rich brogue: "Och, be jabers, the water's frozen!" This remark set the house in a roar and fairly spoiled Miss Terry's sensational scene.

Some Famous Old Actors.

It is proposed to erect a tablet in St. Leonard's church, Shoreditch, London, to the memory of the Elizabethan actors who are recorded in the parish registers to have been buried there. The list includes the following: Will Somers, Henry VIII.'s jester (died 1560); Richard Tarlton, Queen Elizabeth's famous clown and possibly Shakespeare's Yorkick (died 1588); James Burbage, the builder of the first English playhouse (died 1597); Richard Burbage, the original impersonator of many of Shakespeare's characters (died 1618-19); Gabriel Spenser, William Sly, Richard Cowley and other actors in the original and early productions of Shakespeare's plays.

On one occasion Mozart was making merry with his friends at midnight when not a single note was written of the overture to 'Don Giovanni," which was to be produced on the following morning. Awaking refreshed, he set to work on the overture, dashing off sheet after sheet with incredible rapidity and dispatching them to the copyists. The opera was to begin at 7 in the evening, and a few minutes after that hour Mozart was in his place as conductor, baton in hand, while the parts with the ink still wet on some of them were being handed to the orchestra.

Of the two children of the late Samuel Coleridge-Taylor, the Anglo-African composer, much is expected in the way of musical achievements. The boy, Hiawatha, has written a Hiawatha ballet, which has been favorably commented on. He began to study violin and theory of music at the age of four. Gwendolen, the daughter, sings many of her father's songs, reads well at sight and has good musical education. The composer wished both his children to receive their musical education at the guidance of his friend, Landon Ronald.

A well-known dramatic critic was leaving the theatre after the third act of a new play. The manager, seeing him, exclaimed: "Why, Mr. X., there is another act coming."

"Yes," retorted the critic, "that's why I am going."—New York Evening Post.

"People's morals don't interest me," said Geraldine Farrar recently in an interview with a New York Telegraph representative. "Yet many in this country go to theatres to watch a woman portray faithfully every shade of passion, its power and hold, want her to grasp philosophically all situations, delineate carefully every phase that brings about anxiety, heartache, surrender, pain, and these same people, the audience, expect the actress' life to be free from experiences. They even deny her temptation. She must, I suppose, get her lessons from a dramatic school and not from life. That superstition and lack of courage account possibly for the many 'nice' actresses we have to-day and the few who are really great. We ought to judge artists and discuss them only by the work they give us. How they were shaped or molded is no one's business."

New York, Jan. 25.—Gustav Carl Luders, one of the best known composers of comic opera, and musical comedy in America, died suddenly of apoplexy shortly after midnight this morning while calling on friends. His widow and daughter survive him. Mr. Luders was forty-nine years old. Among his popular successes were "The Burgomaster," the "Prince of Pilsen," and the "Fair Co-ed."

FINE CONCERT BY ST. LUKE'S CHOIR

The choir of St. Luke's church held a very successful concert last evening in the Sunday school room. The audience was large and the program highly enjoyable. The choir had the assistance of Dr. Park, violinist and Miss Katie Leary, elocutionist at the close of the concert, the rector, Rev. F. J. Sawers, on behalf of the choir, thanked all who assisted.

SKETCH BY THE LADIES POPULAR

Fifth Performance of Old Tyme Ladyies' Aide Meetinge

Another crowded house last evening greeted the performance of 'An Old Tyme Ladyies Aide' Meetynge,' presented in Charlotte Street lecture hall for the benefit of St. James Methodist Church. It was the fifth occasion on which the sketch has been presented and it has been given a warm reception every time. The proceeds netted last evening amounted to over $125.

About twenty residents of Millbrook were in the audience as the Millbrook Methodist church propose to put on the same performance shortly.

PRESENTATION BY LADIES AID OF ST. JAMES

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. James' church visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rooke, Princess street, Tuesday night, and presented them with a handsome reading lamp. The gift was presented by Mrs. A. Wilson and Mrs. J. T. Palmer read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Rooke,—We, the members of St. James' Ladies' Aid Society, feel that we must convey to you in some manner our hearty and sincere appreciation of your faithful and untiring service as caretakers of the church, and in all branches of church work wherever needed. We ask you to accept this reading lamp as a small token of our esteem, and our earnest prayer is that you may be long spared to use it, and work with us for the advancement of God's cause in our beloved church.

Wishing you and yours many blessings in the New Year.

(Signed)

The officers and members of St. James' Ladies' Aid.

The Bell Telephone staff held their annual banquet last night.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE GEORGE ST. SUNDAY SCHOOL

Large Enrollment Shown By Report Of Secretary—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of George St. Sunday School was held last evening, there being a very gratifying turn out of teachers, officers, scholars and parents.

The officers for the year 1913 were elected as follows:

Superintendent—Mr. G. A. Fergusson.
Assist-Supts.—Mr. S. R. Armstrong, Mr. George Robertson and Mr. T. D. Pratt.
Secretary—Mr. Ray Best.
Treasurer—Mr. Ernie Oke.
Assist-Treas.—Mr. C. Miller.
Supt. Home Dept.—Mr. T. W. Robinson.
Supt. Primary Dept.—Miss Edna Armstrong.
Beginners' Dept.—Mrs. Lewis.
Cradle Roll—Mrs. Shortly.
Musical Director—Mr. J. H. Renwick.
Orchestra Leader—Mr. W. H. Cunningham.
Pianist—Miss Pearl McKee.
Assist.-Pianist—Mrs. Holt.
Librarians—Mr. T. E. Pratt, Mr. W. J. Routly and Mr. Wallace Armstrong.

The chair at the meeting was taken by Rev. Mr. Couch, the pastor. The various reports were presented and received.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The secretary's report, briefly, was as follows:—

Number on Cradle Roll—81 girls, and 68 boys; intermediate department, 124 girls and 91 boys; Bible classes, 265; teachers, 41; officers, 16; orchestra, 15; total, 706.

The average attendance during the year was 360. Exclusive of the foregoing figures 130 were reported on the Home Department and 26 on the Cradle Roll, bringing the total attendance up to 863.

The report for 1912 showed a considerably higher average attendance than the previous year.

GRACE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Owing to the absence of the secretary-treasurer of Grace Sunday school there were no reports received from their school other than a few general remarks by Mr. J. J. Hartley, the superintendent.

Their officers for the year will be:—

Superintendent—Mr. J. J. Hartley.
Assistant—Mr. A. F. Hagerman.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. Hartley.
Assistant—Mr. A. N. Allison.
Librarian—Vincent Davidson.
Assistant Librarian—Harold Lowes.
Pianiste—Miss Helen Greaves.

After the business of gathering was disposed of, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong entertained the teachers and officers and orchestra, and refreshments were served and selections rendered by the orchestra.

29 PRIZES FROM 31 EXHIBITS THE RECORD OF LOCAL POULTRYMAN

Twenty-nine prizes from 31 exhibits was the record made at the Lindsay Poultry Show by birds owned by Mr. George Buller of this city, who exhibited orpingtons, games and game bantams. One of the bantams, which Mr. Buller purchased from a Guelph poultry fancier, won it's twelfth first prize in as many competitions.

Other Peterborough exhibitors whose birds were prominent in the prize list were Messrs. J. Meharry, W. Mein, George McClelland, Arthur Everson and Jas. Beptie, of Springville.

Mr. Frank Head, of Wallace Point, Otonabee, won first and third on cocks; 1st, 2nd and 3rd hen; 1st, 2nd annd 3rd pullet, and 2nd on cockerel; also winning a silver cup for the third year, which now becomes his property. Mr. Head also won a special on a barred rock hen.

FIFTY POUNDS OF HERRINGS BANNED BY INSPECTOR

The fish supply at the market this morning, was shortened rather suddenly, when the Sanitary Inspector confiscated fifty pounds of the finny tribe, which were offered to the public as fresh herring. An investigation satisfied the Inspector that the herrings were not fit for consumption. On account of weather conditions of the past week, the dealer was given the benefit of the doubt and not prosecuted. He was warned, however, to be more careful in the future.

LIEUT.-COL. YOUNG ENTERTAINS PETERBORO GARRISON OFFICERS

An interesting event marked a social gathering last night at the residence of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Young, who were at home to the officers of the 57th Regiment, Third Prince of Wales Dragoons and 10th Brigade of the 24th Field Battery, C.F.A., when the Battery was transferred to the charge of Captain G. R. Hall, Major Young having been promoted as Lt.-Col. in command and Brigadier of the 10th Brigade.

LT. COL. T. W. G. YOUNG,
Brigadier of the 10th Brigade, C. F. A.

There were present: Lt.-Col. Miller, Lt.-Col. Stevenson, Col. Clegg, Majors Hayes and Davidson, of the 57th Regiment, with company officers and subalterns; Mayor Bradburn, late Captain of the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons; Major Medd and W. T. Hall, of the Third Dragoons, and the Battery officers, Captain G. R. Hall, Capt. E. P. Fee and Lieut. E. G. Cameron; Capt. Clarke, D.A.A.G., and O.M.G., of the headquarters staff, Kingston, Lieut. W. H. Gimblett, D.O., and Master Gunner W. H. Bird, of the Armament Office Kingston were also present in connection with the transfer of the Battery stores and equipment.

Peterborough is now the headquarters of the three branches of the service—cavalry, artillery and infantry, the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, the 10th Brigade, C.F.A., and the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, having their headquarters here.

Congratulations were extended to Lieut.-Col. Young and Capt. Hall and a very enjoyable evening was spent by the guests, who numbered about forty.

INCREASE TO 12 CENTS IN PRICE OF BREAD MEANS $31,000 TO THE SEVEN BAKERIES

Are the householders of Peterborough who subsist largely on the staff of life, namely, bread, prepared to pay $31,000 a year more than they are now paying for such a necessary article of diet? It has been estimated that such a sum approximately speaking will have to be paid if the increase of two cents goes into effect next spring.

It is said that local bakers have been looking for such a move for some time, and that they have practically decided to ask twelve cents. They say that the higher price is being paid in Toronto and Lindsay and other points not far from here and contend that the increase is a necessity.

The Review has instituted enquiries as to what the extent of the daily and yearly out put of bread is in Peterborough. The result was really astonishing considering that a minimum figure was set. Extreme care was also exercised in ascertaining the figures.

SEVEN BAKERIES.

There are seven bakery establishments operating in Peterborough. By securing a minimum figure, of the number of customers of each, it was an easy matter to find out approximately the number of loaves of bread delivered during the year, and figuring at 10 cents a loaf to ascertain the total proceeds in one year. Proceeding in the same manner it was only a matter of figures, to obtain the amount of the increase which would accrue if the two cent raise is ordered.

The amount of the increase, however would be easily sufficient to establish and equip a modern first-class municipal bakery. At this stage it is not deemed necessary to furnish the figures which enabled the Review to reach its conclusions but such can be readily furnished to support the contentions.

BAKERS' WAGES.

The salaries paid to bakers in Peterborough range from ten to fifteen dollars per week, for a ten hour day. There are about twenty-three engaged in the actual work of turning out bread.

Should the proposed two cent jump take effect it will mean that something like $4,434 will, if equally divided, be distributed among the seven bakeries of this city.

CHILDREN HELD CLOSING DANCE

The members of the children's dancing class, which is conducted by Miss Gladman at the Conservatory of music held their closing dance last evening. About sixty children were present and the occasion was an extremely pleasant one for all. The mothers of the little ones acted as chaperons. Refreshments were served and the gathering dispersed soon after eleven o'clock.

ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED

Peterborough's Scotchmen celebrated Burns' anniversary in a very becoming manner last evening. A banquet was held in Hooper's Palm Parlors. Speeches were made and a very pleasant evening was spent. Many prominent citizens were among the gathering of forty.

The Public Warned

Having been informed that a certain woman has been soliciting aid to buy Bibles for Mark street Sunday school, I feel forced to state that this matter is of the woman's own initiative; that neither pastor of the church nor superintendent of the school has any knowledge of this affair. The people are advised to act accordingly.

PROVINCIAL TREASURER PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Veteran Conservative Never Fully Recovered From His Illness of a Year Ago—Was a Lawyer for Years and a Militia Officer For Forty-Seven.

COL. MATHESON 70 YEARS OLD

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Hon. Arthur James Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, died suddenly at his home in Perth, Ont., at 11 o'clock Saturday night. In the death of Col. Matheson, Ontario loses one of its oldest public men. Since 1894 he had represented South Lanark in the Ontario Legislature, and during the reign of the Whitney Government, since 1905, he was Provincial Treasurer. His death was entirely unexpected, although he had been suffering from heart trouble for a number of years. He worked in his office at the Parliament Buildings until last Friday night. He left for his home town, Perth, on Saturday morning. Several hours after his arrival he was stricken and died at 11 o'clock.

Col. Matheson had never fully recovered from his illness of a year ago. Just prior to the opening of the Legislature last year he was taken ill at the Parliament Buildings, and was conveyed to the Western Hospital. He was confined there for several weeks, and at times his condition was such that it was feared that he could not recover. However, he rallied, and before the close of the session, he was able to resume his duties as Provincial Treasurer.

HON. A. J. MATHESON.

Col. Matheson was born in Perth, Ont., in Dec. 8, 1842, and was a son of the late Hon. and Mrs. Roderick Matheson. His father was a Senator for a number of years. Col. Matheson was educated at Upper Canada College and Trinity University, Toronto, from which he graduated a bachelor of arts in 1865. Five years later he was called to the bar and had for a number of years subsequent practiced law in Perth. He served several years in the council of Perth and in 1883 he was elected mayor, which office he held for a long period. He was up to his death a member of the council of Trinity College.

Col. Matheson came from a family of fighting stock, both military and politically. His father was lieutenant and paymaster in the Glengarry Light Infantry in the war of 1812. The late Provincial Treasurer, himself, took a first-class certificate in the military school and served in the Fenian Raid in 1866 on the St. Lawrence frontier. He was gazetted a captain in 1881, and major in 1885, and in 1866, after having volunteered with his corps for service in the Northwest Rebellion, he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel, commanding the 42nd Regiment until 1898. Two years later he was appointed a brigadier at the volunteer militia.

He was a staunch Conservative and was never defeated in an election. He was returned to Parliament five times as a representative of South Lanark. During the years of Opposition of the Conservative party he was one of the keenest debaters on their side of the House, particularly in matters of finance, to which he showed a special aptitude. He was a well-known public man throughout the province, and appeared on various platforms in aid of his Conservative colleagues. When the party, under the control of Sir James Whitney, came into power in 1905, he was taken into the Cabinet and given the portfolio of Treasurer.

He never married, but lived with two sisters and a brother in the town of Perth until appointed Provincial Treasurer, and then he made his home in the Queen's Hotel. He made frequent visits to his constituency. He was very popular on both sides of the House and a man of exceptionally good qualities. He was quiet and unassuming, a gentleman of the old school, and no one could have been more courteous and kindly.

SUFFRAGE BILL IS DROPPED

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Jan. 27— British Cabinet decided to drop the franchise bill in view of the speakers ruling that an amendment granting suffrage to women would so materially alter its character that it should be introduced as a new measure.

London, Jan. 27— When the House met this afternoon, the precints of St. Stephens resembled an armed encampment. Two thousand patrolmen and one hundred mounted men were actually on duty. Large reserves were hidden away in convenient court yards, ready to descend upon any troublesome suffragettes.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Cabinet council which assembles to-day has to decide the momentous question as to how to deal with the dilemma caused by the Speaker's ruling on the franchise question. This ruling, which was made Thursday in answer to a question asked by Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, was to the effect that if the form substance of the bill were materially changed by amendments it should be withdrawn and a new bill presented.

Such strong, conflicting opinions have been provoked by the thorny problem of the women's vote that fears have begun to be expressed as to whether the Government will be able to weather the storm. It is faced on the one hand by the suffragists who are calling upon the Premier to redeem his pledge to the women, and on the other by those, even some Liberals, who express the opinion that the Government has no right to force through Parliament such a revolutionary reform as the giving of votes to women without first appealing to the country.

The Ministers insist that the question cannot involve any Cabinet resignations, and they argue that any alternative Government would be faced by exactly identical difficulties on the women's question.

Fear of some new militant action on the part of the suffragettes if the bill is dropped causes great anxiety in official quarters. The Scotland Yard authorities are taking elaborate measures to protect the Cabinet Ministers against possible attacks.

NEW BISHOP IS APPOINTED

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Jan. 27.—News was received here Saturday of the appointment of Rev. Henry J. O'Leary, D.D., of Bathurst, N.B., as Roman Catholic bishop of Prince Edward Island diocese, in succession to the late Bishop MacDonald. Dr. O'Leary is thirty-one years of age. He was educated in Montreal and at the Canadian College, Rome. He has represented the Bishop of the Maritime Provinces at Rome.

CADETS DRILL OUT OF DOORS

Weather so Mild They Were Without Overcoats.

WEST POINT, N.Y., Jan. 27.—The cadets of the U. S. Military Academy drilled out of doors Saturday in mid-winter, in weather so mild that they were without overcoats. With the battalion in full dress uniform, review and inspection was held on the grass plain, an event declared by academy officials to be unheard of before at this season of the year.

Indian Princess Marries.

MASSET, Queen Charlotte Island, B.C., Jan. 27.—After a romantic courtship rivalling those of western fiction, Frederick Nash, a well-known Vancouver surveyor, has been married to Josephine, an Indian princess, eldest daughter of the Proud Chief Edenshaw, one of the tribes of Haida Indians.

GETTING ENOUGH NOW.

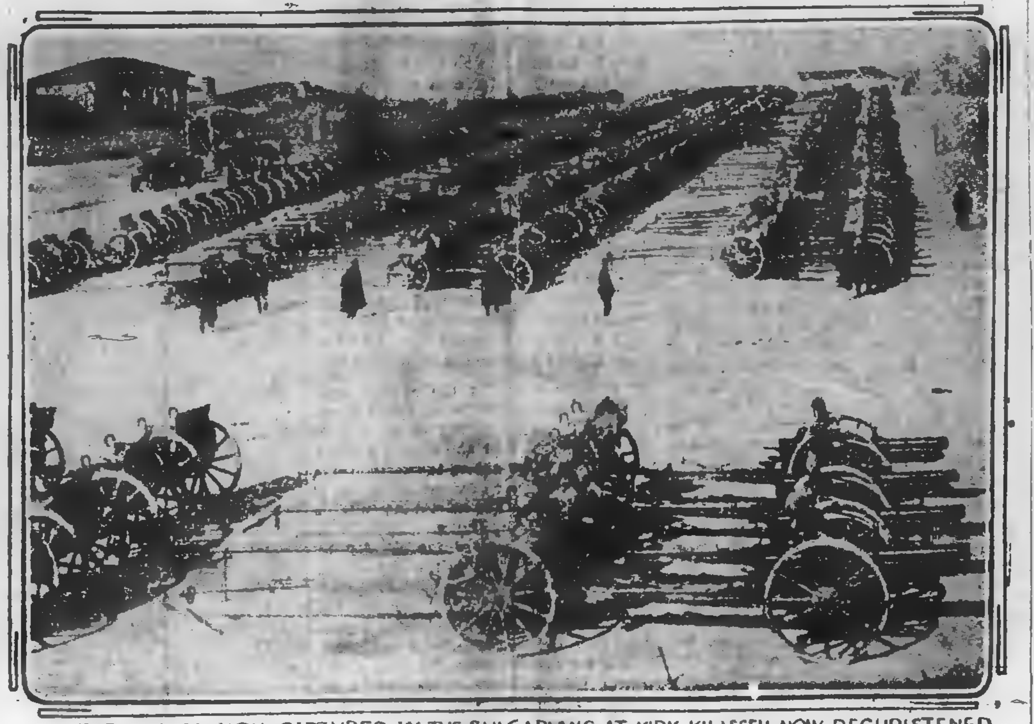
Hon. Frank Cochrane Refuses Increase For Canal Carpenters.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—J. C. Watters, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and Tom Moore of Niagara Falls, general organizer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, Saturday saw Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, in behalf of the carpenters employed on the Welland Canal.

These men, about ten in number, are permanently employed at the rate of 30 cents per hour, whereas the minimum union rate of wages in the district is 40 cents per hour. Mr. Moore asked that the canal carpenters be paid the prevailing union rate.

On the ground that the Government men were assured of steady work the year round and that there were many others ready to take their places, the Minister declined to accede to the request.

SCENE SHOWING CONTRABAND OF WAR SEIZED FROM THE TURKS.



TURKISH CANNON CAPTURED BY THE BULGARIANS AT KIRK KILISSEH, NOW RECHRISTENED LOZENGRAD

FROM THE SPHERE.

The picture herewith shown portrays an interesting scene in Balkania. These cannon, captured from the Turks at Kirk, now rechristened Lozengrad, although of great use to the Bulgarians, proved of little value to the Turks owing to the lack of ammunition. This picture shows only a part of the great collection of war material captured by the Balkan allies.

ALLIES WILL USE PRESSURE AND FORCE TURKS TO YIELD

They Will First Give Reasons Why the Negotiations Should be Broken Off.

Young Turks Are Not in Full Control Yet.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Balkan plenipotentiaries, who have received full powers from their respective Governments, appointed a committee yesterday to draft a note to the Turkish plenipotentiaries, explaining why the peace conference must now be considered broken off. It is hoped that the draft will be ready for the approval of the full delegation Monday night.

This action of the allies is part of a series of well-considered forms of pressure with which the Balkan delegates hope to obtain their object without resuming the war.

The meeting yesterday lasted for an hour and a half, and the course to be followed was given earnest consideration. Two distinct views were manifested — one for the immediate rupture of the negotiations, leading to a resumption of the war, and the other favoring a temporizing policy in order to avoid irrevocable steps. The latter course triumphed, and a committee was appointed.

General lines were laid down on which the note is to be drafted, comprising the arguments already set forth many times as to why the league demands the surrender of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands as an indispensable condition to the conclusion of peace.

That the policy of the allies is to gain time is patent, and does not deceive anybody. The delegates decided that the advantages to be derived from the resumption of hostilities would be in proportion to the risks they ran, and that they would not take that step unless absolutely forced to do so. It is realized that even a partial reverse would have grave moral and material consequence, apart from the loss of thousands of men.

Young Turks Not Strong.

VIENNA, Jan. 27.—Advices from Constantinople say that the Young Turk party thus far is backed only by part of the army; that a majority of the army, including the older officers in high positions, and a majority of the influential clergy, are against the Young Turks.

Enver Bey's following, adds the despatch, consists of several hundred officers infatuated by the cry, "Liberations of sacred places," and these very men are likely to turn against the Young Turks if they do not succeed in saving Adrianople.

Assault on Bisani Renewed.

ATHENS, Jan. 27.—After a heavy downpour which lasted 60 hours, the weather improved Saturday, enabling the Greeks under Crown Prince Constantine to renew the attack on Bisani, the key to Janim. The Turks in Fort St Nicholas have been reinforced and are making a desperate resistance. They have suffered heavy losses.

Roumania Will Not Mobilize.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 27.—Roumania has decided not to mobilize her army. A Cabinet Council, at which King Charles and the crown prince were present, reached this decision yesterday during a discussion of the Bulgarian negotiations.

Constantinople Shaken.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 27.—A severe earthquake shook many of the residences in the Turkish capital at an early hour Saturday morning. No considerable damage and no loss of life had been reported up to noon.

Another Banker Sentenced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The third former bank president to be convicted within a month in Brooklyn, on charges arising out of the panic of 1907, was found guilty of grand larceny Saturday. William G. Damron, who was head of the Home Bank received with calmness a jury's verdict of guilty in misappropriating $2,500 of the bank's funds. He will be sentenced Wednesday, when a fourth Brooklyn banker, another officer of the Home Bank, will be placed on trial. Other trials will follow.

PATRIOTISM COSTLY!

Navy Would Cost French In Quebec $5 Each Declares Nationalist.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—Le Nationalist, the weekly edition of Le Devoir, has discovered that the naval contribution of $35,000,000 will take five dollars a head out of the Quebec farmers. The Bourassa writer calculates that the County of St. Hyacinthe, for instance, with a population of 28,000, will have to contribute $140,000 to help England, while in the united counties of St. Maurice and Champlain, with a population of 78,000, the amount raised will be $390,000.

Of course, Le Nationalist takes pains to explain that a Government agent will not go round amongst the farmers and collect five dollars from each house, but it states that every yard of cotton and every pound of sugar they buy will be subject to the impost on behalf of English lords, who are shareholders in the Krupp-Maxim-Vickers' Trust.

"The price is too dear," it declares, "for the honor of being a British subject."

TOOK PART IN PROSECUTION OF BIRCHELL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Woodstock, Jan. 27— Francis Ramsay Ball, one of the oldest barristers in the province, died early this morning, aged eighty-five years. He was County Crown Attorney of Oxford for forty years and took part in the prosecution of Birchell. He once ran for South Oxford in the reform interest and was defeated by the late Sheffington Connor by one vote.

THIS BABE WAS DELIVERED BY PARCEL POST

Was Just Under Eleven Pounds and Went For 15 Cents.

BATAVIA, Ohio, Jan. 27.—Vernon O. Lytle, mail carrier on a rural route out of this place, is the first man to accept and deliver under parcel post conditions a live baby. The baby, a boy, weighing 10 3-4 pounds, just within the 11-pound weight limit, is the child of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Beagle of near Glen Este. The "package" was well wrapped and ready for "mailing" when the carrier got it on Saturday. Its measurements reached 71 inches, also just within the law, which makes 72 inches the limit. Mr. Lytle delivered the "parcel" safely to the address on the card attached, that of its grandmother, Mrs. Louis Beagle, who lives about a mile from its home. The postage was 15 cents and the "parcel" was insured for $50.

LIONESS GAINS FREEDOM IN FRENCE PLAYHOUSE

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 27.—If the application of Wm. Rea and his associates is granted by the Alberta legislature the Knights of the Whisk Broom in this province will be shortly incorporated under the name of the Western Porters' Association.

FEARS UNITED STATES.

Any Cuban Government Better Than American One, Says Zazas.

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—A great Liberal meeting was held here Friday night under the chairmanship of Vice-President Alfredo Zayas, who was defeated at the recent election for the Presidency.

The orators deprecated any attempt to revolt. On the contrary they expressed the wish to leave the question of the validity of the elections to the decision of the Supreme Court.

Col. Orestes Ferrara, the Liberal leader, while insisting that the Liberals had been defrauded in the elections, declared that any Cuban Government was preferable to an American Government, which would be the result of a revolution.

Tried To Kill Archduke Louis.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—A Barcelona despatch to the Petit Parisien reports an attempt to assassinate Archduke Louis Salvator, of Tuscany. While the archduke was walking in the grounds of his estate at Mount Ramu, in the Balearic Islands, a workman employed on the estate fired at him several times with a revolver. One of the bullets grazed the archduke and severely wounded a governess.

Women and Children Trampled, as People Fled—Beast Was Trapped in Office.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The escape of a lioness led to a panic Saturday evening in the Theatre Populaire, Belleville, which was crowded with a working-class audience. At the moment when the villain in the play was condemned to be torn to pieces by wild beasts a fine lioness was brought on the stage, but instead of leaving the cage by the back the animal pushed open a side door and walked to the front before the footlights.

A cry of horror rose from the audience. The conductor of the orchestra, paralyzed with fear, held his arm aloft and the musicians suddenly stopped playing. A moment later the iron safety curtain descended, and the lioness, seeing her retreat cut off, bounded from the stage, landed in the front stalls, and then leaped into a box which, happily, was empty. She made her way along the corridor to the manager's office, where the door was closed behind her and she was trapped.

Meanwhile the spectators, seized with panic, fled from the theatre. Many women and children fell and were trampled on. Those who escaped from the building sought refuge in an adjoining cafe, shouting as they ran: "Flee for your lives, the lioness has escaped!" When the panic had subsided and it was known that the lioness had been persuaded to re-enter her cage, the public went back to the theatre, the floor of which was strewn with hats, umbrellas and handbags, and searched for their property.

HON. W. H. HEARST REPLIES TO REPORT OF DR. FERNOW

Characterizing Report on Northern Ontario as "Loose Talk," Provincial Minister Denies Categorically the Statements Regarding Soil and Timber of the Clay Belt.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Prof. Fernow's report to the Conservation Commission regarding the conditions in New Ontario was "loose talk" in the opinion of Hon. W. H. Hearst, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, in a statement issued Saturday.

Dr. Fernowy, after a trip along the Transcontinental on a motor-car, said "probably" 50 per cent. of the area does not contain any wood and "probably" the same percentage of it is undesirable under present conditions to open for settlement.

Hon. Mr. Hearst, in his reply, alludes to the superficial nature of the survey of 20,000,000 acres and reviews the history of the exploration of the "clay belt." Ten parties of experts were sent out in 1900 and went over the ground thoroughly, and found three-quarters of it excellent unbroken land. Since that time several exhaustive surveys have been made and the investigators agree that the soil from many samples taken is as good as, if not better, than that of Old Ontario. The testimony of these careful observers, who spent months in that country examining its capabilities, says Mr. Hearst, must be taken to outweigh any evidence picked up in a casual and rapid railway trip.

"With respect to the timber — the estimate of the exploration of 1900 was that there was in that region 288,000,000 cords of pulpwood, spruce, jackpine and poplar. There is very little red and white pine in the territory, as it lies north of the pine belt, but there are large quantities of good spruce and jackpine, of sawlog size, which are of much value for timber, ties, etc., beside an enormous quantity of timber suitable for pulp and paper making.

"With respect to the criticisms and suggestions, Prof. Fernow states that as soon as townships are surveyed they are opened by the Department for settlement without deferentiation. This statement is quite incorrect and is based on ignorance of what is the policy and practice of the Department.

"The suggestion of the professor that a classification of lands regarding their fitness for farm use be made and settlers kept out of undesirable portions is, as already explained, made in ignorance of the fact that this is the law and the practice of the Department.

"The professor says that it is a misconception that the whole country is immediately fitted for actual settlement. He sets up a man of straw. We know the country must first be opened up by roads, etc., before settlement can flow in, and five millions of dollars have been appropriated to carry on the opening of this and other parts of the back country, and the work is now in active progress. What we have said is that the soil is there and when the country is opened up by roads, it will be a magnificent field for settlement."

N. Y. WANTS CONTROL.

Would Wrest Niagara Falls' Rights From U. S. Government.

WSAHINGTON, Jan. 27—The board appointed by Secretary of War Stimson to report upon the problem of the diversion of water from Niagara Falls as well as its proper distribution and the preservation of the scenic beauty of the cataract, will visit the falls this week to make a personal investigation of the situation. This board consists of Lt.-Col. Mason M. Patrick, Lt.-Col. Francis J. Kernan and Major Charles Keller.

The Burton Act, which controls the diversion of water to the American side of the Niagara River and limits the amount of horsepower which may be transmitted into the United States from Canada, will expire by limitation on March 4 next. An effort now is being made to wrest control of the diversion of water from the Federal Government and vest it in the New York State Government. This proposition is strenuously opposed by the Federal authorities, who maintain that the problems involved lie clearly within the jurisdiction of the War Department, which controls all navigable waters.

COULD USE MORE.

Manitoba's Minister of Agriculture Thankful For Federal Loan.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27.—"We could have made good use of more, but we are very grateful for what the Dominion Government is giving us," said Hon. George Lawrence, Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, Saturday, discussing aid to agriculture legislation introduced in the Commons on Friday by Hon. Martin Burrell.

Mr. Lawrence said the Department was in a "receptive mood," and declared this was only the second instance when it had received any aid from the Dominion Government. "The late Government never gave us anything," he said.

"I had thought," continued the Minister, "that possibly the grant would be based on the amount of money expended by the provinces on agricultural work, and that the older provinces would get less than they are getting, and the newer provinces more."

BAD FIRE AT GALT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Galt, Jan. 27—Fire was discovered at 3.30 this morning when well under way, and was not extinguished before it had gutted the block on Dickson street, owned and occupied by the Fraser Hardware Co., with the Sweater Coat Factory of J. Peard on the second floor, and two vacant stores.

Fraser's loss is thirty-two thousand dollars, half covered by insurance. Peard's loss is eight thousand dollars, with insurance of five thousand. For a time the fire caused consternation in a number of nearby tenants who moved out their goods. The water pressure proved hardly adequate.

Burglars Got Away.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—When two men were surprised by the police on Saturday night while attempting to remove a load of sugar from a lane off George street, a lively chase through yards, over fences and along rooftops followed. During the pursuit of the fugitives, a constable fired two shots in the air, but one of the men managed to elude the officers and completely disappeared.

FIRE CHIEF EXONERATED

Guelph Officials and Citizens Side With Chief Randall.

Never Knew Him to be Under the Influence of Liquor.

GUELPH, Jan. 27.—The investigation into the charges against Chief of Police Randall, were concluded before His Honor Judge Jamieson, in the presence of a crowded court room on Saturday. Mr. Jeffery, on behalf of the chief, called a number of witnesses, civic officials, employes, former civic officials and prominent business men, who testified that during their long acquaintance with the chief they had never seen him under the influence of liquor. This evidence was given in a most emphatic manner.

A feature of the hearing was the appearance on the stand of Joseph Marks of the Marks Bros. theatrical promoters, who are in St. Catharines. At the hearing Saturday former Inspector Oakes testified that he had seen the chief under the influence of liquor, in company with Mr. Marks on Wyndham street. Mr. Marks absolutely denied that such was the case, and when Mr. Oakes was recalled he could not positively identify Mr. Marks as the man he saw with the chief.

The hearing will be continued next Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

MINES FLOODED IN INDIANA

Rising Waters Assume Serious Aspect.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 27.—Four hundred and fifty miners are idle in the coal fields here on account of the high waters. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois has been compelled to abandon its mine trains, and the men will be idle until the water subsides. The entire area of the great coal fields west of this city are covered with water, and men employed in the Deep Vein, the Lower Vein and other large mines face constant danger of a cave-in which would precipitate the waters into the shafts, coal men say. Local weather forecasts of more rain last night throughout the Wabash Valley lent a threatening aspect to the flood situation.

Seine Again Rising.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—The rising of the Seine to within six feet of the flood mark, caused by the disastrous inundations in 1910 has caused great uneasiness throughout the low lying districts of Paris. The suburb of Bercy, where acres of wine cellars are partially submerged, has suffered most up to the present. Rain has been falling intermittently for a week and still continues, causing the affluents of the Seine to be feared.

Three Firemne Killed In St. Louis.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Jan. 27.—Fire Lieut. John Conners and two other firemen perished Saturday night and property loss of $100,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed the Elks building on Collinsville avenue, in the heart of the retail district.

Badly Hurt While Coasting.

GUELPH, Jan. 27.—E. D. May, a lineman employed by the Bell Telephone Co., is in a serious condition as a result of being thrown from a bob-sleigh while coasting.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909 by Doubleday, Page & Company.

CHAPTER XIV.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Hears Elnora Play on Her Father's Violin.

ELNORA went upstairs and did not come down again that night, which her mother called pouting.

"I've thought all night," said the girl at breakfast, "and I can't see any way but to borrow the money of Uncle Wesley and pay it back from some that the Bird Woman will owe me, when I get one more specimen. But that means that I can't go to—that I will have to teach this winter, if I can get a city grade or a country school."

"Just you dare go dinging after Wesley Sinton for money," cried Mrs. Comstock. "You won't do any such thing!"

"I can't see any other way. I've got to have the money!"

"Quit, I tell you!"

"I can't quit—I've gone too far!"

"Well, then, let me get your clothes, and you can pay me back."

"But you said you had no money!"

"Maybe I can borrow some at the bank. Then you can return it when the Bird Woman pays you."

"All right," said Elnora. "I don't have to have expensive things. It will be warm, so I can go bareheaded."

Then she started to school, but was so tired and discouraged she scarcely could walk. Four years' plans going in one day! For she felt that if she did not get started to college that fall she never would.

After that the days went so swiftly she scarcely had time to think, but several trips her mother made to town, and the assurance that everything was all right, satisfied Elnora. She worked very hard to pass good final examinations and perfect herself for the play. For two days she had remained in town with the Bird Woman in order to spend more time practicing and at her work.

Often Margaret had asked about her dresses for graduation, and Elnora had replied that they were with a woman in the city who had made her a white dress for last year's commencement when she was a junior usher, and they would be all right. So Margaret, Wesley and Billy concerned themselves over what they would get her for a present. Margaret suggested a beautiful dress. Sinton said that would look to every one as if she needed dresses. The thing was to get a handsome gift like all the rest would have.

It was toward the close of the term when they drove to town one evening to try to settle this important question. They knew Mrs. Comstock had been alone several days, so they asked her to accompany them.

While they were searching the stores for something on which all of them could decide Mr. Brownlee met Wesley and stopped to shake hands.

"I see your boy came out finely," he said.

"I don't allow any boy anywhere to be finer than Billy," said Sinton.

"I guess you don't allow any girl to surpass Elnora," said Mr. Brownlee. "She comes home with Ellen often, and my wife and I love her. Ellen says she is great in her part tonight. Best thing in the whole play. Of course you are in to see it. If you haven't reserved seats you'd best start pretty soon, for the high school auditorium only seats a thousand."

"Why, yes, of course," said the bewildered Sinton. Then he hurried to Margaret. "Say," he said, "there is going to be a play at the high school tonight, and Elnora is in it. Why hasn't she told us?"

"I don't know," said Margaret, "but I'm going."

"So am I," said Billy.

"Me, too," said Wesley, "unless you think for some reason she don't want us. Looks like she would have told us if she had. I'm going to ask her mother."

"Yes, that's what she's been staying in town for," said Mrs. Comstock. "It's some sort of a swindle to raise money for her class to buy some silly thing to stick up in the schoolhouse hall to remember them by. I don't know whether it's now or next week, but there's something of the kind to be done."

"Well, it's tonight," said Wesley, "and we are going. It's my treat, and we've got to hurry or we won't get in. There's reserved seats, and we have none, so it's the gallery for us, but I don't care so I get to take one good peep at Elnora."

"S'pose she plays?" whispered Margaret in his ear.

"Ah, tush! She couldn't!" said Wesley.

"Well, she's been doing it three years in the orchestra and working like a slave at it."

"Oh, well, that's different. She's in the play tonight. Brownlee told me so. Come on, quick! We'll drive and hitch closest place we can find to the building."

Margaret went in the excitement of the moment, but she was troubled.

When they reached the building Wesley tied the team to a railing and Billy sprang out to help Margaret. Mrs. Comstock sat still.

"Come on, Kate," said Wesley, reaching his hand.

"I'm not going anywhere," said Mrs. Comstock, settling comfortably back against the cushions.

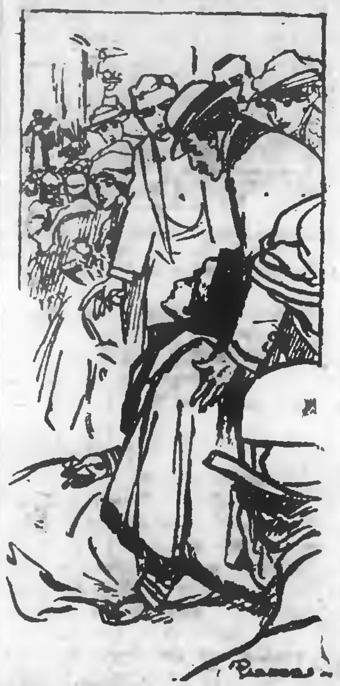
All of them begged and pleaded, but it was no use. Not an inch would Mrs. Comstock budge, so they left her.

They found seats near the door where they could see fairly well. Billy stood at the back of the hall and had a good view. By and by a great volume of sound welled from the orchestra, but Elnora was not playing.

Out in the warm summer night a sour, grim woman nursed an aching heart and tried to justify herself. The effort irritated her intensely. She leaned back, closed her eyes and tried to make her mind a blank, to shut out even the music, when the leading violin began a solo. Mrs. Comstock bore it as long as she could and then slipped from the carriage and fled down the street.

She did not know how far she went or how long she stayed, but everything was still save an occasional raised voice when she wandered back. She stood looking at the building. Slowly she entered the wide gates and followed up the walk. Elnora had been coming here for almost four years. When Mrs. Comstock reached the door she went inside. The entrance to the auditorium was packed with people and a crowd was standing outside. When they noticed a tall woman with white face and hair and black dress one by one they stepped a little aside, so that Mrs. Comstock could see the stage. It was covered with curtains and no one was doing anything. Just as she turned to go a sound so faint that everyone leaned forward and listened drifted down the auditorium. It was difficult to tell just what it was; after one instant half the audience looked toward the windows, for it seemed only a breath of wind rustling freshly opened leaves, just a hint of stirring air.

Then the curtains were swept aside swiftly. The stage had been transformed into a lovely little corner of creation, where trees and flowers grew and moss carpeted the earth. A soft wind blew, and it was the gray of dawn. Suddenly a robin began to sing, then a song sparrow joined him, and then several orioles began talking at once. The light grew stronger, the dew drops trembled, flower perfume began to creep out to the audience: the air moved the branches gently and a rooster crowed. Then all the scene was shaken with a babel of bird notes and other sounds of nature. The voices died and soft, exquisite melody began to swell and roll. In the center of the stage, piece by piece the grasses, mosses and leaves dropped from an embankment, the foliage softly blew away, while plainer and plainer came the outlines of a lovely girl figure draped in soft clinging green. She played as only a peculiar chain of circumstances puts it in the power of a very few to play.



A White Faced Woman Bore It as Long as She Could and Then Fell Senseless.

At the doorway a white faced woman bore it as long as she could and then fell senseless. The men nearest carried her down the hall to the fountain, revived her and then placed her in the carriage to which she directed them. The girl played on and never knew.

That was Friday night. Elnora came home Saturday morning and went to work. Mrs. Comstock asked no questions, and the girl only told her that the audience had been large enough to pay for the piece of statuary the class had selected for the hall. Then she inquired about her dresses and was told they would be ready for her. She had been invited to go to the Bird Woman's to prepare for both the sermon and commencement exercises. Since there was so much practicing to do, it had been arranged that she should remain there from the night of the sermon until after she was graduated. If Mrs. Comstock decided to attend she was to drive in with the Sintons.

It was almost time for Wesley to come to take Elnora to the city when, fresh from her bath, with shining crisply washed hair and dressed to her outer garment, she stood with expectant face before her mother and cried, "Now my dress, mother."

Mrs. Comstock was pale as she replied, "It's on my bed. Help yourself."

Milk and Ministers.

Milk became a very important part of the food of families in the colonial days of the eighteenth century. In 1728 a discussion took place in the Boston newspapers as to the expense of keeping a family of "middling figure." These writers all named only bread and milk for breakfast and supper. As cows increased in number, milk, of course, became more frequently used. Rev. Mr. Higginson in 1630 wrote that milk cost in Salem but a penny a quart, while another minister, John Cotton, said that milk and ministers were the only things cheap in New England.—American Cultivator.

Two Brothers

A Story of the Western Plains of Former Times

By TIMOTHY WENTWORTH

"This yere country," said the old plainsman, "is bein' civilized so fast that every time I come back to it I scarcely know it. Where there was a trail there's now a macadamized road. Where there was a few log houses there's a town lighted by electricity and runnin' trolleys. Where there was jewsharps or perhaps a fiddle there are now pianos. Where there was three card monte sharks, now there's the gentlemanly swindler. And the punishments is all changed too. If a man shot another in them days nobody took much notice of the fact, but they hung a hoss thief. Now, if a man shoots another, there's a murder case draggin' through the courts for years, and if a thief gets away with a team like enough the police is in cahoots with him, and the owner is glad enough to pay for gittin' the hoss back and no questions asked."

"Singular," I remarked to the old man, "how different conditions require different treatment."

"So they do," he rambled on. "The nearer you git down to nature the simpler the forms of law. But it isn't always so cold blooded down near the bottom as you'd suppose. I've known the most hardened villain to give his life for a woman or a child. There was lots o' misery in them days, just as there is now. Families would come out yere from the east, not knowin' what they was comin' to, git stranded and if it hadn't been for the help of some gambler or road agent would starve to death."

"Did you ever have any such experiences?" I asked.

"Waal, yes; so I did. I had one that turned out mighty important to me. Fact is, I hain't got over the effects of it yit. When these yere plains was covered with herds o' wild buffalo me and Jack Cundiff followed the business, huntin' 'em for their skins. In them days buffalo robes was used instead of the finer furs they use now and was a staple article in the market. That's what killed 'em off so fast. We that was huntin' 'em used to jist slaughter 'em for the money there was in 'em.

"What I was goin' to tell you about happened near the foothills of the Rockies west o' where Cheyenne now stands. It stood there then, but it was the terminus of the Union Pacific railroad, and a tough place it was, too, with its gamblin' and dance houses and other sich shebangs. Jack and I was in camp one day, as I was tellin' you, near the base of the mountains. Buffaloes were getting scarce, and we allowed we'd turn to prospectin' for gold. We didn't have anything with us that was wo'th anything except our hosses, so when we went to sleep nights we jist turned in without worryin' onless at the loss of the animals. Since a man couldn't git over the ground without one of 'em they was mighty valuable. Fact is, they was the most valuable thing to be had. And that's why we strung up the hoss thieves and didn't string up the men shooters. There was plenty of men, but only so many hosses, and each hoss would bring a good price at any time or anywhere.

"Jack Cundiff and I was smokin' our pipes after our noon meal of hog fat and crackers, talkin' over whether we'd better give up the buffalo skin business and try our luck at prospectin', when along comes two young fellers on foot and, seein' our camp, stopped and looked at us. They said somep'n to each other, then was goin' on, when I hailed 'em and asked if they didn't want anything. They came to where we was an' we had a powwow.

"They said they was brothers. The elder one was middle height, but the younger was small. They was both so young that their beards hadn't sprouted yit, and they looked hungry. I asked 'em what they was doin' without hosses, and they said they didn't own any hosses. We questioned 'em where they'd come from and where they was goin', but they didn't seem to have a home, and I couldn't learn from 'em that they was goin' anywhere. Fact is, they was down on their luck.

"We offered 'em somep'n to eat, and they chawed it up mighty fast. Then I poured out a cupful of whisky and handed it to the oldest one of the two He tried to drink it, but I could see plain enough it was burnin' out his throat. There wasn't any use givin' it to his brother. If the oldest couldn't drink the stuff the other shore couldn't I thort the biggest one looked big enough to drink whisky, but I was not surprised at the little feller not wantin' it.

"They looked so tired that Jack and I asked 'em if they didn't want to stay with us awhile and rest. They said they'd like to git some sleep, so we laid out a buffalo skin for 'em, and they lay down beside each other, and fust thing we knowed they was fast asleep, the younger boy's arm throwed around the older one's neck. Jack and I looked down at 'em, and we felt so sorry for 'em that we allowed we'd do somep'n for 'em. So while they was a-sleepin we stuffs some gold into their pockets They must 'a' been mighty sleepy, for they didn't wake up while we was doin' it.

"About supper time we woke 'em, and when they see we was goin' to make coffee and fry bacon the oldest feller said he'd like to pay his way by doin' the cookin' and seemed so anxious about it that we let him do it. Lord, how handy he was, handlin' the skillet just like a woman! He got into our supplies and found some cornmeal and made a mess of corn pone that beat anything of the kind I ever eat. I told him he must 'a' done cookin' for his livin'.

"When we'd had our meal he and his brother washed the dishes and wiped 'em jist as if we was all in a house. Jack and I had been used if we was near a creek to puttin' 'em in it and lettin' the water run over 'em, but we never thort o' wipin' 'em. It seemed too much trouble. When the boys got through we found they hadn't anything to smoke, and we offered 'em pipes They both took 'em and puffed as if they'd never smoked before in their lives, but the fust thing I knowed the littler one turned white and went off behind a bush to get rid of his supper The big one smoked only a few minutes when he laid his pipe down.

"'How old are you fellers anyway? I asked. 'You act like a couple o' kids.'

"'I'm twenty,' said the big one, 'and my brother is seventeen.'

"'Twenty years old and can't drink or smoke?' I hollered. 'Where was you brought up?'

"He said they came from the east, but that was no news, for they both looked like tenderfoots that had been long enough in the country to git run down.

"So far neither of 'em had put his hands in his pocket, but the youngster when he come back from the bush lay down on the ground, and after rollin' over two or three times he caught sight of somepin' shinin' on the ground, picked it up and found it was a five dollar gold piece. You'd ought to seen the look on his face. Then he put his hand in his pocket and pulled out another one.

"'How did that come there?' he asked.

"'Haven't you got any of 'em?' I asked his brother.

"The feller put his hand in his pocket and pulled out some gold too.

"'See here,' he said; 'you men have been puttin' that gold in our pockets.'

"'Well, s'posin' we have,' I remarked

"The brothers looked at each other mighty queer.

"'This is too much,' said the big one 'If you knowed all about us you wouldn't 'a' done it.'

"He looked as if he was agoin' to cry.

"'Who are you?' I asked.

"'I think,' he said, lookin' at the other one, 'we'd better tell 'em the whole thing.'

"'Reckon we had.'

"That oldest one he began to tell us a story, and before he'd half finished he got to cryin'. That set his brother to doin' the same. I hate to see a man cry, and I told 'em to stop their blubberin'.

"'I can't,' said the one that was talkin'. 'I ain't a man; neither is he. We're girls. We're out to run off stock. Our folks is over there beyond the hills starvin', and my sister and I allowed we'd got to go and git somepin' to sell for money to buy victuals with. Hosses is all that's worth anything, and we was goin' to light out tonight with two of yours. But your kindness has broken us all up. We can't do it.'

"Jack saw me feelin' for more gold, and his hand went to his own pocket We handed out a couple o' more pieces and that opened the dam o' tears still wider. We told 'em it would be all right in the mornin'. We'd go over to where they lived and see what we could do for 'em. Then we spread all the buffalo skins we had, one over the other, to make a bed for 'em and put on a couple o' blankets for cover, and they turned in.

"I reckon that was the fust night's sleep they'd had in a long while without feelin' that the bottom o' the world was a-droppin' out under 'em. Jack and I didn't do nothin' till they got to sleep. We hadn't left ourselves anything to sleep on or under except our overcoats, and we allowed we'd keep up the fire all night, and we spread our coats over the girls, 'cause it's cold in that region when the sun's gone down.

"Next mornin' the girls got breakfast, and now I knew they was girls I wasn't so struck with the handy way they had and what good things they could make out o' our small stock o' provisions. After breakfast we all went over the hills to their home. We found a log hut and a family. The father was sick, the mother frightfully run down and the children the most miserable sight I ever saw. They'd come out to the west not knowin' what they was goin' to find, and they hadn't found nothin'.

"First thing Jack and I done was to go out and shoot a couple o' antelopes. There was a lake not far away with some good fish in it, and we pulled out some of 'em. We stayed with the family till we got 'em in pretty good condition so far as grub goes; then we went down to Denver and come back with a lot o' clothes. But they didn't stay where they was very long. The man got well and took 'em all to Denver, where he got a position with a firm that did a business he knowed all about, and pretty soon he was gittin' a good salary.

"Jack and I stayed in Denver, too, for we'd got tired prospectin', not havin' the luck to strike any big thing. We had a little money between us, and we went into buyin' minin' stock, first off odd lots, and, makin' suthin, we went on till we sized up a purty good pile. We found it easier to make money that way than prospectin'."

"What became of the two girls," I asked, "who were intending to run off your stock?"

"Oh, the girls? Why, I married the oldest one, and Jack Cundiff married the other."

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast by Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill, P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

AN INSTANT RELIEF

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large bottles, 50c., trial size, 25c. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

LUMINOUS FISH FOUND

The commissioners of fisheries have just received interesting specimens of a remarkable little fish never before found in Canada, although rare specimens have been caught in the United States and Europe. It is a small silvery fish, not unlike a small herring, but it has two rows of pearl organs along the side of the body.

The fish was caught by fishermen on Grand Manan and they are scientifically valuable and interesting. The most wonderful feature is the fact that each of the pearl organs gives out a brilliant light, similar to a small electric lamp.

The fish is called the "pearl sides" and belongs to a group of very rare fish that are luminous. Very little is known about the life history of these small fish, but scientific authorities are of the opinion that they inhabit the deepest waters of the ocean and that the light they give out enables them to procure their food, and may also protect them by frightening away their enemies.

Prof. Price is handing these specimens over to the biological department, of which he is chairman, but is preparing a technical report for the Royal Society of Canada. It may be added that no specimens of this luminous fish have ever been recorded in Canada.

HON. FRANK'S JOKE

It has been said that certain institutions generally vote with the Government, but that has nothing to do with this story. It was shortly after the Whitney Government had been returned to power that a deputation representing the Salvation Army, composed of Commissioner Coombs and other leading officers, waited on the Hon. Mr. Cochrane to arrange matters in connection with immigration and taking up land in New Ontario. When negotiations were concluded, and the party, well satisfied with their visit, were leaving, Mr. Cochrane turned to the commissioner and said:

"There is one thing about religious organizations that I could never understand."

"And what is that?" asked the commissioner.

"Well, it is this," replied Mr. Cochrane, "I never could understand how it was that a man could be a Christian and vote Grit!"

Woman Seeks Office.

Miss Wilson, of Halifax, who has been, since her father's death, performing with perfect efficiency the duties of his former office as secretary of the Board of School Commissioners, has applied for that office permanently. Well-known Halifax men strongly favor the innovation. The appointment of women to the school boards is also being discussed — the Local Council of Women as agitators.

A Chilly Forecast.

The earth is growing in bulk on account of the meteoric dust that falls on it. It has recently been estimated that 100 tons fall daily over the surface of the globe, and that millions of years hence this will have increased the thickness of the earth considerably. This would have a tendency to bring us closer to the sun. But centrifugal force is augmented at the same time in greater proportion and counteracts this tendency; consequently the earth would be swept away from the sun, with the result that its distance from that body would be considerably augmented. This is spoken of as having possibly happened to some of the larger outer planets, notably Jupiter, in the remote past.—Harper's.

New Grand Central Terminal

A wonderful city within a city built for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public.

The main Grand Central Terminal Building in New York is now open to the public. This vast improvement is more than a great railway Terminal—it is a Terminal City, complete in itself, providing every detail essential to comfort and convenience.

It will embrace convention, amusement and exhibition halls, hotels, clubs and restaurants; post office, express offices, modern apartment and office buildings, and numerous stores and specialty shops.

Grand Central Terminal is the Heart of New York at Forty-second Street and Park Avenue (4th Avenue), one block from Fifth Avenue and convenient to Broadway.

It is the only Terminal on all lines of local traffic—subway, surface and elevated. More than 7,000 cars pass its doors every day, affording easy transit facilities to any part of New York. Around it, within a radius of a few blocks are forty-nine hotels, fifty-eight clubs and thirty-five theatres.

Three new lines of underground transportation are now building to Grand Central Terminal, and soon there will be six levels of human traffic in Forty-second Street.

Below the Terminal City under all its buildings and streets are 33 miles of railway tracks on two separate levels, the upper for Through Service and the lower for Suburban Service.

Each level forms a complete terminal in itself, separate entrances and exits, with equal facilities for the comfort of passengers.

Both levels are reached by gently inclined walks, (no need to climb stairs) and no confusion, since incoming and outgoing traffic is separated.

Ticket, Pullman, Baggage and other facilities are progressively arranged from waiting room to train, no step need be retraced.

RADIAL ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

The leading citizens of York County in the section between Toronto and Markham are very enthusiastic over the proposal that a hydro-electric railway shall be built from Markham into Toronto. A municipal radial railway appeals to the hydro-electric enthusiasts with a mighty force. It has been decided that there shall be thorough enquiry as to how much a right-of-way, transmission lines, and equipment will cost, and what are the prospects of traffic. The Provincial Government is to be approached with the request that if the construction of such a railway is proceeded with there shall be a subsidy of $3,000 or $4,000 a mile, after the manner in which subsidies are given to private-owned railways.

Taken individually, this proposed line has many merits. But we think, for a surety, that to construct a ramifying system of such roads around the province, making their liabilities a heavy charge upon the public assets, is to invite the risk of a general financial collapse that would wreck the province far and near. The hydro-electric scheme of Western Ontario is about a $5,000,000 venture. The construction of a great interlocking system of radial lines by the municipalities, through a commission or otherwise, would be to enlarge the financial scope of the public ownership venture to perhaps $15,000,000 or $20,000,000. That certainly is much too big an order for the present. Yet the principle is sound. The public power may in future days be the source of much more than current for lighting, or energy to assist manufacture. If it were not that radial railways are often a precarious venture, depending so much on passenger returns over small distances—unless there is a large surety of much business at each end—it is a matter that might more confidently be entered into. A radial line between two such large cities as Toronto and Hamilton would be a good thing, but a railway between Toronto and Markham would resemble a railway between Peterborough and Fraserville. Much is likely to be heard of the movement in future, however, and if it is as well managed as the Hydro-Electric it may become an issue of first-rate importance.

THE PROGRESS OF IMPERIALISM

The Montreal Gazette takes the Imperialists of Canada and England to task for rushing in to cement the Dominion and Mother and the other parts of the Empire so fast that they endanger the whole fabric of Empire. It says that Canada has been progressing and will continue to progress as an Imperial unit, but it fears that the endeavor to force the pace will have the opposite effect of creating a reaction. There is much sound sense in what the Gazette says. It is an exponent of an old time Conservatism and is thoroughly faithful to its principles. The new Imperialism is sweeping over Canada like a fever, but there are thousands of Canadians to whom the idea of Canada's active participation in the affairs of the Empire, and the possession of a voice in Imperial foreign policy, is yet somewhat novel. It is not wise that Canada should yet undertake too much in the way of leading the Empire into organic union.

We fail to see how the status of the Empire can be improved materially by bringing into existence such a cumbrous and unrepresentative body as an Imperial Parliament. The principle that in every case the responsibility for domestic policy and foreign policy largely must rest with the local Government and cannot safely be deputed to an Imperial legislative body, cannot be ignored. The Imperial Council of Defence, and the Imperial Conference are both serving splendid objects in promoting the unity and cohesiveness of the Empire. There is yet a wide field for mutual co-operation and concession to embody the various parts of the Empire into a preferential whole. The Empire can be welded much closer together than it is. But we do not think that much real good can come of forcing the developments. Let us take our time, for there is no doubt as to Canada's willingness to aid the Motherland and stand by the other Dominions, and there is no doubt as to their willingness to do what they can consistent with their local interests, to benefit Canada. It must be accepted as an entirely safe principle that no part of the Empire should seek to induce any other part to make any sacrifice for its selfish good. Any sacrifice, or concession should come willingly, and freely from any part of the Empire. To rush into a hasty agreement involving much injury to any particular section would be to turn back the hands of the Imperial clock What the Borden Government proposes so far is not hastening too much but a little caution will be worth while.

TAFT'S SUCCESS

President Taft told a prominent Jewish society in New York that he "didn't seem to have been a grand success." There are few people who will not cheerfully agree with Mr. Taft. He has been anything but a success. If there is any reason to doubt it why not ask the Canadian Liberals? Why not ask Mr. Stratton and the Examiner? It may safely be conceded that what Taft had to say during the reciprocity campaign about the "parting of the ways," and the destroying of the "imperial band of preference" and other allusions to Canada coming under the commercial thumb of the United States, had as much influence in determing what Canada had to say on September 21, as anything else. Then a little later the revelations in his letter to Roosevelt, in which he expressed the opinion that reciprocity would make Canada merely an adjunct of the United States, struck dismay into the hearts of Canadian Liberals. It finished the quivering remains of reciprocity.

The Panama canal bill has also indicated that Taft has a happy faculty for muddling things. Under the pressure of political exigency he signed the bill which imposed a discrimination against foreign shipping, in favor of American and coast-wise shipping and thus put himself into a delicate position as regards a relation to the inevitable proposal for arbitration of the questions at issue between Britain and the United States. He was the great booster of the arbitration treaty, and now he comes forward through his Secretary of State to say that the United States is willing to refer the points in dispute to a joint commission, rather than to the Hague. If the Joint Commission cannot succeed in getting at a settlement, there will then be an opportunity to consider what should be done for real arbitration. It is an evasion of the whole spirit of Taft's arbitration proposal. His term of office will end without the American people regarding him as anything else but a president who failed to make his mark in any sense.

EDITORIAL NOTES

On the door in a successful Kansas ranch is a motto, "The reason men succeed who mind their own business is because they have so little competition."

Uncle Sam is now carrying live babies by parcel post, according to a Batavia despatch. This is a more convenient way of getting rid of undesirable children than leaving them on doorsteps.

Wanted at once: More sand on the icy walks.

It is charged that in pleading so nobly for the honor of his country in connection with the Panama canal dispute, Senator Elihu Root is really fighting the cause of the great railway companies. No matter. If the cause of the railway companies is interlinked with the cause of national duty and honor, so much the better for the cause of the railway companies.

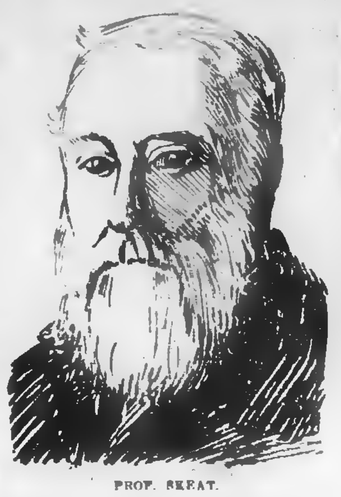
A MASTER OF WORDS

LATE PROF. SKEAT ONE OF BRITAIN'S GREATEST LITERATI.

From His Early Days as a Curate Until He Gave Up His Post at Cambridge Books, Glossaries, Dictionaries, Essays, and Critical Texts Issued From His Library In a Steady Stream.

In the recent death of the Rev. Walter William Skeat, England lost one of her finest men of letters and Cambridge a professor of thirty-four years service. The name of Skeat is known wherever English etymology is studied and his critical texts of Anglo-Saxon and early English classics are famous the world over. It is scarcely possible to mention the name of Chaucer to-day without that of Skeat, so closely is he identified with the editorial labor that has been lavished upon the Father of English Poetry.

Prof. Skeat was born in London in 1835. After a brilliant academic career he graduated from Cambridge and took a curacy at East Dereham in 1860. Two years later he went to Godalming, and after sixteen years assumed the Elrington and Bosworth professorship of Anglo-Saxon in his alma mater. He started to write while still at Godalming and the output of his literary workshop almost passes belief. Critical texts and glossaries from the major portion of his production, but he was also a master of the literary essay and an authority on grammar, Langland's Piers Plowman, Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, Wyclif's Bible, Shakespeare's source books, bibliographies of early dialect works all bear his name as editor and compiler.



PROF. SKEAT.

Nor was Prof. Skeat merely a grubber among musty missals and manuscripts. He always pointed with pride to the fact that he was the first Cambridge professor to ride a bicycle, and cycling was always a recreation of which he was more than ordinarily fond.

CHANGES IN G.T.R. STAFF

Further announcements particularly affecting the Eastern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with the reorganization scheme of that company's Transportation Department have been made public.

The first circular issued by Mr. C. G. Bowker, the new General Superintendent of Eastern Lines records the appointment of Mr. H. F. Coyle as Superintendent of the Belleville Division (Districts 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10) with headquarters at Belleville. Also of Mr. J. J. Connolly as Superintendent of the Montreal Division (Districts 1, 2, 3 and 4) with headquarters at Montreal, and of Mr. R. W. Scott as Superintendent of Montreal Terminals, with headquarters at Montreal.

The following appointments are contained in a second circular issued by Mr. Bowker: Mr. F. L. C. Bond as Division Engineer of the Eastern Lines with headquarters at Montreal.

A circular issued by Mr. R. W. Scott, Supt. Montreal Terminals, announces the appointment of Mr. R. P. Smallborn as Freight Agent, Montreal. Mr. H. F. Coyle, Supt. Belleville Division, issues two circulars one appointing Mr. C. S. Ogilvie Assistant Engineer of the Belleville Division with headquarters at Belleville and the other appointing Mr. H. M. Gain as Trainmaster of Sixth and Seventh Districts with headquarters at Belleville.

These appointments are all approved by Mr. C. G. Bowker. On Western Lines, Mr. Gillen, the New General Superintendent, issues his first circular appointing Mr. J. Caldwell Superintendent of Detroit Division, including Durand Terminals, Districts 27, 28, 29 and P. O. & N. Ry., with headquarters at Detroit, Mich., vice Mr. C. S. Cunningham who has resigned. 68

Wolves Plentiful.

Wolves are very plentiful in northern Manitoba this winter and are roaming around in packs of from thirty to forty, according to T. H. P. Lamb, the Moose Lake trader.

Mr. Lamb interviewed the provincial authorities last spring to suggest a special bounty for the destruction of wolves and is now again urging the importance of such a measure, which, he declares, is required immediately for the protection of the moose, which forms the greater part of the Indians' supply of meat, and for the protection of travelers in the district.

THE "CLAY BELT" OF NEW ONTARIO

Seven Years Ago Men Called It "Dead Man's Land."

Two men were returning from the West seven years ago by way of North Bay. As the train ran through the eastern section of Northern Ontario, they sat silent for several hours gazing out of the window at the endless grey rock, with its covering of scraggly pine and blackened timber standing gaunt and bare against the line of the sky.

"Dead Man's Land," exclaimed one at last.

"It will never be a country," replied the other. "It is a stone desert."

Let those men go without delay to the towns of Cochrane and Porcupine, communities which were overtaken by the disastrous fire of July, 1911, and were reduced to ruins. Let him stand on the clay hill above Lake Commando and look down on Cochrane, rising from its ashes. Hundreds of new building have been erected since the fire.

"Third Street" and "Fifth Avenue." The hundred men toiling in that trench are putting in water works and sewers. The Government employes are cutting a mile swath about the boundary to stem another tide of fire.

Twenty years from now "The Clay Belt" will look like a section of the Western part of Ontario. Most people have heard of this tract of fine farming land in a vague sort of way, but few are aware that it contains 20,000,000 acres of land which lies south of Winnipeg, 300 miles south of Edmonton, and 400 miles south of the famous Peace River country. The soil is good. It is covered with light timber, a mere corn crop in comparison with the growth which confronted Old Ontario settlers fifty years ago.

The strength of "The Clay Belt" is the fertility of the soil. It is grey clay, sandy loam and occasionally homely black muck. The proof of fertility is the abundance of clover, which never lifts its leaves except amid affluence; it grows there luxuriously on lawns, in the fields, in the swamps and on the roadsides. Timothy stands six feet high, and crops of wheat, oats and barley compare favorably this year with those of Old Ontario. Pasture is going to waste in quantities sufficient to fatten all the lean kine of Canada, and already the frontier farmers are stocking with thoroughbreds. Naturally, the stock men are those who have been in the country long enough to amass some capital. The pioneer in his cabin is thankful if he has a single cow.

A certain guide to the progress of the country is its architecture. It shows all the grades and struggles of advancement. There is the "four square" log cabin of the pioneer, with its flat roof and single window. In the older farming districts log cabins have been replaced by frame houses or more substantial dwellings of brick and stone. In the towns the types are legion. Earlscourt, Toronto, in its early days could not, in variety or design, surpass the efforts of these northern home builders. But go into the centre of the town and look at the buildings. The banks, the stores, and offices are brick and stone, constructed not to weather a boom, but to last generations.

Canadian Holly.

Christmas holly grown on Vancouver Island was last Christmas shipped to all parts of the continent, and an industry has been inaugurated which promises to become more and more important in ensuing Yuletide seasons.

Orders were received from as far as Los Angeles—even in one case as far as the City of Mexico—north to Dawson City, and east to Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, while New York, Boston and Chicago received big consignments.

The industry was started some years ago by private citizens in Victoria sending sprigs of holly with the beautiful scarlet berries to friends in the east. At once there grew up a demand for more.

Florida and Georgia are the other sources of supply for the American market, but these states do not produce the evergreen in the same beautiful color as does Vancouver Island, which has the natural qualifications to produce holly in even a greater state of perfection than England.

Two Old Stand-bys.

Two of the old stand-bys of the House of Commons staff have gone with the passing of Lucien Dube, and old "General" Williams, on the eve of the opening of the session. Dube was housekeeper for a term which stretched back to the days of Sir John Macdonald, and "General" Williams was the outer guard at the Chamber door. The old and kindly fellow was a Crimea veteran, and could cover his breast with even more medals than Col. Harry Smith, the Sergeant-at-arms. It was Williams who stopped Rodolphe (now Sir Rodolphe) Forget from entering the Chamber on one occasion. The financier was paying one of his rare visits to the House and was passing through the swinging doors when the "General" nabbed him. "You can't go in there," he whispered, "no one but a member can enter the Chamber." And it was not until Robert Bickerdike identified his fellow Montrealer that old Williams relented.

Evolution of the Mortgage.

"Farming methods have changed, haven't they?"

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel. "Now a man thinks he's unlucky if he has to borrow money on his place. He used to think he was lucky if he was able to."—Washington Star.

ENGINEER GAVE ADDRESS TO THE TELEPHONY CLUB

Mr. F. M. Simpson of Montreal the Development Engineer for the Bell Telephone Company, who is in Peterborough, addressed the Telephony Club on Friday evening in a highly instructive manner. The occasion was the annual banquet of the Club, at Coleman's, which was attended by His Worship, Mayor Bradburn, and Aldermen Buller, Gillespie, Anderson, Gordon and Johnston, also Mr. T. F. Matthews and W. H. Moore, representing the Water Commissioners.

Mr. Simpson showed slides of the most modern construction telephone work and the great advantage of alley or lane destribution from the interior of the block. It was clearly shown that all the Bell Telephone Company's underground conduit and aerial cables are installed on a scientific basis, rendering it possible to lay underground construction so that sufficient cable and duct capacity is laid to care for a city's growth.

A typical case was shown of a progressive Ontario town, where lanes were used for reaching subscribers and the important streets of poles.

About twenty slides were shown by stereopticon. The pictures were flashed on paper in place of the usual screen and Mr. Simpson drew methods of telephone destribution on maps projected on these sheets of paper. By shutting off the lantern and illuminating the banquet hall only the cable and underground conduit routes remained on the sheets. This was a novel feature and showed clearly how carefully the Bell Telephone Company designed their destributing system.

The destribution system is so arranged that each subscriber is fed in the most efficient manner and reached with the least possible length of line.

From Mr. Simpson's lecture it would seem that development engineering should not be limited to telephone work, but that it might also be applied to electric lighting systems, the designing capacity of reservoirs, gas plants and sewage problems, and even the laying out of a street railway company system, so that street car lines could be constructed on thoroughfares which would enable the public to reach the centre of a city, in the least possible time.

OBITUARY

The Late Russel Jones

Russel Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Jones, of 288 Edinburgh street, passed away early yesterday morning in his 18th year after a lengthy illness. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, one brother and one sister, all residing at home. The body was sent on the noon train to Campbellford, where interment will take place to-morrow.

AN ACTIVE BIBLE CLASS

The Charlotte street Methodist Church Men's Bible Class completed their organization for the year at the class session yesterday afternoon. NET PROFIT OF $5,246,28 FROM WATERWORKS SYSTEM

At a meeting of the Water Commissioners this morning Mr. S. R. Armstrong, secretary-treasurer, presented the financial statements of the waterworks system for 1912.

During the year $9,231.01 was expended in laying mains and setting hydrants and $2,954.04 in laying services, a total of $12,185.05 in ordinary construction work.

The net water rates, including special frontage rates, amounted to $47,162.79, and to this was added $2,000.00 charged for the use of the dam, etc. for power purposes, making a total of $49,162.79. The expense accounts, including interest and sinking funds and amount written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $43,916.51, showing a profit on the year's business of $5,246.28.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS THROUGH ICY STREETS AND PAVEMENTS

Some painful injuries have been received by citizens during the past few days of icy pavements. Mr. W. H. Dunsford manager of the Bank of Commerce, fell on the pavement near his residence on Dennistoun avenue on Saturday night and was unconscious for some time.

Mr. Robt. Fair, residing at 505 Dickson street, met with a painful accident, Saturday evening. He had just left his residence for business and was proceeding to the centre of the street when he slipped and fell on his side, fracturing a bone in the upper part of his left arm near the shoulder.

Mr Fair's many friends will regret to hear of his mishap.

Mrs. Speer, of East City, was another victim and was stunned by her fall.

Mr. Wm. Aldridge was not in his accustomed pew at Murray street Baptist church, yesterday morning, as he had a fall as he was walking to the church. Mr. Aldridge sustained a bad cut on the head.

ELOPED WITH BOARDER WHILE UNDER HYPNOTIC INFLUENCE

Detroit, Jan. 27.—Traced to Detroit by her deserted husband, Mrs. Albert Edward Ritchie, of Hamilton, Ont., who last Tuesday took her three children and eloped from her home with James Grant, a boarder, declares to the police that she was under the hypnotic influence of Grant at the time of her rash act, and did not realize what she had done until Grant was rudely taken from her by officers.

Grant, who was employed in the same factory in which Ritchie worked will be prosecuted under the Mann Act, as he is charged with bringing Mrs. Ritchie here from the Canadian city. Mrs. Ritchie, forgiven by her husband, will go back with him and the children as soon as the authorities here allow her to do so.

NOTABLE SURRENDERS WHICH HAVE TAKEN PLACE

SCENES WHICH STAND OUT IN THE ANNALS OF WAR.

The Meeting of the Victor and the Vanquished Is a Dramatic Moment and Has Been Marked by Episodes Which Show the Calibre of the Great Warriors—Napoleon Surrendered In State.

In the story of war there is no chapter more thrilling than that which tells how, a generaton ago, a comparative handful of Turks held the village of Plevna for five months against a quarter of a million of Russia's picked soldiery.

Again and again the Muscovites hurled themselves against Osman Digna's trenches and redoubts, to be swept back again and again, leaving thousands of slain behind them. And it was only when hunger and disease had this band of heroes in their grip that the gallant Turkish leader made his desperate and historic effort to hew his way through the enemy's lines—a "forlorn hope" which ended, as it was bound to end, in failure.

But not until the Turks were surrounded by the Muscovites in overwhelming numbers and Osman himself was seriously wounded, did the white flag at last give the signal of surrender. When, later, the vanquished hero was led before the Russian Czar, carrying himself as proudly in defeat as in victory, Alexander, with a cordial hand-grip, gave him this generous greeting: "Sir, I congratulate you on your fine defence. It was one of the most splendid feats in the history of war."

It was with still a bolder front that Mahmud met his conqueror, after his dervish army had been wiped out of existence on the banks of the Atbara River. When, his hands tied behind his back, he was conducted into the presence of the Sirdar, it was with his head carried high and a mien of defiance. "Are you Mahmud?" asked the Sirdar. "Yes," was the answer; "and I am the same as you." "Why did you come to make war here?" "I came," answered Mahmud, proudly, "because like you, I was told to come."

For five months, in 1855, the Turks under General Williams, held the mountain fortress of Kars against a Russian army more than three times their number; and only when food and ammunition both were exhausted, and further defence became hopeless, did the brave English leader even think of surrender. Then it was that the Russian General, Mouravieff, wrote to him one of the most generous messages ever sent to a defeated enemy "General Williams," he wrote, "you have made yourself a name in history; and posterity will stand amazed at the endurance, the courage, the discipline which this siege has called forth in the remains of an army. Let us arrange a capitulation which will satisfy the demands of war without disgracing humanity.

When General Cronje, after his brave fight on the bank of the Modder River, was compelled to surrender to Lord Roberts, with 4,000 of his army the bitterness, as he afterwards said, was taken out of his humiliation by the gracious words addressed to him by his victor, who, with a warm handclasp, said to him: "Commandant Cronje, you have indeed made a gallant defence, which will win the admiration of the world."

The first Napolean, after the crowning disaster of Waterloo, finding escape from France impossible, surrendered to Captain Maitland, of the Bellerophon, on July 15th, 1815. As he stepped on board, his breast ablaze with decorations, and escorted by an imposing retinue of officers and servants, it was almost with the air of a conqueror that he addressed the captain: "Sir, I come to place myself under the protection of your King and your laws."

Much more abject was the downfall of his successor, the third Napolean, that September day in 1870, when he was compelled to resign both crown and sword. Surrounded in Sedan by an overwhelming host of the enemy, 50,000 of his men dead or taken prisoners, his army demoralized under a deluge of death from five hundred guns, he realized that the end had come. Then, with the white flag of defeat fluttering over his citadel, he wrote to the Prussian King this pathetic note: "Brother,—Not able to die at the head of my troops. I place my sword at your Majesty's feet.—Napolean.

But France was not yet beaten. Marshall Bazaine still had a large army under his command; but he, too was in a perilous plight, for he was shut up in Metz, by a German force as great as his own. When sortie after sortie was repulsed with heavy loss and he realized that escape was impossible, he tried to save his army by surrendering Metz. But to his overtures Bismark returned the haughty answer, "I occupy France with more than a million men, and I make no peace with a marshal. The surrender must be unconditional."

And on October 27th Bazaine capitulated, and three marshals, 600 officers, and 173,000 men laid down their arms and became prisoners of war For Bazaine a worse fate was reserved; for he was later tried by court-martial and sentenced to degradation and death—a sentence which was commuted to one of twenty years' imprisonment.

Economical to the Last.

There was once a Scotsman who was down in the world without hope, with only threepence in his pocket. He decided on suicide and, entering a chemist's shop, asked for threepennyworth of arsenic. "What do you want it for?" demanded the chemist "Twopence," said the Scotsman.

The Effect.

"Mathilde, throw that poor beggar a crown."

"Ah, yes, he looks very unhappy."

"Not on that account, but the Meyers are watching us from their window opposite."

Descendants of Champlain.

In the centre of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the small group of Magdalen Islands are populated by three or four thousand lineal descendants of the Acadians under Champlain and De Monts, who were driven out of New France, Nova Scotia, by the English Since the first settlement in 1763 generations of the same families have raised scanty crops in the valleys and fed sheep and cattle on the high conical hills which constitute a prominent feature of an insular landscape Year after year men have gone out on the waters of the gulf in search of cod, mackerel, and lobsters on which a livelihood depends. They are simple, primitive people, these natives of the Magdalens, laboring all the while under circumstances that are most discouraging. The archipelago contains twelve or thirteen distinct islands, including several grim rocks which are not inhabited and never will be.

OLD STEAMER PASSES.

Last Stern-Wheeler on the Skeena Disappears With 1912.

Before the eyes of western Canada there is taking place to-day a development of civilization no less revolutionary or suggestive to the imagination than the passing of the stage coach before the rumbling wheels of the railroad. As settlers pushed their way ever farther north in the Province of British Columbia, the need of communication between the interior and the coast asserted itself, and for years the shallow, fast-flowing streams between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific have served as highways for the picturesque stern-wheeled steamers with their no less interesting passengers—pioneers and prospectors, for the most part, who have listened to the call of the unexplored.

Gone, however, are the days of the stern-wheeler on the Skeena River. The old order changes and its death-knell, as in the case of the stage coach, has been sounded by the steel horse now puffing along the northern bank of that great artery which runs for two hundred miles through the fertile interior of northern British Columbia to the coast. The year of 1912 is the last that the Skeena will see of the river steamer. Owing to the expense of sending a steamboat up the river and the time consumed in making the voyage, competition with the railroad will be impossible. The day of high passenger and freight rates is over, and the settler should have his supplies shipped in at a reasonable rate, for the latest transportation facilities have now appeared in this new northland.

While the old-timer welcomes the advent of the locomotive into that country, it is with a sigh that he bids farewell to the homely little craft that served his needs so long. With the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway operating passenger trains on regular schedules from Prince Rupert to Hazelton, beyond Skeena River Crossing, a distance of about 165 miles, the great northern country will develop at an amazing pace. Three trains are despatched each way over this line every week, and the number of passengers carried in the few months since the service was inaugurated is surprising. The fine steel cantilever bridge which spans the Skeena has been opened and work trains cross it daily. The rails are 173 feet above the water, while two massive concrete piers, resting on the river bottom, rear themselves up to the height of a little over 100 feet, so that steamers could pass under the bridge without difficulty.

A Benevolent Innovation.

Just at the present time when everybody in Western Canada is counting the big profits he has made in 1912 Sir Donald Mann's typical story may well be told. He relates how a man in British Columbia met a man from Alberta and the two fell into conversation on the usual topics. It is said that there are only two subjects of conversation in the West, wheat and city lots. However, this particular talk became more general and turned on the relative merits of the two provinces.

The man from British Columbia dilated upon the wonderful natural resources of that province. Any man who could work was sure to become rich in a very short time. Any man with a little capital could become a millionaire with equal rapidity.

The Alberta man admitted that British Columbia was a fine province, but he was bound to maintain the superiority of his own.

"Yes," he said, "men get rich in Alberta without working."

"But what's farming if it isn't work?"

"No," he persisted, "the farmers have very little real work to do. It began to be middling easy when the gang-plow and the self-binder came in. But the gasoline engine——"

He paused to see if the British Columbian was "getting him."

"Yes?"

"The gasoline engine has made plowing, seeding and harvesting a real recreation——"

"Go on. You're doing well."

"Why—on some of the big farms they're building gymnasiums so that the hired men may be able to get exercise!"

The "Last House."

An effort is to be made to preserve an historic old structure known as "the last house in the world" and which is located at Edmonton, Alta. This building, or group of buildings, is known as Fort Edmonton and for years was the only structure in this northern outpost of civilization. It was formerly owned by the Hudson Bay Co. and the original fort standing on the spot was built in the latter part of the 18th century. It was named Fort Edmonton by one of the leading men in the Hudson Bay Co., after his birthplace in England. The leader in the movement to preserve the old fort is a prominent club woman of Edmonton, Mrs. Arthur Murphy. She will bring a proposition before the Provincial Legislature next spring to restore the historic structure by using original materials. The fort occupies a prominent place on Parliament Hill at Edmonton.

Didn't Get Her Wish.

Each with fingers tightly clutching the end of a wishbone, the residue of a meal served at the Grand Trunk restaurant at London recently — two ladies bethought themselves of what they most desired. With all the due formalities of an ancient superstition, they pulled the V-shaped bone to see whose wish was to be gratified.

Crack went the clavicles. Five tiny fragments flew into the eye of one of the participants, and Dr. Pardee Bucke was summoned to remove them. The old superstition was justified to this extent that it was the young lady who drew the short end of the wishbone who got what she decidedly didn't want.

Honeymoon Ill-Luck.

Ill-luck has attended a 12,000 miles honeymoon trip from London to Auckland, New Zealand. Instead of spending her Christmas at sea, the bride is an inmate of the infectious diseases hospital at Plymouth. Mr. and Mrs. Rose Erbach embarked at London on the New Zealand Shipping Co.'s ship Remuera for a honeymoon voyage to New Zealand. The bride was taken ill aboard ship, and the doctor diagnosed the case as one of diphtheria, and had her removed ashore at Plymouth.

The Cockney Accent.

Members of the scholastic profession in London are declaring that the true Cockney accent and vocabulary are fast disappearing. Soon we shall no longer hear the familiar "Yas, I don't fink" of the facetious newsboy, and other similar distortions of the English language. It is the influence of modern schooling which is seriously impairing the Cockney vocabulary, and practically eliminating the Cockney accent from the streets. Such a true Cockney word as "akellington" for "skeleton" is hardly used at all now.

ANOTHER FIRE AT TRENTON

Stables of the King George Hotel Destroyed

Trenton, Jan. 27 — Trenton certainly seems to be unlucky in the fire line. At 8 o'clock last night, the fire bell alarmed the stillness of Sunday evening. Flames could be seen towering high in the air, and on investigation they proved to be from the stables of the King George Hotel. Mr. Cook, the proprietor, who owns several valuable horses and vehicles, barely had time to remove them from the building. The Courier printing office, Holsey's confectionery store, the Cooley property, and Mumford's machine shop on Front street received slight damage. The property of Messrs. Weaver and Kenny, an extensive piano warehouse was ignited, and fear was entertained that serious damage would result but the fire brigade arrived in time to extinguish the blaze, and confined the flames to the hotel stables, which were a total loss. The damage is estimated at around $1,000 partly covered by insurance.

"Why should I advertise?" "Well, here is an example: America wasn't named after Columbus, who discovered it, but after Amerigo Vespucci, who first advertised it."—From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

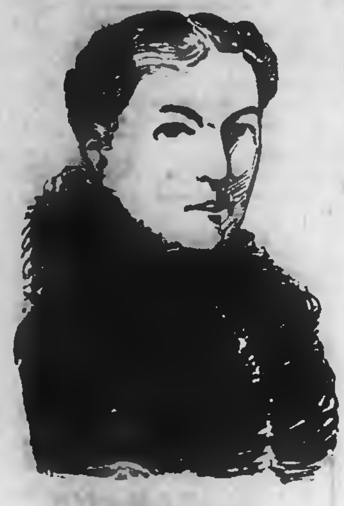
A CELEBRATED WOMAN

MRS. HUMPHREY WARD AT HEAD OF HER PROFESSION.

She Is Britain's Most Famous Woman Novelist and Is a Granddaughter of the Great Dr. Arnold of Rugby—She Is a Colonial by Birth, Having Been Born In Tasmania 61 Years Ago.

One of the most notable women in England to-day is the novelist, Mrs. Humphrey Ward, who was mentioned as a probable recipient of New Year honors. The fact that the literary and artistic professions were almost entirely neglected in the award of decorations has caused a great deal of comment in the old land.

Mrs. Ward is the granddaughter of the famous Dr. Arnold, headmaster of Rugby and renowned scholar. Mrs. Ward herself is colonial by birth, having been born in Tasmania sixty-one years ago. She commenced her literary career with a juvenile book and then appeared as the translator of the celebrated French classic Ahiel's journal. Several novels, now famous, followed: Miss Bretherton, Robert Elsmere, The History of David Grieve, Marcella, Sir George Tressady, Helbeck of Bannisdale, Lady Rose's Daughter, and others. She is also a writer of historical articles and a contributor to the literary and critical magazines.



MRS. HUMPHREY WARD.

Her husband, Thomas Humphrey Ward, is a well-known journalist and author.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Two Poor Ones.

During one of Edwin Forrest's engagements in Boston a poor artist called several times to see the great actor at the old Winthrop House. Each time he brought a picture which he had painted. He finally left it with a note stating that he was in needy circumstances. Forrest read the note and took the wrapping from the picture. It proved to be a painting of himself as Spartacus. Forrest gazed upon it a moment and then ejaculated to the clerk: "Give him $10. If he is as poor as his picture he must be on the point of starvation."

Analogy.

"John, what does it mean to 'play' a fish before landing it?"

"You know how you refused me four times before you accepted me and married me. It's the same thing."—Houston Post.

Strange.

"Blindley had a queer experience in New York last week."

"What happened to him?"

"He had fifty dollars when he left."—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOISES OF PEKING.

Hideous Din Raised by the Venders That Throng the Streets.

An analysis of the street noises of Peking has been made by the correspondent of a western American newspaper and ought to be useful when the anti-noise crusade reaches the orient. The great cause of confusion he finds is the various street venders, each of whom is armed with a noise producing instrument by which he proclaims his trade.

The barber has two prongs of steel through which he draws a spike and thus makes a loud whir. The seller of sweetmeats holds in his right hand two brass cups which he jangles together. The buyer of old clothes taps a small drum with a bit of tarred bamboo, getting by this combination a plunk, plunk that attracts trade. The man who has wicker baskets to sell beats half a gourd with a drumstick, the clothes seller swings a drum which has two bits of metal attached to it by strings, the toy dealer strikes a brass gong of a peculiarly penetrating tone, the knife grinder claps three blocks of iron together, and the seller of charcoal announces his coming by a repeated tap, tap on a block of wood.

The watchman manages to introduce a little variety. He is armed with a wooden drum, which he taps in different measures to mark the different hours of the night. The sound of his drum, however, carries no certain assurance. On the night when Peking was looted you would not have known from him that anything was wrong. In the intervals of the rifle fire the sound of his drum rose undismayed, signaling in superb nonchalance the exciting hours.

The fact is that he is not on duty to catch thieves or even to scare them off, as are some of the Japanese watchmen. His function is nobler. The sound of his drum frightens away the spirits of evil, without whose presence no self respecting thief can hope to pull of a successful job.

COMFORTED THE LADIES.

A Marshal of France Who Was a Hero, a Gallant and a Dandy.

Blaise de Montluc was a soldier and a marshal of France who fought through half the sixteenth century. Like a true Gascon, as he was, he added to his great physical qualities courage, high spirits and unquenchable gayety.

In the Italian wars Blaise de Montluc commanded the defense of Sienna during a prolonged siege. When the town was reduced to a few ounces of bread daily Blaise was overcome with sickness and had himself carried about in a chair muffled up in furs.

But perceiving that the inhabitants, especially the women, were "thus rendered apprehensive of their fate should he die"—so runs an excerpt from De Montluc's "Commentaries"—"he called for a pair of crimson velvet breeches laid over with gold lace, very finely cut, for they were made at a time when he was forsooth in love. He put on a doublet of the same and a shirt of crimson silk and gold twist, then a buff collar over which he put his arms, very finely gilt."

He was at that time wearing gray and white "in honor of a fair lady to whom he was a servant when he had leisure." So he put on a hat of gray silk with a gray silver hatband and a plume of heron's feathers set with silver spangles.

He also put on a short cassock of gray velvet garnished with "little plates of silver at two fingers' distance from one another and lined with cloth of silver, all open between the plates."

Then he "rubbed his face with Greek wine till he brought a little color into his cheeks and drank a small draught with a little bit of bread.

"He then looked at himself in the glass, strutted before his officers, though he had not the strength to kill a chicken, and rode through the town to the great comfort of all beholders."

Illuminating.

The following item is said to appear in a list of police regulations posted up on a highway in Ireland: "Until further notice every vehicle must carry a light when darkness begins. Darkness begins when the lights are lit."

Desperate.

Aunt Ruth—'Tis sad to grow old.

Her Niece—How much would you give to be as young as I? Aunt Ruth—I would almost submit to being as foolish.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat were stronger at an advance of 1½d. The demand from foreign buyers was fairly good for both nearby and spring shipment, and a fair amount of business was worked. There was also a fair enquiry for Manitoba barley, and sales of a few loads were made. The condition of the local market for coarse grains was unchanged, business being dull. A fair local trade continues to be done in flour at steady prices. Millfeed is rather quiet and prices have an easier tendency. A steady business is passing in butter in a jobbing way. Receipts for the week were 1042 packages, as against 1802 a year ago. Cheese has a firmer tone, but the volume of business doing is small. Receipts for week were 151 boxes, as against 776 a year ago. Eggs steady, with a fair demand. Receipts for week, 2111 cases, against 1727 a year ago.

Retains Maiden Name.

TARRYTOWN, N.Y., Jan. 27.—Mrs. Finley J. Shepard has made it known that to continue her identification with philanthropic work and business, she will retain her maiden name, and sign herself as Helen Gould Shepard. Since their marriage on Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard have remained at Lyndhurst much secluded from the public, as guards are still kept about the estate. It is understood they are planning a trip abroad in February.

IMPORTING OF TREES AND PLANTS

All persons who intend to import trees, shrubs, and other kinds of vegetation into Canada, or to ship such trees and plants from one province to another, should make themselves familiar with the regulations of the Dominion and Provincial Governments in this matter. If this is not done inconvenience and possible loss may result owing to the neglect to comply with the requirements of Dominion or Provincial Governments, which requirements are necessitated by the danger of the importation of dangerous pests into Canada or their spread from one province to another.

The regulations governing the importation of vegetation of various kinds into Canada and the Dominion and Provincial laws under which they have been passed have been collected in a convenient form and published as a bulletin with explanatory notes by the Dominion Entomologist, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt. This bulletin, entitled, "Legislation in Canada to Prevent the Introduction and Spread of Insects, Pests and Diseases Destructive to Vegetation with Regulations Regarding the Importation of Vegetation into Canada" is published as Bulletin No. 11, Second Series, of the Experimental Farms Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It also forms Entomological Bulletin No. 6 of the Division of Entomology. It may be obtained free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

AN ARCTIC ADVENTURE.

Nansen's Daring and Perilous Swim For His Drifting Boats.

Among the perilous adventures of the Nansen arctic expedition was the narrow escape of Nansen and Johansen on their return trip to the Fram after their unsuccessful dash for the pole. After many months of hardship a narrow channel opened in the ice and they launched the two light kaiaks that they had carried on their sledges for more than a year. A few days afterward disaster nearly put an end to the expedition. The incident is related in "The Siege and Conquest of the North Pole," by Mr. George Bryce.

In the evening their legs felt stiff with sitting in the kaiaks all day, and they landed on the edge of the ice so that they might stretch them a little. After the kaiaks, which were lashed together, had been moored by means of one of the braces they ascended a hummock close by and had been standing there only a moment when Johansen raised the cry that the kaiaks were adrift.

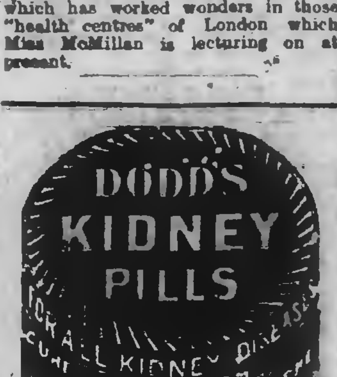
They ran to the edge of the ice, but the boats were already a little way off and were drifting quickly. The position was a terrible one, for all they possessed was on board. Nansen at once threw off some of his clothing, handed his watch to Johansen and sprang into the icy water. He knew that if the boats were lost it meant death to him and his companion. At first it seemed more than doubtful whether he could manage to regain them. When he got tired he turned over and swam on his back. At length he gained a little and redoubled his exertions.

By this time Nansen felt his limbs stiffening and losing all feeling. His strokes became more and more feeble, but the distance from the kaiaks became shorter, and at last he was able to grasp a snowshoe that lay across the sterns. He now tried to pull himself up, but his body was so stiff with cold that he could not do so. After a little he managed to swing one leg up to the edge of the sledge that was lashed to the deck and then raised the rest of his body. They were saved!

With some difficulty he paddled the kaiaks back to Johansen, who admitted that these were the worst moments he had ever lived through. Johansen now pulled off Nansen's wet clothes, put on the few dry ones they had in reserve, spread the sleeping bag upon the ice and covered Nansen with the sail and everything he could find to keep out the cold. The next day Nansen was all right again, and in the evening they pressed forward once more on the march that finally brought them out of the arctic.

Training Their Senses.

Toronto has made a beginning in the special education of children described at "mentally defective." A class has been formed, under the conduct of Miss Carruthers, of children whose minds are so undeveloped as to make them unable to follow the regular school course. As much individual attention as possible is given and the method consists mainly in training the five senses—a method which has worked wonders in those "health centres" of London which Miss McMillan is lecturing on at present.



EARLY DATE THIS YEAR FOR EASTER

Easter comes this year on March 23. This will be Easter's earliest appearance in years. Last year it came April 7. Regarding Easter, an encyclopaedia says: Easter never comes before March 22 nor after April 25. In 1761 and 1818 Easter fell on March 22, but this will not be the case in any year of the present century. The latest Easter in this century occurs in 1943, when it will be April 25. Easter is always the first Sunday after the paschal full moon, i.e., the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21. It is, therefore, not the actual moon in the heaven, nor even the mean moon of astronomers that regulates the time of Easter but an altogether imaginary moon whose periods are so contrived that the new calendar moon always follows the real new moon, sometimes by two or even threee days.

N. MONAGHAN BOARD OF HEALTH

The Board of Health of the township of North Monaghan met Saturday afternoon in the County Council Chambers. Those present were Messrs. Dr. Greer, township M.H.O.; Reeve W. G. Howden and the members of the old board, viz., Messrs. John Harper, G. H. McClelland and Herman Wilson. The Board now consists of the Medical Health Officer, the township Reeve, the township Secretary, and Mr. John Harper, elected at the meeting just held.

The Board, moved by Messrs. Greer and Harper, appointed Reeve Howden chairman. Dr. Greer presented his report for 1912, which showed that the general health of the township was very good.

It was unanimously the decision of the Board that a strict supervision of Sanitary conditions shall be enforced, as covered by the general law now eixsting, where the suburbs of a village, town or city abutt on the confines of the municipality. In short the township Board of Health demonstrated that they are fully alive to the necessities of sanitary conditions and have made up their minds to see that the same are strictly enforced.

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes, 25c. per box, from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE SPORTING WORLD

HOCKEY CHAMPIONS OF CANADA LIKELY TO WIN TITLE AGAIN

McGILL UNIVERSITY HOCKEY SQUAD

The McGill University hockey team, the intercollegiate champions of Canada, is regarded as one of the finest of college hockey teams. Last year McGill captured the title after one of the hardest fought battles in the history of the sport in the Dominion. The Ottawa University team figured in the final contest last year and is likely to again this season, but judges of the sport predict another championship for the McGill players.

UNDER-RATED INTERMEDIATES ALONE LEAD THEIR DISTRICT

The following standings show the position of the three Peterborough O.H.A. teams in their respective districts. It isn't so very long ago that the fans were inclined to "pass up" the intermediates as an outfit already hors de combat.

But the middlemen piled up a 12-3 score against Cobourg, and went to Trenton and doubled the score in their favor. And they're not finished yet. With any kind of half decent luck, the intermediates will win this district without a loss and go more than a few miles further.

Wilson, now that he has had practice, is doing good work in the nets. That old war horse J. Percival Bond has to be reckoned with, and the same applies to Pete Weatherston, Ross, Giroux, Hall and Griffith:

The Quaker Oats Staff and the C. P. R. Staff played hockey on Saturday night between 5 and 7 o'clock at the Brock street rink. The Quakers won 5—2.

CAMERON MUST QUIT THE GAME HAS BAD KNEE

"Scotty" Cameron, the Detroit boy who was drafted from the Canadian League by Connie Mack at the close of the 1911 season and who was ltaer turned over to Baltimore in the International circuit, has decided to quit professional baseball, says the Detroit Journal.

Cameron is now associated with the corporation counsel's office in Detroit, and he is also senior at the Detroit College of Law. He will graduate in June, and he plans to take up the practice of law in September.

"I hurt my knee while playing in a scrub game about Detroit in the spring of 1912, and the member didn't recover its strength through the entire season," said "Scotty." After reporting to Baltimore I was unable to show my true form and I was sent to Hamilton, in the Canadian League. I managed to play out the season there, but I doubt if my knee will ever regain its strength.

THE GAME OF THE SEASON TO-NIGHT

When St. Mikes and the local seniors are let loose at the rink to-night, Peterborough fans will witness a great exhibition of hockey. It wouldn't do for the Toronto crew to come here and take the count and the Irishmen can be relied upon to do their prettiest. The Petes have not forgotten that first experience on artificial ice, and will go into the game with the sole intention of taking the big end of the score. St. Mike's are not unbeatable. The team will not be so effective on the smaller ice surface but they will be good enough to give the Petes the hottest argument one team ever had.

The local line up will be:

Goal—Dwyer.
Point—Spratt.
Cover—Giroux
Rover—Coughlin.
Centre—Parke
Right—Armstrong.
Left—Kelly.

THE TANKARD TO-MORROW

The primaries of the Ontario Tankard for group 2 will be played at the Curling Rink to-morrow, commencing at one o'clock.

Two rinks of the local club go to Lindsay to-morrow to compete in the District Cup games.

HOCKEY SCORES

The following are the scores in hockey games played on Saturday:

SPORT TALK

Here's the latest story they are telling on Rube Marquard, the $11,000 pitcher on the Giant's staff, and just now an ornament on the Orpheum vaudeville circuit. Mr. Marquard's reading, his mates say, has been largely confined to the hits and errors column.

"One day," another member of the Giants said, "Rube was reading the account of a game out loud. At the close of the story was the note: 'Umpires Messrs. Klem and Kane.'"

"Say," said Rube, 'who is this fellow Messrs.? He's been umpiring all over the league, but I've never seen him."

Ten of the speediest swimmers of of McGill University left Montreal yesterday for their annual American trip. In the course of the next two weeks the Canadians will engage in a series of contests at Yale, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia and other leading Eastern universities.

"When St. Michael's travel they travel right." They go to Peterborough in a special train at 5 o'clock this afternoon, with a large delegation of supporters. The train will include Pullman sleepers and a dining-car.—Toronto Globe.

LEFT HANDED SECOND BASEMAN

Hal Chase Says He Could Play the Middle Sack

New York, Jan. 27.—Can a left-handed man play second base as well as the man who throws with his right arm? Hal. Chase, star first baseman of the New York Americans, thinks he can.

"I do not think I would have any trouble in playing second base," said Chase, "in spite of the fact that I am left-handed. There is a mistake, according to my opinion, about left-handers playing second base. It is up to the man himself. I played the bag in Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, and satisfied myself that I would not have any trouble in taking care of the position. I will jump at the opportunity if it comes my way."

Colts Won 10-5

The Colts defeated the Invincibles at Parker's rink Saturday afternoon by a score of 10—5. The Colts led at half time by 8—4.

Knew the Symptoms.

"Doctor, my husband is losing his mind, I fear. He continually mumbles and mutters to himself."

"Is it possible?"

"Yes; he mutters to himself, and when you speak to him he stares at you blankly."

"I know what the trouble is," said the doctor, smiling. "He is memorizing some lodge work. I belong to the same lodge."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Unnecessary Instructions.

"Now, Tommy," said his mother, giving her final instructions before he left for the party, "remember, if you're asked to have something you want you must say, 'Yes, thank you,' and if you don't want it"—

Tommy raised his hand. "That's all right, ma," he said; "you needn't bother about that part of it."

BROWNIES WILL DINE TO-NIGHT

The members of the Brownies basketball team will be the guests at dinner to-night of Mr. A. A. Hainsworth Y.M.C.A. Secretary.

Mr. Ivor Brock will give a short address.

Powerful New Magnifying Glass.

A new method of seeing things which is 1,000,000 times more powerful than the most powerful magnifying glass to-day is being tested in England by Sir J. J. Thomson. Up until a short time ago the spectroscope was the finest instrument of analysis available for chemical and scientific research. And now comes this instrument, millions upon millions of times more exact than the spectroscope. With his new magnifying apparatus, a combination of spectroscope and photographing camera, Sir J. J. Thomson is said to have been able to detect chemical combinations which exist only in that part of a second which compares to a second as a second compares to a year.

Asking Too Much.

"Is you de S. P. C. A.?" asked the negro with his arm in a sling.

"I am a member of the society," replied the earnest looking young man.

"Well, I wants to repo't my mule to you. I been arrested twice on his account, an' I ain't g'ine to hab no mo' words wif 'im?"

"Has anybody hurt him?"
